Headquartered in Dar-es-Salaam, capital of Tanzania, (in East Africa), and in Conakry, capital of the Republic of Guinea (in West Africa), the revolutionary movements produce propaganda sheets, newspapers and solicit funds.

Last year a major storm broke out around fund-raising for the World Council of Churches when information revealed some of their money was going to African liberation movements. Some of these are scarcely "Christian," but have Marxist and Maoist principles as their ideological bases.

Meantime, the Portuguese colonial authorities, bolstered by army conscripts do more than hold on. In spite of the liberation campaigns from neighboring black countries, the Portuguese are in control of their empire.

Angola, for example, is economically prosperous, a real asset to Portugal's more shaky economy. And Lisbon shows no signs whatever of weakening.

Survey Mania Grips Canada

The Trentonian

Surveys are the order of the day. We study, survey, investigate, probe, look into, and generally set up committees to report on everything from hang mails to highway routes.

Well, let's have one of our own. Taking a form from the LORDC survey, which really plants ideas instead of seeking information, we might ask a few questions of this sort:

Do you believe we have a right to live in peace and security?

Do you believe that police and courts exist to see that we can?

Do you believe that the primary purpose of law is to punish offenders and protect the public?

Can you explain why it is, if most of us feel like this, the fellows who pass the laws and administer them, molly coddle criminals, legalize morally wrong things, and stop the courts from punishing punks who beat up old people, as well as handing out paroles as though criminals were all tea party guests?

If anybody can answer these questions, we should be glad.

Maritime MP's Conclusion

Being Self-Employed Has Few Remaining Benefits

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

Are there many real benefits left in being self-employed? This interesting question was posed here recently by a Nova Scotia member of Parliament, Elmer MacKay. His general conclusion was that there are fewer and fewer benefits.

For a long time in our development the independent, individual small storekeeper, businessman, even industrialist, was the backbone of the economy. He provided the middle-class strength that paid its bills, paid its taxes and provided a substantial amount of employment in every village, town and city in the country.

But this picture gradually changed and the self-employed people found themselves caught up in a steadily growing bureaucracy that demanded more and more of their time and their money and reduced the freedom that made self-employment attractive to so many.

A great deal has been heard recently about the way the federal government is adding to the burdens of middle-income Canadians and Health and Welfare Minister John Munro's surprisingly frank speech on the subject has underscored the government. Mr. Munro admitted the government was looking to this group to shoulder a still greater load of taxes to pay for the social benefits that have been initiated by successive governments over the years.

But to return to Mr. MacKay. He believes that one segment of the middle-class group, the self-employed — is being discriminated against in a very fundamental way. They are, he contends, being penalized in contributing to their own retirement through the Canada Pension Plan.

The self-employed Canadian can not claim for a deduction in his income tax for his contributions to the pension plan and, in this connection at least, would be better off working for someone else. He cites the example of an average self-employed Canadian who makes about $8,000 a year. If he pays half of an employee's pension plan contribution of $160 a year, he is able to deduct approximately $80 of this as a business expense. His own personal contribution, if it should also be $80, must be paid entirely by himself and he is not allowed to deduct any part of this.

He believes the government could afford, in all justice, to absorb half of the cost of the pension plan contributions of self-employed persons, as they must do for their employees, or allow tax credits or deduction for a part or all of their contributions.

The few benefits left in being self-employed are, in many instances, "petty," Mr. MacKay contends. "The self-employed person is constantly badgered by governments for statistics and he is caught in arbitrary decisions on taxation policy and conflicts between federal and provincial administration."

While an election campaign has not officially been called as of the date of this writing, there is no doubt the actual campaign has been underway for some time. And this makes it all the more important that the question of the use of government aircraft by cabinet ministers be put to rest. The campaign is officially it.

There is a policy on this laid down by the prime minister in 1968. Briefly, it states that official aircraft may not be used for purposes related to election campaigns. Such aircraft may be used only when the performance of governmental business is the purpose of a trip. It should not be used in cases where a minister engages in public political activities even if the trip also involves some government business.

Now if someone could just define what is political business ends and public political activities start, the problem might have some real meaning.

Wages Secondary

Three Issues Seen as Hydro Strike Keys

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Vivier, president of Local 1,000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, which has been staging a series of rotating strikes against Ontario Hydro since June 15, said Monday if three key issues can be settled the union "can sit down with Hydro and discuss wage issues."

Mr. Vivier identified the crucial issues as management proposals for an amended work week and a request wage increases for different categories, and the union's insistence on job-security clauses.

The amended work week, which Hydro wants incorporated in a new contract, Mr. Vivier, involves tradesmen agreeing to work any five days of the week for any eight-hour period between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., rather than the Monday-to-Friday, 8 a.m.-to-5 p.m. week now standard.

The unequal wage scales, he said, would result in a range of increases from 3.9 to eight per cent a year, rather than an across-the-board increase.

The job-security issue was sought by a study being conducted by an Ontario government group. The union fears layoffs and job transfers will result from the study and wants a new contract to spell out what security Hydro employees can expect.

If these hurdles are cleared away, Mr. Vivier said, the union is prepared to negotiate the wage issue.

He confirmed that the union presented its "rock-bottom" position to provincial mediator Victor Scott June 30, which "significantly scaled down" the union's original request for an 18-per-cent increase in one year.

However, Mr. Vivier discounted reports that the 70-cent has offered to accept a six-per-cent increase in each of two years of a contract.

Details of the union's new position have not been revealed.

About 300 workers returned at the utility's main office in Toronto and at construction workers returned at Bruce nuclear generating station and at the General at a plant near Kingston.

At Bruce, however, a Hydro spokesman said 130 construction workers were off the job again Monday.

One incident involving police and a picket was reported Monday.

A union spokesman said a picket at Douglas Point generating station was struck by a police cruiser. The man was not hurt, the union reported, but has been charged with obstructing a highway.

Provincial police in Mount Forest confirmed that a charge of obstructing a highway will be laid.

A similar charge was laid against Mark Breckon of Port Elgin after an incident outside the same plant June 20.

Breckon is expected to appear in court in Kincardine later this month.

As a result of the strike rotation, maintenance on Hydro installations line come to a standstill and billing has fallen behind in some regions.

However, Hydro's generating capacity has not been greatly affected. July 6, for example, the utility, working with supervisory personnel, generated 3,700,000 kilowatts of which it sold 500,000 kilowatts to other utilities.

Court Will Decide if OMB Can Review Own Decision

TORONTO (CP) — Can the Ontario Municipal Board approve a project and then change its mind? That's what the courts will be asked to decide.

Metro Toronto officials cried foul when OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy, at the request of a citizens' group, decided last summer to hold up the Scarborough Expressway project, which he already had approved in principle. He ordered that the project be publicly justified.

Metro Nov. 2 challenged Monday his right to review the decision, and Mr. Kennedy agreed to let the matter go to court, saying:

"This board should never appear to be flouting the authority of the courts."

The question whether the OMB can rescind its own approval, will go next week this fall before the Ontario divisional court, an appeal court recently established for administrative tribunals. The decision there is subject to appeal to the Ontario Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada.

The project is a proposed 13-mile easterly extension of the Gardiner Expressway. Metro's major east-west artery along the lakeshore.

In a similar case in Brantford, the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled in March that the OMB, having already approved a 5.8-mile downtown expressway, could not require the city at the request of citizens opposing the project a second order financing method.

But the lawyer for Toronto's Far West Nine citizens' group, Alan Lenczner, argued Monday that the cases are different because the OMB had given unrestricted approval to the Brantford project. Mr. Kennedy's approval in the Toronto project was for only $23 million of the total planned expenditure of $102 million.

B.C. Forest Workers OK Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's striking forest workers have overwhelmingly accepted an agreement by a narrow margin, but that might not be enough to restore production.

It's the employers' turn to consider the agreement, and one executive says the 115 coast companies doubt that the union can guarantee all its members will honor the contract. The companies could withhold full approval until the International Woodworkers of America puts its house in order.

Representatives of the companies are holding a series of meetings today to decide whether to approve the memorandum of agreement which won only 53 per cent approval from the 38,000 woodworkers.

The agreement provides for an increase of 73 cents an hour on the present $3.72 base rate for laborers, special category adjustments, full company payment of health and welfare premiums and a number of other improvements in fringe benefits.

A key element in the companies' discussions likely will be the issue of the 800 fallers who began a wildcat strike in mid-April, long before an official general walkout was called on June 22.

Chuck Evans and Mike Davis, spokesmen for the fallers, said Monday night that more than 600 fallers voted against the contract proposals and are determined to stay out until their demands are met.

The fallers' wildcat action had forced loggers to the official strike by drying up the flow of logs, and so the companies are faced with the threat of continued disruption even if they sign a contract.

This raised the possibility that the companies might reject the bargain, telling the IWA to straighten out its intra-union dispute with the fallers and the general dissatisfaction expressed by the split over-all vote.

Quebecers Live Longer

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebecers are living longer than they did 10 years ago and the province's women outlive men by an estimated five-and-half years, says a recent report of the Quebec Bureau of Statistics.

The report, which deals with the main causes of death in the province between 1900 and 1967, says that Quebec men now can expect to live until they are 66 while women will hang on until 74.

Eclipse Brings Afternoon Dusk

EAST QUODDY, N.S. (CP) — Sudden darkness descended on a 100-mile-wide belt across Canada Monday as the moon blacked out the summer sun in a total eclipse.

Thousands of sky-watchers felt the temperature dip as birds fluttered in search of a roosting place and street lamps and car-lights were turned on.

Astronomers and other scientists studied the event from aircraft and on the ground.

"A very coherent and educational kind of experience," was the summation of Dr. Carl Sagan, director of the planetary studies laboratory at Cornell University.

The path of totality swept southeast from the Arctic ocean across the Northwest Territories, Hudson Bay and central Quebec to the Maritime provinces. Viewing conditions varied —good in the Northwest Territories and in Nova Scotia, fair in Prince Edward Island, poor in some parts of Quebec and New Brunswick.

At East Quoddy, on the Nova Scotia coast 85 miles northeast of Halifax, conditions were ideal. Scientists of the National Research Council fired four Black Brant rockets 100 miles into the air to measure ionization changes that often disrupt radio communications.

The four rockets fell into the sea about 45 miles offshore after flights of slightly more than six minutes each.

Dr. A. G. McNamara of Ottawa, the project scientist, said everything about the rocket shoot went on schedule. But he was even more enthusiastic about what he and other watchers saw with the ordinary eye peering through blackened photographic film.

Dr. Sagan, who watched the phenomenon at Pugwash in northern Nova Scotia, said it gave him a feeling of awe and an insight into the effect a sun's eclipse would have on primitive people without knowledge of science. He described it as the most beautiful eclipse he had ever seen.

The total eclipse was the last but one to be seen in North America in this century. The remaining one will be visible in central and northeastern Canada in 1979.

'I Want Justice' Cry Of Dead Boy's Mother

TORONTO (CP) — A fire which killed John Murney, 10, sleeping in a backyard tent May 21, was of unknown origin, an coroner's jury decided Monday.

However, Coroner Ivan Gaetha said he believed the fire was caused by a smouldering firework after witnesses said the eight boys sleeping in the tent were playing with fireworks.

Captain Harold Kelly of the Scarborough fire department said a piece of a sparkler lit about 10:30 p.m. may have smouldered unnoticed for hours and been the cause of the blaze that finally broke out about 2:30 a.m.

Shirley Murney, mother of the dead boy, startled the inquest when she said during her testimony:

"I want justice. This inquest doesn't seem right. Everybody doesn't seem to be taking it serious, maybe because it wasn't their boy."

Mrs. Murney said that just before her son died in hospital, two days after suffering burns to 95 per cent of his body, he told her:

However, Margaret Millar testified that because of an argument between the boys she took Alan, also 10, from the tent into her house, and he was asleep by 11:30 p.m.

She said it was not possible her son could have thrown a firecracker into the tent, causing the fire.

Margaret Burke said she was watching television at about 2 a.m. when she saw what she thought were teen-agers running past the tent carrying "flames."

When she went outside she saw John Murney.

"I saw him crawling on his hands and knees and he was nothing but a burning torch."

Parole Makes Crime Better Than College

Crime Pays

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Parole reform has made crime a better paying proposition than a university education, says Ralph Marcil, president of Montreal's 5,000-man Policemen's Brotherhood.

And the heads of all provincial police associations agreed with him Monday that reform of the prison reform system by the federal government went too far.

"Crime pays," Mr. Marcil said during the annual conference of the Canadian Police Association.

"It's better than a university education. If you go into crime today your chances of success are very good. And if you end up in jail all the benefits are on the side of the criminal."

The leaders of provincial associations, sitting on a panel with Mr. Marcil, agreed that the grounds for granting parole should be tightened.

So did Sydney Brown of Toronto, president of the association, in an opening address which also was critical of changing conditions within prisons.

"If we maintain our present reckless and misdirected course of stupidity and senselessness then shortly our courts will be forced to put checks to prisoners in case they don't approve of the surroundings or conditions," Mr. Brown said.

He urged all policemen to take a more active part in politics.

"Make a concerted effort to attend political rallies and seek out publicly the opinions of all candidates on all the issues that affect law enforcement," he said. Police should work to get suitable candidates elected, regardless of party affiliation.

Mr. Brown said the future of capital punishment should be decided by national referendum, not by Parliament.

He called for a two-part vote on the issue, the first to determine whether capital punishment should be retained; and the second to decide if the death penalty should be used for murder of police officers and prison guards.

A five-year trial period with abolished capital punishment except when the murder involved policemen and guards ends this December, when Parliament is expected to decide whether the abolition will continue indefinitely.

During the trial period no one has been executed although the death sentence has been given to people convicted of killing police officers. In each case the sentence was commuted by the federal cabinet, Mr. Brown said.

"If the Canadian government truly wants to resolve this issue and is really desirous of satisfying the wants of the Canadian people, then let it be placed on a referendum."

Mr. Brown also told the convention that police "must be given the absolute right and freedom to use wiretapping if we are to contain criminal activity within our present society."

He suggested that authorization for wiretap come from the provincial, federal or provincial justice departments, or, in case of emergency, that a temporary permission could come from a local chief of police.

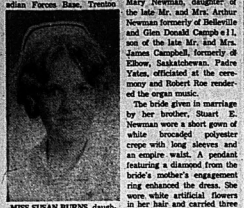
WEDDING

CAMPBELL — NEWMAN

The Protestant Chapel, Canadian Forces Base, Trenton was the scene of the July 1 wedding ceremony of Sandra Mary Newman, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newman formerly of Belleville and Glen Donald Campbell, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell formerly of Elbow, Saskatchewan. Padre Yates, officiated at the ceremony and Robert Roe rendered the organ music.



MISS SUSAN BURNS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Burns, Belleville, recently graduated from the Oshawa General Hospital School of Nursing. Miss Burns, a graduate of Moira Secondary School, plans to remain on staff at the Oshawa Hospital.

MISS JUDITH LEVINE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Levine, Belleville, received her Bachelor of Arts degree at convocation exercises held recently at Sir George Williams University, Montreal. Miss Levine who received her B.P.E. degree previously at McDonald College, Quebec, plans to teach high school in Montreal this fall.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, Stuart E. Newman wore a short gown of white brocaded polyester crepe with long sleeves and an empire waist. A pendant featuring a diamond from the bride's mother's engagement ring enhanced the dress. She wore white artificial flowers in her hair and carried three long stemmed red roses with a narrow white ribbon.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Lorraine Gibbs, Trenton wore a mint green short-sleeved dress in the same material and style as the bride's. She wore pink artificial flowers in her hair. Flower girl, Miss Marianne Mullen, Lantz, Nova Scotia, niece of the bride wore the same style dress as the matron of honor, only in pink. She also wore pink artificial flowers in her hair and carried a white basket of three pink sweetheart roses and white pompoms.

Best man was John Hamilton, of Trenton and ushers were Master Richard Newman and Master Shawn Mullen, both nephews of the bride.

For the reception held at the Belleville Sports Club, the bride's sister Mrs. Lorie Mullen of Lantz, Nova Scotia, acting in behalf of the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a yellow floral crepe gown with yellow crocheted vest. A corsage of white carnations enhanced the dress. Mrs. Barbara Joan Newman cousin of the bride presided several solo selections at the reception.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 149 Wright

Community Centre Appointments

TWEED — Recently a meeting of over 35 residents of Northbrook met in the Northbrook Community Centre and formed a Northbrook Community Association. Officers elected were as follows: president Ken Douglas; secretary, Helen Yanch; treasurer, Laura Drysdale; directors Alex Buchanan, Elaine Douglas and Glen Drysdale.

The purpose of the association is to operate the Community Centre; develop the property for recreational and park purposes and generally to make Northbrook a better place to live.

To raise money for recreational development the following program has been established: July 1 bake and rummage sale; July 15, 50-50 draw, July 16, steak dinner and Aug. 5 bake and rummage sale.

Delicious chocolate bars and almonds are now on sale at local businesses. Other events and draws will be announced later.

Meetings will be held with the teenagers and young adults to encourage participation in the development of a master plan for recreational requirements.

Monthly meetings will be held on the second Monday of each month. All residents are cordially invited to attend and participate in the activities.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Glen Donald Campbell (nee Sandra Mary Newman) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held in the home of Mrs. Barbara Mc-Clintock, Carrying Place and given by Mrs. Lorraine Gibbs, Fellow teachers of V.P. Carswell School, Trenton attended. A wine and towel shower was held in the home of Mrs. Barbara Joan Newman with Mrs. Sharon Newman and Mrs. Elizabeth Austin as co-hostesses.

'Open House' Held At Arts School

TWEED — Painters, their families and friends attended the "Open House" held Saturday, July 1 at the Schneider School of Fine Arts which is beginning its tenth season. All comers were graciously welcomed by Mary Schneider, managing director, painter and teacher (teaching August 21 to 26). The visitors toured the school, the buildings and grounds with painting on location guided by qualified professional instructors. Refreshments and music were enjoyed by all.

The Schneider School of Fine Arts is located on Highway 37, near Actinolite and some 30 miles north of Belleville.

Victor Tinki directed painters outdoors and in the Studio Building beside Skootamatta River for the July 3 week. Other noted artists who will be visiting will be: Alan Jarvis, John Gould, Alexander Millar, Carl Schaeffer, and Don Fraser. These people will be at the school until Labor Day.

For the Thanksgiving weekend, the visiting artists will be Guttorn Otto.

The Schneider School will be open the entire week, Friday, Sept. 29 to Monday, Oct. 9.

Declining Membership Major Topic At Convention

TORONTO (CP) — Declining membership was a major topic at Monday's first session of the 23rd biennial meeting of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

About 300 delegates are attending, representing 4,871 members. Membership is down from 5,245 in 1971, despite the addition of about 900 new members during the year.

A report suggested more members might be attracted if meetings were held at lunch time and if affinity groups were established to draw members who work or live in the same area. It said the federation should consider service activities to increase community involvement though it is not primarily a service club.

Margaret Hyndman, a Toronto lawyer and past president, said today's working women have no time for meetings.

In her opening address, president Charlotte Vandine of Montreal said the foremost objective of the federation is to improve the status of women.

That status will be the main theme of the convention, which ends July 13.

Mission at Indore Sends Thanks

By DORIS CLARK

Excerpts from Frances Stevenson's most recent letter from her mission in Indore, India:

"Many thanks to all those who have sent cards and parcels. They are most helpful to us for people earning here. We could weep, though, to see the amount of postage you have to pay.

"A little request I'd like to make. If anybody has a spare bearing suit for a boy of about two, a young man here may lose his job if he doesn't get one soon.

"I am coming home to Toronto on furlough for three months. Address is c/o Mrs. W. E. Pomeroy, (my sister), 49 Browning Avenue, Toronto 355, Ontario.

"My front verandah here runs the length of the apartment; looks down on the busy Bombay-Agra Road where the whole world goes by. Noise — and how! and DUST. Phew! An anti-smoke movement has started in Bombay — let us hope it reaches Indore before my return!

"But how interesting, the traffic — buses, trucks, motorcycles, scooters (on which they sometimes sit five people) bicycles galore, ox-carts, goats, pedestrians, donkey loads and sometimes a camel or an elephant, horse-drawn tongas, hand — cars, bridegrooms on horses with their following of chandelier-like pedicure lights carried on women's heads; also three-wheeled large general and small particular taxis. I can crowd into a large car to correspond to a hospital (about 10 minutes of hot, trafficy walk) for three cents."

Dear Doris: This spring the dial telephones were put in our community. Since then we have received at least one prank phone call a day.

Who could I get in contact with so there would be a stop to this? I'm not the only one bothered this way. — A Tax Paying Citizen.

Dear Citizen: Not only a bother. It may be just a prank; but such calls may be coming from someone wishing to learn your habits — with evil intentions.

If the caller finds that at a certain time of day your telephone is never answered, he may select the time for an unscheduled visit through an insecure window, or a door that can be unlocked easily. Report your calls to the telephone company and to the police.

Meanwhile, show no annoyance or disturbance to your unknown caller. Merely hang up. If it is just a prankster, there won't be any fun in calling a number which doesn't react.

Dear Doris: I am 13 years old and in Grade Eight. I have been kissed by boys before, but I have never been kissed very seriously. Now a boy in Grade Nine has asked me to go around with him. He hasn't kissed me yet, but what should I do when he does?

What exactly does a girl do with her lips when she is kissing seriously? How does she move her head? Who ends the kiss, and how is it ended? — Anxious To Know.

Dear Anxious!: To kiss seriously at 13 isn't in my book. Your motive is obviously "Be Prepared."

Make your kisses rare, not cheap. If your new boy friend becomes someone you feel warm friendship for, a relaxed kiss is your expression of affection.

No need to move your head or get passionate like a movie star.

As for who ends the kiss — there are times when a gentle push from the girl is practically a necessity.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Is reading good only for killing time?

NO; and yet so many people think of reading as a last resort when they have nothing else to do. Someone who takes this attitude often develops an aversion to reading. Rather than reading for the sheer pleasure it can provide, such a person will hate to read because it doesn't provide the intellectual stimulation he hopes to derive from it. Not only that, he might even blame reading for his failure to use his time more "profitably."

Has Women's Lib hurt child-rearing?

NO; all parents — even those who do not agree with the more militant views of the Women's Liberation Movement — are perhaps better mothers and fathers because of the attention that has been given to the role of women. Any phenomenon that encourages people — collectively and individually — to be more conscious of themselves as persons can only improve such a sensitive and responsive relationship as that which exists between parent and child.

Why would a 'perfect' marriage fail?

FOR the same reason a shaky marriage could be destroyed: love is lacking. In the seemingly perfect marriage, the husband may appear to "have it all": material success; a wife who makes every man envy the husband; status; position; etc. Without love, though, there is no life in the marriage, no vibrancy. Unfortunately, often the couple themselves often fail to see why they aren't happy, especially since everyone says they're "so perfect together."

Choir Supper

WHITE'S DISTRICT — On Wednesday evening 24 members of the Westminster United Church choir of Sidney Township met at the church for a potluck supper.

Miss Linda Johnston was guest of honor as she is leaving in the fall to enter University and will be unable to continue as choir leader and organist. She was presented with two pieces of luggage for which she thanked all for kindness and co-operation while she was organist.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day, and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. In pain-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions — even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Ann Landers

Customer Annoyed by Tipping

Dear Ann Landers: I just came from the beauty shop where I spent $36 for $16 worth of work. Will you please tell me why American women can be cajoled, allow themselves to be browbeaten and horsewoggled into tipping people who are there to perform a service for the shop?

My shampoo and set cost $8. I have to have a few hairs clipped — this is called "shaping" — and it came to another $3. The manicure was $3. Total bill $14, plus $2 tip for the operator, $1 for the manicurist, 50 cents for the girl who shampooed my head and 50 cents for the maid who unslopped my dress and brought me a cup of cold coffee and an old movie magazine.

The prices these days are cruel enough, but that tipping racket burns me to a cinder. Why don't you wage a campaign to put an end to tipping in beauty shops? Tell the women to express their resentment by staying away from the shops for a month. It's not hard to twist your own hair at home if you have to — and when they start back to the shop — no tipping. — Mrs. American Cleanup

Dear Mrs.: Most beauty operators, like most waitresses, depend on tips to live on. Unfair? Maybe, but that's the system and I see no hope of changing it in the near future. I know of few occupations where talent (or the lack of it) can make such a big difference. If you want to stay home and twist your hair for a month, be my guest. I may even join you. I'd much rather go to my beauty operator and have someone else do it.

Dear Ann Landers: There are homes for old folks, homes for the mentally ill, homes for destitute children, and even homes for unwanted animals. But where do unwanted wives go?

We must live under the same roof with husbands who don't want us. Our children have made it plain that they have no intention of risking their marriages by having a mother-in-law around. So we live with men we don't love or respect while the men in our own living which means drink too much. have women on the side and come home whenever they feel like it.

Being less than saints, our blood pressure goes up and our tempers blow. We are labelled shrews, nags, and hopelessly neurotic. People feel sorry for our husbands — not us. If your advice is "leave," then tell us where we could go. We are too old to work and we have no special skills. We aren't sufficiently attractive or sexy to interest another man — and we know it. We are just ordinary, tired, bitter women-worn out and beat down. Any suggestions, Ann? — A Loser

Dear Friend: It's obvious that you aren't getting much out of life but what are you giving? You need to become involved in something outside of your own misery. A woman doesn't have to be sexy or good looking to do volunteer work with the handicapped, the aged or the blind. The list of things you might do is endless. I'm suggesting that you give of yourself to someone who is less fortunate — it's the best cure for people who are sick of themselves. Get going and good luck to you.

More Growth Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — The economy should continue expanding through the balance of this year and next, a group of businessmen and economists concluded in a forum, sponsored by The Conference Board in Canada.

The forum was held in February in closed session, and a transcript of its discussion was released Monday by the board along with a summary saying the gross national product should rise by about 10 per cent this year.

The GNP—the total value of all goods and services being produced in the country—ran at an annual rate of $98.74 billion in the first quarter of 1972, up 10.5 per cent from a year earlier.

The Conference Board forum's participants expected economic expansion to continue both in Canada and the U.S., though some of the participants thought there might be some slackening in the rate of increase during the second half of this year.

GNP rose last year by 5.5 per cent in the physical volume of output, combined with a general price rise of a "little more than three per cent. The forum expected that physical volume of output would increase this year by six to 6.5 per cent, while prices would rise by 3.5 to four per cent.

Arthur J. R. Smith, president of the Conference Board in Canada and former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, told the meeting that output per capital in Canada has been growing at nearly twice the rate of the real increase in goods and services produced in the U.S.

This has meant a significant narrowing of the gap between per-capita output of the two countries in the last two years, he said.

Professor Edward P. Neufeld of the University of Toronto's department of economics was one who thought the second half of 1972 might show a somewhat slower rate of growth than the first half.

He was confident, however, that Canada's international trade position will stabilize and come into balance by 1974 or 1975.

Peter Campbell, vice-president and director of Wood Gundy Ltd., Toronto investment dealers, anticipated higher short-term and corporate bond interest rates before the end of 1972, but said mortgage interest rates should gradually decline.

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — The state trial of Arthur Herman Brumer, on charges resulting from the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace originally set to begin Wednesday, has been postponed until July 31. Wallace was shot May 15 at a Laurel, Md., shopping centre.

Goyer to Study RCMP 'Trials'

Mr. Goyer made the statement after a meeting with former RCMP corporal Jack Ramsay who recently wrote an article for a national magazine in which he said morale in the force was low, the alcoholic rate high and the suicide rate serious.

The chance meeting Monday resulted from a conversation between the two on a CKCK radio open-line show.

Cabinet Members Are Busy

OTTAWA (CP) — Cabinet ministers have begun a hectic week of meetings, cleaning up administrative matters and looking ahead to a fall Parliament before they go on vacation.

There are cabinet meetings, key cabinet committee meetings, every morning and afternoon of this week, and sources say the pace could continue for a further week or two if work remains to be done.

Sources described the meetings as routine, since there is always a rush of cabinet sessions following the start of a Parliamentary recess. Normal cabinet decisions tend to get sidetracked in the rush to complete a legislative program.

This time, cabinet is meeting without the certain knowledge that a general election will precede the resumed session of the current Parliament. As a result, sources say, ministers are working on the left-overs from the last sitting, deciding what bills would be revived if the Parliament resumes, as scheduled, Sept. 28.

The two major pieces of legislation are the bills to establish a new Family Income Security Plan—replacing the present family allowance program with a program geared to family income—and the bill to set up a screening agency for foreign takeovers. Both were left on the order paper, after extensive debate, when Parliament recessed Friday.

Sources said Monday it is doubtful whether cabinet will approve the reintroduction of the FISP bill, in its present state, because the prolonged debate had emphasized sharp party differences on the legislation. At least five cabinet ministers, who were in the 1971 session when the bill was first introduced, did not take part in a key vote on the issue Friday.

The bill failed to give passage after Paul Hellyer (Ind. Toronto Trinity) refused the necessary unanimous consent to continue debate. He said "a lot" of Liberals supported his stand.

The sources also said that if the foreign takeover legislation should come before a resumed session of Parliament, there likely would be changes made in it—in effect, introduced a new bill rather than one that caused such bitter debate.

Meanwhile, most ministers are said to feel that the exercise is largely academic, that Parliament will be dissolved prior to Sept. 28 for a fall election, and everything on the order paper will die a natural death.

Carton to Personally Assess Bay Bridge Traffic Pattern

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Transportation and Communication Minister Gordon Carton will make an on-the-spot assessment of the contentious causeway link between the Belleville mainland and Prince Edward County before summer ends.

That's the hope of Health Minister Richard Potter, who as MPP Quinte and the area's top provincial politician, said yesterday Ontario government authorities are taking a "pretty close look" at the situation and alternatives involving the Bay of Quinte's most used and abused — traffic artery.

It's agreed that new bridge across the bay is inevitable, but just how long it will be materializing, even after Mr. Carton's assessment, is not yet definite, Dr. Potter indicated.

His remarks followed a rumor yesterday that part of the busy causeway, narrowed to single-lane use while a $225,000 repair project is under way, had collapsed.

The report, triggered when traffic was delayed after a small hole suddenly was punched through the single-lane bridge section now in use, proved false. But not before it had touched off a flurry of calls to police, a spate of radio broadcast denials in the wake of what one engineer on the job termed a "panic situation" among some motorists.

But the incident also had its value in proving publicly that the aging causeway is in need of immediate repairs, a transportation department spokesman said.

It was the latest sequel to the repair project which has touched off a mingled public reaction of disgruntlement, philosophic acceptance and criticism which has reached all the way to the office of Premier William Davis.

Dr. Potter said he already has discussed the over - all causeway problem with Mr. Carton including construction of a new bridge.

"In discussing it with the minister a few weeks ago he agreed that something (if a new bridge) is going to have to come and we're taking a very close look at it. But, in the meantime, the present structure has to be repaired," said Dr. Potter.

In talking chances of a new bridge with his cabinet colleague Mr. Carton told him as soon as he had an opportunity he would come down with me and have a look at the situation.

"So, I'm hoping I'll get him down this summer," he said.

He reiterated that provincial road authorities had been working on the causeway situation for years and "up until now, of course, traffic has not been enough to warrant an overhead bridge. It's coming in the future, in the near future, but it's going to take time. After all you don't do this kind of thing overnight."

(Local government officials some time ago were told by department officials that the then volume of traffic did not justify a new bridge link.)

Dr. Potter said he wouldn't own to whether a guess when a project might now be launched, or even into what millions of dollars the cost factor might range.

"I don't want to go on record as saying I'm going to start in two, three or five years," he added. "We know that something has to be done. We know we should have an overhead bridge. But how it should be done? The minister has assured me he will come down and see himself."

"What's happening now is that this bridge has to be put into some kind of shape to carry traffic for the next few years until the other one gets under way," said Dr. Potter, himself a commuter who uses the causeway from his Massassinga home to reach his riding on the Bay's north shore.

"When people say you're wasting money to repair it you say either repair it or put in a ferry. You have to get back and forth across there and there is no other way out of it. If anybody has a better solution I wish they'd tell us. I don't know what it could be.

Dr. Potter said he'd received a number of written complaints on the situation as had Premier Davis' office.

Criticism included timing of the repair project and planning being spent as a "waste".

"We're trying to explain to them why it's necessary," he added.

Guard Controls Traffic Flow

Traffic crosses Bay Bridge Road causeway under surveillance of traffic guard, one of two equipped with two-way radio on duty while traffic link undergoes repairs. Traffic signals also are used to keep commuter volume flowing smoothly as possible.

Criticism Expected, Says Engineer, But There Is No Alternative

Yesterday, someone shouted the Bay Bridge was falling.

It didn't. But the bizarre alarm crystallized feelings about the bedevilled causeway which has been under fire ever since the automobile age hit high gear.

These days traffic flows with the traffic across the most - traveled road link between the north and south shore of the Bay of Quinte.

The only problem is there is no alternative — either for motorists or truckers, or government officials who field the complaints.

Both have to accept the situation philosophically, until something better is provided.

At least that seems the only fair assessment after an Intelligencer survey of provincials, businessmen, political and government service sources after yesterday's false alarm.

The public isn't expecting too much when it complains of the current traffic slowdown caused by the current $225,000 causeway overhaul that has narrowed traffic to a one-lane flow, says a transportation and communications ministry official.

"I can understand . . . it's an inconvenience," says the ministry's Port Hope district engineer Dan Collins. His jurisdiction includes the Belleville - Prince Edward County commuter tourist link.

Health Minister Richard Potter, who must commute across the Bay Bridge Road to reach the Belleville-area mainland and his riding of Quinte, admits letters of complaint have been received at Queen's Park — by himself, the transportation ministry, even Premier Davis.

"I wouldn't want to live over there (in Prince Edward) right now," says one Belleville businessman who has delivery trucks on regular daily runs across the bridge.

"The men are raising the devil," said a bread company representative of his truck-driver's reactions.

Then he adds: If the project means improvement people will just have to "grin and bear it".

Says one: "It's a damn nuisance. If you have to be somewhere at a certain time you have to leave early. Sometimes you can get right through. Another time, you could be an hour. You have to make allowances . . ."

But, aware of the handicaps — with the one - lane problem compounded by a swing bridge for Bay boating — south shore dwellers seem to accept the need for adaptability.

"The people who live there don't seem to be complaining that much," said a Belleville-area resident. "I think most of the criticism comes from what I call 'limerants'."

Dr. Potter said the longest he's been held up was about 12 minutes. "By the same token you'll hear others who say they've been held up for a long, long time."

Dr. Potter was cheesed off Sunday. He had to wait "for three-quarters of an hour," said a Rossmore area woman. Yet, he pointed out up the line the daily commuter flow she's known since repairs started last week has been seven minutes. Much of the holter criticism comes from tourist and sightseeing drivers, she believes.

Dr. Potter blames the commuter with a friend he said took 30 minutes to get the few miles from Belleville to Massassauga.

Traffic direction at the bridge is planned so the moments priority is paid out of the city, says Mr. Collins. Besides signal lights, men are posted at either end of the span under repair with two - way radios. Merchandise suppliers operating out of Belleville into Prince Edward, admit to frustration, but have no reservations vary.

"It slows our drivers down — sometimes as much as a half-hour," said the operator of a city coal and wood yard who preferred anonymity.

"I know we have to put up with it . . . but I sometimes think it's a bit extreme," he said.

A big problem comes with longer loaded vehicles, the single bridge span, where he says the decking has sagged in the middle.

"What happens if there's tonnage. Who pays for it if you cut a tire?" he questions.

A spokesman for Reid's said drivers run into delays up to 20 minutes, although they have late July delivery timetables accordingly.

Fred Smith, Belleville sales manager for Canada Bread, says while drivers "raise the devil" because delays mean storekeepers may be kept waiting, "there's nothing we can do about it . . . If it's going to make it better we have to grin and bear it."

Peter Pringle, route supervisor for Brookside Price's Dairy, which runs five trucks daily to Prince Edward, says delays can run up to 30 minutes. Additional trucks on the morning as later in the day longer, "schedules can be easily adjusted."

While an "inconvenience", he says he's not sure about the situation.

"I say holler all we like. It (the causeway) has got to be repaired. It's only a question to the bucket to what a new one would cost."

Yesterday's alarmist rumor of a causeway collapse provoked two things. The repair project, despite its obvious inconveniences, is a necessity, in the ministry engineer Collins.

This certainly points out the reason why we should replace it this year — why we shouldn't wait any longer," Mr. Collins said yesterday when his Port Hope district offices.

While the span is reduced to one lane this causes more stress, the possibility of more breakages.

What happened yesterday was that a repatched break in the pavement gave way. While a covering steel plate was being inserted, traffic was temporarily slowed and delayed. This apparently gave rise to the rumor that a hole in the causeway had caused a breakage. By noon, provincial police in Belleville received 15 phone calls in an hour from worried motorists. A cruiser was sent to the scene.

However, Mr. Collins, who inspected the repair late last week said steel plates are now on hand to prevent similar breakthroughs in old surface patches.

The incident brought him a personal phone complaint — from a dentist caught in the delay, he said.

Parking Problem Now Corrected

Current on-street parking problems opposite the new 14-storey apartment building on Sidney Street could see early correction as the result of a recommendation passed Monday by the city council traffic and light committee.

Acting on a report from Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie, the committee recommended that parking be prohibited at all times on the west side of Sidney Street from Bridge Street to Dundas Street.

The recommendation will now go to city council for approval and passage of the necessary bylaw.

Complaints regarding on-street parking in the vicinity of the new Sidney Street high rise apartment have been loud and frequent since tenants began moving into the structure.

The problem was caused primarily by the fact that the apartment garage was not completed and there was no off-street parking available.

Under the circumstances, the feeling was that for police to enforce the overnight parking bylaw would merely be penalizing the new residents.

Committee members were told yesterday that the parking garage was now completed and after Tuesday all prospective tenants would be expected to use the facility.

Police Chief Crosbie said the overnight parking ban would now be enforced with the parking ban on the west side of Sidney Street to await passage of the bylaw by council.

The police chief also reported on complaints received about on street parking by residents of a 12-plex apartment building on Elmer Street.

The report indicated the 12 tenants owned 13 automobiles and one trailer.

"It is once again a perfect example of insufficient off-street parking requirements in the zoning bylaw," stated the report.

Under the present bylaw, one and a quarter off-street parking spots are required for each apartment unit.

The committee went along with the chief's report and did not recommend parking restrictions for Elmer Street.

Conformity Is Suggested In Flashing Green Lights

A call for conformity in the phasing and operation of traffic signal lights in the city was heard Monday at the city traffic and light committee.

The feeling was that use of both the extended green and advance green signals to allow for left turns was confusing to the motorist.

The committee was told that traffic experts were still "experimenting" to determine which of the two systems was the most satisfactory but this didn't prevent Alderman E. A. Orr from stating it was all very confusing and that there should be conformity.

Ald. Paul Russell had a specific beef about advance green signals for multilane roadways, claiming that in some circumstances they posed a definite danger.

He said that at the end of the advance green signal oncoming southbound traffic is permitted to proceed without warning and a turning vehicle could still be in the intersection and not be seen by the approaching car in time.

The alderman said he had witnessed several near accidents at the North Front Street intersection.

Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie said a traffic expert would be in the city this week and the matter would be referred to him.

Vandals Hit Second School

Six windows were smashed and acid was thrown over the roof of Moira Secondary School entering St. Joseph's School some time over the weekend.

The acid, which ate a hole, smashed windows and kitchen equipment with food at approximately $450.

A similar incident occurred at Moira Secondary School in the same span of time.

In both instances acid was used on the floors.

Police spotted the Moira incident in time for the local science teacher neutralize the acid.

No arrests have been made in connection with either incident.

Fire Engine Red May Be Yellow

Traditional fire engine red could be a thing of the past as the color for Belleville's fire engines if a suggestion by Mayor J. Russell Scott is followed.

Mayor Scott told the city traffic and light committee that tests have proven red to be one of the least visible colors under certain light conditions.

He suggested that consideration be given to changing the paint on motorized fire fighting equipment to yellow, adding that it was important for the sake of safety that fire engines be made as visible as possible.

Fire equipment in many centres including Hamilton and some other Ontario cities are now yellow he said.

Mayor Scott said he had already had conversations with Fire Chief Leo Culnane on the matter.

The mayor's proposal was referred to the city manager.

Neighborhood Poll to Decide If Leisure Program Desired

From it all may evolve expanded programming of an entire Belleville neighborhood's leisure time.

Starting today, what will engage Jo-Anne in the next eight weeks is a survey which could evolve a recreation for a greater recreational use of community school facilities in the College St. - Victoria Ave. - Wales Dr. area flanked by the Moira River.

Purpose of the survey is to "tabulate and understand the leisure needs and interests of the area," explains Clifford Belch, deputy director of the city's recreation department.

If the assembled date clarifies a demand for more community leisure programming in the vicinity, the next step would be to evolve recreation activities linked to the neighborhood's Prince of Wales elementary school facilities.

The philosophy aimed at activating such facilities after school hours for the community at large isn't new. Working co-operatively, school and recreation authorities already have a program under way in Hillcrest, Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra schools. At present, these are summertime projects. But in all such cases, the ultimate goal is year-round use.

That's why the questionaires being distributed by Jo-Anne ask such questions as: "Would you be willing to volunteer your services to help run programs?" . . . "To expand an ongoing program in your area?"

For the survey, Jo-Anne, a Bellevillian who expects to graduate next year from Albert College was hired by the province's ministry of community and social services, then loaned the recreation department. She may have to call on up to 300 families before distribution of questionaires is completed.

It will be her job to later regather the questionaires, assist them into a report for the department, which then will decide if there's a pattern on which to base a new leisure time program for a city district.

If a need emerges, recreation officials then will assess the reliability of citizenship dedication, since, says Mr. Belch, such programs call for "a great deal of community involvement."

Jo-Anne is in no doubt of the benefits of such programs. They're "a good for the community," she says. "After all, schools usually sit there stagnating during summer when they could be used beneficially."

Complaints and criticism apparently were anticipated by ministry officials in a talk-in session prior to the project.

"This dentist . . . I told him we'd done the best we can," said Mr. Collins. "We've got a situation there. We've tried and completely then there'd be nothing. We couldn't delay at any longer. We've got to do it now . . . If it ever failed incidentally it would isolate that community."

A major timing factor is that warm weather is crucial to proper sealing of construction materials. Another: climate results in better quality control, said the district engineer.

Having radio-linked traffic guards posted on the bridge would enable quick response in the events of emergencies — such as priority movement for ambulances, doctors and police, said Mr. Collins. There is a standing arrangement with provincial police to destroy help if needed.

Is criticism levelled at the project justified?

"No," says Mr. Collins. "I can understand a person being impatient with an inconvenience. The public is used to going across the bridge without hindrance for years. Except for boating traffic, I can sympathize with them. While conscious of the fact that the people are being held up, . . ."

Then, he adds: "It's good that people know who to complain to, anyway."

Whistles Disturb Guests

Blowing of whistles by Canadian Pacific trains is disturbing guests at the Four Seasons Motel in the city's south end.

And the hotel management is asking if something can be done to bring a little more night time quiet.

A letter of complaint from Four Seasons has been received by the city traffic and light committee and although committee members are in agreement that the whistling is a nuisance, there appears to be no immediate solution.

Alderman Paul Russell who lives in the city's west end agreed that CP train whistles sound almost continually while passing through the city.

On eastbound trains the whistles blow for the cemetery crossing west of the city, for Sidney Street, Mary Street and before they cross the river are already blowing for unprotected crossings in Foster Ward.

He said that when these crossings are protected at least some of the train whistles can be eliminated.

Ald. Jack Ireland pointed out that the new grade separation now under construction on Dundas Street somewhere west of the city would eliminate whistling for that crossing.

Fishermen Sought

Jo-Anne Clement explains leisure-time survey to Donald St. resident Clifford Bailey. Survey will determine feasibility of expanding recreational programs into neighborhood school for Prince of Wales area residents.

Managers Come and Go But Phils Still Flounder

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paul Owens replaced Frank Lucchesi as field manager of Philadelphia Phillies Monday and piloted the club to a tw[i]night doubleheader split against Los Angeles Dodgers, losing the first game 6-4 in 11 innings but taking the nightcap 9-1.

Elsewhere on an abbreviated National League schedule, San Francisco Giants overtook slumping New York Mets 5-4 and Montreal Expos defeated San Diego Padres 6-3 with two Padre players winding up in the hospital. All other National League clubs had the night off.

Lucchesi said after a tearful departing news conference that he would "have to take some of the blame for the team's performance." Owens was quick to echo the sentiment when the Phillies flopped in their first game under him.

The Padres had tied 3-3 in the seventh when Roger Freed singled and moved up on a sacrifice. Owens put up on a sacrifice. Owens put up on a sacrifice. Owens put

Rollins String Broken, But Knot Still Tied

A pair of strings were broken in last night's Commercial Softball League action but Rollins Construction continued to tighten their knot on first place.

The Globe Hotel broke out of a losing slump by taking an extra- inning 4-3 verdict over Devolin Motors and the Mills Juniors broke Rollins shutout and 6.00 earned run average with a sixth - inning earned run in a 4-1 loss to the pennant leaders.

Ted Wallz appeared to have his sixth shutout in the wraps besides keeping Rollins' nonexistant ERA intact, after five innings of no-hit ball but an old nemesis ruined his best laid plans. Former Rollins team-mate Dale Alley singled in the sixth record to third on a walk and sacrifice fly and scored the first earned run of the season against the Rollins pitching staff, when Terry Meagher pulled an infield hit.

That was the Juniors only moment of glory though as Rollins picked up their 14th win of the season. It was also the Juniors 16th loss without a win. Steve Ling scored the first two Rollins runs racing home on singles by Dale Duvall in the fourth and Paul Goodfellow in the second. Ralph Plane's double, Wayne McTaggart's triple and an error on newcomer Al Ferguson's groundball gave the winners two more runs in the fifth.

Wallz wound up with a three hitter and 11 strikeouts, while his teammates were knocking out seven hits. Duvall had two singles and McTaggart a single to add to his triple.

Player of the week Ron Hill of the Juniors threw no-hit shutout ball over three innings of relief. Hill who batted .500 last week with two singles, a double and triple, took over from starter Dave Horwood in the fifth. Horwood gave up all seven hits and four runs.

Brian Hineman became the hero of the night for the Globe Hotel when the centre-fielder punched an eighth inning single driving in the winning two runs. It was the Globe's fifth win of the season after losing them within four points of fourth spot.

Devolin had taken a 2-0 lead in the second courtesy of Jack Jury's triple but the second place Motormen were blanked the rest of the way.

Two walks and error and a fielder's choice allowed the Globe to tie the game in the third setting the stage for Hineman's game winner.

Bill Harrison picked up the win for Globe firing a four hitter. He struck four and did not walk a man in outdoing Don Holloway. The big Devolin pitcher gave up seven hits and struck out seven.

Ted Wallwork, Bob McLeod, Harrison and Lionel Gerdon all single for the winners with Gary Johnson doubling.

Jury and Holloway each tripled for Devolin with Marv Stacey and Rick Rosebush adding singles.

AOCO Under Weather

Things were sunny for CNR, Sonny for Mead Johnson and sour for American Optical in Industrial Softball League play Monday.

CNR continued to sport the top record in the league as they slapped Stewart Warner 10-3. Mead Johnson backed the pitching efforts of Sonny Holoway to oust "B" division rivals UIC by an 8-6 count and AOCO failed in an opportunity to increase their "C" division lead by losing 9-4 to the Belleville Lenders.

Perry Soule turned in a five-hit pitching performance for CNR in his first start of the season. He walked three batters and struck out six, while aiding his own efforts with a homer run.

Fred Davis gave up 11 hits on the Stewart Warner rubber, walking three batters and failing to record a strikeout.

Bob Duvall rapped a double and two singles for two wins, two who raised their record to 12-2. Other top batsmen hitters were Zane Plumbe with a homer and single and Rob McMurray with a brace of singles. Larry Hegadorn had two singles for the losers.

Mead Johnson moved into second, behind CNR with their 8-6 win over UIC. Holoway threw a 10-hitter for Meads, whiffing six and walking two while Pete Hamilton and Gary McMurray were touched for a total of 10 hits in taking the loss. They struck out three batters and walked five.

Jim Sopha, Rick May and Cliff Hineman collected two hits each for the winners, with Joe Clarke and Bernie Coughlan matching that total for UIC.

The Lenders closed to within two points of idle Intelligencer in the "A" division by taking a 9-4 verdict over the "C" leaders.

Terry Murphy earned the win in relief of John Quinn, while Ron McCoy went the distance for AOCO. The Lenders hurlers gave up five hits and nine walks, while fanning 10 batters, McCoy yielded 10 safeties and one free pass, striking out six.

Herm Van Daalen and Wayne Casselman had two hits each for Lenders with Grant Collet, Doug McKay and Don Brown getting doubles for the losers.

Taking Off?

Globe Hotel first sacker Gary Johnson isn't trying to fly but merely stretching for a wild throw in order to get Devolin shortstop Rick Rosebush. Plays like this gave Gary the Commercial Softball Leagues most valuable player award two weeks ago and a league leading putout total. His 12 putouts last night helped in a 4-2 eight inning Globe win over Devolin.

Juveniles Cinch Second

The Belleville Juveniles assured themselves of grabbing on to second place in the Quinte Lacrosse League final standings last night by dropping their closest rivals, Kingston, 11-9.

Belleville now sports a 7-4 won-lost record with 1 game to play. Kingston's loss gives them a 6-5 record and no chance to take second after three losses to the local crew.

Kerry Reid had a five goal splurge to lead all Belleville scorers while Rick Barbeau notched three, Kevin Dockrill, Audie Brant and Rick Watt scored singles for the winners who travel to Ottawa Sunday for a contest against league leading Nepean.

In a lone Belleville Minor Lacrosse game played last night the Dairy Queen novices stopped Rollins Construction 5-3.

Yardmen Girls Collect Scoring Dues

The Belleville Yardmens Benefit Fund did some runcollecting Monday in recording a 20-9 Women's Softball League win over the Bob Bland — Red Barn combines.

Linda Empey and Sue Morton benefitted from the BYBF batting attack that unleashed 27 hits against losing hurler Terry Hounslow. The winning duo were touched for 16 safeties while walking five and fanning the same number.

Donna Preston had a homer, triple and single for the Yardmen with Sheila Smith belting a homer and two singles and Cheryl Crain two triples and a double. Terry Hounslow had a double and three singles for the Combines with Valerie Brown collecting three singles.

Claytons Stretch Lead

Clayton's TV stretched their Belleville Girls Minor Softball League junior lead to four points last night with a 14-11 win over the Yardmen.

Tamlyn Rupert and Joanne Cronin homered for Clayton's giving them the two-game edge over Toronto Heating and Lucas Spur.

Junior Farmers Bounce Back

The Junior Farmers spotted Bayview Orchards a five run lead in Monday night's Prince Edward North Shore Softball League action but within one inning any Orchard aspirations of victory were quickly doused.

The pennant leading Junior Farmers scored six runs in the third inning en route to a 9-6 win.

Clarke Alexander picked up the win allowing seven hits. He himself ten and walked four. Don Bonter threw a four hitter in defeat on the Bayview mound with six errors costing him the win. He struck out six and issued one free pass.

Ron Runton's triple was the big blast for the winners while Bonter, Jim Bell and G. Inglis each had two hits for the Orchards.

Top Tykes Stay Deadlocked

The top two teams in the tyke division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association remained deadlocked for first place after both picked up wins last night.

The Kinsmen Hawks bombed Malcolm Brothers 28-5 and Gib Waite Mopped United Realty 18-14.

Brad Gray paced the Kinsmen to victory with three doubles and two singles with Sean Monaghan adding a pair of triples and singles.

Doug Haley led Gib's to their seventh win of the year with a single, double and triple. Steve Miller homered and singled for United.

Steve West Inks Minnesota Pact

OSHAWA (CP) — Steve West, leading scorer last season for Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop, has signed with Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League. The weekend announcement by Tony O'Connor, the Stars' chief scout, did not specify terms of the contract. West, who scored 30 goals and added 41 assists, was the Stars' sixth-round choice in the amateur draft.

Bob's Sports Walk To Minor Baseball Win

Bobs Sports walked into a rather difficult minor baseball win last night. The Belleville tadpole team failed to get a hit off Callebeue hurler Mike Lawson, but had three runs walked across the plate for a 3-1 victory.

Greg Scully and Henry Bosshreun combined to fire a two-hitter for Bob's striking out 11 and walking seven. Lawson notched 10 strikeouts and five walks in taking the loss. The game's only hits went to Scott Miller and Alan Wallace of Callebeue.

In a peewee bout Monday, Motorland Chrysler tumbled Gagne Masonary 8-1. Greg McEachern and Terry Kingsman pitched for the winners striking out 10 batters and walking nine. For Gagne it was Gary Baldgely and T. Woodward splitting the pitching honors.

Andy and David Plane each had singles for Motorland, while Willy Gagne, Rob Landry and M. Mitchell doubled in a losing cause.

Nicklaus Not Taken by Storm

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — A fierce wind whipped over Muirfield's towering golf links Monday in advance of the British Open championship and Jack Nicklaus was in his element.

"I hope this great course keeps playing hard," said the 32-year-ol Nicklaus, favored to win the British crown in a bid for an unprecedented grand slam in modern golf.

The wind off the Firth of Forth always is an unpredictable factor on Muirfield's 6,862-yard, par-71 layout where the 101st championship begins Wednesday.

Nicklaus was relaxed and confident in practice. He shot a two-under-par 69 in one informal round.

Asked who would win if he didn't, Nicklaus said,

"I haven't even thought about that."

Nicklaus's bid for the Grand Slam is one of the reasons why up to 100,000 fans are expected to swarm over Muirfield's treeless course during the 72-hole championship.

He already has won the U.S. Masters and Open titles. The third leg is the British Open. The other is the PGA championship at Birmingham, Mich., next month.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, preparing for this week's British Open, continues to hold a commanding lead over his rivals in the money race on the U.S. professional golf tour.

The PGA Tournament Players Division announced Monday that Nicklaus' $186,051 still top the official winnings, with Lee Trevino second at $129,147.

The Canadian Open last weekend, which Nicklaus skipped, failed to materially change the leaders. The winner, Gay Brewer, moved from 46th to 32nd with $30,000 first prize.

Dave Hill, who finished second in the Canadian Open, rose from 10th to seventh place. Chi Chi Rodriguez, earnier $5,100 for a 12th place finished, move into the first ten at the No. 9 spot.

Trevino Tunes Game

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Lee Trevino has the reputation, which he helps promote, of a scatter-brained, happy-go-lucky, beer-drinking guy, fast with a quip and living only for the moment.

But there's a shrewd, hard-headed businessman; a homespun, pragmatic philosopher; a humanitarian and, of course, a natural humorist lurking in the complex makeup of Lee Trevino.

"I'm going to play as much as I can, as hard as I can, for all I can by the time I'm 40," Trevino said. "Then I'm going to go home to El Paso (Tex.) and just sit and count my money.

"I've got a lot of other things going for me, but most of them are built on my playing golf and winning. I stop playing golf and stop winning, and they stop, too.

"They talk about pressure out here on the tour. Those guys don't know what pressure is. It's having a two-dollar bet with a tough sharpie and not having the money to cover it and needing to make a 15-foot putt to win. Now that is pressure.

"But this game of golf has changed all that for me. I want to try to put something back in the game."

His story is well known, product of a poverty background in the Mexican-American slums in Dallas, grandson of a gravedigger, a former U.S. Marine, a seventh-grade dropout who didn't know his father, once a $30-a-week assistant on a desert driving range and a one-time hustler who burst on the golfing scene with the flare of a Mexican adiriue when he scored his first professional victory in the 1968 United States Open.

Since then, he has parlayed his continuing success, rocketing popularity, bubbling personality and penchant for non-stop hard work into a personal fortune that's counted in the millions.

He has a half-dozen major commercial contracts and he works hard for them, making commercials, personal appearances, playing exhibitions.

"I'd like to win the Tournament of Champions," he said.

"That would be really something. To beat all the guys who have won tournaments for a year. I count that one of the big ones."

Ron Taylor Hangs On

Meanwhile, the Toronto-born right-handed pitcher continues to travel around with San Diego Padres through the various National League cities, but not at a player.

Taylor was the odd man out on the Padres' roster when they secured Curt Blefary and Mike Kilkenny in a trade. Kilkenny, from Bradford, Ont., has since been dealt off. Taylor wanted to stay with the club but he accepted to go to the Padres' farm club in the class AA Texas league.

"I was ready to go to Alexandria and work with the kids," Taylor said. "Then Baveal (Padres' president Bunzie Baveal) said, 'Why don't you just stay around and pitch batting practice and keep in shape—just in case.'

"I'm working with the Padres this summer and if I'm accepted at Toronto, I'll have summers free for several years."

Mr. Baveal says that if can carry on working with the club and that's what I'm looking forward to doing."

Taylor, 34, logged 9½ years as a major league reliever. H was acquired by the Padres early in the season after Montreal [illegible] him adrift in spring training.

Arnie Can't Break Jinx

Arnold Palmer, perhaps the most popular player golf has ever known and the man generally acknowledged to be the driving force behind the enormous growth of the game, was talking about his failure to win this season.

"I've had a chance to win three times, real good chances," Palmer said, a slight, pencil-framed crossing one of the world's most-photographed faces.

"But every time I got in position to win, every time I thought I had something going, something always happened. I think I just wanted to win too much and got too anxious.

The 42-year-old master who put the word "charge" in golf's lexicon was mulling over of his fabled runs at the leaders in the final round of the Bob Hope Desert Classic—then hit one out of bounds.

Instead they viewed consecutive three-putt bogeys that killed it all.

"Each time," he recalled, "I was trying to make birdie and not the first putt too far beyond the hole."

At Greensboro, he held a two-stroke lead going to the par-three 16th hole in the final day. He hit into a shallow stream at the bottom of a ditch, elected to play it out and took a lead-destroying, confidence-shattering triple bogey six that cost him the title.

"I've had trouble with my concentration," he mused before a practice round for the British Open, which begins Wednesday. "My mind wanders. All of a sudden I'm not there. I'm off in a cloud or something somewhere else."

He's had those troubles, too. With his putter, with his irons, even with his driver, usually the most reliable club in his bag.

And there's his eyes. He's experimented with eye-glasses and contact lenses to correct a near-sighted condition. He recently abandoned them.

"I think I'm better off without them," said Palmer.

New York Hockey Fans Double Ticket Chances

NEW YORK (CP) — For an ardent hockey fan, happiness is to live in the New York area east winter.

From early October until early April it will be possible to see a hockey game almost any night of the week—and four times on weekends.

New York will become the only National Hockey League territory with two franchises when New York Rangers begin play at the sparkling new Nassau Coliseum at Uniondale, Long Island. And New York Raiders, a charter members of the new World Hockey Association, will play their 39 home games in Madison Square Garden on dates not needed by the NHL'S Rangers or the National Basketball Association's Knickerbockers.

The Rangers, who went to the Stanley Cup final last spring, play most of their home games on Wednesdays and Sundays. The Islanders, whose rink is 23 miles east of Madison Square Garden, have picked Tuesdays and Saturdays as their home nights. The WHA Raiders will play almost every night of the week and sometimes on Saturday or Sunday afternoons. It depends on the NHL and NBA schedules.

If, perchance, the hockey addict finds himself with an open date, he can drive 80 miles northeast to New Haven, Conn., to watch the American Hockey League Nighthawks, a farm team of the Islanders, or 75 miles southwest to see the NHL Philadelphia Flyers or the WHA Philadelphia Blazers.

Not since 1942 has any city had two NHL franchises.

The demise of the Maroons in 1938 left Montreal with only the Canadiens. And in 1942 the star-spangled Americans died in New York after enlivening the hockey scene since 1925—in the final year under the unsuccessful disguise of Brooklyn Americans.

The Americans died of a plethora of money-losing seasons, during which they were artistically inferior to the Rangers, who moved them as Madison Square Garden tenants in 1926. The Americans' passing may perhaps accelerated by the Second World War, which put the flower of Canadian youth into military uniform.

How will the Rangers, Islanders and Raiders fare financially in this arena which the Rangers have had to themselves since 1942?

Spokesmen for all three teams say there is enough fan support to make all three teams profitable.

The Rangers are likely to go on packing the rafters in its 17,500-customer limit for the foreseeable future. General Manager Emile Francis has built a powerful team and can be expected to go on rebuilding and dazzling its guest of the elusive Stanley Cup.

The Islanders will operate in one of the most heavily populated areas of the eastern United States, Nassau County, which built the rink they call home, expects to have a population of seven million by 1975. Long Island residents, largely shut out of Madison Square Garden by the distance to be traversed, and by unavailability of tickets, will be able to enjoy hockey in ultra-modern surroundings, with plenty of parking space.

The Islanders, who pay no rent to the Nassau ex-tirmulated $5 million for the privilege of operating in the well established team's 30-mile NHL territorial limit, will draw from a host of top-calibre performers such were simply not made available in the June 15 expansion draft. But they will be able to offer their fans a look at the NHL's best when the Bruins, Rangers, Canadiens, Black Hawks and other established teams play in the Coliseum.

The WHA Raiders will, like the Americans of old, share the home lease of the Rangers. Not the same MacDonn Square Garden, it is true, but a new one opened in 1968.

The Raiders are counting on fans who have been unable to get into the Rangers games, or who went a long way to do so. They believe they will draw heavily from New Jersey, on the west side of the Hudson River, and from Connecticut, as well as from New York state. They think some fans will attend both NHL and WHA games.

And they think a lot of people may want to go to pro hockey games. This year, like many others in the U.S., has been a boom year for hockey boom. The Metropolitan Junior Hockey Association, headed by Norman MacLean, has 19 junior teams, five of them on Long Island and five in the city. In addition, 2,000 youngsters are registered in organized, age-group leagues below the junior level.

The hockey backlog of the Raiders remains uncertain, although general manager of NHL experience have been signed. All pro sports have a belief that to be major-league

Stamps Face Challenge

By GORDON GRANT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

New faces, new stars and—in some cases—old disappointments, will be the name of the game in the Western Football Conference this seasonm

In any case, with training camp behind them and the preseason schedule opening up, the season schedule opening up, the season schedule of [illegible] the Wheat leader is under way.

Calgary Stampeders, Grey Cup champions and conquerers of the Canadian Football League Athletics, last year's Shewan Roughriders will probably make the fewest changes. They finished 1-2 in the WFC last year and have almost pat squads.

For Winnipeg, Edmonton and British Columbia, it will be a case of trying to catch Calgary and Saskatchewan. And the coaches know it will be tough.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers must tighten their defensive secondary. Eskimos must boost their offence; B.C. Lions—once feared for their wings—need backfield punishers"—must come up with a tighter defence and some consistent quarterbacking.

But the leaders can't stand still.

Calgary Stampeders (9-6-1 last year) will be best and slightest defence in Canada last year, giving up fewer than two touchdowns a game. John Helton, Fred James, Dick Suderman and Craig Kolman are a solid front at four in the league. Middle - linebacker Dave Cranmer, lineman of the year for four years—is flanked by Joe Forzani, Dave Cutler and Ron Forbes. And Calgary is strong in the secondary with Howard Leroy Snow, Tommy Nobis, Bill Van Burkleo, Terry Wilson and Frank Andrush. It should be a tough for Y rookie to break in as it is for opposing backfielders to break through. Herm Harrison is as fine a tight end as there is. At wide receiver is Burkeg. And Calgary is deep with speedy Jon Henderson, Jerry Snow, Gary Shim-min. Bill Van Burkleo, Terry Wilson and Frank Andrush. It should be a tough for Y rookie to break in as it is for opposing backfielders to break through. Herm Harrison is as fine a tight end as there is. At wide receiver is Burkeg. And Calgary is deep with speedy Jon Henderson, Jerry Snow, Gary Shim-min and rookie Gary Kerr.

Saskatchewan Roughriders have three big guns machine finished strongly last season. Tying Calgary on points with 9, but taking second place because the Stamps beat them twice. The Lancaster combines to give them solid quarterbacking and his backup man—Bobby Wyche and Bob Pearce—also can play halfback both ways. George Reed and Bobby Thompson will be tough again as running backs, but there is one position open because of the trade that sent Silas McKinnie to Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Steve Molnar has done the job capably in the past, but Ole Gunderson, who made Associated Press's All-America last year, showed well in camp. Jack Abendschan and Gary Brandt are set at guard, with Clyde Brock one tackle—the other spot still open because of an off-season hernia operation by Ralph Galloway. Gord Barwell, flanker; Nolan Bailey, tight end; Al Ford split end positions there.

Edmonton Eskimos (6-10)—They had the second-best defence over record in the West last year, but finished dead last because of a poor offensive. However, after coach Ray Jauch cleaned house late in the season, the Eskis won their last five games. Bruce Lemmerman performed consistently at quarterback, but Rank Harris, an import, and Dave Byron, a Canadian, looked good in camp. Running backs Sam Scarber and Tighe Foster came to Edmonton late last year and the team began to win. Calvin Harrell, the Arkansas State, drafted seventh by Miami Dolphins of the National League, is ahead and Jauch says "he'd have gone in the first or second round had he not hurt his knee in the Senior Bowl. "We think he could be the best back in Canada."

Winnipeg Blue Bombers (7-8-1)—Don Jonas leads Canada's outstanding player last year, quarterbacking the most explosive offence in the country. Winnipeg made the WFC playoffs by outscoring its opponents, but had problems keeping the opposition from scoring. Off-season activity has been concentrated on defence. Jim Heighton and Joe Kozlowski have been made on the line, but there still are a couple of spots open. Chuck Ealey, all-American from San Jose, is fighting Mickey Doyle for the quarterback spot and if Ealey makes it, Chaney may move to the outside. Greg Cavenor and El Paso may force coach Jim Spavital to move Paul Brule from safety to corner. Then there's Paul Williams, valuable on defence and offence, to say nothing of Spavital is uncertain where to put him. If Williams stays on defence, Bob Kraemer must make it a winning back—otherwise the 1971 rookie of the year could see little playing spot. Chuck Liebrock should strengthen the offensive line at guard. With him will be Bob Lueck, Bob Swift, Bill Frank and Chuck Harrison. Jonas will continue to throw to Jim Thorpe, Paul Rebne and Ron Larose and hand off to Mack Herron and Ed Williams.

British Columbia (6-8-1)—Coach Eagle Keys is sticking with quarterback Don Moorhead, but he's taking a long look at Don Bunce, who quarterbacked Stanford to a Rose Bowl victory. And he still has Tom Wilkinson, veteran from Toronto Argonauts—and what has become of Eric Guthrie, impressive young Canadian who played at Boise State? Whoever handles the team, he'll have power and speed in the backfield and at the ends. All-American Jim Washington is back from Alabama will team with' Jim Evenson. Ealey and Garrett Hunsberger inside. Carl Weatherspivots the line-backers, flanked by Ray Nettles, another star from Tennessee and either Peter Palmer or George Anderson. The defensive backfield is the problem—has Keys mixed the best he could personally with the crew tha: earned the nickname "the Kiddy Korps" last year?

they must have a New York franchise. Raiders' Don Ellis occupy a key position which the WHA will be anxious to preserve.

Representatives of the Rangers, the Islanders and the Raiders all speak with confidence of the solid prospects for coaching talent now in hockey. Only time—and the results—will tell whether the best will support lovers and winners alike.

The fact the two teams involved are modern and well-located is a distinct asset. And early luck at the draft of the tenants of ancient Yankee Stadium. The Kansas Football League Giants plan to move to New Jersey when and if that state builds a proposed new sports centre. The baseball Yankees have consented to stay in a refurbished Yankee Stadium, provided the city spends more than $24 million on new access roads, additional parking and other improvements. Neither team has been an artistic success in recent years and the Yankees, in particular, have suffered severely at the gate.

Meanwhile sports' desks of all media are girding to cover the additional hockey

Explorer's Study

July 16 is the 100th anniversary of the birth of one of the world's great polar explorers, Norwegian Roald Amundsen. Picture shows the study of his 19th century home built on a fjord near Oslo. The flag on the wall is the one he planted at the South Pole in 1911. (CP Photo)

Hunt for Jurors Is Begun For Pentagon Papers Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The search for a jury to try the Pentagon Papers case has begun with probing questions aimed at revealing attitudes toward the United States government and its policies.

Already, six potential jurors were excused Monday on the first day of the trial after declaring their opinions were so strong concerning the controversial case that they could not be impartial jurors.

Judge William Byrne rejected defence objections to his decision to quiz jurors himself rather than letting lawyers do it. Then he asked 12 potential jurors and six potential alternates their attitudes toward government and their family histories on possible government employment.

Daniel Ellsberg, 41, and Anthony Russo, 35, both former Rand Corp. researchers who worked on government projects, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak to news media of the top secret Pentagon Papers.

The papers, printed some 13 months ago in the New York Times and other papers, revealed origins of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war. Ellsberg and Russo have admitted copying the papers and Ellsberg says he leaked them, but both claim they didn't commit crimes.

Outside the courthouse, the defendants issued anti-war statements.

Ellsberg indicates the defence will try to introduce segments of the papers and the war issue into the trial.

"This trial will not, by itself, stop the war," he said. "But the trial should greatly inform the American people how we have been misled for the past 25 years, and what censorship and deception do to democracy."

Before the first potential panelists entered the jury box, Russo's lawyer, Leonard Weinglass, asked the judge to dismiss the entire initial panel of 100 as unrepresentative of community opinion. He noted that none appeared to be under 20 years old and only about 10 appeared to be under 40. The judge denied the request.

The defence has estimated that with Byrne asking all questions jury selection should take about one week.

Talks with IRA Assailed

Whitelaw Under Attack

LONDON (CP) — The disclosure by William Whitelaw that last year, representatives of the underground Irish Republican Army in his capacity as minister for Ulster affairs has won support from the opposition Labor party but stirred hostile reaction in some Conservative quarters.

"Experience in other situations has taught British leaders over the years that peaceful settlements often require meetings with men who have blood on their hands," says an editorial today in The Times, which voices approval of Whitelaw's policies in general.

Opposition Leader Harold Wilson expressed "sympathy and understanding" for the Conservative minister and said Whitelaw was right to meet the leaders of the IRA's militant Provisional wing in London last Friday.

But Tory rebel Enoch Powell said the meeting only intensified the feeling that "the British government is not determined before all things to maintain the integrity of the United Kingdom and that a way out be found to override the will of the majority in Northern Ireland."

Britain must prove to the world that its object for the foreseeable future is to maintain the status of Northern Ireland as part of the U.S., Powell said.

The Whitelaw meeting with the IRA men "was a disaster," the London newspaper contended.

"It precipitated a breach of the (Ulster) truce because it convinced the IRA . . . that there were limits to the concessions which (Whitelaw) was prepared to offer," says a Telegraph editorial.

"Far worse, the fact that the meeting is known to have taken place and the fact that Mr. Whitelaw was apparently prepared even to 'consider' IRA proposals will do his reputation in Ulster grave and possibly irreparable damage.

"By taking part in this meeting, Mr. Whitelaw committed a serious misjudgment and what will seem to most Ulsterists a breach of faith."

Unionist MP Stanley McMaster said, Master denounced the minister's action as "totally wrong." In view of the more than 600 murders which have formed part of the violence in Ulster during the last three years.

Unless the government is prepared to bring justice to Ulster, outraged members of the population "will certainly take matters into their own hands," McMaster said.

Plane Crew Delights In Beauties of Eclipse

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Delighted scientists drank champagne toasts to the successful airborne chase of an eclipse of the sun, which they say is certain to yield new findings.

"We expect to find all sorts of new things" said a beaming Dr. Arthur Cox, the expedition's leader, after the team of astronomers recorded the solar corona Monday.

The corona is the ring of hot gases that stream millions of miles out into space. Scientists hope that by studying it they can find clues to how the sun interacts with earth and interferes with man's activities.

Crowded into a converted air force cargo jet stuffed with 15 tons of scientific gear, the scientists, from the Los Alamos N.M. Scientific Laboratory, intercepted the eclipse 70,000 feet over the Arctic Circle northwest of Hudson Bay.

As the shadow of the moon passing in front of the sun streaked southeastward at 1,600 miles an hour, the flying laboratory raced it, reaching 565 miles an hour. This gave the scientists a precious 116 additional seconds during which they could view the sun totally obscured and see the white corona etched against the blackness of space.

They kept their instruments in this path of totality for three minutes and 46 seconds, and the results, except for a few minor problems, delighted everyone.

When the sun vanished altogether at 3:42 p.m. EDT, the airplane's interior was almost as dark as night. Astronomers hovering over their telescopes and radiation-measuring devices used pencil flashlights to perform their duties.

Outside, the ground was obscured by a thick layer of clouds and the black, oval-shaped lunar shadow could be seen 50 miles in opposite directions, with fluffy clouds brightly lit by the sun beyond the shadow. The view was the most striking from the cockpit.

Maj. Dan Yergler, the pilot, said:

"Out in front of us after the eclipse passed us we could see this huge circular shadow 120 miles wide moving across the clouds below us. It was the most fantastic sight I've ever seen."

Experimenters who sought to measure infra-red radiation, ionization of sunlight with charged particles in the corona and the corona's magnetic field said they were pleased with results. Studying the information recorded on film and magnetic tape will take several months and, in most cases, involve complex computing analysis.

The footbone's connected to the headbone.

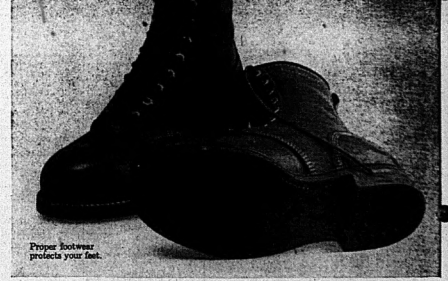
Your feet do a lot of things for you. They dance when you're happy. They walk when you have to get someplace. They jump when you're excited. They tiptoe when you come home late. In short, you can't get along well without them. And that's where proper footwear helps.

When you play tennis, you wear tennis shoes. When you walk, you wear good walking shoes. And when you work, if your job calls for them, you wear safety shoes. They protect your feet from injuries. Puncture-resistant soles protect against protruding nails. Protective toe caps absorb the shock of falling objects. And painful stubbing. And deep treads in the soles protect against treacherous walking conditions.

Take a good look at your shoes. Make sure they're not getting run down at the heel. Change fraying laces. And check the soles to see that they're in good condition.

That's what self-defence is. Taking good care of yourself.



Proper footwear protects your feet.

The sure way to safety is Self-Defence.

Check that soles are in good condition.

Self-defence is taking good care of yourself.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, July 12

Aries (March 21-April 19): Personal preferences may abruptly shift, as much of a surprise to you as to anybody else. Slide yourself to do a reasonably good job.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Expand, co-operate, improve your home situation. There's some feeling to say to everybody, some definite explanations due older people.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): Now is a good time to test your own horn in the right places. Help is available, with the usual unplanned complications.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotional factors arise, override routines. Information you wanted for a long time is at hand—you're not looking for it just now.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Diligent work, consistent attention to where it leads make the day. Show a distinction in dealing with it if you're tactful.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Inner progress is indicated—you revive old hopes, find fulfillment in personal development. Social activity includes romance.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Driving ahead on established lines is today's achievement, so intuitive moves add according to the merit of your schemes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Finding reasons for recent events can be a fascinating hobby which will work for personal projects. Constructive choices are favored.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In financial arrangements short cuts are available, but must be kept confidential. Any effort to improve home brings results.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be flexible, have the will to adapt to changing conditions. Invitations to personal change is all around you, with offers of co-operation.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Something new adds itself from outside. It's a great day for an extra effort, reaffirmation of goals and principles.

Vitamins A and D Overdose Possible

By O. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: They say vitamins A and D are harmful if you take too much, but how much is too much and what are the symptoms of overdose?—Mrs. D.B.

It is possible to get too much of either of these vitamins—not likely in ordinary circumstances, but quite possible when someone decides that if a little of something is good, then a lot must be better.

A maximum dosage of vitamin A would be 50,000 units a day. Even larger doses are sometimes given for skin disorders such as acne, but when that is done, the heavy dosage is only for a limited time. Children are more susceptible to a toxic dose of this than adults. Symptoms are loss of appetite, irritability, bone tenderness, loss of hair.

Toxicity from vitamin D varies so much that I can't give any arbitrary level, but symptoms are loss of appetite, nausea, headache, loss of weight, constipation, fatigue, confusion, increase in blood calcium.

Large doses of these vitamins are not necessary for the average person, adult or child, and are used in large amounts only for special circumstances.

There's no danger of getting too much of either from the ordinary one-a-day type mixed vitamins. The trouble occurs when folks take it on themselves to take continued heavy doses on their own, without finding out from the doctor how much will help.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: Could you tell me what to expect after a hysterectomy? I understand it is necessary to go through the change of life twice, once now and again when I'm in my 50s. I am 36 now.—Mrs. R.

No, you don't go through the change of life (menopause) twice.

Hysterectomy means removal of the uterus, and it does not cause menopause. However, if the ovaries are also removed, then you will experience "surgical menopause." Once through it, however, you need not worry about having to go through it again in your 40s or 50s. You are finished.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I just had my gall bladder removed and I wonder what the body does when it's gone, since it does perform a function.

I am quite a bit overweight. What effect does this operation have on a heavy person?—Mrs. R.J.A.

The gall bladder serves as a concentration point for bile. When it is removed, the bile goes directly into the small intestine and digestion continues satisfactorily.

It's just another of the body's back-up systems, ready to go into operation when called upon. As with the appendix, tonsils, uterus, spleen and other organs of that kind, when they become diseased they're better out than in.

The operation won't have an effect either way on your weight problem. You should reduce on general health principles.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: Can a tipped womb prevent a woman from becoming pregnant?—Mrs. J.S.

Sometimes. But so many women with tipped wombs have perfectly normal babies that doctors take a dim view of it as being an inhibiting pregnancy unless the tipping is extreme. In cases of a mild tilt, it doesn't seem to cause much difficulty.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

A defender who regularly falsecards with the object of fooling declarer will frequently wind up fooling his partner — and in that way defeat the very purposes of the falsecard.

But with some hands a defender can afford to deliberately deceive partner — at the same time that he is trying to deceive declarer — because no harm, and only good, can come from the attempted deception.

Consider this deal where, if you study all four hands, it would seem that declarer must make four spades, for his only losers are two hearts and a club.

But when the hand was played, South wound up going down one as the result of an exceptionally clever move by East.

West led the king of hearts. East overtaking it with the ace and returning the deuce to West's queen. West naturally smelt that his partner had started with a doubleton heart — which was exactly what East wanted him to think — and he therefore continued with a third round of hearts.

Declarer would have made the contract had he elected to ruff low in dummy, but he ruffed high because he was afraid that otherwise East would overruff dummy and so

When East followed on the third round of hearts, declarer realized he had fallen victim to East's deception, but it was then too late to do anything about it. East later scored a trump trick, as well as the ace of clubs, to put the contract down one, and he was thus well rewarded for his highly imaginative defense.

'Bugging' Suit Could Damage Nixon'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Committee for the Re-election of the President asked the U.S. District Court Monday to postpone until after the Nov. 7 election hearings in a $1-million civil suit in connection with the alleged break-in and attempted bugging of Democratic party national headquarters here.

Lawyers for the committee said in the request that wage disputes before the election would cause incalculable" damage to President Nixon's campaign.

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien filed the suit against the Nixon committee and five suspects almost two days after it was disclosed that one suspect in the June 17 break-in was the accountant for the chairman of the Nixon committee.

The committee said in papers filed with the court that court hearings would "allow Mr. O'Brien and the Democratic national committee to utilize this lawsuit as a forum from which to accuse this committee of complicity in criminal conduct throughout the 1972 election campaign."

Denying any involvement by the committee in the break-in, the brief said responsible persons in the news of the "coincidental employment" of suspect James W. McCord, the former Republican security chief, would be particularly damaging.

Robber Gouges Victims' Eyes

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Police are searching for a bandit who they said gouged out the eyes of two of his holdup victims after robbing them of small amounts of money.

Investigators said they are "quite sure" their grocer Sermust C. Schafer, 72, and gasoline station attendant Robert Pare, 19, were victims of the same bandit.

Before dawn Monday, less than 24 hours later, Paro was choked, robbed of $10 and also blinded.

Seek Ohio Man

SUDBURY (CP) — The attorney-general's office has hired counsel in Ohio to seek the extradition of an Ohio man who was given a suspended sentence here when convicted of rape, but who was sentenced to seven years imprisonment by the Ohio court of Appeal in June.

Pickets Charged

Police were called to the plant after about a dozen workers attempting to enter the building to begin an 8 a.m. shift were blocked by pickets.

Must Vacate

TORONTO (CP) — North York borough council ruled Monday that six young people will be given six months to vacate a single-family dwelling.

The six, who have been from broken homes, have been told to vacate the premises because they are breaking a bylaw which prohibits people unrelated by blood, marriage or legal adoption from living together in an area zoned for single-family dwellings.

The six range in age from 17 to 20.

Canadian Radio-Television Commission

Conseil de la Radiodiffusion Canadienne

PUBLIC NOTICE

Ottawa, June 29, 1972

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT
CBC RADIO POLICY

Decision CRTC 72-197

At the public hearing in Ottawa on March 28 and 29, 1972 the Canadian Radio-television Commission heard an application by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation concerning a proposal for its new radio program policy. The proposal is generally referred to as Radio 1 and Radio II. The Commission also heard an application by the CBC for the establishment of six FM stations and a French FM network. These applications were intended to implement the initial phases of the new policy.

The CRTC was impressed with the task undertaken by the Corporation which has been concerned with the apparent changes in the attitudes of audiences towards radio broadcasting and with the proportion of some its broadcast work by CBC radio programs. The Corporation has carried out a study on these matters; the preliminary results of this commission is the result of that study. The proposal would have a fundamental influence on the development of the radio part of what the Broadcasting Act calls "the national broadcasting service".

At the hearing, the Commission heard representations from the CBC and from several intervenants. After careful review of all these representations and having carefully considered other forms of radio service now available to Canadians, the Commission has come to the conclusion that it cannot agree with the proposed new radio policy.

The CBC is established under the provisions of the Broadcasting Act for the purpose of providing, within the framework of the Canadian Broadcasting system, a national broadcasting service that is of a high standard and is predominantly Canadian in content and character. The Act specifies that:

(i) this service should be a balanced service of information, enlightenment and entertainment for people of different ages, interests and tastes, covering the whole range of programming in fair proportion;

(ii) this service should be extended to all parts of Canada as public funds become available;

(iii) this service should be in English and French, serving the special needs of geographic regions and actively contributing to the flow and exchange of cultural and regional information and entertainment, and

(iv) this service should contribute to the development of national unity and provide for a continuing expression of Canadian identity.

The CRTC is established to regulate and supervise all aspects of the Canadian broadcasting system with a view to implementing the policy objectives established by Parliament. It is within the context of these roles assigned by the Broadcasting Act of the CBC and to the Canadian public that decision of the Commission has been made.

Parliament, in enacting the Broadcasting Act, declared that broadcasting undertaking in Canada constitute a single system comprising public and private elements. Each element must make a distinctive contribution to the attainment of the whole system. Achieving programming which is varied, comprehensive and of high standard for all Canadians as required by Parliament, is not an easy objective to attain. The Commission is aware that a great deal of effort is yet required to reach that objective. It is obvious, however, that the role of the CBC in establishing and maintaining standards is of particular importance.

For over 25 years, the people of Canada have supported that service of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation with public funds in order to achieve standards in Canadian broadcasting which are strictly commercial system cannot attain. The purpose was also that this "national service" would be available to all Canadians in English and in French as public funds became available.

As a consequence, the CBC cannot, like a private corporation, readily adapt its services in response to the "fluctuations of the market" in order to achieve institutional survival. The CBC is, in fact a public trust in Canadian broadcasting, a definite tendency on the part of some private stations in the same service areas to provide very similar services. The Commission is of the view that the trends inherent in the Radio I proposal and in the "experiments" that have been carried out in relation to this proposal shift CBC AM programming away from what is unique and bring it much too close to the programming already available on many of the privately owned radio stations.

The Commission's considered judgement is that the proposal, designed to attract larger audiences, may jeopardize distinctive, high quality programming by the CBC. The Commission is not convinced that acquiring more listeners for CBC radio justifies the use of formats and techniques which are derived largely from the private sector. The challenge to the CBC remains in the strengthening and encouragement of distinctive radio programming, something for which, over the years, it has been singularly recognized internationally and nationally.

The Commission recognizes the dilemma facing CBC in attempting to maintain its mandate when so many people seem willing to follow the trends of North American commercial broadcasting. However, the mandate of the CBC remains one of providing a broadcasting service of distinctive quality which is predominantly Canadian in content and character and a continuing expression of Canadian identity.

In arriving at its decision on the Radio I and II proposal, the Commission has taken particular note that it would appear:

1) to contain on overly centralized programme production structure which would stifle the ability of regional sources to contribute innovative basis;

2) to be unduly influenced by the popularity standards of people living in urban areas where listeners have a broad range of broadcasting services available in addition to other forms of entertainment and enlightenment;

3) to exhibit a concern with audience ratings which is influenced more by standards of commercial popularity than by standards of programme distinctiveness and excellence;

4) to be considerably influenced by the CBC dependence for distribution on affiliates whose natural interest in commercial programmes are sometimes in conflict with the basic aims of CBC programming policy;

5) to neglect CBC radio's original function of reflecting to a national audience the total range of the country's life from the instant reporting of topics, views, and day by day creative expression to the continuing and considered presentation of the long term concerns of our society, of what is best in the past and what is in our cultural achievements, and in our national heritage.

The Commission is firmly convinced that any tendency on the part of the CBC to achieve better ratings by imitating or approximating programming forms of commercial stations must be strongly resisted. The reason is simple. There is no need for more of the same. More particularly, there is no need to spend public funds to duplicate what is already provided by commercial operations.

In the contemporary radio environment it is indeed difficult to provide truly distinctive programming, particularly for "people of different ages, interests and tastes," but the Commission considers that the onus is on the CBC to find possible to find new forms and new kind of presentation to fulfill these essential requirements of service as set out in the Broadcasting Act.

The Commission recognizes the difficulty of the task facing the Corporation. It must produce programs which are of a high standard representing a distinct contribution to the over-all Canadian broadcasting system and which, at the same time, will enjoy as wide acceptance as possible from the public. However, only the difficulty of such a task can justify the need of tax-supported institution to achieve the objective.

The Commission also is of the opinion that the CBC should phase out the carriage of commercials on its French and English radio networks except where they are indispensable to ensure the availability of sums of acceptable interest. In arriving at this view, the Commission takes into account that annual earning from commercial advertising on CBC radio total approximately $2 million as against total annual public supplied funds of $35 million.

In reaching its conclusion concerning the proposed radio policy, the commission has also been greatly influenced by another consideration. CBC radio was introduced in 1936. The purpose of this service was and still remains to provide to all Canadians radio programming of a national and distinctive nature in English and in French. In 1972, this goal still remains to be achieved for a large part of the population. According to the best available figures there are still millions of Canadians who only a receive a small portion of CBC radio programs in English or in French. A CBC schedule represents approximately 130 hours a week. Millions of Canadians of English or French language receive only a part of those programs. The number of hours received in some areas can be as low as 20 hours of English language schedule or as low as 27 hours of the French language schedule.

It would not seem realistic to say that only 20% or 25% of CBC radio programs are essential. People in the larger centre of Canada receive 130 hours a week of CBC radio programs - 100%. Presumably, all these programs are considered essential by the Corporation or otherwise they would not be produced. It does not follow either, that they are essential for the larger centres and not essential for the smaller centres. Indeed the larger centres have more radio stations, some of them 5 or even 10; so they need 130 hours of CBC programs only because these programs presumably complement somewhat similar fare from the 5 or 10 stations available. If this is so, then such programs become even more desirable for many smaller centres which do not have or enjoy the cultural facilities and opportunities of the larger centres.

The CRTC is very favorable in principle to the establishment of more English and French FM stations and to the development of FM networks. However, some cities in Canada have enjoyed this kind of service for a number of years, it is the CRTC's intention that this service should be extended to other parts of the country as funds become available.

However, the Commission is deeply concerned about any proposal to add a second CBC radio service in some areas while many other culturally less privileged areas are still lacking a first full CBC service. As a consequence, the Commission wishes to defer a decision on the applications by the CBC for six FM stations and a French FM network. The Commission will reconsider this matter as soon as the questions of policy raised in the present decision have been solved to the satisfaction of the commission.

The Commission is also of the opinion that the Corporation should investigate the possibility of affiliating some of the private FM stations now in existence with the English and French FM operations.

Sandbanks Not Harmed Says Geologist's Report

Party Choice Writes Policy

MIAMI BEACH (CP) — Senator George McGovern goes through the formality of claiming the Democratic presidential nomination tonight, assured of the votes to win it on the first ballot and backed by a platform he could call his own.

The convention itself slogged through its second straight marathon session into the early-morning hours today debating the platform the Democrats will take to the people in November.

The session came as an anticlimax to earlier developments Tuesday—the dramatic withdrawals from the presidential race by Senators Robert Humphrey and Edmund Muskie.

But the platform debate proved useful in demonstrating that the 49-year-old McGovern could carry his delegate forces with him in what must become an effort to restore unity to a divided party.

McGovern, son of a South Dakota Methodist minister, also pondered a list of possible running mates. Aides said he still plans to ask a reluctant Senator Edward Kennedy to join the ticket.

In the presidential balloting tonight the candidates in addition to McGovern are Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, who advocates a strong defence posture and restrictions on school busing to achieve racial balance in the close-rooms; black representative Shirley Chisholm of New York; Alabama Gov. George Wallace; Representative Wilbur Mills of Arkansas; former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford and former senator Eugene McCarthy.

The convention, meanwhile, headed toward approval of a platform that mirrors McGovern's views in calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina and supporting busing.

By voice vote, the convention shouted down eight proposals, ranging from endorsement of capital punishment and public-school prayers to a constitutional amendment barring busing, despite a plea by Wallace.

McGovern's forces roamed the floor, urging approval of the statement of party positions drafted by the platform committee and rejection of opposition proposals on Vietnam, school busing and abortion.

"Me?...Oh I like the little blonde strategy behind McGovern!"

Ulster Observes Twelfth

BELFAST (AP) — The British government ordered 32,000 troops, police and militiamen into the streets of Northern Ireland today to keep the province's warring religious factions apart while 300,000 Protestants of the Orange Order paraded.

Belfast was lit by scores of street bonfires during the night, marking the advent of the "Glorious Twelfth." It is the 282nd anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, in which the Protestant armies of William of Orange defeated the Roman Catholic forces of James II.

Amid politicians' warnings that Northern Ireland is closer to civil warfare than any time in the three years of communal violence, the militant Protestants of the Ulster Defence Association said their armed units would protect the marchers from attack by the Catholic Irish Republican Army.

Government forces cordoned the line of march in Belfast to block attacks by Catholics against the display of Protestant dominance. Catholics of the Andersontown, Ballymurphy and Ardoyne districts sealed off their sectors with barricades of concrete and steel to keep out Protestant raiders.

Trouble was feared in Portadown, a town of 13,000 population 25 miles southwest of Belfast. The route of the parade there ran through a Catholic section, and the IRA said it would not allow the marchers through. The UDA said it was prepared for a showdown.

The bulldoup to the parades was considered. The Provisional wing of the IRA, Sunday night called off a truce it had entered two weeks before, and the shooting and bombing since has been worse than ever.

Trucks Haul Away Sandbanks Dunes

Lake Ontario Cement Company trucks are shown hauling away sand from the Sandbanks 16-acre site the company leases from the Ontario government. The flat area in the foreground was once occupied by one of the largest dunes at the Sandbanks, say area resort operators. The cement company's quarry area lies at the southeast end of Sandbanks, the area formerly used by picnickers and campers before the Ontario government established a provincial park at the Sandbanks and created a new entrance road.

Sandbanks Report Pleases Majority

By HARRY MULBALL
and MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporters

Immediate local reaction to the Tovel Sandbanks report today seemed to weigh on the side of the provincial government.

There was outspoken exception: Mrs. Ronald Barrett, Sandbanks tourist resort operator who said she was "flabbergasted" and "did not like" what she heard from the broadcast press conference which first aired the Tovell recommendations.

But Prince Edward County Warden Ross Benway said he was "quite happy" and felt the provincial government made the only possible decision.

William Duggan, the county's economic development director, believed the report was "most fair" and he was "very pleased" with its approach.

Glynd Jamot, president of Quinte Lake Regional Tourist Council, said he couldn't see where the quarry operation was creating "any great problem." Phasing out Lake Ontario Cement Company operations would create economic hardships in the Picton area he warned.

Warden Benway observed that approximately 200 jobs have been protected and the 16.2 acre quarry site is not destroying the sandbanks if it can rejuvenate itself in 15 or 20 years as Dr. Tovell suggested. He added the report is working to the best advantage of the tourist industry and Lake Ontario Cement Ltd., and with proper regulations for reclaiming dunes in the summer months, should work to the advantage of all.

Mrs. Ronald Barrett, who operates Sandbanks beach resort adjacent to Sandbanks, with her husband, said she was "flabbergasted" and did not like what she heard. "Not only can they take the sand but they can go down 9 to 10 make a lake there," she protested. Mrs. Barrett said she did not understand how they could say the removal rate of the sand is decreasing and added the tonnage rate given

Nixon to See Russian Envoy

The ambassador and Mrs. Dobrynin, described as guests of Henry Kissinger, the president's foreign affairs adviser, were invited by their host to visit the Western White House today.

Ronald Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, said in response to a question: "I don't want to describe it as a courtesy call." Substantive matters will be discussed, he said.

Park After Dunes Gone

TORONTO (CP) — Quarrying operations are not affecting the ecology or reducing the massive sand dunes of Prince Edward County in eastern Ontario the provincial government says in a study made public today.

However the study, prepared by geologist Dr. Walter Tovell of Toronto, says the land being held by the Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. on a 75-year lease should be returned to the province at the end of a three-year period.

Mr. Tovell's report also said the company should be allowed to remove all of the estimated 128,000 tons of sand remaining before it surrenders its lease.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier released the report at a news conference, saying the government accepts Mr. Tovell's recommendations in principle.

Mr. Bernier said he and his staff will meet immediately with company officials to go over the details of the report and negotiate its recommendations. Mr. Bernier cautioned that the company's lease represents only one per cent of the sand dunes area.

He said that no other commercial operations will ever be permitted in the area's dunes area.

The threat to the sand dunes ecology in the beach and resort area of Prince Edward County has been the subject of controversy for more than two years. Mr. Tovell, associate director of the Royal Ontario Museum, began his study last year.

Mr. Bernier said the government was ready "to negotiate hard" on getting the lease terminated, but he said the company has already indicated a willingness to reassess its position as the only extractive industry at the dunes.

Mr. Tovell's report said an alternative site would be vital to save the jobs of 70 persons employed at the dunes by the company. Mr. Tovell said one site might be on the leased land the company already holds, if the company and government can agree on a mining operations below the water level.

The area where the quarrying now is being done was once under water as part of West Lake. Quarrying below the water level could revert the area back to its original form.

Mr. Bernier said other alternate sites are being considered and will be offered to the company.

The lease included rights to the sand reserves as well as sand that is blown into the pits.

9 Millhaven Convicts Still at Large

KINGSTON (CP) — An escaped prisoner from Collins Bay penitentiary was captured today when he walked into an intensive search area 15 miles west of here where police were looking for nine of 14 prisoners who escaped from the maximum-security Millhaven prison Monday night.

Police said John Singleton, 30, left a labor gang Tuesday morning, but was caught when he was spotted walking along CNR tracks two miles north of Millhaven.

Meanwhile, a small army of police and prison officials, armed with shotguns, high-powered rifles and using airplanes and tracking dogs, were forming dense bush within a 10-mile radius of the maximum-security prison for the remaining nine of the 14 prisoners who cut through a chain-link fence to freedom after a baseball game.

Five already have been captured, all within seven miles of the prison as 12 provincial police and 80 prison guards spread their search in Canada's largest prison, break with a field-by-field and tree-by-tree hunt in the area.

Five of the escapees including one of three convicted killers, were in solitary confinement cells at the prison Tuesday night, less than 24 hours after they made their bold for freedom during a softball game in the prison compound.

It was the biggest mass escape in Canadian history.

Residents of this eastern Ontario city and in nearby rural towns made sure their doors were locked. None of the convicts recaptured had gone farther than seven miles from the institution.

Police had one of the escapees handed to them by two farmers near Bath, three miles west of the prison.

Ronald Fillion, 25, of Toronto, was captured in the same area when he stood up in tall grass and gave himself up to advancing police.

Edward Woods, 26, of Burlington, Ont., serving a life term for non-capital murder, covered the most ground of those captured, but the truck he was driving was forced off the road near Odessa, Ont.

Woods was the first caught. A passenger in the truck eluded police by dashing through a dried-up creek bed.

Robert Clark, 38, of Tillsonburg, Ont., serving a life sentence for breaking prison by force, breaking and entering and possession of weapons, was trapped in a cement plant under construction about seven miles west of Millhaven. Tracking dogs forced him to bolt cover and he gave up after a warning shot was fired.

Captured in the same vicinity following a tip by a citizen who spotted him in deep grass was John Taylor, 31, of Hamilton, serving seven years for breaking prison by force, breaking and entering and possession of burglary tools.

Other escapees: Thomas McCauley, 35, and Charles Boomer, 37, Edmonton; Denis Desemba, 23, William Yardley, 24, and Gerald LaRocque, 32, all of Toronto; Raymond Nash, 25, St. Catharines, Ont.; Richard Smith, 21, Penetang, Ont.; and Thomas Smith, 34, London, Ont.

The Hunt Goes On

Police checkpoints are still up throughout the Quinte-Kingston area today, as the hunt goes on for nine of 14 prison inmates who escaped maximum security at Millhaven Monday. Roadblocks, like this one on Highway 33 near the scene of the escape, saw every vehicle and driver undergoing detailed checks as the massive manhunt went into its second day.

Judge Questions Propriety Of Welfare Support Cases

PICTON (Staff) — Deserted wives seeking financial aid from welfare authorities generally should not be compelled by "the system" to turn their kids for support into court cases.

Judge Robert Walmsley of the provincial court, family division, yesterday told Picton Rotarians that welfare department workers concerned for the taxpayer's dollar frequently urge mothers to obtain money from their husbands if possible.

By bringing these cases to court with charges of desertion these women "draw a battle line" and the likelihood of reconciliation between husband and wife is reduced, in Judge Walmsley's opinion.

The judge who has jurisdiction in family court matters in Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward Counties, suggested counselling might provide an alternative in dealing with this problem.

He noted reconciliations might be possible where expert advice is provided before either husband or wife takes a hardened stand which cannot be dropped "without losing face."

Judge Walmsley observed that "in the area of human relations" requests for assistance are growing steadily and have surpassed the help available.

He explained problems involving mathematical proportion have ready solutions but in the field of human relations simple answers are not at hand.

Troubled persons eager for solutions feel, however, that in view of the great strides in modern technology there should be within reach.

Judge Walmsley explained the functions of the family court and said that it was an extension of the "real judge pedge," until it was placed under the provincial government four years ago and put on a more manageable basis.

A Picton resident, Judge Walmsley usually sits four days each week and has jurisdiction in that community with a total population of 150,000 persons. He was appointed in 1968 and described his work as "a manageable load" which is steadily growing.

Today, youngsters of 12 or 13 years of age who are charged with offences such as break and enter appear before, instead of in an adult court.

Judge Walmsley said police officers exercise discretion in deciding when a charge should be laid.

He commented that 40 per cent of his work involves youngsters under 16 years of age and over seven who have been charged with a crime.

Separated parents contribute to 30 per cent of his work load. Frequently they are unable to work out family support problems without help.

Still another area of his job concerns "the battered child situation" which he noted is not usually as dramatic as the phrase implies.

Judge Walmsley said police reports of neglected children and where necessary places them under the care of the Children's Aid Society for a time.

The judge outlined several of the cases which routinely confront him in his work week and explained how he must carefully decide between the youngster who has committed an offence without knowledge of guilt and the child who deliberately breaks the law.

He referred to a retarded 10-year-old boy whose parents were separated and noted a charge of wilful damage against him followed a window breaking episode at a condemned house.

The boy, whose father is retarded also appeared in court and was unsure of his age or birth date. It was obvious that he could not comprehend the difference between guilt and innocence.

Judge Walmsley said the boy's father pleaded "not guilty" in his behalf and decided no judgment has been made but the child may be placed in a foster home when he can be cared for by adults who do not face the retardation evidenced in his father.

In contrast a highly-intelligent 15-year-old boy who was charged when 15 for shoplifting a first middle appeared in court and received a fine for his offence.

Judge Walmsley said the youth apparently had acted on impulse and probably would not repeat the offence but he was an intelligent youth who knew what he did was wrong.

Reaction Is Favorable

this morning "does not add up at all" with the loads of sand drawn daily. "It's kind of sickening," she said, "and it's obvious who's paying Dr. Tovell's paychequ." Mrs. Barnett's referral to the report as very disappointing and said she thought the government would offer more consideration in this environmental issue of concerning the farmers.

William Duggan, director of economic development, said he was "very pleased" to hear the minister so carefully considered all sides of the problem. He termed Dr. Tovell's report most fair and careful and helpful to both parties. Mr. Duggan said he thought Mr. Bernier made it extremely clear that the cement company does have "in good faith a first class valid lease". He said this was a very important point and the lease should not be cancelled because some persons object. A forced takeover in his opinion would have "repercussions on all of us in all phases of daily life."

Glynn James, president of Quinte Isle Regional Tourist Council, said reaction should await company - government talks on the Tovell report although he personally didn't consider the issue a "great problem".

His greatest concern was the economic results of any move affecting company operations, and possible fill-in results of unhampered sand drifting over future years.

Government representatives should discuss the situation with long-time residents in the Sandbanks area as well as geologists, he said, to get a clearer picture of what could be in store.

In Hospital

Donald Fleming, 5, of 147 Park Road North, remains in Belleville General Hospital today after being involved in a motor vehicle accident.

Hospital authorities say he is being held for observation with the possibilities of head injuries after being struck by a car.

Obituaries and Funerals

PERCY ELLIOT KERR

Ill for the past several weeks, Percy Elliot Kerr, 115 Queen Street, retired CN engineer, died Tuesday at Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 70th year.

Born at Thomasburg, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kerr, and was a lifetime resident of the area.

He went to work for the old Grand Trunk railway in Belleville in 1911 but during the latter part of World War I served in an engineering corps of the 38th Battalion at Barriefield. He retired from the railway in 1960 after 43-years service.

Mr. Kerr was a member of Tabernacle United Church where he served as a senior elder. Fraternally, he belonged to Dorset Lodge AF and AM No. 285 of which he was a life member and past master. Also a shriner, he was a past watchman of the Sherbrook and belonged to Bethlehem Sirius No. 11. He was a past patron of the Ontario Eastern Star and was an honorary member of Minerva Chapter No. 138.

As a former railway engineer he was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Local 189.

Mr. Kerr is survived by his wife, the former Pearl Dingwall, a daughter, Mrs. Wilbur J. Dafoe, Brockville, Mrs. Brockville and three grandchildren, Mrs. Robert (Beth) Stanton of Mississauga, Marylo and George, both of Brockville. There is one great grandson, Sean Stanton.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. L. E. (Mary) Hicks and Mrs. Gordon (Irene) Webb, both of Springbrook. Two brothers, Clarence and Harold predeceased him.

The funeral will be held Friday from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home to Tabernacle United Church where at 2 p.m. conducted by Rev. Leslie Dean. Interment Belleville Cemetery.

WILLIAM F. ELLIOTT

Funeral service for William Frederick Elliott was held Monday afternoon in Grace Chapel, Deseronto.

Officiating was W. E. Belch of Joy Bible Camp in Bancroft. Interment followed in Thomasburg Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Murray and Fred Elliott, Grant Clarke, Gardner Welsh, Claire Post, and Vernon Hoar.

Mr. Elliott rested at the Hogle Funeral Home.

MISS MARIANNE WALL

The funeral for Miss Marianne Wall was held July 11, 1972, at 10 a.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville.

Rev. Charles Gazeley said the mass and the prayers at the graveside in St. James Cemetery and St. Rev. Fr. Carley and Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan were present in the sanctuary.

Also present at the service was the 18th Belleville Brownie Pack. St. Joseph's School of which Miss Wall was Brown Owl and the 8th Pack and the Guide Company from St. Joseph's.

Bearers were Garry Greatrix, Thomas Shannon, Brian Day, Robert Hicks, John Champion and Richard Daley.

Newsmakers

Meetings Sought

Municipal councils throughout the Centre Hastings area are being encouraged this fall to learn first-hand of education programs and problems. Wally Beevor, new principal of Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc, has written all councils, asking for an opportunity to meet with all elected bodies in the district served by the school.

Good At Job

The Belleville boy scouts' new treasurer is certainly well qualified for the job. Phillip Barker is manager of the North Front St. branch of the Royal Bank and has taken an interest in scouting since his days as an active participant during his youth.

Non-Stop Trip

A 15-year-old Belleville youth pedalled 200 miles in 38 hours to visit friends in Valleyfield, Quebec last week. Robert Hubert, of 262 Foster Street, rested by Highway 2, originally thinking it would be a three-day trip. He decided to make the trip non-stop.

Time To Retire

After 35 years of government service, Earle Elliot, since 1943 with the department of national revenue, retires at the end of this week. A chartered accountant, Mr. Elliot was chief of field and office audit. He began April 3, 1937, with the post office department in Canada from England.

Substitute Moderator

Moderator of Radio Station CJBQ's open line show this morning, when the Sandbanks issue was threshed out following the government announcement, was Ted Clarke. Mr. Clarke, a Hastings county school board trustee and former chairman, is vice - president and general manager of Wilson's Concrete Products. He is one of three people substituting for regular moderator Milt Johnston.

Belleville Residents Restless

Belleville residents are a highly mobile group, almost rivalling the roving ways of American city dwellers, considered the most highly mobile society in the modern world.

About 21 per cent of city residents change addresses in a year. A study in the United States indicates that 25 per cent of all city residents move each year.

Last year, he said, the commission made 2,200 connections for people moving into existing houses in the city. This figure does not take into consideration the people who moved into newly built houses. The Belleville Utilities Commission has a total of 12,- customers.

Apple Day Dates Set

Approval was granted in a letter received Tuesday by registrar Mrs. Betty Fort from the Belleville financial appeals review board.

This year's campaign, the first since the organization broke away from the United Appeal, could determine whether the Belleville scout movement can survive on its own. The drive, which last year netted $1,200, is its major source of funds.

Cubs and scouts will canvass homes in their neighborhood Oct. 16-20, then solicit contributions from business the evening of the 20th and the 21st.

It's Hot But No Heat Wave

Quinte district residents today sweltering in a steamy weather stress could take some comfort from local weather predictions.

Heat and humidity, which began steaming up the weather scene this morning, will have regained somewhat within the next two days, says the Canadian Forces Base Trenton forecaster.

Temperatures in the Belleville-Trenton area will be in the high 80s meantime — even warmer further inland in the Quinte district.

Low last night only reached 65 degrees — but the current spell is no heat wave, says the forecaster.

Neither does humidity threaten to be at maximum discomfort levels. Humider readings the measurement of humidity today were expected to reach around 85. Readings of 70-84 are considered comfortable.

Robert Ord New Head Of Rotary

A suggestion that the club might look for other organizations to take over projects established and running smoothly, so that Rotarians might devote themselves to fresh undertakings, was made by Rotary President Robert Ord in his inaugural address.

Mr. Ord, who succeeds William McPherson, emphasized this was a personal suggestion. He cited as an example the Music Festival and added that other projects might be revitalized, such as concentrating more on the science section of the Science Fair and Hobby Show.

More use of such information and educational aids as film strips and slides from Rotary International is also planned by the new president in his year of office. It is also hoped to invite speakers on employer relations and that Rotarians will be available to secondary school students to discuss their occupations.

The Guess Who May Be Coming

The Toronto group, currently in the midst of a 38-day tour will perform at Belleville Memorial Arena accompanied by new recording acts Bennett and New Potatoes.

On Aug. 6, The Guess Who from Winnipeg is tentatively scheduled for a concert here. Recreation department officials hope to sign the contract this week.

In The Cooler

The example of Nancy McVicker and nine-year-old Kim Willis was followed by pooch Sabrina as they sought cooling respite from the day's heat and humidity in Bay of Quinte at Belleville today.

Marmora Hears Proposals On Development of Town

MARMORA — Annexation of surrounding land may be a necessity in the near future for this village.

The move is among various possibilities patterned for this community in development proposals stemming from the Hastings County Planning Board.

A preview of proposals given council recently by planning consultants also includes:

Business — Creation of a mall in the Marmora business area; keep commercial development north of Highway, and encourage its expansion east of the present main street block. Discourage isolated development.

Residential — Residential expansion to be encouraged northward from the village and east and north from the acre lots north of Highway 7 and west of Crowe River where no water system exists.

Other proposals include a walk along both sides of the Crowe River; extension of public school area to the north; a bylaw to control location of trailer areas; adequate street parking for home businesses — such as hairdressers.

There should be no changes in the downtown and council should not designate too many areas but consider development as it arises.

The proposals for consideration by council were outlined by Bruce McLaughlin and Mary Standing, of Tolles, Sims, and Hubicki, the consultants preparing an over-all Hastings County plan for the planning board.

Councillors later passed a motion requesting the board to authorize preparation of a restricted area bylaw by the consultants. The ordinance would be based on existing land use to prevent undesirable development until the official county plan is ready.

East End Park Proposal Again Goes to Planners

After long months of discussion with the matter referred back and forth between parks and recreation, planning board, and city council, park requirements for the city's east end south of Bridge Street are still undecided.

Parks and recreation want a minimum of 3½ acres for a neighborhood park but the problem is to determine just where it should be provided at a cost the city is prepared to pay.

The park matter was again up for discussion Tuesday at a meeting of the subcommittee planning committee attended by Robert Marcotte representative of Marcotte H. Rollins Construction, which has a 14-acre development planned for the area.

The development is planned to include single family residences, town houses and other multi-family units and would be serviced by a southern extension of Parrott Drive with outlets to Elizabeth Crescent and Haig Road.

Mr. Marcotte said that under the parks board five per cent levy policy his firm would be called upon to contribute a .65 acre parcel to the city while the additional levy for high density would provide another .35 acres for a total of one acre.

It is expected that the additional 2.35 acres of park land deemed necessary would have to come from other undeveloped land in the area.

Mr. Marcotte said his firm was in agreement for the one acre of parkland to come from its property.

Committee member Alderman Arthur Keegan urged an early decision on the park matter as the development could get on with the subdivision.

Haines, he said, were badly needed in the city and should have precedence over parks.

Parks board chairman Alderman Paul Russell didn't disagree but at the same time said parks were needed for proper living.

"We have to plan now," he said, "otherwise the land will be built on.

Also, with increasing land values, purchase of park property in the area would become much costlier in the future.

The committee referred the subdivision plans back to the planning department for redesigning of the roadways to provide for the additional 2.35 acres of parkland adjacent to the Rollins development.

Mr. Marcotte said his firm would co-operate with the planners in any roadway redesign needed.

Young Girl Drowns Near Tweed

TWEED (Special) — A 12-year-old Tweed area girl was drowned yesterday while wading in the Skootamatta River near her home on Highway 7 northeast of here.

Bonnie Lynn Kleinsteuber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kleinsteuber of RR 3, Tweed was playing in the river with three other girls, including her sister Kathryn, when she became caught in the current.

The incident occurred about 1:30 p.m. and Tweed fire department stood by with its rescue equipment until the body was recovered about 4:30 p.m. in a 15-foot deep hole in the river not far from where the girl disappeared.

Ontario Provincial Police divers James McCormick from the Madoc detachment and Garnet Brown from the Belleville detachment found the body. Coroner A. G. Allen of Tweed pronounced the child dead.

Both parents were working in Tweed at the time of the accident.

North Front St. Traffic

The traffic survey being conducted on North Front Street is timely, coming as it does during a period of increasing traffic flow and of all too frequent accidents.

That accidents are occurring with some regularity is not surprising given the popularity of The Mall shopping area and the speed of vehicles heading in that direction. This, combined with cars stopping to make turns at intersections or into private driveways or commercial establishments along the route makes for hazardous conditions that were not present a couple of years ago. The possibility of rear-end collisions are a constant threat as vehicles stop to make turns, as mentioned above.

Meantime strict adherance to the official speed limits — varying from 30 to 40 mph. in both directions — is appropriate. The Mall, incidentally posts a limit of 15 mph, although drivers are either blind to it or pay no attention. To our knowledge there have been no mishaps on The Mall parking lot, although with cars turning off in every direction it seems little short of miraculous.

Tibetans Remember

Ancient traditions and respect for their spiritual leader, the Dalai Lama, were combined in the ceremony that brought members of the Tibetan community together at Ameliasburg recently.

The Tibetans are now a familiar sight in the Quinte area and they represent a colorful new element in the Canadian social fabric. Yet the memories of their mountainous homeland, long dominated by the Chinese Communists, remain. Since the Peking takeover in 1951 there have been a number of abortive revolts and it was after the first of these, in 1959, that the Dalai Lama fled to India with a number of his followers. It is estimated that some 20,000 Tibetans have escaped to India since the Chinese takeover.

The products of ever seeing their homeland again are remote for most of those exiled in India and here in Canada. But they do have freedom and a stable way of life for their generation and others to follow. The ceremony at Ameliasburg was symbolic of a hallowed past as well as of hope for the future.

Retirement

Her book supply finally sold and with only a handful of magazines remaining, Miss Joy Nichols sat at her desk in The Quinte Book Store across from this office the other day. The shelves were empty but we were glad to be able to buy a couple of magazines that were still available.

After some 40 years in business in Belleville the building housing Miss Nichols' store has been sold and she is retiring. As well as her stock of contemporary literature a feature of The Quinte Book Store was its stock of magazines from overseas; in addition Miss Nichols was one of the major suppliers of school books in the community.

If there was a book one wanted and it was not available Miss Nichols would write away for it — like Cyril Connolly's The Unquiet Grave which she obtained for us a few years ago.

Now with everything nearly gone Miss Nichols, characteristically, was still at her desk, attending to paper work. A small bouquet of flowers was in a vase before her and outside the sun shone on Bridge Street.

Champions All

Some of the traditional cliches of the ageing process come to mind in connection with sporting triumphs in recent days . . . like old soldiers never die . . . and you are as young as you feel. Golf pro Guy Brewer is 40 but he has just won the Canadian Open, while that doughty little American, Billie Jean King, who at 28 calls herself "The Old Lady" of tennis disposed of reigning champion Evonne Goolagong, 20, of Australia, in straight sets. One whose age may be creeping up on him is Roberto de Vicenzo, the 49-year-old Argentine golf pro who was the oldest ever winner of the British Open in 1967. He has had to withdraw from this year's British Open at Muirfield on medical advice, as well as cancelling a European tour. De Vicenzo has been a long-time competitor all over the world — as we recall he was either runner-up or third in the 1947 British Open — and hope this is only a temporary rest from the international golfing scene. We recall also that Brewer was sidelined from golf for a while recently because of a hemorrhage.

Senior Citizen Survey Shows Positive Results

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Where one wades through the verbiage and bad taste of Bob Sanders' letter which appeared in your issue of July 8 regarding the Senior Citizens' Survey, we know how true his statement is that he did not study the whole report.

In making this study, we resolved to interview every resident of Belleville over the age of 60 that we could reach. Our first step was to send a member of our team to the assessment office in Trenton where she took 3,200 names off the rolls.

Page 2 of our report gives a breakdown of what happened to these 3,200 names. Our team interviewed 2,269 senior citizens. Of the additional 1,001 names, 429 had moved and could not be located, 80 were not senior citizens, 136 were deceased, and 362 did not wish to be interviewed.

We leave it to you to determine if this was an arbitrary decision on our part. We are proud of the fact that we can account for every name. How many studies can boast of this?

I wish to take this opportunity to inform you as to what has already happened in the action phase.

(1) An officer of Pensioners Concerned will be in Belleville during the month of September to tell our Senior Citizens how they can be involved with other Senior Citizens throughout Canada in influencing Government on their behalf.

(2) Belleville Public Utilities Commission is already reorganizing its billing system so that Senior Citizens will no longer be in jeopardy of losing the 10 per cent discount.

(3) The Health Unit has offered to send a public health nurse to visit every home where it is indicated in the report that this should be done. This will be done in the coming weeks.

(4) The shopping service for those who can not get out will be starting within the next week or so.

(5) Free premises have been found for the co-operative repair services, and a promise to equip it has been made.

(6) We are busy working toward a pre-retirement program which will involve Industry, Labor and Loyalist College.

In conclusion, we wish to quote from a letter dated June 29 from Lawrence Crawford, director, Bureau for the Aged office on Aging Branch of the Provincial Ministry of Community and Social Services, "Congratulations you for a copy of your 'Senior Citizens' Study Survey Report' which appears to be very very worthwhile. I am particularly interested in some of the definite reports and findings; for example, like low proportion of persons at or near the retirement age who have made any plans for retirement itself. Secondly, there are direct suggestions relating to Senior Citizens' accommodation and Elderly Persons Centres which we will bear in mind . . ." In as much as we are in discussions now for further programming for an Elderly Persons' Centre in Belleville I will be sure that this material is made an integral part of planning and discussion.

Conflict of Interest Alleged

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I would be most pleased if you would afford me the opportunity to comment on an interesting aspect developing in municipal affairs in the City of Belleville.

Upon listening to radio station CJBQ and reading your newspaper, I notice that Alderman Donald Soutter has given notice of a motion which he desires to introduce at a future meeting of Council. This motion, I understand, will be asking for an inquiry into the actions and business dealings which the Mayor, or a company which he controls, has had with the City of Belleville. I detect something very interesting happening. First of all, Alderman Soutter will need a seconder for this motion, and secondly the majority of Council must give their approval before this motion can be passed. Will Council give this approval? Will the Mayor of Belleville welcome such an inquiry? Should an elected body deny the electorate information in this regard? Do they in fact have the right to suppress information which will either confirm or refute alleged conflicts of interest? If the Mayor is innocent of these charges, would not an inquiry be to his advantage?

I wonder what procedure was used in Newfoundland when an inquiry was undertaken in former Premier Smallwood's dealings with that province? If the Council of the City of Belleville refuses this inquiry, is there any other body that would undertake an inquiry to determine whether or not there is a conflict of interest?

I have no idea what an inquiry would cost, but even if it cost every person in Belleville a dollar each, it would be worth it to either confirm or prove the charges false.

Circus Thrills

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I wish to commend the circus in town on July 6. I thought it was an excellent show, including a levitation for the enjoyment of the adults.

For the young, fairy tale costumes and setting were very good.

Such a show comes all too seldom, however, for as long as kids and a circus can get together, they contribute to each other's well-being in a special way — don't you agree?

Pollution Penalty — Was It Unjust?

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

This letter is written in reference to the publicity a local firm, namely Crawford Metals, got from your paper regarding the fine imposed by the Department of Environment.

I received rather large headlines compared to more important articles in your paper.

First of all I, and many others would hate to think what the world would be back years if city home dwellers would look like if there wasn't such a scrap yard in Belleville such as the one Mr. Spiegel owns. How many old car bodies and plain 'junk' would be lying around if it were not for such a place? Grim thought isn't it?

Secondly, I wish a few of the people who are so critical of having the fact this company did get fined would go up into the area where the scrap yard is located and take a good look at the so called pollution in that area. Take a real close look at the smoke of the next election clears away, we have someone in the ward who thoroughly understands the value of a dollar, how we at the grass roots have to scratch to get it, and what they should be doing with our tax dollars. Is that too much to hope for?

W. E. BENNETT,
Wellington.

Bellevillians and 'see' a polluted area. Some of the 'housing' up in there is down right unfit to live in. Talk, and so old insult to injustice, just because she did not make an interim payment on her income tax, she is penalized. How does that sound for our noble and just society?

I sincerely hope that when the clears away, we have someone pany to be visited so quickly by an agent of the Department of Environment. I have heard the complaints come from local residents or residents of that area. I wonder how many people call the Department every hour of every day, which they would have to, to report the pollution over a cement company on the eastern outskirts of the city? Even a young man in a glider said how bad the pollution was over that certain cement factory area.

I realize, as many do, that pollution must be brought under control but don't you think $2,-000 is a very steep amount for a company of this size that is in many, many ways helping to keep Our City Clean? I think the fine unjust. Mr. Spiegel was supposed to have been fined before on a similar charge.

Why wasn't the company given time, as other companies are, to instal proper incinerators for the burning of copper and at the same time the fine reduced.

I feel, as one other writer who wrote in your paper some time ago, that Crawford Metals is being victimized.

I trust the city will take my advice and just look around and see what we would look like at a city if it was not for Crawford Metals.

A READER

On the Value of a Dollar

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

We can be grateful that we at least had one man in it in the House last Friday afternoon who had the courage and vision to put his foot down and say No. The insanity has gone far enough. Let's have an end to it. Whether Mr. Hellyer has the stature his actions would indicate, only time will tell, but he is a big improvement over the "yes-men" wonders, and yes men who would say yes to anything, for as long as they can get home and forget the whole business.

We are much indebted to your Ottawa correspondent, Richard Jackson for letting us have a peek behind the scenery at Ottawa. When we think of the untold millions that have been squandered by this administration, and when the report of the Auditor General is being considered in committee, how it all receives a beautiful coat of whitewash, and comes out as it just good clean fun. But when the day-gatherer finds the bite on the taxpayer, that is an entirely different story; they'd dig through the bottom of the barrel. One old lady of my acquaintance is 87 years old. She is partly blind. She and her husband always paddled their own canoe, and managed to put away a few dollars for their old age. The husband departed long ago, but the old lady, now just a few dollars above the poverty level, has to pay income tax on the measly few dollars she has left, and so old insult to injustice, just because she did not make an interim payment on her income tax, she is penalized. How does that sound for our noble and just society?

I sincerely hope that when the clears away, we have someone in the ward who thoroughly understands the value of a dollar, how we at the grass roots have to scratch to get it, and what they should be doing with our tax dollars. Is that too much to hope for?

Two Girls in Canada to Boost Ulster

Two Girls From Belfast
Whig - Standard

Two girls from Belfast have arrived in Kingston to promote Northern Ireland as a tourist haven.

They are not kidding.

Sponsored in part by the Ulster Tourist Development Association the girls claim that all through "the troubles", the board has been very busy developing even more beauty spots opening up more golf courses, and encouraging the construction of more hotels (four new ones in the Belfast area in the past two years) in the belief that once the troubles are over, tourists will flock to Northern Ireland to see what it was all about.

"People outside Britain used to think Belfast was somewhere near London" Clare Pagan said "if they thought about it at all. Now everyone knows where we are."

They predict that "the troubles" are nearly at an end. The board doesn't expect many tourists this summer but next year they expect more.

"This is my own view," said Margot Orr, "but once the women began rallying around, Protestant Catholics and the Protestant women together, we knew the end was in sight."

"You know, Belfast isn't a dangerous place to live in," Clare said, "it's hard to explain to people who haven't been there, but I travel across town by bus every day to work and it doesn't faze me."

Said Margot, "I've never seen any shooting. It doesn't happen every minute of the day, or even every day. There are just isolated incidents. Even the people in Creggan and Bogside (the most troubled areas) go about their daily life quite normally."

Besides promoting Northern Ireland for tourists, the girls will be working with Queen's conference co-ordinator Brownlee.

Normally they would be employed by Queen's University in Belfast organizing summer conferences.

The strife, however, has discouraged conferences for the past two summers, so they have come to Queen's, Kingston to see how conferences are handled on this side of the Atlantic.

In two weeks time, they go to Ottawa to work with the University of Ottawa conference centre and then they will travel across the rest of the country promoting Northern Ireland to tourists.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 12, 1952

Belleville golfers slated to participate in the play for the Big Standard trophy at the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club's annual competition are R. Powell, Dr. G. Faulkner, T. A. Carruthers, J. Hamilton, M. Aquafredda, H. Hidley.

Ontario cheese producers will be guaranteed 30 cents a pound under an agreement entered into by the federal and provincial governments. Agriculture Minister Kennedy said the Ontario government will grant a subsidy of six cents a pound while the federal government has agreed to pay 24 cents.

The shades of Captain Michigi Grani, founder of the city of Kingston and 'colorful United Empire Loyalist of the 18 century walked again several weeks ago as more than 200 descendants gathered in Geneva Park, Oshawa, to hold a picnic in his honor.

Reg. Pringle spent the week-end in Lindsay.

Dr. A. Miller and J. R. Weir of Frank St. will spend the next two weeks at sea on a fishing trip.

Ted Price and J. Price of Pontiac are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Bladee of Roblin's Mills.

50 YEARS AGO

July 12, 1922

A large gathering of the members of Holloway Street Methodist Church assembled in the church parlors to bid farewell to the Rev. A. H. Foster and family. Mr. Foster, who has been pastor of the church for three years has been transferred to Napanee. Through Mrs. Pringle, Mrs. Gorsline and Mrs. Bailey, Mr. Ladell Ash, on behalf of a collection of table linen to Mrs. Foster. Through Charles Ostrom and E. Mastin, the beautiful official Board presented a purse of gold to Mr. Foster.

Thefts by Employees A Problem

Brockville Recorder and Times

What's the biggest security problem in industry today? Espionage by competitors? Bomb threats? Riots?

None of these. According to a nationwide survey by the American Society for Personnel Administration — in co-operation with the Bureau of National Affairs, the No. 1 headache is still theft — from within, by employees. Vandalism comes second in frequency, bomb scares are third and drug abuse is fourth.

To get an indication of current policies and practices in industrial security, the two organizations polled a cross-section of companies in a variety of industries. Responses were received from 176 of them, 61 percent manufacturing, 25 percent nonmanufacturing and 12 percent governmental and nonprofit concerns.

Security problems have brought many changes in company policies. The survey found that practices include:

Lie Detector Tests — 20 percent of the large companies (more than 1,000 employees) use them.

Package Checks — 40 percent of the large companies and 20 percent of the small companies (fewer than 500 employees) have initiated them.

Identification Badges — 50 percent of the large companies use them.

Electronic surveillance — 30 percent of the large companies use it in high risk areas. This includes closed-circuit television.

Moral deterioration, less respect for authority and greater availability of drugs to employees were some of the explanations offered by personnel executives for the increased need for security programs.

On the encouraging side, however, while just under half of the companies said that employee theft was a relatively frequent occurrence, more than half reported it was rarely, if ever, a problem for them.

Gangsterism In Unions In Quebec

Ottawa Le Droit: Just like Paul Hellyer, who speaks of subversion in Canada, Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette makes being accused of McCarthyism in denouncing union gangsterism. While the two men perhaps are not wrong, they nevertheless must support their claims with one or two precise examples of subversion and gangsterism to prove that we are not speaking in a vacuum.

Reassured of their seriousness, the population will then await more patiently the publication of complete dossiers.

In the light of the way through which we have lived for some years, we can come to believe the two men are right. Thus it is evident that certain members of the Company of Young Canadians made a lot of trouble and frightened—not to say stirred up—the population.

It is equally evident that in unionism the strike which marked the construction industry did not proceed from a pure state of democracy.

For these reasons, it would then be good and wise to throw light on all the incidents which raise legitimate suspicions of gangsterism or subversion. . . .

Watermain Requested

MARMORA (Special) — Village council has been asked for an extension of watermains to a new housing development in Marmora township adjacent to the village.

Robert Drummond proposes to build 26 houses in his development and has requested village water.

The matter has been referred to the department of the environment for investigation. It is expected to determine whether Marmora's pumping facilities are adequate to handle the extension.

The University of Toronto has queried the village about its interest in attracting a resident dentist. An emphatic "yes" has been sent to the university in reply and village clerk William Shannon was urged by council to make a concentrated effort to bring a resident dentist to the village.

The village will get a new snowplow for the existing truck. A decision to order the snowplow was made at council's last meeting.

The stone wall at the village cemetery will be repaired with a supplementary subsidy of $1,000 from the department of transportation and communication being used to carry out the work.

Clarke Rollins, MPP for Hastings, has recommended to the Lake Ontario Board of Ontario that summer hours be continued at the Brewers' Warehouse and liquor outlets in Marmora, Madoc and Tweed.

Dump Hours

TWEED (Special) — Hungerford township garbage dump is open only three days per week and not six days as previously reported in this newspaper.

Township Clerk James Rollin said today that the municipal dump was open Monday and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Wednesday from 1 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Picton Site Of Sail Program

PICTON (Staff) — A three-day program of sailing events sponsored by the Eastern Ontario Yachting Circuit will begin here Thursday with a cruising race from Kingston to Picton.

Organizers expect that 50 boats will take part in the race which should end at Picton early Thursday night.

Two races will be held in Picton Bay, Friday, July 14 and a third on Saturday morning, July 15.

This year's activities will be hosted by the Prince Edward Yacht Club and the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

The eastern circuit includes Kingston yacht club, and Crescent, Henderson and Clayton yacht clubs of New York State.

REFUSE COLLECTION

A special collection of refuse will be carried out by City Forces during the week of July 17th. A subsequent collection will be made in September.

Refuse not normally accepted by the City's garbage contractor will be removed during this collection, if placed at the edge of the street prior to July 17th. Refuse that may be readily scattered should be placed in containers.

Your co-operation is respectfully requested, noting that the placing of refuse on City streets, except for the proper collection of same, is disturbing to your neighbours and prohibited by by-law.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1972

Smith — Ocdol

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a beautiful and unique International wedding ceremony on Saturday, July 1, 1972, when Enrica B. Ocdol, formerly of Tacloban City the Philippines, and now of Belleville, became the bride of Jeffery Quincy Adams Smith.

The ceremony at 5.30 p.m. included some distinctly Filipino wedding traditions. When the wedding ceremony proper began, two large white candles were lit by the sandle sponsors Nell Morley and Dorothy Jeffries to symbolize the bride's request to God for light and signifying her faith in God. When vows were to be exchanged, a sheer white veil was placed over the couple by veil sponsors Delores Smith and Annette Boyd to show respect for the House of God. After the exchange of rings, cord sponsors Lent Amann and Freda King placed a white silk cord in the form of a figure eight around the couple to symbolize their union. After the cord was placed over the veil, the bridegroom gave silver coins to his bride and stated his desire to bequeath upon her all his earthly goods.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Simeon Ocdol of the Philippines and the late Mrs. S. Ocdol, while the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Huron M. Smith, Richmond, Virginia and the late Mr. H. M. Smith.

Rev. Father Kenneth Stitt officiated at the ceremony, and organ music was rendered by Sister Lois Williams who also accompanied the soloist Babs Drennan.

Given in marriage by a close family friend Dr. Leonardo Logan, the bride wore a floor length white gown fully hand - embroidered Philippine pena (pineapple fibre) with beads kept at a minimum and only to highlight the delicate embroidery of the European styled gown. A flowing train was also accented with matching embroidery and a short veil was caught to a matching headdress with matching hand embroidered design.

Dr. Lizzie B. Ocdol, Detroit, Michigan, sister of the bride as maid of honor wore a pink satin gown with the neckline and double pleated skirt embroidered with pearls. She wore a white net headdress and carried a colonial bouquet of white and yellow daisies, pink and mauve pomt.

The bridesmaids Rose Pastlabban, formerly of the Philippines, Vinay Bagaya, formerly from India and Gigi Jamolin were long floral gowns in multicolor mauve, yellow and green with matching bow headdresses. Each carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white poms.

William MacKenzie attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Huron M. Smith, Jr., Lloyd Thurston and Ron Tranmer. Ring bearer was Eli Smith, three-year-old nephew of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the Four Seasons Hotel (followed by dancing) at which time the bridegroom's mother welcomed the guests wearing a pale green empire styled gown of 'whip cream' cloth with gold colored accessories and a corsage of Tillansia roses. Toastmaster at the dinner was Ross Jeffries, president of the Quinte International Club.

For the wedding trip to the west coast, the bride donned a green satin dress enhanced with ruffles at the neckline and hemline with white accessories and a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside at 6 Bridge Street W., Apt. 507, Belleville.

WEDDINGS

BENSON — HARWOOD

Albert College Chapel was the setting for the July 8 marriage of Carolyn Anne Harwood and Charles Wesley Benson. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Harwood of Belleville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Benson of Trenton. Rev. Alfred Poulter officiated at the ceremony.

Mrs. Mary Kennedy was her sister's matron of honor and the bridesmaid was Miss Joyce Plumpton, a cousin of the bride. The groom's niece, Miss Patti Bailey was flower girl.

U.C.W. Meetings

TRINITY UCW

The general meeting of Trinity United Church Women was held Tuesday, June 27, in the Sunday school rooms, with 23 members and 25 visitors present, including Mrs. Max Burnside, regional vice-president of Belleville Presbyterial UCW.

The president, Mrs. Charles Derry, opened the meeting with a few words of welcome, followed by a poem and prayer. Miss Olive Ashe conducted the worship service, using as her theme The Beauty of the Earth. A reading entitled Canada Week was followed with the singing of O Canada.

Mrs. D. Heard gave the treasurers report in the absense of Mrs. S. Franks.

Plans for a supper for about 20 teenagers were discussed. An evening coffee and dessert party and bake sale is scheduled for Sept. 20. Two members of the UCW will attend the school for leaders at Quin-Mo-Lac on Sept. 7, 8 and 9. Miss Ada Adams agreed to prepare a skit for the fall rally. A donation of $100 will be forwarded to the Medical Centre Association.

A fine musical program followed, presented by Miss Lamoine West and the Quintones. The versatility of the numbers and the spirited manner in which they were presented delighted all the listeners.

Mother - in - law Makes Cutting Remarks

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My parents-in-law have always teased me and made cutting remarks, especially in front of strangers. Recently I took a look at myself and decided that I was a little too easy to walk over.

My husband never sticks up for me so I felt I have taken all that on broad-shouldered person could. I was picked on and embarrassed to tears at a recent family gathering and to top it all off my mother-in-law brought total strangers and asked me to put them up, in addition to some relatives. Not one word in advance.

I took it in stride but was exhausted. Instead of grumbling about it I wrote the in-laws that having been their daugher-in-law for 11 years I thought I deserved more consideration. This offended them and she is mad at me. Should I apologize? — Left Out In The Cold.

Dear Left Out: This time I think the letter was called for.

There are individuals with lifelong talent for making people — not just meek little in-laws. Remember this, and let the jibes slun off rather back like water off a duck.

No apology. But if you can manage a personal talk with that mother-in-law, you could agree to be hospitable to her friends if she will make an effort to be more understanding of your feelings. Avoid a family split if you can.

• • •

Dear Doris: My husband and I have been married for 10 months. The life with him is beautiful but the sex life is terrible. Every time, I get ready about a minute.

What can we do to make it last longer? I'd tell him but he just doesn't understand why. I am miserable and annoyed with him.

Dear ets: I think him understand that we just don't start right away but it's fun to have some preliminaries and what techniques there are? End Of My Rope.

Dear End: The question you ask is in the minds of many disappointed young brides, right now.

We might say there should be a kind of continuing courtship. When he courted you, he kissed you. Didn't he? When there not affectionate pats, little pressures on the hand, an affectionate arm around the waist?

A woman has to be awakened and her own dear man is the one who must learn to do this. The satisfaction of both of you in this ultimate expression of your love can be multiplied many times over once he learns the self-control and the techniques which go with leading up to a mutual climax.

Read a book about it, and get him to. I'm sending you my list of recommended reading.

• • •

Confidential To Marrying Again: No reason why you shouldn't have a reception complete with band and dancing. Just don't wear white nor a bridal veil and have just one attendant apiece.

It should not be a large wedding — and this means that you should keep your guest list under 100. I am sending you my leaflet, "The Second Wedding", which contains so helpful details.

Ann Landers

Golden Rule Better Than Brass Knuckles

Dear Ann Landers: A woman I work with lives two blocks from my apartment. For the past three years I have been chauffering her to work. Often she rode home with me, as well. It was no inconvenience because I never had to wait for her. She was always on the curb, rain or shine.

The woman is pleasant and I do like her, but she never once said "thank you" either verbally or in any other way. Also offering to fill up the tank when it's a while, or maybe a small gift at Christmas.

Yesterday my passenger ripped her stocking as she was getting out of the car. There was a rough place on the chrome strip. The way she carried on you'd have thought I have put it there on purpose. She yelled for 10 minutes about her $2.50 pantyhose and how her leg was scratched, and maybe she should have a lockjaw shot, and ended up with this dig: "It's too bad that some people don't take care of their property."

Finally I asked: "Do you feel I owe you a pair of stockings?" She replied: "Yes, I do." I then told her that she had been on the receiving end of a few hundred dollars' worth of free transportation and had never expressed any appreciation whatsoever. The next thing I knew we were having a terrific argument. We are no longer on speaking terms and I'm taking another route to work to avoid her.

So please stop advising people to be generous and neighborly, Ann Landers. I've learned it doesn't pay. —Brass Knuckles Beat The Golden Rule

Dear Brass Knuckles: Please don't judge the whole human race by that clod you've been providing with free rides on livery service for three years. The fact that she has never expressed her appreciation is evidence that she's a clinker. I still say the golden rule is better than brass knuckles, even when dealing with jerks.

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago I wrote to you and admitted I was an alcoholic. I asked you to help me. You suggested Alcoholics Anonymous. I wrote back and said I couldn't consider A.A. because I was a member of a very prominent family in town and the loss of dignity would have been too much to bear. You wrote back and asked me if it was more dignified to stagger around at parties dead drunk, getting sick in powder rooms and making nonsense to my husband and children after 5:00 p.m. I had to admit you had a point. But I wasn't ready.

I went from psychiatrist therapy to transcendental meditation. I tried the prayer route. I experimented with sugar-free diets, yoga and hypnosis. Nothing worked. One morning I woke up and couldn't remember a thing that had happened in the previous 24 hours. It frightened me out of my wits. In desperation I looked up Alcoholics Anonymous in the phone book and went to my first meeting that very night.

I discovered A A is a way of life. It brought me back from a world of the dead to a world of the living. I learned hope and faith, kindness and love among those wonderful people. Being one of them made me like myself well enough to want to stay sober.

And to think I used to ruin fun of your column! I owe you my life.—Reader

Dear Reader: You don't owe anything. Alcoholics Anonymous did it. But, thanks for letting me know.

The Experts Say

Standard Sizes System Works

OTTAWA (CP) — There was a time when try, try again was the rule rather than the exception in fillings for children's new clothing.

But Eleanor Ordway, director of the federal consumer services branch, says this is changing and she credits the introduction of the Canada standard sizes system—CSS for short—with making life easier for mothers.

The system uses the results of body measurement studies of American and Canadian children to establish classifications to match body size.

"Age as a guide to body size is very misleading and inefficient," says Miss Ordway. As a result there was a long-standing dissatisfaction with children's ill-fitting clothing."

She says the CSS system has reduced the number of try-ons in stores and the number of articles returned to clothing stores. It also is an assurance of certainty of size when ordering by mail.

Other officials say the use of the CSS system was given a big boost when Eaton's and Simpson's, Canada's two major mail-order merchandisers, adopted it for their catalogues.

L. F. Kolasinski, chief of the textiles division of consumer services, says the system has been generally accepted by consumers and the clothing industry.

His department has issued almost 200 letters to manufacturers allowing them to display a CSS label on their clothing. The manufacturers have brought their sizes into line with CSS without taking out licences.

Miss Ordway says there has been some criticism of it, usually in specific articles of clothing. She says tie length measurements for boys' trousers are "not too satisfactory" and there is a shortage of garments in the system's 6X-to-4X size range.

Mr. Kolasinski says the system does have its limits.

"If the mother buying the clothing does not take the time to measure the child, then the system is useless."

To get around this, the consumer services branch has issued a booklet advising how parents can measure and record their childrens' sizes. The booklet's 3½ by 2½ inches, also carries a table outlining the Canada standard sizes. It can be obtained free of charge from the department of consumer and corporate affairs, Hull 69, Ottawa.

Family Reunions

DAFOE CLAN

ST. OLA — The Dafoe family re-union was held recently at the summer residence of Rev. Findlay Dafoe on the Ridge Road, Coehill.

There were more than 100 guests present from points in Florida, Kingston, Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie, Detroit and Troy, Michigan, Belleville and many other places.

Nearly 100 years ago Philip and Melisa Dafoe moved from West Huntington to the Gilmour area bearing in their wedlock ten children. Of this family two sons, Findlay and Kenneth, who in turn are responsible for this re-union and expect this will be the beginning of many reunions to follow in years to come.

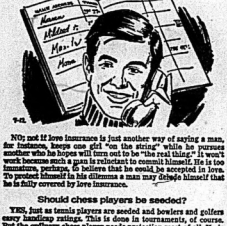
Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Does 'love insurance' work?



NO; not if love insurance is just another way of saying a man, for instance, keeps one girl "on the string" while he pursues another who he hopes will turn out to be "the real thing". It won't work because such a man is reluctant to commit himself. He is too immature, perhaps, to believe that he could be accepted in love. To protect himself in his dilemma a man may delude himself that he is fully covered by love insurance.

Should chess players be seeded?

YES, just as tennis players are seeded and bowlers and golfers carry handicap ratings. This is done in tournaments, of course. But the ordinary chess player needs protection most of all. He is sitting in a park, say, secure and confident. Suddenly he is challenged to a game by an unsuspecting passerby who happens to be a Bobby Fischer in disguise. A few derailing moves, and the amateur's self-assurance is fragmented.

Must grownups listen to a kid recite?

CERTAINLY. It will take only a little time and patience on their part—but look at what listening to a youngster recite can do for the child. He will develop poise, confidence and a fondness for those who take pains to hear him out. Admittedly, sometimes adults will feel like climbing the wall while hearing a poem for the umpteenth time; but the child will have gained emotional security by the time he is out of his reciting phase.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blemishes disappear—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and astra.

Railroader Honored on Retirement

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bunkard have returned to Montreal after visiting relatives in Belleville and Trenton. Mr. Bunkard retires this month after nearly 39 years service with the C.N.R.

He was honored in Montreal with several parties and gifts from different departments for which he was served. One gift was an all expense paid trip to the Bahamas for Mr. and Mrs. Bunkard. After visiting there, they will be leaving for Zambia, East Africa where Mr. Bunkard will be employed with the Zambian government instructing in railway shop methods.

Club Activities

QUINTE WHITE CANE CLUB

The annual picnic for the Quinte White Cane Club was held at the Recreation Centre on Saturday afternoon. Members spent the afternoon participating in games and socializing.

The paper bag handshake drew many participants and all received a small prize. Many amusing games and quizzes were enjoyed by all. Winners of prizes were: Pat Baverstock, Mrs. Edith Miller, and Twila Littler. Helen Wardbaugh, Mrs. Mary Turcott, Harvey St. Onge and Harold Yateman were the winners of the lucky spot dance. Twila Littler and Clarence Morris won the long step.

Soft drinks and milk were donated and served during a brief intermission and the Kinettes supplied ice cream bars.

A welcome addition to the activities this year was the bagpipe music provided by Doug Banks. Mrs. Irene Reid provided the piano music for the lively singsong.

During the supper hour, a birthday cake made and decorated by Mrs. Maude Hollins was brought in and the birthday song was sung for Wilfred Morris.

Assisting at the picnic were Mrs. Cecil Keller, Miss Doris Day, Mrs. Irene Reid, Mrs. Martha Boonhower, Mrs. Barbara Pennell, Miss Myrtle Peck, Tom Wardbaugh, and Mrs. Gladys Seldon.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD F. BOWER

Bower – Tanner

Rev. A. L. Sutherland officiated at the July 1 wedding ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of Sharon Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Tanner, Napanee, and Gerald Frederick Bower, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne E. Bower, Belleville. Mr. Martin provided organ music.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a princess styled floor length gown in white peau de soie skirt - bodice gown which featured a train and long bell sleeves in white raschel lace. The veil which had two tiers of scalloped French tulle was highlighted by a headpiece of white roses and lily - of - the - valley with white peau de soie streamers. She carried a cascade of pink roses and white stephanotis.

Matron of honor, Mrs. James (Brenda) Dunlay, sister of the bride wore a floor length lilac peau de soie skirt-bodice in the princess style. The bodice featured short cap sleeves of lilac raschel lace, and she carried a nosegay of white shasta daisies.

Best man was Paul Bolton, ushers were Shawn Tanner, and Steven Tanner, brothers of the bride.

For the reception held at the home of the bride's parents, Napanee, the bride's mother received guests wearing a two-piece gold brocade suit featuring a chelsea collar on the suit and complemented by bone accessories. Burnt orange tinted carnations highlighted the dress.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

MULTI-PRODUCTION

TEHRAN (AP) — After eight consecutive deliveries of twins in 15 years, a 41-year-old mother gave birth to triplets, the newspaper Ettelaat reported from Isfahan.

Sweater Most Popular Single Fashion Item

NEW YORK (CP) — Rex Harrison as the cardigan-wearing Professor Higgins in My Fair Lady started a sloppy sweatshirt hat many will remember. Then, for some years, sweaters were relegated to casual attitudes. But last season the skinny-ribbed pullover reappeared as part of the layered look.

Now for fall, the most popular single fashion item is the doubtedly the sweater. Slick little knit jerseys, elongated sweaters and hip-length cardigans are used singly or as companion sets. They've lost the country cousin look.

For casual week-end wear, twin sets team up with another fall favorite, grey flannel slacks. For daytime Bill Blass showed pale color sweater dresses with color trim. For evening, cardigans appear in glitter or sequinned blacks, worn over evening gowns. Malcolm Starr is particular likes glitter cardigans, or sweater-jackets as he calls them, with a halter neck; bare-back gown. Donald Brooks teams a crystal beaded cardigan with a black floor-length crepe gown. Several designers also showed floor-length sweater dresses, often topped with a glitter cardigan, as Oscar de la Renta's long grey angora wool sweater dress with silver lurex ribbed cardigan. Many late-day dresses are topped with glitter sweater tops.

Obviously sweaters play a more supporting than major role in most costumes. But even in head - to - toe knitted costume the modest shrink sweater was a competent part, playing its supporting role under a short-sleeved dress or sleeveless jacket. This fall, while shrinks are still popular, there's a new emphasis on country-popular bulkier turtle-necks, even in a clinging jersey knit. Anne Klein teamed just such a white sweater with a plaid jumper. Kasper, designing for Jean Louise, likes an angora ribbed turtle sweater under a short-sleeved jersey shirtdress.

Other interesting sweater combinations include Oscar de la Renta's white angora sweater worn over a printed wool challis skirt as part of a brown tweed pant suit.

White scene versions of the sweater look appeared in practically every fall collection at the American Designer Showings, some designers were naturally more partial to it than others. Alen Phillips, designer for Jeremy, admitted he is addicted to sweater and sweater effects.

"But a sweater must never look superfluous, like an afterthought to pep up an outfit," he said. He included such casual looks as an orange sweater and forest green jersey skirt topped by a fake fur crop jacket in color cubes and for indoors, a series of full-skirted jersey or flannel dresses with hugging-ribbed sweater tops.

Sweaters are favorites with Pat Sandler, too. He says: "1972 is the year of the sweater, in every shape and form, for every hour of the day and night—the greatest classic of them all." He showed a group of printed challis and jersey dresses, all with their own cardigans repeating the motifs of the prints.

Even the new dolman sleeves have been incorporated into some sweaters. Oscar de la Renta teams a green dolman sweater with a red challis skirt and a wool plaid circular skirt. And of course the sweater look can run to more details too, as sweater knit sleeves in Kimberly's like denim knit dress.

Geoffrey Beene, another award winner, was in a layered mood with a black knit sweater under a red-and-black check jumpsuit with short raglan sleeves. He also showed a white cardigan knit sweater with a sleeveless black jumper worn under a black check coat.

Fischer Miscalculates

Boris Spassky Has Advantage

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Defending champion Boris Spassky of Russia was favored by the experts to beat American challenger Bobby Fischer in the opening game of the world chess match when play resumed today.

The opener of the richest chess competition in history adjourned Tuesday night after four hours, 34 minutes of play and 40 moves by each player.

The game was to resume at 8 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT).

The two competitors, their seconds and chess enthusiasts throughout the world spent part of the overnight break analyzing possibilities for the 11 pieces remaining on the green-and-white chessboard in Reykjavik's sports hall: king and five pawns for Fischer; king, bishop and three pawns for Spassky.

Pawn-broker Talks Robber Into Borrowing on His Gun

Clark Al Daniel said he was approached late Monday afternoon by a heavy-set man who said: "This is a holdup."

Mr. Daniel leaned across the counter and grasped the barrel of the 32-calibre revolver, asking: "How much do you want for it?"

Church to Study Life Quality

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. George Morrison, newly installed secretary of the general council of the United Church, says bettering the quality of life will be the basic concern of the council when it meets in Saskatoon Aug. 14-22.

He said in an interview Tuesday that four major focuses of concern will be national life, liberation, the environment and future society.

Grabs Naked Man

TORONTO (CP) — Arsene Chopra seemed to be the only person interested Tuesday eight when a naked man perched on a downtown viaduct ready to jump.

Mr. Chopra said people passed the scene as if nothing was happening even though the man had thrown his clothes into a river below.

"I decided it didn't matter if someone hit my car, so I stopped, ran across to him and grabbed him by the legs just as he started to jump," Mr. Chopra said.

He said the man was in tears when police arrived and was thankful he had been saved.

Who Won Sweep?

LABRADOR CITY, Nfld. (CP) — Will the real W.T. Armstrong please stand up?

After the running of the Irish derby July 1, it was announced that a William T. Armstrong held a ticket on the winning horse, Steel Pulse, worth £50,000 or $120,000.

This brought responses from two William T. Armstrongs, one here and one in Badger, Nfld. The first Mr. Armstrong ruled himself out as the lucky winner, saying he did not hold the ticket numbered LKA 79428.

The other Armstrong, a 61-year-old jogger, was working in the woods at the time but his wife said early last week she practically tore the house apart looking for the ticket.

A spokesman for the Irish hospitals sweepstakes confirmed Tuesday that the number of the winning ticket was in Armstrong's name, and said the money would be handed over if Armstrong could prove his identity, even though he had lost the precious slip of paper.

He claimed through an intermediary that he holds the winning ticket and not his namesake in Badger. Armstrong No. 3 said he had deposited ticket LKA 79428 with a bank here, adding that he had bought the ticket under the nom de plume Sicirfist.

The man blurted out: "I was only kidding. Give me $20 for it. I'm just out of jail and I'm going straight."

Mr. Daniel agreed to give him $10.

The intruder took the money, but as he was leaving, turned and asked to have the gun back.

"I want to show you something about it," he told Mr. Daniel. He then took the gun, wiped it clean of fingerprints, and returned it.

Storms Cut Off Power in North

TORONTO (CP) Storms in northwestern Ontario left several small communities without power Tuesday and forced management personnel of the strike-bound Ontario Hydro to take over emergency repairs.

About 7,600 of the 31,700-member Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, continued rotating strikes and there was no indication settlement was in sight.

Did You Drink Your Share?

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians bought 394.5 million gallons of liquor, wine and beer in the year ended March 31, a 7.1-per-cent increase from the previous year, Statistics Canada reports.

That's about $93 for each man, woman and child.

The total volume includes 349.7 million gallons of beer, 19.5 million gallons of wine and 25.4 million gallons of liquor.

Tenants Protest

TORONTO (CP) — About 65 persons protesting a downtown apartment development project Tuesday occupied rental offices of a development company for 2½ hours. Police were called but there were no incidents.

No Fig Leaves

Favor Strike

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — About 300 members of Local 879, Teamsters International Union, voted Tuesday in favor of strike action to renew their contract demands with ready-mix concrete firms and building supply companies in the Niagara Peninsula. The old contract ran out May 1.

Rare Fish Egg

LONDON (Reuter) — A grey-ish pink, grapefruit-sized egg of the rare coelacanth fish, once believed to have been extinct for 70 million years, went on display Tuesday at London's Natural History museum. The egg was extracted from a coelacanth fish caught by an expedition off the coast of Anjouan island near Madagascar,

Jobless Cost $5 Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada fell nearly $5 billion behind what it could have produced last year if, in the view of international economists, it had had relatively full employment.

The country's gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced in a year, was $93.1 billion last year.

If it had not been for unemployment and industrial slack, the GNP should have been about $98 billion.

Loses Trailer

STRATFORD (CP) — A truck passed through picket lines at the strikebound Cooper-Bessemer of Canada Ltd. plant Tuesday but lost its trailer when coming out again.

Members of the striking Local 163 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers said the truck and trailer which crossed the line shortly before noon were hired from Canadian Driver Pool Ltd. of Toronto. The firm specializes in services to strike-bound companies.

As it left the manufacturing area at the plant, the trailer with its cargo came loose from the truck and was left behind in the plant entrance.

Rescued

MONTREAL (CP) — A City of Montreal workman, who dangled by his foot from a tower atop the United States pavilion at the Man and His World Exhibition was plucked to safety Tuesday afternoon by a Montreal police helicopter.

Police said Yves Larouche, 21, was at work on the 250-foot tower when he slipped and fell backwards for 30 feet before his foot became lodged between two steel mouldings.

NDP to Meet

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Toronto has been chosen over London as the site of the Ontario New Democratic Party's biennial convention in December, a party spokesman said Tuesday.

Reject One Fare

TORONTO (CP) — Franklin Young, chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission, said the deciding vote Tuesday as the commission rejected a motion to create a single-fare transit zone for the city.

Helen Gagen Reports

FREEZING TIPS FOR SUMMER FRUITS

Local greens at their freshest make July a month to serve salads both as meal-time accessories and as main courses in themselves. Have salad in the main part of a meal, remember that, rich though they are in oils or nutrients, fresh fruits and vegetables must be supplemented by protein. Serve meat, poultry, fish, cheese or nuts to go with the salad. At the same time you're enjoying fruits and vegetables fresh, consider freezing them for winter use. My Miracle Food Mart Bulletin in stores this week contains freezing hints. Ask for one. And for further information, remember...

Printers Can See Rollins' Heels, But Need Telescope

Howard and Robert Printing can see the heels of Rollins Construction in the Commercial Softball League standings but the Printers are using a telescope to do it.

The Printers blanked Quinte Hotel 2-0 last night to grab sole possession of second spot but they are still a distant 12 points behind after Rollins stopped Devolin Motors 3-1.

Two unearned runs gave the Printers their win over Quinte and propelled them a game up on Devolin. Pat Asselstine walked in the third and then scored on an error for the first run off Hotelman hurler Scott Reid. John Campbell singled to drive in Pug Kellar who reached base on an error in the fifth to insure the win for the Printers.

Bob Swan recorded his first win over Quinte stopping the Hotel on five hits. He fanned two and walked one and received support from Kellar, Campbell, and Gary Goyer who singled.

Terry Leage doubled and reached third in the sixth inning for the only serious Quinte threat. Lyle Shaver, Reid, Lyle Thompson and Bob Parsons singled in defense of Quinte's four hitter. The right-hander fanned two and walked one.

Rollins scored at both ends in their 3-1 win over Devolin. It marked the Construction men's 15th win of the season.

A fielder's choice and error and Wayne McTaggart's single drove in two runs for the winners in the first frame, enough for the victory. Steve Ling tripled in the seventh to drive in Larry Mavety for the third Rollins run. Mavety had singled to lead off the inning.

Ken Demille threw the win allowing five hits including a double to opposing pitcher Ron Marocle which drove Pat Gilmour for the only Devolin run. Gilmour was on base with the only walk given up by Demille who also fanned eight. Marocle also threw a four hitter while striking out six and walking one. Rosebush and Mary Stacey each had two singles in a losing cause.

Summer Youth Project

School Still in for Lacrosse

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

Frank Helmer, Ray Scott and Moe Jodoin have turned to lacrosse for summer employment and along with their regular junior B schedule in the Inter-provincial League, the sport has become a full-time concern.

"We're on the road for 11 weeks this summer with the usual lay over in each city about three or four days," states Scott. "We've been to Valleyfield, Kingston, Ottawa, Carleton Place and Nepean already."

Their summer job, arranged through the federal government's Opportunities for Youth program, should take them through a large portion of Ontario where they are called upon to sometimes do more than just teach the fundamentals of lacrosse.

"We're expected to get the fundamentals across to the younger players and try to break some bad habits they might have developed but in Carleton Place they wanted us to set up the entire minor system."

The trio have the lacrosse credentials for their summer operations, being members of the Cornwall Junior B team that has racked up over 500 goals and allowed only 160 in forming a 15-1 pennant winning record this year. Both offence and defence are equally weighted in their clinics which operate in cities asking for their assistance.

"Anybody is welcome to attend the clinic because it's a great game to get in shape and learn something of other sports. Basketball plays, elements of hockey and lots of running are all involved," comments Scott. "The young stick players are more willing but the older players offer a bit more competition and challenge."

The three Cornwall instructors are hoping to return next year in a more executive capacity when present operators expand to the Ontario Department of Recreation.

Belleville's clinic will continue today and tomorrow afternoon from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. A coaches' and referees' clinic is scheduled for tonight at the Dick Ellis Arena beginning at 7 p.m.

Deuces Wild for Mall

Quinte Mall's scoring aces were holding deuces Tuesday night as they paced their team to a Belleville Minor Lacrosse victory. Mike Northey, Danny Prewer and Hugh Northey counted two goals apiece to lead the Mall to a 7-1 novice win over Bob's Sports.

Bob's Sports bantams enjoyed a much different fate as they rolled up an 11-1 win over Towers. Tom Sharland's hat trick paced the winners, turned in by Wally Inwood, Jeff Belanger, Rob Hurst and Bob Cunningham. The lone Towers tally was scored by Robert Prewer.

Meads Puncture Tiremen

Handling the Meads pitching duties were Andy Bezzil and Tim Soule. They allowed just three hits, walking four batters and fanning third strikes past 15. Ricky Turner was a touched for 36 safeties by the OASA squirts.

John Henry blasted four singles and a double for the winners, while Soule was good for two doubles and as many triples, and Rossit drove in seven runs with a triple and two singles.

In another pitchers outing it was Richard Ellis Printers edging Red Shark 3-2. Back-to - back doubles by Steve Pearce and Pat McWilliams, coupled with Brian Sparrow's sacrifice fly produced three first-inning runs that proved to be sufficient for the Ellis win. Steve Kelly started for the winners, getting relief help from Pearce.

Runs Spilled on Rug

Cosy Grill spilled 14 runs on Belleville Broadloom en route to a 14-1 Women's Softball League win Tuesday.

Minor Soccer Plays Loosely

Defence was gone with the wind in a pair of Belleville Minor Soccer mosquito contests Tuesday night when the Supreme Fence Flyers bashed Lino's Pizza 10-0 and Golden Mile melted the Steelworkers 6-2.

Gary Fredericks had a five-goal rampage for Supreme Fence with Randy Cox, Paul D'Anna and Dale Clarke picking up the single tallies. Rob Dainard recorded the shutout.

The Golden Mile was led to victory by the three - goal output of Peter Anglin. Bob Cathcart, Mark Hurst and Teao Christopher had the other Mile marker.

Sandra Claus started for the winners, giving way to Suzanne Fobert in the fifth. They yielded nine hits and two walks, while striking out eight batters. The loss was tagged on Marianne Sills who allowed 22 Cosy safeties.

Pacing the winners was Pat Robson with a homer and two singles. Cathy Brown rapped a triple and two doubles with Verna Hill getting two triples and a single and Sandy Claus three singles and a double.

Charlene Winkler had three singles for Belleville Broadloom with Marianne Sills and Helen Reid adding two hits each.

Spray Hitter

Greg Smith of the Belleville Water Ski Club sends the spray flying as he cuts to his left during a practice run on the Bay of Quinte. Members of the recently formed club will have a chance to kick up some spray of their own when skiing begins this Thursday. Over 40 local ski enthusiasts have already signed up for the Belleville club.

Swimming Must For Ski Club

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

The Belleville Water Ski Club has a single entrance requirement. It isn't difficult, but it's definitely essential to meet.

Prospective members don't have to own a boat; they don't have to have their own skis, ropes, life belts etc.; they don't even have to be able to ski. What they must be able to do is swim.

This single simple requirement, along with a reasonable admission fee, makes for a rather unexclusive club, and that's just what they're aiming for. The main reason in forming the organization was to help promote more widespread use of Belleville's abundance of water.

Already the club has signed over 40 members and, "we're hoping to have from a 50 to 75 total this season," relates club president Brian Howard.

The Belleville Water Ski Club was originally conceived by local marina owner Rollie Bonneau, who along with club treasurer Sue Bishop, looked after most of the early organization.

Bonneau also donated a craft for use by the first-year organization. Club members will have use of a 18-foot Craft powered by a pair of 115 h.p. Mercury motors. "It's the only boat we have for now, so we'll be counting on some of the members to supply their own," advises Howard.

Dock facilities are being installed on the Bay of Quinte at Foley's Point of Quinte, about 1½ miles west of Belleville on Highway 2) in preparation for Thursday's opening. Skiing will get under way at 7 p.m. Thursday and regular weekly outings will be held Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings.

A special demonstration is being planned for late August or early September, with trick skiing, slalom courses and possibly some ski jumping being displayed.

Membership in the club is $10 for juniors, $17 for adults, $25 per couple and $30 for a family.

No Clubhouse For Quinte

The Bay of Quinte Country club will have to do without a new clubhouse for at least another year.

That was club president John Hall's reaction to a resounding 3-1 margin of membership votes against a committee report recommending a new $240,000 that would go into operation for the 1973 season.

"We're back to square one now," Hall said. "We had a straw vote afterwards and everybody indicated they wanted a new clubhouse but just not along the lines of the committee's recommendation."

Helping Hands

Moe Jodoin lends a helping and experienced hand to John De Genova in Tuesday's opening class of a travelling lacrosse clinic. Jodoin, along with Frank Helmer and Ray Scott make up the personnel of an Opportunities for Youth program in helping budding lacrosse players. The three Cornwall junior B players are at the Dick Ellis Arena until Thursday with afternoon sessions beginning at 2 p.m. A coach and referee clinic is scheduled for tonight at 7 p.m.

Stringing Along

Ray Scott takes time off from his instructions at the three day lacrosse clinic to do a little repair work on a lacrosse stick. This manual labor is only a small duty performed by Ray and his cohorts Frank Helmer and Moe Jodoin in their summer travels across Ontario through an Opportunities for Youth lacrosse clinic.

Patience Rewards Expos, Atlanta

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Patience is a virtue, to be admired. Everything comes, it has been said, to those who wait.

Montreal Expos and Atlanta Braves waited and found out that the adage applies to baseball, too.

The Expos and Braves both struggled into extra innings Tuesday night and were rewarded with National League victories. Montreal trimmed San Diego 5-5 in 12 innings and Atlanta went 16 innings to beat St. Louis 5-4.

In other National League action, San Francisco Giants defeated New York Mets 5-1, Philadelphia Phillies tripped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1, Cincinnati Reds shut out Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0 and Houston Astros split a doubleheader with Chicago Cubs, winning the opener 6-5 but dropping the nightcap 9-5.

The Expos overcame home runs by Derrell Thomas and Clarence Gaston which staked San Diego to an early 3-1 lead. Ken Singleton had homered for Montreal.

Clay Kirby had 10 strikeouts through the first six innings but when he walked the first two Montreal batters in the seventh, manager Don Zimmer went to the bullpen.

Reliever Mike Corkins got the next two batters but walked Boots Day, loading the bases. Tim Foli followed with a two-run single, tying the score.

It was still tied in the 16th when Singleton opened with a single. Bob Bailey was credited with a hit when his grounder struck Singleton, retiring the runner. Bat Clyde Mashore followed with a double, scoring Bailey from first with the deciding run.

Hank Aaron poked his 669th career homer for Atlanta but the Cardinals caught Gat Braves in the seventh inning, tying the score on Lou Brock's fourth hit, second stolen base, a throwing error by Earl Williams and Ted Simmons's sacrifice fly.

They shouldn't have bothered. The teams battled into the 15th when Atlanta, finally pushed across the winning run with the help of two wild pitches by reliever Lowell Palmer.

The Mets, who are losing ball players almost as frequently as ball games, dropped another of each. Outfielder John Milner was carried off the field after a collision with shortstop Bud Harrelson in the third inning of New York's game against San Francisco.

Milner suffered a neck injury and Chris Speier's poppy fell for a double, scoring two runs for the Giants. The Mets, already missing three regular outfielders because of injuries, replaced Milner with catcher Duffy Dyer and in the seventh Speier hit another pop fly which Dyer let drop for an error and two more Giants' runs.

Steve Carlton tossed a five-hitter for his seventh straight victory, pitching Philadelphia past Los Angeles. Carlton struck out eight, running his major league lead in that department to 162.

Pattin Barely Misses

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It wasn't much of a hit, a single that just eluded Boston second-baseman Doug Griffin and didn't effect the game's outcome, but it might be the biggest hit Red Sox pitcher Marty Pattin ever allows.

"I guess that's as close as I'll ever come to a no-hitter, said Pattin, who was just two outs away from that goal when Oakland's Reggie Jackson connected in the ninth.

As it was, Pattin pitched a powerful one-hitter as the Red Sox downed the Athletics 4-0 in American League baseball action Tuesday night.

The pitch that Jackson caught was a high fast ball with "something on it." Pattin said he'd throw it again in the same situation.

"I'm not going to second-guess myself about that pitch," said Pattin. "Most of all, I wanted to win the game."

In Tuesday's other American League contests, Baltimore Orioles defeated Kansas City Royals 3-1 in 10 innings, Detroit Tigers nipped Texas Rangers 6-5, Chicago White Sox trimmed Cleveland Indians 4-3, New York Yankees slopped California Angels 7-3 and Milwaukee Brewers beat Minnesota Twins 8-4.

"I guess this is the best game I've ever pitched," said Pattin, who received a standing ovation from the crowd of 5,339 when he came to bat in the ninth. He won his fourth straight game and improved his record to 6-8.

Carlton Fisk's 11th homer of the season gave Pattin a 1-0 lead in the second inning. The Red Sox added another in the fourth on hits by Carl Yastrzemski, Rico Petrocelli, a walk and a fielder's choice.

Tom Shopay walked with the bases loaded in the 10th inning, forcing in the winning run as Baltimore halted a five-game losing streak. Orioles had filled the bases on a single by Merv Rettenmund and walks to Bobby Grich and Boog Powell.

Detroit kept its tenuous one-game lead over Baltimore in the East by beating Texas on Mickey Stanley's tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning.

Williams Couldn't Miss

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams thought he spotted a Houston scout in Chicago Cubs' last series at Cincinnati, so he came prepared in Tuesday's doubleheader against the Astros.

It was a night, with Houston winning the opener 6-5 and the Cubs, led by Williams, capturing the nightcap 9-5.

"Mr. Williams," as teammate Joe Pepitone refers to him, was so well prepared that he rapped a total of eight hits, including a home run in each game, drove in four runs and hiked his average to .326.

Williams had a pair of singles, a homer and a sacrifice fly in the opener. His homer came in the sixth inning and gave the Cubs a 3-3 lead, but Houston struck for four runs in the seventh, capped by Jim Wynn's two-run homer, for the victory.

In the second game, he slammed a first-inning double, clouted his 18th homer and added three singles, falling one hit short of the major league record of nine hits in a double-header shared by eight players.

Under baseball rules, he is not credited with eight straight hits because of the sacrifice fly, which came in the eighth inning of the opener.

Necessity for Others?

Argos Won't Platoon Pivots

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto Argonauts proved last season that they can win the Eastern Football Conference title without a first-string quarterback.

Coach Leo Cahill says he won't repeat that performance this year. Either Joe Theismann or Greg Barton will be designated No. 1 when the scheduled opens, despite their success in alternate appearances every time the Argos got hurt and fell flat.

For the other three EFC coaches, Cahill's two-man strategy may become a necessity or less than perfect problems sorted out.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats' Joe Zuger, quarterback for nearly a decade, has a sore shoulder. Sonny Wade, Montreal Alouettes' Grey Cup hero of 1970, has a habit of throwing interception. Rick Castaia of Ottawa Rough Riders has only a half season's experience as a first-stringer.

All three have lots of competition.

New Tiger coach Jerry Williams can choose between Wally Gabler, Zuger's effective understudy last year, rookie Chuck Ealey who never lost a game during his college career at Toledo, or backup job many go to Rick Shaw, who played for Williams with Calgary Stampeders a few years ago, and can double as a defensive back and receiver.

Wade has led the EFC in throwing interception for two consecutive seasons but escaped serious criticism until the Alouettes slid into last place in 1971. Now he faces an uphill battle to reclaim the job from Jim Cheney, No. 2 last year, and Jim (King) Corcoran, a colorful newcomer from the Atlantic Coast League.

Castaia earned his shot at the Ottawa starting job by taking over from Gary Wood to guide Riders to victory in the last three games of last year's schedule and nip the Alouettes for the third and last playoff spot.

Like Wade, he has a statistical blot on his record, a .425 completion percentage last season that ranked as the poorest among EFC passers. His competition comes from Paul Brothers, acquired in a mid season deal with British Columbia Lions, and Lieutenant Harry Theofiles, who joined Ottawa this year after entertaining both duty with several National Football League clubs.

Apart from quarterbacking, there are other factors:

Montreal (1971 last season)—The offence has been bolstered by the acquisition of R.C. (Tee Jay) Thomas from the University of Michigan, who will line up with Hugh Dunn and Bill Symons in the backfield. Intent on shoring up other positions with United States imports, Cahill has dropped Mel Profit, best tight end in the conference last season, in favor of Tony Moro and Bob Hamilton, both Canadians. But Profit may be back if an operable shoulder. The offensive line should be stronger with the signing of Ron Mikolajczyk from Winnipeg and the return of John Trainor, a Canadian whose lopsided rookie season was cut short when he suffered a broken leg. John Carlos, U.S. Olympic sprinter who played for Montreal last season, is trying to make the club as a wide receiver or defensive back; but the defence, anchored by safety Marv Luster, and Jim Corrigall and tackle Jim Stillwagon, appears set.

Hamilton (7-7)—Williams, taking over from Al Dorow after coaching winners in Calgary and losers in Philadelphia, likes his teams to throw and run. He's trying the process of making more use of fleet all-star defensive end Garvey Ferguson as a deep receiver. There is plenty of experience on offence. Al Brenber, John Williams and the linebacking trio of Emery Hicks, Barry Ahern and Bob Krouse looks solid. Rookies Bob Bergen and Harry Carson are expected to help out. Angelo Mosca or a couple of his playmates on the defensive front fame, and Williams has more than enough veteran ball-carriers with Dave Hutchinson, Mac Arbuckle, Dick Wesolowski and Dave Fleming. Veterans Tommy-Joe Coffey and sophomore Lewis Porter are other receivers along with Shaw and rookie Ron Ivanko. Tackle Jerome Gantt is the only rookie with a chance to break into the offensive line.

Ottawa, (4-3)—Bob Hoimard and Derrick Duncan have two good rookies; Alan Thompson and Art Cantrelle, all-Canadian from the defensive backfield along with peerless flanker Hugh Oldham. Veteran Bill Cooper can fill in both offensively and defensively. Fullback Pullen, a Canadian via Indiana imports Dave Pivec and rookie Norman Nixon for the wide end spots. Bob McKeown appears to have inherited the centre spot vacated by the 1970 Grey Cup Specist. Another import, eighty Mim Eskew from Texas, is likely to join Al Marcelin in the defensive backfield, which gave up the most points in the EFC last season.

Montreal (6-4)—Pullen and flanker Garry Lefebvre, traded to Edmonton Eskimos, are gone from the 1970 Grey Cup squad and running back Moses Denson may follow them to try his luck in the National Football League. Coach Sam Etcheverry has also lost Ron Stewart and all-defensive ends Bill Whisler and Joe Blaine from last year's squad. Two Grey Cup veterans who will return are tight end Peter Dalla Riva, who missed the 1971 season with a knee injury, and Justin Canale, a great place kicker, whose career appeared to be ended when he damaged a leg in an auto accident.

Evanshen Catches Eskimos Off Guard

EDMONTON (CP) — Montreal Alouettes scored all their points in the first half and defeated Edmonton 15-13 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday marked by the Eskimos' inability to grasp chances.

The Als, whipped 43-10 by Winnipeg Blue Bombers last week, scored on the game's first series when King Corcoran, the game's offensive standout, took the club 84 yards on 10 plays, capped by a 15-yard pass to Dave Walker intercepted in Corcoran pass at the Al's 33-yard line and ran it to the three. Gene Foster went over from there and Dave Cutler converted.

Montreal added a single on a wide field-goal attempt by Cutler in the second quarter and two plays later Corcoran calmly picked out Phil Mosser in the end zone with a four-yard toss. Sweet converted.

It was all Eskimos in the second half but they were unable to take the win, much to the chagrin of 16,464 fans.

With 6:13 left to play, Edmonton began to drive as Lezmerzan hit backfielder Tyrone Walls for 54 yards and sent Willie Dusenberry through the line twice to put the ball at the Al's 15-yard line, directly in front of goal posts.

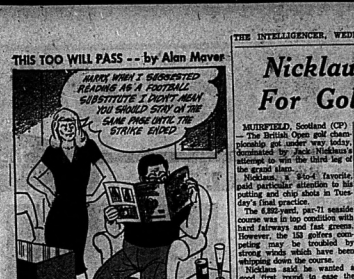
A successful kick would have put Edmonton ahead 16-15 with 1:43 on the clock. However, defensive end Clayton Quinn blocked the kick and Steve Smear recovered.

Pele Won't Be Quitting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Soccer superstar Pele scored two first-half goals Tuesday night as the Brazilian F.C. Santos downed Club America of Mexico 3-1 before a crowd of 21,193 at the Coliseum.

Later, Pele denied reports by promoters that this was his last year of international play. He said he planned to take the Santos' annual world tours through 1974.

The match was the last game in the club's two-month world tour in which Santos finished with 15 victories, two ties and no losses.



Quebec Wants Rocket

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Les Nordiques announced the signing Tuesday of Jean Gauthier to 21 the number of players signed by the World Hockey Association team.

Goaltender Richard Brodeur, defencemen Al Globensky, Ken Desjardine and Jacques Blain and forwards Alain Langlais and Raynet Gosset all signed.

Brodeur was the goaltender for Cornwall Royals of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League, who won the Memorial Cup championship this year.

Gosset played with Quebec Remparts of the QJHL while Globensky played for Montreal Junior Canadiens when they won the Memorial Cup in 1970.

Desjardine was with Tulsa Oilers of the Central Hockey League last season. Blain and Langlais were with Long Island Ducks of the Eastern Hockey League.

It was also learned that the Quebec Club has offered Maurice Richard, the former great with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, the coaching post with the club.

Prentice Back

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dean Prentice, the National Hockey League's seventh leading active goal scorer, ended his brief retirement Tuesday and signed a one-year contract with Minnesota North Stars. Prentice, 39, had announced his retirement after 20 years in the NHL after the 1971-72 season. Prentice has scored 363 regular season goals, 12th on the all-time NHL list and seventh among players still in the league.

Nicklaus Bids For Golf Slam

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP) — The 101st British Open golf championship got under way today, with Jack Nicklaus making an attempt to win the third leg of the grand slam.

The 6,892-yard, par-71 seaside course was in top condition with hard fairways and fast greens. However, the golfers competing may be troubled by strong winds which have been whipping down the course.

Nicklaus said he wanted a good first round to ease the pressure building up over his attempt to win a grand slam of the British Opens, the U.S. Professional Golfers Association title and the U.S. Masters Crown—golf's four "classic" titles.

He already has won the Masters and U.S. Open. The British Open and the PGA at Birmingham. Mich., next month would complete the sweep.

Record Tied

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough PCOs equalled the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A record for consecutive victories Tuesday beating Etobicoke PCOs 14-9. It was their 20th win without a defeat this year.

Ernie Bears Watching

TORONTO (CP) — Ernie Hauser of Kitchener merits a little more attention than most of the other 125 golfers teeing off today in the Ontario amateur golf championship.

Hauser, 30, shot a two-under-par 69 June 23 to lead all those who qualified for the 72-hole test that day for the amateur, being played at the 6,641-yard Toronto Golf Club.

"I'd like to win and I think I have a chance to win," he said after walking up the 13th fairway at the Toronto Golf Course in a practice round.

"But basically I just want to play well. If you play well and use, it's still rewarding. I'd be satisfied just to shoot par over the 54 holes, but who knows, that might be good enough to win."

Evanshen Catches Eskimos Off Guard

EDMONTON (CP) — Montreal Alouettes scored all their points in the first half and defeated Edmonton 15-13 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday marked by the Eskimos' inability to grasp chances.

The Als, whipped 43-10 by Winnipeg Blue Bombers last week, scored on the game's first series when King Corcoran, the game's offensive standout, took the club 84 yards on 10 plays, capped by a 15-yard pass to Dave Walker intercepted in Corcoran pass at the Al's 33-yard line and ran it to the three. Gene Foster went over from there and Dave Cutler converted.

Montreal added a single on a wide field-goal attempt by Cutler in the second quarter and two plays later Corcoran calmly picked out Phil Mosser in the end zone with a four-yard toss. Sweet converted.

It was all Eskimos in the second half but they were unable to take the win, much to the chagrin of 16,464 fans.

With 6:13 left to play, Edmonton began to drive as Lezmerzan hit backfielder Tyrone Walls for 54 yards and sent Willie Dusenberry through the line twice to put the ball at the Al's 15-yard line, directly in front of goal posts.

A successful kick would have put Edmonton ahead 16-15 with 1:43 on the clock. However, defensive end Clayton Quinn blocked the kick and Steve Smear recovered.

Pele Won't Be Quitting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Soccer superstar Pele scored two first-half goals Tuesday night as the Brazilian F.C. Santos downed Club America of Mexico 3-1 before a crowd of 21,193 at the Coliseum.

Later, Pele denied reports by promoters that this was his last year of international play. He said he planned to take the Santos' annual world tours through 1974.

The match was the last game in the club's two-month world tour in which Santos finished with 15 victories, two ties and no losses.

Billing Change Endorsed

Because their pension cheques arrive three days before the end of the month, and their hydro bills arrive some time before that, many senior citizens have lost the early payment discount. This hardship for people living on limited fixed incomes was noted in the recent senior citizens survey and raised at the May meeting of the Belleville Utilities Commission.

The solution, to become effective Sept. 1 is budget billing for people holding senior citizen identification cards.

Senior citizens will be entitled to pay their hydro bills on an equal monthly payment plan, with the payment due on the first day of each month. The monthly amount charged will be based on the previous 12 months' account. It will be reviewed at the end of each year, and the amount adjusted, if necessary. The Belleville office will accept post-dated cheques, dated the first day of each month for processing.

Senior citizens identification cards are issued at the city clerk's office, and about 1,300 have already been issued to Belleville residents over 65. The city is believed to have a population of about 4,000 people over 60 years old.

Belleville is believed to be the first municipality in the province of Ontario to offer this service to residents on old age pensions.

Utilities Writes PR Letter

Some of the sting has been removed from the annoyance of city residents on the route of water main construction in the east end of the city.

Realizing that the inconvenience of noise, dust, driveway obstruction and traffic disruption would raise the ire of people living along the route of the construction project, Belleville Utilities Commission forewarned them of the project.

In a letter over the signature of H. N. Britton, general manager, the commission listed telephone numbers of the commission, the consulting engineers and the construction company for residents to use in case of complaints.

Noting that construction of the south easterly feeder main will begin in two locations, the corner of College and Centre Streets and the corner of Bridge Street and Farley Avenue, the letter assured residents that the Utilities Commission is endeavoring to cause as little inconvenience as possible.

"The contractor is most anxious to keep disruption to a minimum, and if you have some special event planned at your house, such as a wedding on the weekend, please contact him as much in advance as possible and a special effort will be made to co-operate with you," the letter reads.

Iron Pipe, Not Plastic Re-affirmed

Belleville will continue to turn thumbs down on plastic watermain pipes, its Utilities Commission decided Tuesday.

All the developed parts of the city are serviced with cast iron watermains, and no useful purpose would be served by introducing a different kind of pipe at this point, commissioners agreed.

The veto was prompted by a request from city developers Jack Parrott and Triangle Plumbing and Heating. They asked for installation of plastic watermain on a section of Edgehill Road, and for reconsideration of the iron watermain policy of the commission.

"On the long haul, plastic is not much cheaper than iron," said general manager H. N. Britton.

Abandoned farmsteads, like this one at Kenaston, Sask., are a familiar sight in the Prairie provinces. All three provinces have indicated programs to stop the trend of disappearing family farms, but most agriculture industry leaders admit the trend will continue. (CP Photo)

Turner Says McKeough Gave Scant Assurance

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Finance Minister John Turner says he received little satisfaction Tuesday when he met with Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough to discuss a federal government request that provincial governments borrow money at home.

Mr. Turner said Ontario accounted for one-quarter of the $600 million borrowed abroad by provinces since April and this total, along with $700 million borrowed privately by Canadians, is contributing to upward, unstable pressure on the Canadian dollar.

The bulk of the money borrowed so far by Ontario—for provincial and Ontario Hydro bonds—has come from West Germany.

Mr. McKeough refused to comment on the federal request.

Mr. Turner said that while Ontario understood the federal position, the provincial treasurer told him Ontario will continue to borrow in what it considers the best interests of Ontario taxpayers.

Also attending the meeting with Mr. Turner were Charles MacNaughton, chairman of the province's management board, provincial Health Minister Richard Potter and Robert Welch, provincial secretary for social development.

Mr. Welch and Dr. Potter said they were interested in Mr. Turner's overtures towards a new federal-provincial scheme for sharing health costs.

Mr. Turner said he proposed a formula that committed Ottawa to sharing the costs of any increase above the gross national product rate but he would not outline the formula.

Regional Airport Planned at Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Tuesday the federal government plans to build a $25-million regional airport for the Hamilton area about one mile south of the existing Hamilton Civic Airport at nearby Mount Hope.

Mr. Munro told a news conference the site has been suggested to reduce jet noise over established urban areas in Hamilton and Wentworth County. It would take a year to build.

"If we are to alleviate the noise problem we will have to go directly to the south," he said, explaining that the department of transport believes that a new runway and airport terminal about 6,000 feet from the Mount Hope facility is the answer.

He said a final decision will depend on what the people and local authorities in the affected municipalities have to say.

"We are prepared to move on land acquisitions right away with a view to getting construction under way as soon as possible."

He also said the government will go ahead with the airport without waiting for a decision on the proposed international airport at Pickering.

The Mount Hope airport handles smaller aircraft as well as smaller commercial jets.

Mr. Munro said construction of a separate airport o handle commercial passenger traffic, while retaining the present airport for private and general flight aviation, is one of the alternatives the government is studying.

Brooke Bond Narrows Smallest Gap

Brooke Bond both closed and opened a gap in a division C Industrial Softball League contest Tuesday night.

The Bond moved within one point of division leading AOCO and stretched their second-place hold to three by stopping the third - place Independents 6-3.

Dennis Genereaux threw a five hitter for the winner, fanning four and walking the same. Ron Stratton smashed a home run for Brooke Bond and Lou Rivers two singles as they pushed across three runs in each of the third and sixth innings.

Steve Gatcum powered Constellation to the tie with two homers, a single and six runs batted in. Jim Thompson gave up 11 hits on the rubber for the Carpets.

The Pusties scored in the seventh inning to preserve a point for pitcher George Johnson who allowed six hits. Bill Pearce had a homer and single for the Mailmen.

Alhambra Duo Deadly

Larry Hanlon and Mark Pearson proved to be the meanest minor baseball pitchers in town Tuesday, allowing Corbyville a lone single as they hurled Alhambra 109 tykes to a 2-1 win.

The winning duo struck out 11 batters and walked three, getting batting support from Steve Hay with a homer and two triples, while Pearson blasted one of each. Hanlon and Brian Cleaver added three singles each for Alhambra.

Their win came on the heels of an 8-3 victory over Jerry's Motorcycle Sales in an afternoon game Tuesday. Pearson and Hanlon looked after the pitching in that game as well, giving up six hits. Pearson, Cleaver, Ross Dawaher and Jay Bochnek had two Alhambra hits each.

Plane's Concrete tadpoles got 19 strikeouts for Brian Cronkright and Philip Vanluvteran to post an 8-2 win over the Belleville Kinsmen. Trevor Powell, Mike Dowling and Mike Leger totalled 17 strikeouts for the losers.

Cronkright had two homers

Belleville Best

Not Good Enough

Marg Edwards and Pam Carruthers had won the right to compete in the Ontario championship by winning the Kingston district competition, but couldn't crack the top circle of golfers at the provincial championship played Monday and Tuesday in Peterborough.

Miss Edwards carded rounds of 101 and 103, while Miss Carruthers was 108-114 for the two-day competition. Cheryll Cribb of Kingsville won the event by defeating Welland's Heather Williams 2 and 7 in the match finals.

The top three golfers in the tournament were named to the Ontario team competing in first month's Canadian championship in Winnipeg.

Spraying Despite Weather

Dry weather may stub growth of much vegetation. But the common weed is not so easily discouraged. Hence, despite weather conditions, spraying of city greenbelt like Zwick's park today is continuing program for city parks authorities.

The Summer of Our Despair; Four Arteries Under Repair

Road and bridge repairs and highway reconstruction projects are par for the course in this day of mechanized travel, but for some reason Belleville area motorists this summer are running into more than the usual number of road blocks.

As of this week no less than four provincial highway routes into Belleville either have repair or construction work under way.

These are Dundas Street East adjacent to the hospital where since last summer a street reconstruction project has been under way; the reconstruction of Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton, Highway 14 south of Belleville where repairs to the bay bridge have commenced, and Cannifton Road (Highway 37) where a sanitary sewer installation project is taking place.

And in another week or so two more main roads into the city will see traffic disruption as construction projects are started.

One of these is North Front Street where traffic will be reduced to two lanes from the present four to allow for installation of the large diameter storm sewer now being constructed from Fahey Street to the Moira River just below Lazier's Dam.

The other is Moira Street, West, at Sidney Street where work will commence shortly on the construction of the first phase of the new CN overpass.

This week at a city traffic and light committee meeting during discussion of traffic problems on North Front Street, City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said installation of the storm sewer across this busy artery would commence some time within the next week or so.

North Park Street has been closed off to all but local traffic to allow installation of the sewer across this artery but the work here will be completed before the North Front Street installation is commenced.

Work on the new Sidney Street railway overpass is being delayed by the late delivery of sewer pipe which must be laid before the actual work on the bridge and its approaches can be commenced.

Surprise Award

PICTON (Staff) — Model railroad enthusiastr William Thorley and Alan Capon, Picton, last weekend were presented with plaques marking their promotion of this hobby at a meeting of rail fans at Brownsville Railroad Museum New York.

The surprise presentation was made by Phillie Van Den Yen of Waupoos. Mr. Capon and Mr. Thorley were attending a meeting of the Thousand Islands Division of the National Model Railroad Association when they received their awards. The Picton rail fans were prime organizers of a recent passenger train ride from Belleville to Picton to Marmora.

Doctor Flies Tiger Moth

MCBRIDE, B.C. (CP) — When Dr. Geoffrey Cowburn of McBride goes off on a housecall, he may take not only a little black bag, but a battle-tested airplane to boot.

Dr. Cowburn is the new owner of a not-so-new de Havilland Tiger Moth, an open-cockpit, single-engine, hand-cranked biplane built in 1938.

Dr. Cowburn intends to use his Tiger Moth in his practice in the McBride-Valemount area of east-central British Columbia.

It was shipped to Prince George, 130 miles west of here, from England, but not all in one piece. It came in several crates, and required four days for reassembly.

"I learned to fly them in England," Dr. Cowburn said. "There used to be a lot of them around, but now they are rare."

When Dr. Cowburn bought his Tiger Moth from a friend, there were 20 registered in the country.

There are Canadian-built Tiger Moths, but they're a bit different. They have tail wheels, while Dr. Cowburn's Moth has a skid. The Canadian models have brakes; Dr. Cowburn's doesn't.

Despite those two minor drawbacks, Dr. Cowburn's plane appears to have a feature useful in mountainous eastern B.C. — it has short take-off and landing characteristics, needing a runway less than 600 feet long.

And in this pollution-minded world, Dr. Cowburn can fly with a clear conscience: Like new cars, the little 1938 Tiger Moth uses unleaded gasoline, which is also cheaper than aviation fuel.

There's only one thing that Dr. Cowburn must remember about his Tiger Moth: To be extra careful in stowing his little bag.

Millhaven District Residents Are Angry

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — When David Shelley of Adolphustown, about 35 miles southwest of here, woke up Tuesday morning his car was missing.

And another car he didn't recognize was parked nearby.

Police believe the cars were used by some of the 14 convicts who escaped from Millhaven penitentiary Monday night. Five of the escapers have been captured.

"There was a lawn-mower in the car and $500 worth of tools," Mr. Shelley said.

Meanwhile, other area residents had mixed feelings about the jailbreak, believed to be the biggest of its kind in Canada.

Mrs. Harold Babcock of Bath, about 15 miles west of here, said she was "not the least bit nervous," even though one convict was captured near her house.

Said George Clarke, also of Bath:

"I think it's near time they got tougher with those fellows. It's no use handling them with kid gloves. They should round them up with a machine-gun."

And Horace Bignell of Napanee added:

"There's something radically wrong with the authorities and those manning that place. They must have been sleeping while the ball game was going on."

Another resident also had a dim view of prison goings-on.

But Mr. Bignell, who said he and his wife are in their 70s, wasn't too worried about the threat of invaders in their home.

"We'll just trust in the Lord and go to bed and sleep," he said.

Driver Fined

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Harvey Eric Davis, 29, was given a $200 fine or 20 days in jail Tuesday for having an alcohol level exceeding .08 when he was involved in a car accident in which two youths were killed.

Crown Attorney Bruce Affleck told the court that although Davis had an excessive amount of alcohol in his blood at the time of the accident, it was not the cause.

Briton Can't Pay Prize for Chess

LONDON (AP) — British financier and chess fanatic Jim Slater has been checkmated in his efforts to get the £50,000 ($120,000) prize he put up for the world chess championship between America: Bobby Fischer and Russian Boris Spassky to the winner.

Under Britain's tough foreign exchange control regulations, he cannot get the money out of the country until the Bank of England says so.

He cannot transfer the money from his worldwide banking and investment empire to foreigners or even bank accounts of Fischer or Spassky in Britain without the bank's approval.

The most he can do is pay the winner £500 ($1250) a year. That's the maximum gift payment permitted to go to non-sterling areas from Britain.

Slater's office declined to comment on the impasse, but stressed: "The offer was made subject to Bank of England approval."

A bank spokesman said Slater had applied for permission to get the money to the winner of the two-month match, but declined to say whether bank approval would be forthcoming.

Divided on the same basis as the official purse, the victor of the chess match of the century in Reykjavik would get about $75,000 from Slater's prize. The other $45,000 would go to the loser.

Slater, 43, put up the money to get Fischer to Reykjavik after he appeared reluctant to play because the $125,000 purse put up by the Icelandic Chess Federation was not enough.

Terrorists Confession Is Accepted by Court

SARAFAND, Israel (Reuter) — A military court today upheld the validity of a confession made by Japanese gunman Kozo Okamoto, despite the fact it was only made after he had been promised the opportunity to commit suicide.

The court decided that there was no connection between the bara-kari" agreement made by Gen. Behavan Zeevi May 31, in which the general on the same day told Okamoto was null and void, and the confession that Okamoto made four days later to police superintendent Menashe Golan.

The court pointed out that Golan had warned Okamoto that anything he said might be used as evidence against him in court, making it clear that no one would give him a pistol.

The fact that Okamoto then continued to make his testimony showed that he fully understood that the agreement earlier signed with Zeevi was null and void, the court ruled.

Kozo Okamoto is the only survivor of a three-man Japanese suicide squad which gunned down a crowd at Lod Airport May 30. Okamoto has been charged with his part in the death of 26 people and the wounding of over 70 others in the airport massacre.

Bail Rules Problem To Police

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Recently reformed arrest procedures are cause for concern, Bob Brown, chairman of a Canadian Police Association committee, said here Tuesday.

He told delegates to the association's annual convention that police are respecting the new law "but the accused are not keeping their part of the bargain."

Mr. Brown, who heads a committee studying the effects of bail reform legislation passed by the federal government and proclaimed Jan. 3, said new legislation all requires arresting officers to release people charged with minor offences who can be reasonably expected to appear in court when called.

Mr. Brown said in Toronto a great many people have failed to show up for trial since the act was passed.

"If this trend continues in Toronto and is reflected elsewhere in Canada, the association should ask that the law be changed to give arresting officers an option whether to release someone or not," he said.

Mr. Brown suggested that the association wait until January before deciding on the merits of the new procedure.

Lake Trout Biting In Weslemkoon Waters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fish in the Thunder Bay district of the ministry of the environment have gorged themselves on a good hatch of mayflies much to the dismay of anglers.

Ministry officials reported that fish stomachs have been chucked full of the flies and fish are ignoring flashy artificial lures or live bait.

The one exception in the Thunder Bay district is White-fish Lake, about 40 miles west of Thunder Bay where limits of pickerel were being taken.

Officials said the murky-watered and shallow lake, an unlikely looking fishing sport, was especially good between 6 and 10 p.m.

The ministry, in its weekly report to The Canadian Press also pointed out that lake trout were biting well in the West Arm of Eagle Lake and White fish Bay of Lake of the Woods. Several fish were in the 12- to 15-pound range.

The northwest part of the province had the best angling prospects although scattered areas of the south reported good catches of bass and pickerel.

* * *

Tweed—Bancroft division: Lake trout good in Weslemkoon Lake, speckled trout good in Banner and Parkhurst lakes and bass good in Baptiste, Weslemkoon and Paudash lakes. Dacre division: Pike and pickerel poor in all waters, speckled trout fair to good in streams and panfish good throughout. Tweed-White Lake division: Pike and pickerel fair to good in Bobs and Long lakes, and Musky fair in Stoco Lake. Napanee division: Bass good in Dog Lake and St. Lawrence River.

WEST

Lake Erie—Smallmouth bass and pickerel good in Lake St. Clair. Most species good in Rondeau Bay of Lake Erie and bass good near Long Point Bay. Pickerel fishing areas good for rainbow trout.

Lake Huron — Hespeler division: Bass good in Wildwood Lake and Pittock Dam, trout fair to poor in Oxford and Wellington counties. Wingham division: Bass fair to poor in Lakelet Lake and Maitland River. Local trout streams poor but some rainbow trout being taken on Lake Huron shore. Owen Sound division: Speckled trout fair in Bells Lake and Saugeen River. Rainbow poor in Owen Sound Bay. Perch and bass good on Lake Huron shore from Pike Bay to Tobermory. All species fair to good but spotty in inland lakes.

Water Quality Board Forming

OTTAWA (CP) — A major step in implementing a Canada-United States agreement to clean up the Great Lakes is expected to be taken next week at a meeting of the International Joint Commission in Windsor, Ont.

The meeting, set for July 20, will witness the formal launching of a water quality board established by the IJC as its key agency for supervising the billion-dollar-plus pollution control program.

Creation of the board was provided for in the five-year cleanup agreement signed by President Nixon and Prime Minister Trudeau when Mr. Nixon visited Ottawa in April.

Consultations between the two federal governments on the board's composition are expected to be completed within a few days. It is understood it will be made up of 18 persons—nine from each country.

The co-chairmen already have been named: Francis Mayo of Chicago, chief Great Lakes officer for the U.S. government's environmental protection agency, and Allan Prince, director of the inland waters branch of the Canadian environment department.

The board will be made up additionally, on the U.S. side, of a representatives of each of the eight Great Lakes states; and on the Canadian side of four representatives from Ontario, three from the federal government and one from Quebec.

On both sides, board members are expected to be drawn from senior positions in various regulatory agencies of government, and will therefore serve only part-time on the board, which however will have a full-time secretariat.

Ballard Unaware Gardens Paid Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Counsel for Harold E. Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, told a court Tuesday that Ballard did not know that the Gardens paid for improvements on his home and that there was no evidence to show that he participated in any deceit or falsehood.

Lawyer John J. Robinette, presenting final argument for the defence in the case against Ballard, charged with fraud and theft of $205,000, told the court:

"The Crown has not proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr. Ballard knew Maple Leaf Gardens was making these payments.

"No witnesses were called for the defence by Mr. Robinette who cited Crown testimony that Ballard, executive vice-president of the Gardens at the time, had asked why he was not getting bills for $75,000 worth of work performed by Cloke Construction Co. Ltd. from 1956 to 1968.

Cloke officials have testified that the work at Ballard's private urban home was at the home of his partner, the late C. Stafford Smythe, was included in invoices for construction at the Gardens.

Mr. Robinette noted that cheques to Cloke Construction had been signed by Smythe and that in May, 1968, Ballard had paid $72,700 to the Gardens for work done at his home.

"This was the first time Ballard knew of the phoney invoices, Mr. Robinette said.

But Mr. Robinette said that although Ballard and Smythe said the team to the Gardens in 1961, they were retained to operate the Marlboros.

He argued that the money alleged to have been stolen was in fact compensation to the two men.

Lawrence Denies Bill Satisfies Him

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Justice Secretary Allan Lawrence said Tuesday he is "completely flabbergasted" by a statement attributed to Otto Lang that a proposed federal bill on off-track betting had met all of Ontario's requests.

Mr. Lawrence said he was evidently and consistently only able to confirm Tuesday from Mr. Lang's Ottawa office that the federal justice minister had been accurately quoted in a news report Friday. The news reported quoted Mr. Lang as saying the amendments to the Criminal Code were what Ontario wanted and had requested.

Mr. Lawrence said this was "absolutely inaccurate."

He was so upset by Mr. Lang's remarks, he told a news conference, that he released a sheaf of correspondence and memos dating from June 7, 1971 showing that Ontario had "persistently and consistently" urged Ottawa to amend the code to outlaw off-track betting and give the provinces full and exclusive control over their operations.

Mr. Lawrence said the federal amendments do nothing to resolve these two major issues.

Manitoba Law Stirs Debate

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government, which has been coming up with major and controversial legislation at a once-a-year pace since taking office three years ago, is keeping its average intact with a new labor relations bill.

The bill, given second reading by the legislature Monday, moved to the standing committee on industrial relations today for public representations and clause-by-clause study.

With nearly a dozen representatives of business, industry, labor and religious groups already slated to appear before the committee, deliberations may come close to rivalling the controversy aroused by the NDP's implementation of state-run auto insurance in 1970 and its municipal reorganization of Greater Winnipeg in 1971.

The bill, brought in less than three weeks ago as the current session neared the end of its fourth month, proposes a major overhaul in the province's labor laws. It is aimed generally at lessening government involvement in the collective bargaining process while making it easier for employees to form unions.

Reaction to the bill from the opposition Conservatives and Liberals, chambers of commerce and employee associations has been a plea to the government to slow down its passage for between-sessions study.

So far Labor Minister A. R. Pauley, a long-time trade unionist and Premier Ed Schreyer's predecessor as leader of the NDP, has refused to alter his plans to pass the legislation before the end of the current session, expected later this month. The bill would come into effect Jan. 1.

Two Prairie Provinces Worry About U.S. Role

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta and Saskatchewan, accustomed to gazing east and west with mixed feelings, are starting to look south with apprehension.

Matters foreign, particularly those involving the United States, have become a subject of concern and preoccupation for both provincial governments this year.

—Saskatchewan government introduces a bill to prohibit foreigners—including "other Canadians"—from owning farmland.

—Alberta government introduces a bill to prohibit the resale of Crown land to non-Canadians and give Albertans priority.

—Alberta appoints a seven-member commission to investigate "non-Canadian influence" in the province's post-secondary education.

—Alberta appoints a nine-member legislature committee to examine the need for restrictions on non-Albertan or non-Canadian control of the province's economy.

—Alberta considers the possibility of establishing its own office in Washington to serve as listening post and put its views across when U.S. resource policies involving Alberta are discussed.

—The University of Alberta is to rule on a request by the engineering faculty to limit the number of foreign students in the department.

Government spokesmen say the increasing preoccupation with foreign affairs was inevitable since there is no doubt the U.S. has become more interested in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

U.S. control of Alberta business is the second highest in Canada, 43 per cent, behind only Ontario. Real estate agents in southern Alberta and Saskatchewan report a mounting interest in their land by Americans in the last six months, many of the prospective buyers being dumbfounded to find land at $30 an acre.

Both provinces have said that they don't want to restrict most foreign investment in their provinces.

Toronto Hospital Workers Strike

TORONTO (CP) — About 600 non-medical workers went on strike at Toronto Western Hospital today as negotiations over a new contract broke off.

Boyd McAulay, hospital executive director, said talks broke off in the middle of a new management offer. He said he could not pinpoint where the disagreement lay but felt the parties were close on the matter of wages. He gave no details.

Nurses, technical and clerical help are not in the bargaining unit. Supervisors and volunteers are expected to help keep the hospital operating.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, July 13

Aries (March 21-April 19): Today everything that can be confused is likely to do so, and you have a chance to show how level and skilled you are in coping with change and stress.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Active imagination brings you into an attractive but unproductive venture. Give yourself time to think twice. Later hours bring detailed review.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Gains in material resources should be developed on what you manage. Where others are involved, your actions must await agreement.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Casual emotional expression provokes stronger reactions than you expect. It can be a rather expensive day, with indulgence of your whims.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Creative endeavors may open the way to real rewards. It is your communication with loved ones that is sensitive and open to stress.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Daylight breaks on many old questions, puzzles; you see the reasons more clearly, but not yet what to do about them.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Surprise is part of today's experience, quite likely beneficial if your reaction is healthy. Holding the line is indicated as the best approach.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Sending brings a chance for revision, a need for communication. Fresh ventures begin late in the day with excellent auspices.

Capricorn (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take the day off for reviewing situation, if you can manage it. If you can't get off, do the minimum and try to be co-operative.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Places (Feb. 19-March 20): Getting involved in speculation is the last thing desired. Hold your ground long enough to be sure you know the whole story.

To Your Good Health

Stubborn Sores May Be Cancer

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am in my late 70s and have had trouble with two sores coming on my face for the last eight years. I have one on the side of my face about an inch from my eye and the other on my forehead.

Scabs will form and I try to remove them and they finally drop off leaving a very red, raw-looking spot. In time it heals but is hereditary? Is there anything I can use to cure these ugly looking sores? — Mrs. H.D.

I never was much for using scare techniques, and I trust that you won't be frightened by my answer to you—but I do hope you will pay attention.

I can't, after all, undertake to diagnose those unsightly spots that are bothering you just from hearing about them. They could be various things.

But don't they fit one of the seven danger signs of cancer—a sore that does not heal?

The spots may be some sort of slow, chronic infection, or possibly some other skin disorder, but I most certainly think you should go to your doctor for a definite diagnosis.

If they are skin cancer, have them removed before they have time to spread and cause really serious trouble. In folks your age, cancer spreads very slowly, so even having waited eight years may not pose any great problem for you.

But have your doctor take a look. That's the one safe thing for you to do.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Five years ago my Fallopian tubes were tied after birth of my last child. I have heard stories from several women that after five years the tubes can become untied. Some say it happened to them. My doctor told me it can't happen. My five years are up and I have begun to worry. What do you say—Mrs. E.C.

There ago I've noted that "recanalization" sometimes occurred after a period of intermittent forms of new channel through which the ova could pass, making pregnancy possible again.

Even then it didn't happen often. Since then it has been the practice to remove a section of the tubes, and tie the remaining ends. For all practical purposes that has prevented reconalization or "recovering unfied," as it is commonly expressed.

There's nothing special about that five years, and if I were you I'd accept your doctor's word at face value and ignore those "several women" who evidently are exaggerating in the power ful ir ilinkd game if trying to scare others with awfulwaful stories.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You mentioned a wood tick repellant called diethyltoluamide. Pharmacists say they can't find the word in their booklets. Is this in lotion or liquid form? — J.H.R.

The repellent also is—and perhaps more commonly—called deet. It comes in liquid form or in a lotoin-type ointment. You put a few drops on your hands and rub it onto areas that are likely places for exposure to ticks.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend just asked me if I had ever heard of the medicine called methotrexate for treatment of psoriasis, as I have is very severely. Have you ever heard of it? — N.L.

Yes, indeed. But it is such a powerful medication that it has to be used under the most careful circumstances, and therefore is used only in extreme cases of psoriasis.

Opening lead — king of spades.

The true test of a partnership is its ability to reach slams that should be bid and to avoid slams that should not be bid. The leads for slam bidding are many and varied, but how and when to use them depends largely on the sophistication and good judgment of the players.

Here is an example of good bidding that led to a grand slam. The hand was played in Bangkok last year in an exhibition match between a Thailand team and an American team.

North for the U.S. was Dorothy Hayden and South was Alan Truscott. Both are well-known international players.

Mrs. Hayden jump-shifted to three clubs on the first round to identify a potential slam and later bid Blackwood for aces. Truscott showed one ace by responding with five diamonds and Mrs. Hayden then made the key bid of five hearts.

Ordinarily this bid, with the cheapest call possible over five diamonds, would indicate that the opponents had two aces and that the safest contract now available was five notrump. Accordingly, Truscott bid five notrump, expecting the bidding to die there. But when Mrs. Hayden next bid six diamonds, Truscott concluded that his partner was not at all concerned about aces, but was in effect using the grand slam force convention to ask him to bid seven diamonds if he had two of the three top honors. So Truscott, showing full faith and confidence in partner, bid the grand slam — which was easily made.

Students' Minicar Is Ready to Roll

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — After a year of designing, assembling and tinkering, and projected costs of about $30,000, a 3,000-pound, battery-powered mini-car produced by university students here is ready to roll.

The project, planned as an answer to traffic pollution and congestion, is a joint venture by students of the University of Western Ontario faculty of engineering and Fanshawe College of Applied Arts and Technology.

Dave Jacques, a machinist from Thamesford, Ont., and the only non-student on the project, said in a recent interview that most of the problems have been worked out and that the car should be ready for preliminary trials in Toronto July 22.

And the chassis is a hybrid incorporating a Volkswagen front suspension, a Datsun rear suspension and an original frame designed and built at the university.

An electric motor over the front wheels drives a variable-output hydraulic pump which sends hydraulic fluid through hoses, turning a hydraulic motor in the rear of the car. The motor powers rear wheels.

The present setup uses 10 lead-cobalt auto-sized batteries. Work on the body is about three weeks behind the chassis construction but should be ready for tests at the University of Toronto, said Kurth Zerbeck, a 24-year-old mechanical engineering graduate student and project head.

Will Withhold Fees

OTTAWA (CP) — Carleton University students' association has voted to hold back tuition fees next September as part of a province-wide effort to press the Ontario government to reverse recently-announced fee increases.

Association president Bruce Cameron said Tuesday the terms of the boycott will be specified July 24 at a meeting of the Ontario Federation of Students in Toronto.

The association voted Monday night to join the boycott, proposed by the federation last month.

Astronauts Disciplined For Moon Postal Covers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States space agency disciplined the three Apollo 15 astronauts Tuesday for carrying 400 unauthorized postal covers to the moon and back last July and then turning 100 of them over to an acquaintance in West Germany.

The 100 moon-stamped envelopes later apparently were sold to stamp collectors for $1,500 each, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

NASA said after an investigation that astronauts David Scott, Alfred Worden and James Irwin "exercised poor judgment in their action."

"Therefore they will be reprimanded and their actions will be given due consideration in their selection for future assignments," the agency said.

NASA said it had learned that the Apollo 15 crew had agreed at one time to provide 100 covers from their forthcoming mission to the acquaintance in return for establishment of a "trust fund" for their children.

"After the covers had been given to the acquaintance, however, they realized—on their own—that this was improper and declined to accept either the trust fund or the alternative offer of stamps in exchange for the 100 postal covers," NASA said.

Alberta Railroad Costly Nightmare

EDMONTON (CP) — A Social Credit dream of the 1960s has become a Progressive Conservative nightmare.

The Alberta Resources Railway was envisaged as a line that would open up great resource development of the northwest. Instead it has developed into a money drain that no one seems to want.

Conceived by the Social Credit government in 1965, it was completed in 1968. So far the government-owned line has shown nothing but losses.

To add to the woes, floods late last month washed out 37 miles of the line, causing damage that could run as high as $20 million.

The question now is: Who pays for the damage, the government or Canadian National Railways, which built and operates the line?

Winner McGovern Must Woo Losers

Victor Sensed Times Change

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — A sense of history which told him times were changing and a passion for organization which helped his youthful armies beat the old guard at its own game are the simple secrets of George McGovern's boom from oblivion to presidential nomination.

There is little revolutionary about it. It's a story of hard work converted into votes at the

For Other Stories On Democratic Convention See Page 24

Democratic national convention which gave him the party's nomination Wednesday night.

It is seems miraculous that this could happen to a soft-voiced, farm-belt senator whose name was recognized by only five per cent of the American public when he began his quest. There are some answers which make it more plausible.

—First of all, he carried a supreme self-confidence which assumed from the start that he would win and led him and his staff to proceed even in the darkest days of the campaign as if he would.

—His organization became the envy of the political world for its thoroughness and efficiency.

—He recruited a staff which, contemptuous of his best traits and shored up his weaknesses, and attracted untold thousands of devoted volunteers.

—He adopted a strategy which, decided firmly a year and a half ago just what he had to do and how he would do it.

—His grasp of the time and just the right issues to use seemed to put him there first and to leave little ground for the competition.

Splits Need Mending To Fight Nixon

MIAMA BEACH (CP) — Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, the reform-minded preacher's son who won the Democratic nomination for president Wednesday night, gets his first chance to pull together a divided party before today is over.

In his choice of vice-presidential candidate and in his acceptance speech to the final session of the party convention tonight, the 49-year-old McGovern is expected to set a tone that will guide the enthusiasm of his early backers while wooing the substantial block of warry or antagonistic Democrats who fought his nomination.

He already has been denied, apparently, the one candidate for the vice-presidency that virtually all Democrats here agreed would strengthen the party ticket in its efforts to unseat President Nixon in the November elections.

McGovern told reporters that Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts was the first to phone and congratulate him after the nomination was confirmed. But Kennedy declined, "for very real personal reasons," he added. McGovern's running mate.

That appeared to leave the field wide open. Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, and numerous figures from national and state politics have been mentioned as possibilities.

McGovern won the nomination on the first ballot, as expected, with 1,728.35 votes, far more than the 1,509 which would have assured him a majority of delegates. The total was subsequently boosted by vote changers among some delegations switching to the winner.

The votes which sent McGovern over the magic 1,509 figure came from the Illinois delegation, which McGovern supporters captured after a harsh dispute with the forces of Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago. The Illinois count was announced by a Daley backer, who pledged that the state would unite behind the winner.

And Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, who picked up enough strength to run second, immediately sent word to the winner that he would support the McGovern campaign against Nixon.

The decision was especially significant because of Jackson's strong support from organized labor, which opposed McGovern to the bitter end.

When the roll-call of states was concluded, McGovern had 219 votes more than he needed. After some votes had been changed, he wound up with 1,864.95.

Behind him, in order, came Jackson with 486.85; Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, 377.50; Representative Shirley Chisholm of New York, 101.45;

Armed Pair Arrested

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Wayne Harris Foster, 32, and Jessie Dixon, 33, black members of the separatist Republic of New Africa organization, were held in lieu of $100,000 bond today, charged with possession of concealed weapons at Senator George McGovern's hotel headquarters. Two loaded guns, a .38-calibre revolver and a nine-millimetre automatic, were found under the front seat of a sports car in which one of the men had been sitting, authorities reported.

Peace Talks Resume

PARIS (Reuter) — The Vietnam peace talks resumed today after a two-month break, with both sides expressing readiness to discuss proposals for a political solution to the war. Chief U.S. negotiator William Porter said before going into the conference room "we are entirely flexible about the possibility of discussing our proposals or theirs."

Seek Injunction

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Western Hospital will apply to the Supreme Court of Ontario today for an injunction to halt the strike by non-medical personnel, Boyd McAulay, the hospital's executive director said Wednesday night.

Hitchhiker Robbed

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Robert Byers was hitchhiking with a dozen beer under one arm. A convertible with three youths stopped on the shoulder. Mr. Byers, 44, of Dunville, Ont., told police one youth jumped from the car, threw him to the ground, grabbed the case of beer, and sped away in a cloud of dust.

Comes Another Dawn . . .

A new day dawned today . . . with the manhunt still in full swing for nine maximum security fugitives from Millhaven. Since Monday night's escape, roadblocks in Belleville-Kingston area have been manned round-the-clock as the search goes on. Night-long vigil at Marysville checkpoint today still saw OPP Const. Bill Brant scanning highway while partner Gary Roberts shares cup of coffee donated by sympathetic early-morning motorist.

Pen Fugitive Told Guard He Was Going on Holidays

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — One of 14 convicts involved in the largest breakout in Canadian penal history told an instructor days before Monday's escape that he was "going on holidays."

Charles Boomer, 33, of Edmonton, serving 27 years for armed robbery, told one of his penitentiary instructors on more than one occasion on days preceding the escape: "I'm going on my holidays July 10."

Boomer was one of nine escapers still at large today. Five of the convicts who cut their way to freedom through two 12-foot-high chain-link fences at Millhaven penitentiary were recaptured Tuesday.

Guard Killed

KINGSTON (CP) — Wallace Edgar Lloyd, 42, a Millhaven prison guard, was killed Wednesday when he lost control of his car while on his way home from eight hours of searching for nine of 14 convicts who escaped from the prison Monday night.

Millhaven Warden Donald Clark said in an interview today Mr. Lloyd had worked an eight-hour shift and had been off eight hours before that.

A penitentiary source said the instructor thought Boomer was kidding.

About 220 OPP officers and prison guards spent a fruitless day in sweltering heat in the penitentiary area Wednesday checking hundreds of cars and dozens of leads.

And Boomer's comment, along with other evidence, has led some of the penitentiary officials here to believe that the escape plan was conceived well in advance of the breakout by only a few of the 14 men who disappeared into the bush after a softball game Monday evening.

They speculate that most of those who escaped were invited along at the last minute by the ringleaders in the hope that the mass breakout would complicate the search.

Staff Sgt. W. J. Farrell, head of the OPP detachment in nearby Napanee, said it is possible.

"It could be; there's been a lot of speculation about that."

"They (the captured convicts) are not the most co-operative people in the world. We'll probably never know."

Many of the prison officials disagree with penitentiary psychiatrist George Scott who said he believed the break was probably unpremeditated.

Warden Donald Clark said the escape was well-planned and executed. The convicts made their move before the compound was closed and dog patrols began.

The manhunt, one of the largest in Canadian history is concentrated in an area of about 15 square miles around the maximum-security prison.

Chief Inspector John Hillmer of the OPP said there were no plans to expand the search "until we get some indication these guys are outside the area."

He said he will wait "until somebody sees one of them out-

Hijacked Plane Lands in Texas

From AP-REUTER

Two airline hijackers armed with sawed-off shotguns in an escape plane from Philadelphia to a small airport in Texas today with $600,000 ransom and four stewardess hostages, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

The plane landed at Brazoria County Airport, near Lake Jackson, about 50 miles south of Houston, the agency said. Police radio reports said officers shot out the aircraft's tires.

After the plane landed at the Texas field, its stairs were lowered and the flight engineer, who had been pistol whipped, either was thrown out or escaped, the FAA said. He was taken to hospital.

The hijackers remained aboard the National Airlines 727 with the pilot and four stewardesses.

In another hijacking, an armed man who got away with $550,000 ransom abandoned an apparent plan to try to escape by parachute and surrendered meekly to a stewardess. Police told had no bullets, but officers did not know that until the hijacking of the Dallas-bound American Airlines jet was all over.

Both planes were commandeered Wednesday night.

The work, adjacent to the Madoc ball park, is still not completed, with a change house and wading pool to be added. For the time being, a hefty plank of wood is serving as a diving board and it is muddy getting out. But, most important yesterday, it is cool and wet.

Cable Car Crash Kills 13 in Alps

BRIG, Switzerland (Reuter) — Thirteen persons died Wednesday night when a runaway cable car hurtled more than 2,000 feet down a mountainside and smashed to pieces against its own base station.

Two persons survived the crash—the worst in living memory in the Swiss Alps. Experts shutting through the shattered wreckage near the Swiss-Italian border were trying to pinpoint the cause of the disaster.

Officials said the traction cable hauling the cabin up to the village of Betten had snapped at the point where it joins the control cabin. In addition, the brakes failed. The eight-year-old car, capable of carrying 50 people, fell to its doom as a result of the multiple failures.

Police said one of the victims was tossed to his death on the mountainside as the car raced back to the base station.

The two survivors were taken to hospital. Their condition was not known and it was not clear whether they survived the impact against the base station or were thrown out of the car during its wild ride to destruction.

Eight Die on Glorious Twelfth

BELFAST (AP) Security Forces counted today the cost of the "Glorious Twelfth" and found Northern Ireland had suffered one of its bloodiest chapters of gunfighting in three years of strife.

Eight persons, including two British soldiers and a 15-year-old mentally-handicapped boy, were shot dead before, during and after Wednesday's parades throughout the province by tens of thousands of Protestants, including some Orangemen from Toronto.

The loyalist celebrations—of a 282-year-old Protestant victory over Roman Catholic armies in the Battle of the Boyne—themselves passed off peacefully, with 22,000 troops, militia and police sandwiched between the communities to forestall violence.

But in advance of the marching, on its periphery and in its wake guerrilla assassins and bombers worked furiously.

The army suffered two killed and 11 wounded in battles with offensive units of the Irish Republican Army. The troops whose death list since 1969 rose to 91, said they wounded or killed at least five of their shadowy assailants.

The other casualties came from skirmishes involving operatives from both Catholic and Protestant private armies and Ulster's overall fatality toll rose to at least 425. Twenty-one persons have died since the Catholic-base IRA renounced its ceasefire and resumed its offensive Sunday night.

Trenton Hot Humidex Index Over 100

TORONTO (CP) — Deodorants will be put to a gruelling test again today as the weather office forecast temperatures above 85 and humidex readings of more than 100 in most southern Ontario localities.

The humidex, a composite of the relative humidity and the maximum temperature, is a human discomfort index. And Wednesday Toronto recorded 105, "extremely uncomfortable for humans," the forecaster said.

However, there is relief in sight. Thunderstorms are moving in off Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

At least, one record temperature was set Wednesday — 89 in Muskoka. The last high on July 12 was 87 in 1956.

Overnight record highs also were set in Trenton where 79 passed the 1943 mark of 66, and in Ottawa, where the temperature hit 72, four degrees higher than the record in 1956.

Muskoka tied the 1956 overnight record at 66, as did Sarnia, 67 in the same year.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The sultry tropical airmass over southern regions will persist through today as the drier and somewhat cooler airmass over the north will take at least until midnight to reach the southern shores of the lower Great Lakes. Thunderstorms which have consisted of only infrequent and widely separated cells for the past few days will reach a peak in activity over the south today and a few isolated thunderstorms may be quite heavy. Friday will see an end of thunderstorm activity and a marked drop in humidities and temperatures will again return to near 80 degrees maximum 55 degree mark in southern Ontario.

Recreation Program Needs Funds

The first step toward possible eventual amalgamation of Thurlow recreation and centre board and the township's new recreation department was taken at a meeting of council Wednesday.

Both committees will meet soon to discuss a joint fund-raising lottery.

And although no-one proposed an actual union, Deputy Reeve Burden Forsyth called for an over-all committee to meet once from the draw.

Harold Griffin, purchasing agent for the recreation committee, told council his department needs about $1,200 to cover expenses for its first year of operation. That figure was arrived at after council cancelled the $600 it had promised when the board was established this spring.

The recreation department, now administrator Arthur Bascom, softball and soccer programs, considered holding an independent dance, but decided a common effort would better suit both bodies. The community centre board has held one draw in the past.

Mr. Griffin said funds were needed to cover only the first year's costs since a provincial grant and returns from sponsors and registration would be sufficient in future years.

County System Approved

Lennox and Addington will replace its 13 individual municipal welfare systems with one county system this fall.

The county is now looking for a welfare administrator and expects to have the county-wide welfare system in operation by January, 1973.

County council voted in favor of the move this week, although two townships, Ernestown and Richmond attempted to opt outm Their motion, for withdrawal was defeated.

Hastings county has operated a county-wide welfare system for some time and the trend across the province is toward complete adoption of individual municipal welfare departments with larger units of administration.

Salvation Army Major Takes Over City Corps

Belleville is a familiar landmark to Major Ray Nelson who takes over command of the city's Salvation Army Corp this week.

Back in the 1950s, before he married his wife Betty, she was stenographer to then divisional commander Lt.- Col. Morgan Tamblyn and a popular Salvationist during his stay in the city and now retired in Vancouver.

Thus with an advance familiarity with the city "I know we're going to like it here," says Major Nelson.

A native of Oshawa he has served as corps commander for the army in various coast-to-coast posts — from the Maritimes to Vancouver, his last posting, before Belleville.

As yet, he has no special projects in mind for the Belleville corps which he will administer indefinitely ("How long you stay you never know," says the major). Since it's mid-summer and into the vacation period it's difficult to assess what trends may yet be needed during his administration of the corps.

"We haven't even got completely unpacked yet," he says.

However, in general terms there'll be the carrying on of Salvationist traditions of "doing what we can to help those who need us — and in fact we'll need people as much as they'll need us."

Succeeding Capt. Ed Gurney, new promoted major was posted to probation and private work in Hamilton, while Nelson and his wife, a native of Sarnia, have two children; Steven, 13, Susan, 9.

The Take Over

Major Ray Nelson arrives in Belleville to become new commander of city's Salvation Army Corps. With him, from Vancouver, are wife Betty, children Susan, 9, Steven, 13. Mrs. Nelson worked for Army's religious offices in Belleville in 1950s.

Environmentalists Challenge Tovell Report on Sandbanks

The Tovell report on Sandbanks quarrying—accepted in principle yesterday by the provincial government — has been called a crushing blow by environmentalists.

In Belleville, one volunteer ecological group threatens to make it an issue in the next federal election campaign.

The report of geologist Walter Tovell, retained last spring to recommend courses of provincial government action in the simmering dispute between business, labor and environment groups, recommended the company be permitted to quarry all sand from its 16 acre site — representing one per cent of the dunes in the 1,802 acre park.

Dr. Tovell said the problem could best be solved by surrender of the cement company's 75-year lease as quickly as possible. The geologist said he was prepared to say concern expressed by environmental groups is overrated.

In Toronto, Larry Green of Pollution Probe termed the report a "crushing blow to any movement we might have had."

"It could only cause the environmental groups and cottagers in the park area to redouble their efforts."

Mr. Green said the Tovell report was "poor scientifically," and failed to go into detail on the real potential of alternative sand supply sources.

He said it was obvious that Dr. Tovell's prime concern was the company, not the citizens of the area or the province.

Bellevillian Douglas Sword, chairman of People Against A Contaminated Environment — an outspoken group in the issue — threatened the Sandbanks would become an election issue.

Mr. Sword noted that Stephen Roman, chairman of Denison Mines of which the Picton cement company is a wholly-owned subsidiary, is Conservative federal election candidate in North York.

He said Mr. Roman had criticized welfare - system freeloaders" at his nomination — a phrase that would be turned against him.

But the Sandbanks "we feel he and his company are freeloading at the people's expense," sad Mr. Sword.

"We will have it brought up in North York. Hopefully the people contesting that riding will be critical of him on these grounds."

Mr. Sword charged Dr. Tovell with "total failure" of his commission. The geologist will assigned the task of attempting to relocate quarrying away from the dunes, he claimed.

Dr. Tovell recommended the company be permitted to remove the 128,030 tons of sand on the site before surrendering its lease, perhaps in three years.

But Mr. Sword claimed he had copies of letters from senior civil servants noting that alternative sources had been found in Cherry Valley and a Picton-area esker (glacial formation). Sand in those areas had similar content to Sandbanks material although they were "disadvantages".

Varied Program Planned For July 19 Picnic

An estimated 1500 senior citizens representing clubs all the way from Bowmanville to Kingston and Picton north to Marmora, will convene at Zwick's Island on Wednesday, July 19 for the annual East Central Ontario area senior citizens picnic.

The Zwick's Island gathering will be 14th annual get-together for district senior residents and will be the first time it has been held outside of the Cobourg area.

The city parks board, recreation — arena committee and the local senior citizens group are sponsoring the event with Miss Doris Day acting as program coordinator.

The Belleville senior citizens group will hold its own picnic at Zwick's in the morning then join the larger group at noon.

Music will be the theme for this year's picnic with the program to feature a wide variety of entertainment.

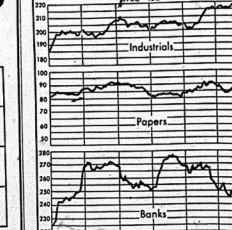
Already 10 to 12 musical groups have indicated their attendance at the co-operating in the event. In addition to the group musical entertainment there will be step dancing, old-time fiddling, single musical numbers and prizes for the oldest visitors.

Mrs. Archie Longhurst will present a trophy for the group competitions in memory of her late husband.

The district picnickers will be welcomed by Alderman Arthur Keegan following which the Trenton Swing Out Group will entertain for an hour.

Belleville Recreational Director Lorne Williams said the choice of the musical-theme for the day's program had increased interest in the event.

Normally the picnic attracts up to 800 people but this year the attendance is expected to be almost doubled.



Gains in Montreal

All sectors of the Montreal Stock Exchange showed gains during the first half of the year. The Industrial index rose from 197.56 at the beginning of the year to close June 30 at 212.92. Utilities rose from 156.26 to 159.52, banks from 227.56 to 247.05 and papers opened the year at 81.71 to close June 30 at 87.66. CP Newsmap 1972.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to friends and neighbors for their sympathy and acts for the relief of suffering during the illness of our husband and father, Percy Kerr. We sincerely appreciate all you have done for us and pray God's best for many good wishes extended to us. Sincerely, Pearl Kerr and Family

IN MEMORIAM

Officers and members of Division 189 B.L.E. are requested to assemble at the Pinnacle Street United Church, Friday, July 14th, for the funeral service of our late brother, Percy Kerr.
By order of Chief Engineer, G. Wilson.

In memory of our dear father John Shaw who passed away July 13, 1967.
He walks with us down quiet paths,
We see him in the sun,
We hear his voice so much around
The one we loved so much.
Sadly missed, resting at last.
The world's weary troubles and cares are past.
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
Also persons remembered by Rebecca and brother Edwin.

Horse Show

There's plenty planned on the hoof this Sunday for the Quinte Exhibition Grounds. The Quinte Horse Associates is holding a day long show of varied events. The program runs from 10 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.

Lifeguard Named

Madoc and District Recreation Committee has appointed Chuck Johnston as lifeguard at the swimming area. He will be on the site from 1 to 6 p.m. daily. Because of high water levels this year, the water at the beach is deep and cold, experienced swimmers should use the area at present.

Promotion Manager

Promotion manager for Quinte Exhibition this year will be Elmer Buster, Amelisburg newsman and former publicity director for Belleville Fair. He will begin his duties Monday.

Obituary

MRS. HAROLD C. SELDON

An active worker for the blind, Mrs. Gladys Lillian Seldon of 143 Bleeker Ave. died suddenly Wednesday in New Liskeard. She was 66.

She was a member of the White Cross Club and worked for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

A member of Bridge St. Church, she took an active role in the United Church Women.

Mrs. Seldon was born in Saskatchewan but had lived in Belleville since 1934. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Eaton.

She is survived by her husband, Harold C. Seldon; two daughters, Mrs. Michael (Marilyn) Barnes of Montreal and Mrs. Dr. Phillip (Betty) Taylor of New Liskeard, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral will be held Saturday from the Thompson Funeral Chapel. Entombment is in Groveside Cemetery, Whitby.

Time of the service will be announced later.

MRS. HARRY LANGABEER

Funeral service for Mrs. Frances Langabeer was held Monday at 1.30 p.m. in the Thompson Funeral Chapel.

Officiating was Rev. William Irwin. Interment in Belleville Cemetery.

Hulin Resigns As Deputy Clerk

The likely imposition of regional government within a few years has cost the village of Stirling the services of its deputy clerk.

Robert Hulin, former village councillor and one time member of the Stirling News Argus early this year was appointed deputy clerk with the view of taking over the clerk's job upon the retirement of Clerk W. L. Pollock.

This week at the regular meeting of council, Mr. Hulin tendered his resignation to resume his work as a printer with the News Argus.

He gave the likely imposition of regional government as the principal reason for his resignation.

Not Haopy

The township is looking for a device which can cover and pack refuse at its new dump.

A bulldozer hired previously for that purpose "has not proved satisfactory," said Deputy Reeve Borden Forsythe.

TV Set Stolen

The estimated value of the portable television was set at $450.

Police are still investigating.

Fractional votes were cast because in some states there were more delegates than votes. To get around the problem of allowing all shades of opinion to be represented on the floor many delegates were given fractional votes.

No attempt was made to make the Democratic convention simulacrous. The convention simply adjourned for the night because everyone knew such a motion could not pass without some cries of "no" from the floor.

Within minutes after clinching the nomination, McGovern received congratulations and promises of support from all the candidates he had conquered, except Wallace. But labor leaders were reported to be relatively opposed to the senator, as did many delegates.

One sign in the hall read: "McGovern Will Bomb—in November."

The question of whether Wallace would bargain decent the ticket and run for the presidency as an independent remained unanswered. The Alabama official said the possibility was getting "stronger by the hour" but others insisted he would remain a Democrat.

Trenton Bridge Cover Object of Complaints

TRENTON (Staff) — Council decided here Wednesday to consider replacing a north Trenton bridge that has been object of complaints.

The bridge across Meyer's Creek on Front St. was the object of a letter received from W. F. Paulsit, a local man who wants to build a subdivision in the area of the bridge.

Mr. Paulist said the bridge has been cracked by frost and eroded by water flow. He indicated the fallen off the bridge is blocking the stream that drains his land.

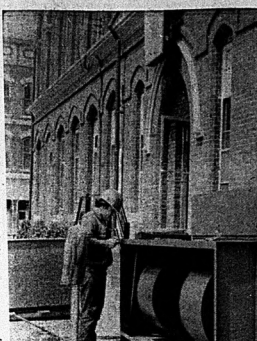
Hoornweg replied "concrete is falling off but it is not unsafe for traffic . . . general appearance of the bridge is poor."

He advised that, in view of the fact Front St. is a connecting link, the town could receive a 75 per cent grant from the province for construction of a new bridge.

However, consideration has been given here recently to a redesignation of the main north-south westside link from Front St. to Water St. No decision has been made on this redesignation possibility.

Were Water St. to become the connecting link, the grant for the Front St. bridge would be reduced to 50 per cent of the total cost.



Swing Bridge Pattern To Be Once an Hour

An agreement between federal and provincial authorities is expected to step up traffic flow along the Bay Bridge Road causeway.

Dan Collins, ministry of communications and transportation district engineer at Port Hope, today said federal permission had been granted to operate the causeway swing bridge only once an hour for pleasure craft.

At present the bridge can be opened every half-hour, thus adding to delays already caused by bridge repairs which have narrowed traffic passage to one lane.

Since official notice of the change must be issued, the order will not take effect until July 17. It will be enforced between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., said Mr. Collins.

The bridge will open as usual on demand to commercial craft. But since such shipping along the Bay of Quinte is meagre no problem is anticipated.

Mr. Collins said work on the first of the bridge span's two lanes could be completed in a month.

Tour Boat Undertakes Trial Runs

TRENTON (Staff) — Miss Scugog, the first cruise boat in years to ply Quinte waters on a regular basis, made its maiden voyage on the bay from Trenton to Belleville and Deseronto.

The 51-foot craft owned by Ronald Strong, an Ontario Hydro employee from Bowmanville, will enter scheduled service in the next few days.

Today the boat is making the trip from Trenton to Campbellford.

Trips this week have been dry runs — to help in the establishment of regular operating hours. Decision was made on yesterday's run down the bay that Trenton to Picton and back is too much of a trip for a one-day outing. The boat turned back at Deseronto.

Strong will be determining today if Trenton to Campbellford is a convenient package.

Cruise operators are confident of one thing anyway — the Belleville - Trenton trip of about two hours duration will be popular.

Mrs. Florence Strong indicates requests for tours are coming in from as far away as Windsor and Belleville, and Trenton senior citizens want to use the boat on a weekly group basis.

As for the boat, Miss Scugog's seating is mostly enclosed in a large passenger cabin that could raise additional ventilation.

However, trips on the bay and Trent River are worthwhile as all residents of the region know and Miss Scugog will open up the waterways to many natives and visitors alike.

Throwaway Milk Jugs Add to Garbage Costs

Non-returnable plastic milk jugs continue to be sold in Dominion Store here, although legislation is pending to ban the three-quart jugs.

James Auld, Ontario minister of the environment, announced last weekend that the government plans to ban the jugs.

Pollution Probe declared war on the jugs when they were first put on the market this spring by Dominion label.

The environment protection group says the disposable jugs will increase the tonnage of municipal garbage and cannot be burned efficiently by any incinerator now in use in Canada.

Pollution Probe is also in full cry against the 3-quart waxed paper carton distributed locally by Brookside Prices Dairy.

The Kingston branch of Pollution Probe has released figures to indicate the amount of extra garbage the disposable jugs would add to its municipal disposal sites. In Kingston, the non-returnable plastic jug would add about 500 pounds of garbage daily and cost about $3,000 more annually for municipal disposal.

Since the population of Belleville is about three-fifths that of Kingston, comparable figures here would be 300 pounds of extra garbage daily at a cost of $1,800 annually.

But the cost of disposing of the waxed-paper cartons is higher. Based on Kingston figures, the annual cost to Belleville would be about $3,050.

People use them to store everything from gasoline to fuel oil, then return them to the stores tainted with the odor of the foreign fluids. The cleaning process fails to remove the odor impregnated in the plastic and the next purchaser ends up with contaminated milk.

The plastic packs (three one-quart bags packaged together in another plastic bag), also present problems. The sealing machinery in the dairy sometimes turns out leaking bags that are not detected until the customer has them half-way home.

One retailer has noted a disadvantage to the returnable three-quart plastic jugs — it may not contain a full three quarts of milk.

The jugs, when returned for cleaning and refilling, must be subjected to 600 degree temperatures. At that temperature, the plastic shrinks, reducing the size of the container to less than its original three-quart capacity.

The plastic used in the one-quart milk pouches is considered ecologically safe, since the plastic disintegrates on exposure to sunlight and eventually turns to dust.

Anyone for an old-fashioned glass milk bottle?

Galley Fire Guts Catamaran

CARRYING PLACE (Staff) — A galley fire did extensive damage last night to a 40-foot catamaran passing through the Murray Canal.

Wife of boat owner, Robert Carlyle Carlisle of Don Mills was preparing supper aboard the single - masted craft when the fire broke out.

Trenton fire department was called to the scene midway between Highway 33 and County Road 64 about 7:30 p.m. but extensive damage had already been done. The fire was compounded by the explosion of a propane gas tank aboard.

The fire department was on the scene for about an hour with one pumper and reports the sailboat was completely gutted in the blaze.

DOUGLAS M. MacCORMACK son of Mrs. Walter MacCormack, Belleville and the late Walter MacCormack graduated recently from McMaster University with B. Sc. degree (mathematics). Mr. MacCormack, a graduate of BCIVS plans to attend the Ontario College of Education.

Dump to Have Pest Control

Quinte Pest Control of Belleville will work at the site for the next two weeks, returning periodically until the end of the year for inspection.

The dump, closed May 18 when a new site was opened, will later be levelled and covered with two feet of earth.

Garage Surplus

Thurlow township plans to offer its old garage for tenders in the near future.

The building, located on county road five between Carrington and Highway 14, should be vacant by the end of the month, then work on the new garage is expected to be complete.

For Cooler Council Sessions

Worker disassembles part of new air conditioning equipment being installed at Belleville's 100 year old city hall. Cooling equipment arrived as three separate units some of which had to be taken apart to allow passage through basement doorway.

Three Weeks, Then ..Aaagh!

Installers are ahead of schedule but city hall staff will have to suffer with the heat for up to another three weeks before central air conditioning goes into operation.

Air conditioning equipment with a capacity of 40 tons refrigeration was delivered Wednesday and today installers are at work putting the equipment together in the city hall basement.

The $60,872 contract also includes revamping of the heating equipment.

Hot water radiators at city hall have been removed and the new system — using the old boiler — will be forced air heating.

The air conditioning system uses water from the city mains as a cooling agent and at peak capacity will draw up to 60 gallons a minute. At this rate of demand the hourly water requirement would be 86,400 gallons. But peak capacity would be the exception rather than the rule — even in summer weather.

There is no recovery of used water.

At the time specifications were being prepared council opted for the water cooling system instead of a cooling tower on the city hall roof.

Student Work Program Big Boost to Area Parks

A program that started out one year ago as a make-work scheme, SWEEP (Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program) has become a strong arm for the ministry of natural resources.

The question that District Forester Eric Gage couldn't answer was how long the students would be available.

"The program could come and go," said Mr. Gage. "It all depends on what the unemployment situation looks like next year among students."

An indication of what we think of these young people is we were disappointed when we found out we were getting only half as many as the previous summer," said Mr. Gage.

This summer, 45 students are working in almost every aspect of the department, from accounting to mapping to assessing tree plantations with the majority working in provincial parks.

While the program gives the students a chance to get work outside, the overwhelming response was for money to return to school in the fall. Positions are divided equally between secondary and post-secondary students.

Sixty per cent of the students are hired locally, the remaining 40-per cent are hired from Toronto where the provincial government feels the unemployment situation is the most critical.

"We rely on these people to do the work we have neither the time nor the money to do," said Mr. Gage.

"It is difficult to get enough money to work on all the parks and recreational areas and do a top job. The public uses these areas and they have to be maintained."

With the provincial grant, students working with a foreman can augment the work force and improve the job, he said.

Troubled Youth

What is the matter with our young people — and society as a whole — today? That is a tall question, one that cannot be answered totally in a short space. It is fair to say though that there is a could-not-care-less attitude abroad among some members of the rising generation. Worse still, there is a destructive trend that is behind the break-ins and vandalism that currently are plaguing many communities.

The village of Marmora is the latest to report a growing incidence of robbery and vandalism. In fact it apparently has been worsening since the death two years ago of a stout-hearted citizen who voluntarily spent a lot of time outside working hours patrolling the village. Now it has been decided to have by-law enforcement officer Pat O'Connor patrol the village for a trial period.

Such a move could well curb the activities of troublemakers, but as village authorities recognize, it cannot replace police surveillance. Police protection however is at best spotty, since it depends on only occasional patrols by the Ontario Provincial Police. Ideally such communities should have one or two police officers of their own, but it is a thankless task and such men are hard to come by.

Meanwhile there remains the problem of how to cope with the problem on an overall social basis. We see that in Marmora the proprietor of a movie house is considering closing his establishment because of the behavior of young people. When kids cannot even conduct themselves properly at the movies things have come to a pretty pass. Somehow the youth of places like Marmora, not to mention Belleville and communities all around, must try to channel their energies into more responsible and productive activities. Parents and community authorities must also devote themselves to remedying the situation. If they fail, we may expect more of the same — and ultimately an increasingly irresponsible society.

Letters to Editor

Letters to The Editor continue to flow into this office in ever-increasing numbers and this is encouraging. However, we draw the attention of readers once again to the notice which appears on this page most days, requesting that letters be confined to no more than 500 words. In many cases recently letters have exceeded this limit.

Letters are also subject to editing, particularly when they are excessively long, or when they contravene the bounds of good taste. We are not against free speech, but there must be limits. We are asked to remember there is a law of libel. For this reason too we cannot accept the suggestion of a reader that the newspaper is not legally responsible for statements made in the course of letters that are published. It may be news to him, but we are indeed responsible for them. An earlier letter from this gentleman was edited — not to weaken it, as he claims, but because of its extreme length.

Nevertheless, there are times, as we have pointed out, when letters may be edited or withheld because they could be construed as libellous. There are times also when the writing or construction of a letter is so unclear as to be considered unsuitable for publication. One final reminder: letters should be written on one side of the page only and must bear the sender's signature whether or not a pseudonym or pen-name is desired.

While He Has Some Blind Spots...

Prime Minister Trudeau Has A Way with Children

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There was a group of some 100 underprivileged youngsters from the Maritimes here the other day making a tour of the National Capital.

They met the Prime Minister.

And they made it gaspingly, oohing — and — ahhing-ly with their sighs of adulation and screams of admiration — among the very young, the old Trudeaumania still works its magic.

Watch him with the kids . . . he does it so well . . . it is really a thing of beauty.

The kids had been waiting for him a good hour in the Railway Committee Room of the House of Commons when he swung in with his aides after undergoing his daily cross-examination by the Opposition in the Daily Question Period.

The youngsters, many of them shy, hands clutched in excitement to their mouths, waited in silent respect — or was it awe — as he entered, strode to a floor microphone, smiled and said a soft "hello."

Then he beckoned them with an embracing sweep of his arms and they swarmed around him, grasping, clutching, even hugging him.

And he hugged them back.

But it was the look on his face . . . a look of pure ecstasy . . . and a delight to see.

And as you watched the magic pass between the kids and the Prime Minister, you said to one of his aides, "he really finds this a joy, or he is the best damn actor on and off the stage".

But then, after being swept away emotionally for a moment, you remember that this is just one flashing refraction in the prism of the Prime Minister's character.

And you know there are darker facets.

For outrageous is the word an increasing number of people in and out of Parliament are using.

But for the moment, think most of all about Mr. Goyer.

Because what Mr. Goyer has been doing involves children, among a great many other people.

For four years, confesses Mr. Goyer, dangerous sexual offenders, including child molesters, have been getting temporary leaves, sort of weekend passes from prison.

Now one of these "dangerous sexual offenders" — and that is Mr. Goyer's term for them — has been charged with the rape killing of the seven-year-old daughter of a prison guard.

Mr. Goyer has been doing some other almost incredible things.

Like allowing holidays from prison for all sorts of criminals with a generality exceeding even that of the National Parole Board.

And not being the least embarrassed, but rather defiant, that such a murderer as convicted wife-killer Yves Geoffroy, given holiday leave, should get off to Spain in an unsuccessful effort to make the vacation permanent.

Like letting convicts off the hook of repayment for the multi-thousands of dollars damage they have done and continue doing in their sitdowns, hunger strikes and rampages of destruction.

And perhaps most outrageous of all, boasting that the welfare of criminals comes before the protection of society.

But Mr. Trudeau is Prime Minister — and the boss — and goes along with it all.

Welfare Minister Munro, legislating headlong for the "Hand-out State," glories, shouting hoarsely and almost hysterically that the middle income taxpayer is going to have to pay ever heavier taxes to wipe out poverty.

It is Mr. Munro's "new economics" for if he and his Prime Minister make it work, everyone will be wealthy poor without lifting a hand except to take the handout — will become millionaires.

Then there is Mr. Mackasey and his universal unemployment insurance and his rolling out the welcome mat for thousands of illegal immigrants . . . State Secretary Pelletier and his force-feeding of bilingualism . . . and Mr. Sharp, socking it to the Americans for underground nuclear testing while tsk-tsking the French for atmospheric tests and rationalizing every affront of Ottawa by Paris.

And they are all the Prime Minister's men.

He could fire them . . . but.

"Listen — I thought I didn't hear a shot!"

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 13, 1952

A 32-foot yacht, the "Lady Minta" owned by Mr. Bourne of Toronto, is resting on the bottom of Bradley Bay following a mishap in the waters of the Trent, about 6 miles south of Campbellford. The vessel is believed to have strayed from the channel and struck a submerged cement pier, causing it to take water.

Bedesworth branch of the Women's Institute is again doing its share in the Ontario jam-making enterprise to prepare and pack jam for use of civilian victims of war in Britain. With the jam-making season only nicely started, this group of war workers in the Bedesworth district have already packed four dozen four-pound cans of strawberry jam and two dozen of the same type of containers of raspberry jam. Work is under way at the Brickman canning factory in Bedesworth and throughout the entire season.

They expect at least to equal their last year's contribution of over 2,600 lbs.

They expect at least to equal their last year's contribution of over 2,600 lbs.

Red Tape Holds Up Delivery

Napanee Beaver

There is a reference in our recent editorial "Old World Service" which related how a Napanee industrialist had received such prompt attention from a West Germany firm which, after he ordered a replacement part.

It will be recalled that the order was promptly acknowledged within the hour and followed by a confirming cablegram five days later and the giving of the parcel number, flight number and time of arrival of the shipment. The shipment arrived in Canada about 36 hours after the order had been placed from Napanee.

At this point, however, Canada Customs came into the picture and everything stopped. At the post, the shipment reached Belleville but the customs documents did not arrive with it, so the customer had to wait. He waited until last Friday.

Last Thursday in the House of Commons, A. D. Alkenbrack, MP Frontenac-Lennox and Addington, brought the matter to the attention of Revenue Minister Hon. Herbert Gray. Why, Mr. Alkenbrack wanted to know "was the machinery part required for the tractor of Massey Brick and Tile Works limited from a firm in West Germany held by the customs office in Kingston more than two weeks after arrival at great cost and inconvenience to the owner and the delay thereof."

In reply, Mr. Gray said he had given instructions that the matter be looked into and that he would make a report as soon as he heard from his officials.

Mr. Alkenbrack prefaced his question with the comment that "in the period of inquiry "is an all too frequent case pertaining to the advent and lack of bureaucratic red tape on industrial enterprise".

France Faces A Return to Gaullist Stance

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Is France entering another Gaullist phase? And if so, how many Frenchmen want another dose of the fundamentalist, ultra-nationalist era of the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle?

One must wonder with the choice of hard-liner Pierre Messmer as the new French premier. Messmer, a confident and political intimate of the late Gen. de Gaulle from the 1940 collapse of the French, was his defence minister for 10 years.

He has replaced Jacques Chaban Delmas, who was viewed as the liberal for many of the ruling Gaullists. The choice was made, appreciably by Gaullist President Georges Pompidou.

"Too liberal" in the traditional Gaullist view, means for example, he allowed the state communications services, radio, TV and the press, to criticize more openly the government — and publications to ask in harsher terms if Gaullist puritanism was losing for France her reputation as a nation of romance, the sexy life and fun.

Pierre Messmer, who acts and sounds more like a Greek colonel in power than a French civilian, hints he will bring the state communications systems into line.

That means, purely and simply, these will stop criticizing a successor Gaullist regime. Other news has it that Admiral Philippe de Gaulle, 50, a dead-ringer in appearance for his father at that age, could emerge as a second de Gaulle seeking power.

He is a thin-lipped, dour, professional sailor lacking in indulgence like his famous father, but with his single-minded view of the supremacy of a Gaullist France in the world.

Admiral de Gaulle decries any political ambition and pursues a naval career with determination and resolution, again very much like his father. But he has cut and dried ideas about France today and in the future, which surely must sound like a new authoritarianism to many Frenchmen.

Pity the poor French. Without strongmen, their elective parliamentary system disintegrates into warring splinter parties of the left and right — ending up in Popular Front regimes which also do not last. With strongmen, they itch for their traditional political independence set revel in la gloire — the glory — which leaders in the tradition of Napoleon III bring to them.

Who else but the great Charles de Gaulle could have reduced the French empire overseas — by making the deal which brought Algerian independence — while maintaining the image of mighty France? He did it through the counterweights of building a mainly self-contained military nuclear deterrent and mounting a global diplomatic role.

Catholic and traditional de Gaulle recognized Maoist China back in 1964, almost a decade before Canadian and United States politicians were able to smile benignly about their totalitarian achievements with Peking.

But France, vital to European security and a kingpin of the European Common Market, is sick domestically. Too many circuses, like Pacific nuclear tests and expensive military hardware. Not enough bread for the depressed French farmer, the resident urban worker, the millions of hopelessly housed Frenchmen.

Orthodoxy, Gaullist or otherwise, is something most Frenchmen can take only in small doses. Pierre Messmer as premier seems means another large dose of it.

How long will Frenchmen put up with de Gaulle's determined heirs?

Prison Escape

"Mug" shots of convicted criminals may be as unkind to their owners as passport pictures sometimes are to the law-abiding. Just the same, the picture of The Kingston Whig-Standard of the twelve men involved in the escape from Millhaven are unquestionably revealing. In a general sort of way they are indicative of the mentality of the inmates. These are pictures of men who in one way or another are a menace to society.

That so many made their escape at the one time is disturbing, and particularly for residents of the immediate area. Nor is it any credit to the prison authorities that the escape was made in a section of the surrounding wire that was known to be poorly lighted. Security at this point is to have been tightened, but clearly it did not come in time. It is now imperative that these men be returned to custody and steps taken to prevent a recurrence of this incident.

UIC and Manpower in New Co-operative Venture

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

Governments sometimes act in the strangest way. . . .

A few years ago it was decided to separate the functions and offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission from those of the Canada Manpower Centres. About the same time, a decision was made in Ottawa to close out many of the smaller UIC offices and consolidate them in a lesser number of larger centres.

This caused quite a bit of commotion at the time, and since, with protests that many people found it inconvenient to travel several miles to a UIC office and were unable to get any assistance in UIC matters from employees at Manpower centres. The complaints were offset to some extent by permitting UIC claimants to fill out and mail in forms in order to qualify for their weekly benefits.

Now, the government has announced what amounts to almost a reversal of that policy. Manpower and Immigration Minister Bryce Mackasey says there will now be a new co-operative venture between the UIC and Manpower whereby UIC personnel will be located in many Canada Manpower Centres across the country. In other areas, specially trained Manpower staff will handle enquiries and help UIC applicants complete claim and renewal forms.

Unemployment insurance claim kits and all-purpose inquiry forms will be available at all Manpower offices and telephone lines will be installed to a number of Manpower centres so claimants can make direct contact with the appropriate UIC office. In short, Mackasey declares, every Manpower centre will have facilities to assist unemployment insurance claimants.

"Why in heaven's name, did it take so long to reach such an obvious and sensible conclusion? Why weren't Manpower centres and UIC offices located together in the first place in view of the relationship of their functions?

Similar sort of things have happened with other government agencies. It wasn't many years ago that it was decided that the National Film Board should be centralized in one office in Montreal. Recently, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier announced that the Board has begun to decentralize its production and will be opening regional offices in Vancouver, the Prairies, the Maritimes, as well as Toronto.

There has been a considerable move on foot in the past few years to encourage farmers to rationalize their activities — in other words to acquire more land and to have bigger operators, thus reducing the total number of individually owned farms and the total number of farmers. Senator Orville Phillips of Prince Edward Island pointed out recently that some studies show there is a limit to how far this consolidation process can go before the benefits of bigness are lost.

On paper, the experts can prove that there is a lot to be said in terms of efficiency, of cost-cutting, if government services are centralized in a few key places. But the practical application of these theories often proves that the benefits are not as great as predicted. In addition, it is not always easy for the public and, sometimes in terms of straight political clout, the politicians decide that concentration and consolidation are not the kind of thing that is the most desirable goal.

When people pay heavy federal taxes they feel they have some right to quick, easy and inexpensive access to federal government services when they require them. Any government which sacrifices this reasonable request to the often false god of "efficiency" may find itself in some pretty deep trouble.

Tax Consultants Hired Not Law Firm Employees

TORONTO (CP) — Two tax consultants to the Senate committee on banking, trade and commerce who appeared June 14 as witnesses before the committee in September last year, Senator Salter Hayden has said.

Senator Hayden L-Ontario, committee chairman and a senior partner in the legal firm of McCarthy and McCarthy, said the two consultants are chartered accountants and senior partners in the accounting firm of Thorne, Gunn, Helliwell and Christenson and are not members of his legal firm.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported June 14 that the two men who had apeared, Albert Poissant and Charles Mitchell are members of McCarthy and McCarthy.

They were engaged by the committee last year to help with scrutiny of the extensive income tax changes, which became law Jan. 1, Senator Hayden said.

They were retained until December, when the committee presented its report, but were recalled in early June for ... de testimony in the committee's study of income tax changes contained in the government's May 8 budget, he said.

Last Wednesday, Senator David Croll L-Ontario in a statement to the committee accused Senator Hayden of pleading for special interests and improper and unethical conflict of interest.

Without naming any names, Senator Croll said: "... I consider it highly improper and unethical for two members of the chairman's law firm to appear before a committee as experts, to be appointed with the mantle of the prestige of the committee and the advantages that can flow from that."

Senator Hayden, supported by committee members, denied any impropriety.

Senator Croll's accusations were made in the presence of the two advisers at a meeting called to plan committee study of tax changes in the May 8 budget.

Last Oct. 7 the committee heard two partners from McCarthy and McCarthy testify as experts on the tax-change legislation. They were Arthur Scace and Stephen C. Smith.

Senator Hayden said their testimony was intended to get background information before proceeding to hear representation and receiving and considering briefs.

Prize Mare Killed in Crash

A prize winning 13-year-old mare owned by Mr. and Mrs. Keith Bamber of Foxboro was fatally injured Sunday when the trailer in which it was riding became detached from the car and crashed into a tree at Stirling.

The horse was being transported from the Hastings County Riders horse show at Stirling. A five-year-old colt riding in the same trailer escaped injury.

The mare was a much loved family pet and was about to be retired from competition.

Trencher Leaves Road Open

Drainage System First for Area

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — Ameliasburg township council has authorized an experimental road drainage which employs a trenchless system for installation of drainage tubing.

A pilot mile is being installed this week by Dale Cleave Construction Ltd. of Bloomfield on an Ameliasburg township road leading from Highway 14 to Centre Church.

Mr. Cleave said this is the first road in Prince Edward County to undergo repairs through the trenchless system.

Mr. Cleave noted that if the project now under way had been started two years ago the type of work being done would have required an open trench 22 inches wide.

Back filling would have been necessary and "quite a bit" of road bed would have been destroyed. With the new machine no back filling is needed traffic is permitted to move more freely at the construction site and the road bed is affected less.

The new road repair concept was described by Mr. Cleave as "economical" since it costs from $1500 to $2000 a mile. This figure in his estimation is much lower than the cost of replacing the road bed.

Mr. Cleave, who has specialized in land drainage since 1956 said the Ameliasburg township road he is now repairing became very soft in the spring because of the amount of water in the road bed.

Mr. Cleave who works in a area reaching from Newcastle to Brockville said he has never before repaired a township road with this new system.

Probe Pneumonia Death

Nursing Home Patients Often Hungry Is Claim

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — A nursing assistant told a coroner's jury Wednesday that a 21-year-old mentally retarded girl who died of pneumonia Jan. 22 was left lying on a cold floor without blankets two days earlier.

Marion Smith, formerly of Hamilton, died in Norfolk General Hospital. She had been a resident of Le Manoir Nursing Homes.

Irene Pursley, the nursing assistant, said that two days before the girl died, she saw her lying on the floor in the home's recreation room.

"She was wearing light clothing and the operator of the home, Mrs. Fred Nauss, said if she didn't get up she wouldn't get any supper.

"It was cold in the rec room and we wore winter coats down there once in a while.

"I noticed some white substance coming from her mouth and the cook said we should put her to bed.

"Mrs. Nauss slapped Marion on the legs three times and said she was lazy."

Mrs. Pursley said that she and Mrs. Nauss dragged the girl up the stairs and laid her down on the main floor near a door.

"I asked Mrs. Nauss if I could get her a pillow and blanket and she said it wasn't needed."

Mary Burns, a former employee at the home which has 30 residents, said she quit her job because she couldn't stand to see residents going to bed hungry and crying.

She said their suppers consisted of watered soup, a peanut butter sandwich, a glass of powdered milk and a half of a peach or pear.

She said that at one time Miss Smith was locked in a room with three other girls and they were covered in urine and human excrement.

On the subject of food, Mrs. Burns told the jury:

"We all had orders of instant dismissal if we took any food into them. I often did it (took in food)."

Stephen Lilie, an orderly at the home, testified that he once locked a resident into a closet because he was ordered to do so.

The inquest continues today.

McKeough Says Turner Request Far-fetched

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Wednesday federal Finance Minister John Turner's request for Ontario to stop or restrain borrowing inside the country is "just a little far-fetched."

Mr. Turner "to some extent has got to be kidding," Mr. McKeough said at a news conference.

The provincial treasurer said there is not enough money in the domestic market for all the corporate, municipal and provincial borrowing necessary, and a recent report by federal Revenue Minister Herb Gray made this clear.

The real problem, said Mr. McKeough, is that the province's capital-raising problems are linked to the sharing of tax revenues—a connection which Mr. Turner refuses to make.

The imbalance of tax sharing had placed Ontario in a definite position and necessitated borrowing outside the country.

This year the province and Ontario Hydro plan to borrow $800 million. So far the province has borrowed $100 million locally and Hydro has borrowed $100 million in the United States and $30 million in West Germany.

Mr. McKeough said he doubts the rest of the money needed can be borrowed in Canada without disturbing the market.

After the meeting among Mr. Turner, Mr. McKeough, Charles MacNaughton, chairman of the province's health board, provincial Health Minister Richard Potter and Robert Welch, provincial secretary for social development, the federal finance minister said he had received little satisfaction.

Hydro Union May Charge Policemen

TORONTO (CP) — Bill McCullough, grievance officer for Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, said Wednesday the union is considering laying charges against provincial police officers.

Wednesday, 50 police officers were on duty at the site but no incidents were reported.

Mr. McCullough said the charges being considered are police brutality and dangerous driving.

He said a union member was slapped in the face by a police officer and police cruisers drove at will through crowds of picketing union members.

All but 100 of the union's 11,500 members are on strike against the utility. Nearly 4,000 office workers left their jobs Wednesday, joining the more than 7,400 workers who were already out on strike.

A Hydro spokesman said there have been no serious problems.

Undiscouraged

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (Reuter) — A 28-year-old man jailed for six months on a charge of bigamy was seen talking to a woman who had taken a keen interest in his trial. When the prosecutor asked the man whether the woman was his first or second wife, he replied: "She is my girl-friend."

Strikers Charged

KITCHENER (CP) — A trial date of Oct. 25 was set Wednesday in Kitchener court for two men charged after earlier incidents at the strikebound Dare Foods Ltd. plant.

Gilbert Bailey, 25, was charged Tuesday with threatening the plant manager, and John Horne, 34, was charged Monday with assaulting a plant employee.

Sharp Is Invited To Pay China Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has received an official invitation to visit China, and while in Peking next month he may try to persuade the Chinese to stop their nuclear testing.

Mr. Sharp announced Wednesday that he plans to fly to Peking Aug. 16, apparently aboard an armed forces jet transport, at the invitation of Foreign Minister Chi Peng Fei.

In the Chinese capital he will officiate at the Aug. 21 opening of a big Canadian trade fair, where some 200 Canadian business firms will have exhibits.

He will also have talks with Mr. Chi and "I hope" with Premier Chou En-lai.

WEDDINGS

CRAIGEN — CHRISTIE

TWEED — The Church of the Nativity of Our Lord, Bloomblow was the scene of the recent wedding of Nancy Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Christie, Islington and Michael Harold Craigen, son of Mrs. Anthony Craigen, Tweed and the late Mr. Craigen. Rev. Father Shiels officiated at the ceremony assisted by Rev. Dr. East and Rev. Swayze. The soloist was Mack Bramley and Miss Margaret Park was the accompanist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a white antique satin gown enhanced with lace and shirred striped organza sleeves and bodice. Her four-tiered scalloped illusion veil was extended from a lace Juliet cap. The bridal bouquet consisted of talisman roses, baby's breath and white daisies.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Graeme Christie, the bride's sister wore a full-length gown of burnt orange self-striped polyester crepe. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Richard Woodfrey, sister of the bridegroom and Mrs. Kenneth McKenzie wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor. Each carried a nosegay of yellow daisies, talisman roses and golden 'mums. The Misses Susan and Heather Bromley were flower girls in full-length daisy - printed voile dresses and carrying miniature versions of the attendants' nosegays.

James Craigen, Oshawa was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Graeme Christie, Raymond LeSage and Gregory Hughes.

At the reception held at the Islington Golf Club, the bride's mother greeted the guests in a full-length gown of amber-colored silk linen. She wore a single orchid and gold accessories. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a full-length gown of pale green polyester crepe and a cape of yellow roses.

On leaving for a honeymoon in Ottawa and Montreal the bride donned a bronze wool double knit coat ensemble with matching tan accessories.

The couple will reside at 2 Tribunsham Place, Etobicoke.

FRENCH STRESSED

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP) — The Coquitlam school board says results of a recent survey show 85 per cent of parents whose children are enrolled in French programs at elementary schools approve of the program. However, only 62 per cent of the students felt it was important to learn the language.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD KEITH WEESE

Weese – Green

Rev. Canon R. B. Wright officiated at the June 24 wedding ceremony in Christ Church, Belleville of Wendy Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Green, Belleville and Donald Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Weese, Selby. Sharon Dudgeon was soloist while John Withers rendered organ music.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a traditional floor length gown of imported Nottingham lace over ivory satin. The fitted bodice of lace over satin featured a wide V neckline edged with a narrow satin collar, short scalloped sleeves and a drop waistline which was accented by a draped bustle of lace and satin. A Juliet cap of lace and satin framed her face and held in place a fingertip veil of illusion tulle. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, red roses interspersed with baby's breath.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Cathi Heidt, wore a floor length mauve flower sheer gown with contrasting lining. The bodice featured a low round neckline with short bell sleeves. A purple velvet ribbon accented the high waist and she wore a matching bow in her hair. She carried a basket of white daisies, white roses, white poms and ivy.

Roy Weese, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Garry Jackson and Glenn Green, brother of the bride.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at RR1, Napanee.

District Women's Institutes

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

RIVER VALLEY — The July 6 meeting of the River Valley Women's Institute was held at the centre with Mrs. Gerald Brooks as hostess. A total of 31 were in attendance including 14 4H Club girls.

The two 4H Clubs; Mount Pleasant and River Valley each displayed items from both of their projects.

The Sept. 1971 project was "Bedroom Accessories" and the May project was "Sportswear form Knits." The two leaders, Mrs. Gerald Brooks from River Valley and Mrs. Robert Hoard from Mount Pleasant gave brief messages.

Beverly Bush and Marilyn Williams of River Valley gave a commentary on selecting colors for the bedroom. Margaret Hoard, Linda Hoard, Joanne Hearns and Marlene Pashay showed a variety of cushions, covered lamp shades and other articles. Bryce White gave the commentary for sportswear for all seasons by the River Valley girls.

Linda Hoard of Mount Pleasant gave "Know your Knits". For the River Valley fashion parade, Wendy Hearns was the commentator. Nine girls took part and Mrs. Sharon Sager provided the music.

For the Mount Pleasant fashion parade, five girls displayed their costumes which they made. Commentator was Marlene Pashay and Miss Brenda Williams provided the music.

Guest speaker, Eugene Burrell, a local jeweller, was introduced by Mrs. Robert Hoard. Mr. Burrell showed a large assortment of china, glass and silverware. He gave a very interesting description of the various items and told of the origin of china.

At the close of his message, Mr. Burrell displayed an ash tray which he had fashioned from clay. Miss Susan Bush voiced thanks and presented Mr. Burrell with a small gift of remembrance. Mr. Burrell donated two gifts for the 4H Girls and the winners were Joanne Hearns and Sharon Lanigan.

Mrs. George Grills conducted the business meeting. The new fall 4H Club project will be "The Club Girl Entertains". Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave a report of the recent meeting for the GOLD salad plate luncheon and Mrs. Vernon Harry gave a financial report of the centre. The August 3 meeting will be held at 1.30 p.m. at the centre and the topic will be "Industries in Hastings County".

Mrs. Glenn Bush reported that 41 children are travelling by chartered bus to Belleville for swimming lessons. Public relations officer, Mrs. Percy MacMullen spoke of the special tribute to the late Mrs. James Haggerty, formerly of Napanee, and a former president of F.W.I.C. in a recent magazine publication. It was also noted that there is a memorial fund for Miss Elsie Zimmerly, one of the three women who founded the Associated Country Women of the World. She displayed her picture from a magazine.

Mrs. Roy Tucker, A.C.W.W. convener gave a message on one of the essays written for the triennial. Kenneth Hoard collected the pennies and Heather Hoard read the collection. Mrs. Roy Bush displayed the River Valley Tweedsmuir History Book.

Roy Weese, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Garry Jackson and Glenn Green, brother of the bride.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at RR1, Napanee.

Family Reunions

GOODFELLOW CLAN

ROSLIN — The annual goodfellow picnic was held on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Alford, Corbyville, on the attractive grounds, where picnic tables had been arranged along the bank of the Moira River.

Around 46 guests sat down to the dinner. Those coming the farthest were from Toronto.

The oldest person present was Mr. John A. Goodfellow of Thomasburg.

Contests and games were enjoyed during the afternoon.

People Apathetic Re Drug Abuse

By DORIS CLARK

Drug abuse: Why do we let it happen?

According to one social worker we could wipe out this menace but people are apathetic to do anything about it.

That part of the population which hears about the abuses second hand are not sufficiently aware. The ones who do use drugs use them rather than face up to the emotional blows that come with day-to-day living.

There are things being done about it. We have experts working in the Addiction and Research Foundations across the country. We have literature, magazine articles.

Yet we hear of young people ruining their lives with drugs; of fatalities brought he ignorant self-indulgent abuse of modern powerful chemicals.

Until every right-thinking individual starts making loud protests to ministers, newspapers, government representatives and any others in positions of leadership, we won't get very far. When they do, we will.

Dear Doris: Would you please tell me how one does with [illegible] At what stage does it become a mental problem?

Every little act or word comes under suspicion, or is twisted to suit the occasion. To try and discuss the problem is futile as they are always right and you are a liar. — Jealous Heart.

Dear Heart: It's not easy to cope with such a resentful emotion as jealousy. The less just accusations of a jealous person can hurt the very one he is seeking to hold.

How does it start? Right in childhood, often, are the seeds of insecurity laid which make a person doubt his ability to hold another person's loyalty.

Any one of us is likely to have a twinge of jealousy, some time; but with a fairly mature person such unhappiness are easily laughed off.

It becomes a mental problem when it comes every thought and action and makes life unbearable. Expert treatment is indicated.

Build up your jealous one's self-confidence. It will take patience and some high-gear ad selfless loving; with a reminder to yourself that this person is not really hating you but hating himself. Give him the self-confidence he has never had, and unreasoning jealousy will fade away.

Dear Doris: I don't understand them the whole d— species — Meri Bell.

Everytime Dad and I have an argument I hate them. But his nerves were wrecked in the war and now he has MS. He blows up at any little thing and then I can't hang onto my temper.

When I just zip my mouth I boil and churn inside. I think I'm going crack up. I'm 25 and handicapped. I am scared to get out and do something even though the Society for Crippled Children and Adults wants me to come and be vocationally assessed.

Mom says all men aren't like Dad, but there are times when I turn Tom's picture to the wall. Tom is my pen pal, and I have never met him. Doris, is it possible for a girl to find her "Mr. Right" through the mail? — Seeking.

Dear Seething: You sound like a volcano about to erupt. It is easier to stay home and seethe or to go where kind and expert consultants can help you into a happier life?

While you stay within your own four walls you foolishly judge all men by the only one you know. And you just kid yourself unfairly.

One psychiatrist says he spends half his time helping his patients to begin believing in their own worthwhileness. Accept the help of that wonderful Society.

"Mr. Right" can turn up from almost any place.. But get to know your pen pal personally before deciding he's the one.

Natural Resources Club Meets

TWEED — The first meeting of the Hastings County 4-H Natural Resources Club was held recently at Hastings Township hall in Ivanhoe.

A brief lecture was given by the leader on the meaning of natural resources and different segments of it. Through this, the members were given an insight into the purpose of the club.

Many topics were suggested for this year's agenda. The possibility for the continuation of last year's club project was discussed. This includes a cleanup of the Moira River Conservation area south of Plainfield for the placing of a picnic area.

Also, various trips to surrounding conservation areas are suggested. The Christmas tree industry, although not a necessity is a thriving business. It was suggested that a tour through a plantation be formed and a discussion with the owner. The leader has planned various lessons on sampling, this might include, percentage wise, the number of dead elm or maple wood for syrup in a given area.

Each member this year has a private project, will build a bird house for some endangered species, thereby discovering the possibilities of its extinction.

Thoroughly appreciated by all members is the leader, Mr. C. Winterbottom of Madoc who has volunteered his services to the club during the present year and any person wishing to join the club may contact Mr. Winterbottom, Madoc or Mr. Roy Pender at Stirling.

Annual Picnic Enjoyed

WESTMINSTER CHURCH

WHITE'S DISTRICT—About sixty-five men, women and children from Westminster United Church Sunday School, Sidney Township gathered at noon on Sunday at Little Lake for their annual picnic. All enjoyed lunch at the picnic tables under the trees.

There were candy scrambles for the Primary children and straight running races for all, with prizes for the winners. The most fun for all was the nail-pounding contest for the ladies and men because the ladies were winners each time. Another exciting race was the three - legged race when men, women and children competed. The winners were Kwain Grills and Laurie Hosking.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Does pregnancy 'suspend' a marriage?

FAR from it. The nine months needed for most pregnancies can become a period of enrichment for a husband and wife. Their experience enables them to face a basic phenomenon of life. "It (pregnancy)," say Dr. Arthur D. and Libby Lee Colman in "Pregnancy: The Psychological Experience" (McGraw-Hill), "should be as rewarding as it is challenging, for at the end, there is a new life, for the parents as well as for the child."

Is there any harm in just one drink?

NO, not if a person doesn't regard it as his "ritual" drink—something he simply must have to enjoy his lunch or dinner. Sometimes, though, an individual will be overstimulated by just one drink. His body chemistry at the moment he has his drink could cause him to be highly exhilarated. He may say, "What's the matter with feeling good?" The trouble can come when his mood swings the other way after the one drink wears off.

Can dieting help a person succeed?

POSSIBLY: If someone is really serious about sticking to a diet to lose weight, he will find many beneficial side-effects, including some that could help him achieve a goal he has set for himself. If it is a better job he wants, his boss may be impressed by the resolution he shows in keeping on his diet. The dieter will also gain self-confidence from the compliments his determination wins from his co-workers and associates.

Eggs Are Economical Source of Protein

Eggs are one of the most economical sources of protein, say food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food. One dozen large eggs weighs about 1½ pounds, providing high quality protein at a relatively low cost per pound.

Two eggs provide about ⅓ of an adult's daily requirement for protein. Three eggs or ten egg plus one ounce of other protein food contain as much protein as an average serving of meat. Main course omelets and souffles which combine eggs with cheese, fish, sausage or leftover ham are economical substitutes for meat.

Eggs are a compact source of other nutrients besides high quality protein. They contain all known vitamins except vitamin C, and are a good source of minerals, particularly iron and phosphorus. Most of the iron is found in the egg yolk. However, one egg white and one egg yolk contain approximately equal amounts of protein.

This nutrition comes at the expense of few calories. One medium egg contains only 80 calories. Eggs are good sources for the dieter, as few other foods provide as many nutrients for so few calories.

Food value of an egg does not depend on color of shell or grade. Grade B eggs are as high in nutrients as Grade A. Shell color is determined by breed of hen and does not affect quality or nutritive value.

Ann Landers

Don't Accept Rides with Strangers

Dear Ann Landers: I was told at least 2,000 times the very thing I'm going to tell others and I didn't listen because I always believed terrible things happen to other people. Not me. I'm talking about rape.

Two weeks ago I was hitchhiking, a practice I developed three years ago as a college freshman. It made better sense than waiting for the bus—I thought. For three years I hitchhiked and never ran into trouble —til a week ago Sunday when I was picked up by what appeared to be a pleasant, middle-aged fatherly type.

I had always heard that if a man tries something funny you should kick him where it will do the most good and run. Well, I didn't have a chance. This man seemed so nice and respectable. Suddenly he turned on to a back road which he described as a "shortcut." The next think I knew he was dragging me out of the car, ripping off my clothes and choking me. I realized the guy was crazy and a crazy person will kill if he runs into too much resistance. I figured I'd better not fight him.

An hour later I stumbled back on the main road, in shock, my face badly bruised, but lucky to be alive. Fortunately, a police car came by and picked me up.

I've made an appointment with a psychiatrist so I can talk out my horror story and get rid of the nightmares. The image of that man's face, those words, the curse they hurled me night and day.

One final word to every girl who reads this: If you are assaulted as I was, report it at once to the police. They will try to find the man and put him where he belongs, away from society. Rapists are sick people and they need help. I had heard that the police get their kicks from listening to the lewd details but I didn't get that impression from the police who questioned me. They were very kind and helpful, and they did everything possible to calm me and reduce my humiliation.

Please print my letter Ann. It took a lot of guts to write it and maybe somebody will listen. Thanks—Learned From Experience.

Dear Learned: Here it is and my thanks for writing it. The first moral of this story: girls, DON'T ACCEPT RIDES WITH STRANGERS

Dear Ann Landers: May I share something that came to me after several years of thinking and re-thinking concepts of love, sex, and why certain people seem to gravitate toward each other?

It's a fact that older men prefer younger women, perhaps to reassure themselves (and others) that they are still attractive and that age has not done them too much violence.

Another well known fact: Young men prefer older women. It's a relief to be free of the strain of the empty-headed and egocentric chick on the make.

Older women are less demanding and more understanding. Younger men respond to their warmth and maturity with gratitude. Strange as it may seem, I am not referring to sex exclusively, but to business relationships as well. I take a dim view of the theory that younger men like older women because they don't smell, they don't tell, and they are grateful as hell. Let's face it, older women are just nicer to be with. — Over Forty And Relaxed

Dear Over Forty: The reader mail, as a result of that column, made it abundantly clear that plenty of women told, yelled, and swelled after forty. Thanks for writing

Travelling Bicycle Team Stops Over in Marmora

MARMORA — A group of nine young people (15 to 23) calling themselves The Aimcycle Team, visited Marmora on the weekend and assisted Rev. David Gagnon in services at Marmora Pentecostal Church on Sunday.

Travelling on bicycles but accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Telford and their two children of Peterborough in a van, the young people are starting out on a tour which will take them eventually to Ottawa, with stops along the way at Madoc, Tweed, Smiths Falls, and other centres.

In addition to assisting with services these young Christian High School and University students are interested in meeting and talking with other young people in the communities where the Aimcycles will be stopping over. They conducted a rap session at Marmora Pentecostal Church on Saturday evening which was well attended. Musical accompaniment was provided by several members of the group on guitars and Mrs. Gagnon with the accordion.

Although the Aimcycles are self-sufficient in their travels the host church is asked to provide one meal a day for the group. With the assistance of members of Marmora Pentecostal Church, Mr. and Mrs. Beverly McCoy hosted the group for a noon meal at their cottage on Crowe River following the morning service.

New Class Of Worker Irks Union

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers is investigating legal procedures they hope will force the post office to negotiate creation of a new class of employees to operate new mail sorting machines.

While the new classification has not been inkluded in bargaining for a new contract—the old one expired in March—the issue is hanging over talks between postal unions and the federal government.

The government plans to install mail sorting machines in 15 major centres and wants to pay operators less than manual mail sorters now receive.

Although the government has promised that no employees would lose jobs, union leaders see the new class of employees as perhaps a first step in a series of mechanization moves that could lower the basic wages of postal employees.

The unions want to negotiate creation of the jobs, but government officials reject the idea.

The new classification is a matter for consultation only, a government official said. To the unions, consultation means being presented with a take-it-or-leave-it situation.

James McCall, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Wednesday that the union was investigating legal means of getting the government to discuss the classification. He would not elaborate.

While bargaining on the non-monetary terms of a new contract is progressing, he said the big issue—introduction of the machines and the new class of employees—was being left out.

Mr. McCall said the postal workers have never before been faced with such a grave issue.

BRANTFORD (CP) — A one-year contract providing wage increases averaging eight per cent for 1972 was signed Wednesday by the Board of Police Commissioners and the Brantford Police Association.

Conservationists Happy

Chretien Rejects Lake Louise Resort

CALGARY (CP) — Jean Chretien found the good side of conservationists Wednesday when the northern development minister announced the government's rejection of the $30-million village Lake Louise development proposal in Banff National Park.

The decision was a "landmark, courageous," said Gavin Henderson of Toronto, executive director of the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada.

"I frankly did not expect this. Considering the time, effort and money the developer had spent . . . many politicians would have been strongly tempted to compromise."

Mr. Chretien deserves tremendous praise."

"I am very pleased that the government is at last recognizing the need for proper planning and environmental studies. Hopefully, no further development will take place until they're fully aware of all the implications."

Grant McNabb of Calgary, president of the Alberta Wilderness Association, said he was "extremely gratified" with the method by which the decision was taken.

"We hope the same type of rational reasoning will prevail when other park development plans come along."

While the rejection created jubilation among conservationists, backers of the project were obviously dejected.

Struan Robertson of Toronto, chairman of the development's board of directors, said in a news release he was "exceedingly disappointed," adding he had no further comment until the minister's statement was studied carefully.

John Hopwood of Calgary, secretary of the board, said he suspected the proposal would be rejected when the majority of briefs at public hearings here in March came out against the plan.

He added he was more certain it would be rejected when the Alberta government later took a negative stand. The announcement Wednesday was only "formal interment" of the project.

At a news conference Mr. Chretien said, "It is our judgment that the project as planned is too large and can result in undue concentration of visitors and residents in the area."

While the developers submitted several modifications of the plans, "the further restraints I would have imposed upon the size, location, timing and other aspects of the project made it necessary for me to reject the entire project."

However, he said the problem of accommodating 20,000 visitors a day in the summer months at Lake Louise remains, and planning will proceed to meet essential needs "through controlled development on the valley floor."

Fischer Loses Now Objects To TV Cameras

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (Reuter) — Bobby Fischer, American challenger for the world chess title, is demanding the removal of all television cameras from the playing hall before continuing the championship series against Russia's Boris Spassky in the second game today.

World Chess Federation sources said this latest demand from the 29-year-old Fischer represented a clear threat to the continuation of the match as it directly contravened the Amsterdam agreement under which the 24-game series is being played.

Fischer lost the opening game of the match Wednesday night after walking out for 30 minutes in protest against what he considered to be the distracting presence of television cameras set up at the back of the stage to cover the event.

The cameras were withdrawn.

Tire Levy May Mean Reprisals

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has warned the United States Treasury that special U.S. duties on tires made by Michelin Tires Manufacturing Co. of Canada Ltd. could eventually lead to special duties being placed on U.S. products.

The warning was part of an official submission given Wednesday to the treasury in Washington, which is considering a request by the U.S. Rubber Manufacturers Association that special duties be placed on Michelin tires.

The Canadian government says the case could have a great effect on its programs of general assistance to industry and grants to businesses that locate in depressed areas.

The U.S. rubber manufacturers based their request on U.S. legislation that says countervailing duties must be imposed when foreign countries give manufacturers a "bounty" for exports. The rubber manufacturers say Canadian government assistance to Michelin amounts to an export bounty.

The Canadian submission rejects that argument, adding that several U.S. tire manufacturers have received assistance from the U.S. government. If special U.S. duties were imposed on products from foreign firms receiving similar assistance, the submission warns, political pressures could force other countries to impose similar duties on U.S. products.

One in Three Grads Jobless

TORONTO (CP) — Only an estimated 63 per cent of last spring's 2,611 graduates of colleges of education in Ontario have obtained jobs for this fall's school term, and most provincial school boards already have completed hiring.

Assistant registrar Gerald Whyte of the University of Toronto's College of Education said Wednesday that about 60 per cent of the college's 1,165 spring graduates have found positions compared with 80 per cent at the same time in 1971.

The situation is similar elsewhere in the province.

At Althouse College in London, 74 per cent of 724 graduates seeking work now have jobs, down from 90 per cent last year.

Four hundred of the 588 graduates of McArthur College in Kingston have obtained teaching jobs, a percentage of about 68 compared with last year's 88 per cent.

Up to 800 teacher training graduates may not find jobs by the time school reopens in September, although some—about 10 graduates each from Althouse and McArthur—have accepted teaching jobs in Australia and more than 100 others are not seeking classroom positions.

Crossfire Catches Teachers

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Teachers are caught in a crossfire between right- and left-wing elements of society, says the secretary-general of the Canadian Teachers Federation.

Norman Goble, speaking Tuesday at the federation's annual meeting, told 150 delegates that teachers will have to develop a national "professional consensus" to defend their principles of education.

Schools are attacked on grounds they are designed to train children to the needs of a specific economic and social system which is itself under attack, and from other quarters where are charges schools do not provide such training with sufficient conviction or efficiency.

"Teachers, on the other hand, tend to believe that there are educational imperatives related to the human growth process, serving no specific political or economic ends, but aimed at developing the capacity for rational and autonomous decision-making and the will to use that capacity."

Councils, Planning Boards Must Hear Project Foes

BRAMPTON (CP) — The Ontario Divisional Court, in which may be a precedent-setting decision, has ruled that local councils and planning boards must provide a forum for objections against any development that might affect citizens of a municipality.

The 35-page decision resulted from an appeal by several Brampton residents who objected to the procedure the town followed in approving a 451 unit residential development.

The court, part of the Ontario Supreme Court, ruled that Brampton was under an obligation to give citizens affected by the proposed development an opportunity to raise objections before the final bylaws were passed and that this was not done.

The decision was released Wednesday by town solicitor Gerald Marsden who said it would set a precedent throughout the province.

Chief Justice Dalton Wells and Mr. Justice J. F. Donnelly concurred in the decision. The only dissenting vote was from Mr. Justice Campbell Grant, who said proper procedures were followed according to the Planning Act.

He pointed out that under the Planning Act there is no necessity for a municipality to hold public meetings on such a development as proposed in Brampton.

More than a year ago, the council passed a bylaw approving a zoning change to permit Widdicombe Developments of Brampton to build three apartment towers, from 15 to 25 stories, in an entire downtown block.

The Ontario Municipal Board opened its hearing last April but residents indicated then they would start proceedings over the legality of the hearing, which was then adjourned.

The town or the developer have not indicated whether they will appeal the decision to the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Players Picked

Team Canada to Play Without The Jet

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Harry Sinden will be one left-winger short—Bobby Hull—when he opens Team Canada's Toronto training camp Aug. 13 to prepare for an eight-game series against the Russian national hockey team.

The list of 35 invited players announced by Sinden Wednesday includes Hull, for 15 years one of the National Hockey League's prime gate attractions. Two weeks ago, the Golden Jet became a Winnipeg Jet when he left Chicago Black Hawks to sign as playing coach with the new entry in the fledgling World Hockey Association.

Douglas Fisher, chairman of the executive committee of Hockey Canada, said the organization just wasn't thinking of other leagues—like the World Hockey Association—when it picked its international team.

And Hull's invitation from Team Canada specified that all players must have signed NHL contracts when they report to the training camp.

Fisher said Sinden's invitation to Hull had already gone out when the Golden Jet signed with the Jets.

Hockey Canada, the organization of government, business and hockey interests that set up the team, had included the requirement that players sign their NHL contracts in its agreement with the NHL last April. That was when the WHA's prospects were nebulous.

At the time, Hockey Canada was thinking in terms of a team picked solely from NHL rosters, Fisher explained.

"No consideration was given to the possibility that players would be chosen from other leagues, amateur or professional."

Other invited players have not yet come to terms with their NHL employers and some were reported considering WHA offers but Hull was the only one who had signed a contract with the rival league.

The remainder of Sinden's lineup:

Goal—Gerry Cheevers, Boston Bruins; Ken Dryden, Montreal Canadiens; Tony Esposito, Chicago.

KEN DRYDEN

Sinden said agreement has not yet been reached with the Russians as to the actual number of players to be used in the series, which opens Sept. 2. He planned to go to Moscow with other team officials shortly to settle the matter and iron out other details.

At a news conference at which the team was announced, the former Boston coach refused to be drawn into discussion about players who were not invited.

He said only that an unnamed goaltender had been invited but could not join the team because of an injury problem.

The coach added that he was extremely happy with his lineup and that it might be augmented later by five of this year's top junior draft choices if arrangements could be made with their NHL clubs.

Fisher said Hockey Canada has no intention of asking the NHL to waive its requirement that all players must have signed NHL contracts in Hull's case.

"We have the agreement," he said. "I don't quarrel with it. You don't turn around and kick the stuffing out of people who have produced for you."

Fisher said the team was put together for the specific purpose of playing a single series and should not be considered as an official Canadian national team.

Cheevers Ready To Jump

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe reports that goalie Gerry Cheevers of the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins is expected to sign a multi-year contract with the Cleveland franchise of the World Hockey Association.

The paper, in Wednesday and today's editions, said Cheevers, 31, who put together an unbeaten streak of 32 games this past season, has rejected a Bruins' estimated offer of $70,000 for the Cleveland offer said to be worth about a half-million dollars. He is expected to sign by the end of the week, the paper said.

Cheevers was reportedly in Toronto Wednesday for the formal announcement that he will play for the National Hockey League's All Star team in a series with the Soviet Union this fall. He was unavailable for comment.

Cheevers would be the third Bruin to leave the NHL for the WHA. John McKenzie has become player-coach of the Philadelphia Blazers. Defencemen Ron Plumb has joined McKenzie in Philadelphia.

Disappointed Jet Star Says NHL Rule Unfair

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bobby Hull, the Golden Jet of the National Hockey League for 15 years, said Wednesday it will not be Canada versus Russia in the upcoming exhibition series, but, rather, the NHL versus the Russians.

Hull, his voice strained with emotion after being told he will not be allowed to participate in the series unless he signs an NHL contract, said:

"Well then, it's the NHL against the Russians, not Canada . . . that's what it amounts to.

"I'm not supposed to be hockey Canada, that's the name of the game. The name of the team is Team Canada isn't it?

"They'll have to change the name to Hockey NHL."

Hull was one of 35 players named Wednesday by Team Canada coach Harry Sinden to participate in the team's training camp. However, one of the stipulations to playing is that the player must have signed an NHL contract before the training camp opens Aug. 13.

Team Canada is the Hockey Canada-sponsored squad which meets the Russian National team in an eight game exhibition series Sept. 2-28.

Hull had said last month, when he signed a 10-year, $2.75-million contract with Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, that he wanted to play for the team against the Russians.

He said Wednesday there would not have been any conflict with the Jets' training camp as thought earlier.

"Harry Sinden and I talked about it before and I asked him about this. He said, 'I'm picking the team and I'll have the players that I want on my team.'

"So I guess they've changed his mind too . . . but I think Harry Sinden has got more guts than that," Hull commented.

Ben Hatskin, owner of the Jets, was disappointed by the decision of Hockey Canada. He had made it known last month that he wanted Hull on the team and would be more than willing to allow his newly-acquired super-star to participate.

"It's understood this is supposed to be the best professional players in Canada," Hatskin said, adding that Hull is definitely one of the best in the world.

"Is this a Canadian team or an NHL team? I think Canada is bigger than both the NHL and the WHA."

The 33-year-old Hull, second-highest goal scorer in the history of the NHL, said the stipulation that players must have signed NHL contracts was a retaliatory move by the NHL against the WHA.

"Because the WHA has given more players the opportunity to play they're to be blacklisted.

The only man ever to score 50 goals or more in five separate seasons, Hull said the action to keep him from representing Canada "sounds like the NHL . . . typical pettiness on their part.

Bobby Hull

Pascoes Keep Melrose in Top Spot

If the Reserve sends out invitations to their South Hastings Softball league games, they'll remember to leave the Pascoe boys off their list.

Wayne, Larry and Harold were all instrumental in leading Melrose to a 5-3 win over the Reserve in one half of last night's league schedule. Plane's shutout Latta 4-0 behind the three hit pitching of Larry Adams in the other game.

Hyrold Pascoe pitched the Melrose win allowing nine hits and fanning seven. Larry doubled and Wayne singled twice in the winners' eight hit surge. Rick Meagher supplied the big blast smashing a home run. Glenn McMehan tripled and Reg Abrams stroked two doubled as Melrose closed in on first place.

Adams struck out four and walked only two in picking up the win for Plane. Howard Meeks supplied the winning run with a homer. John Hill gave up six hits on the Latta mound. He struck out four and showed perfect control.

Local Rider Hits Road

Darcy rode off with the B individual over-all championship title and leads a four member team to the Canadian championships in Langley B.C. In the first week of August.

Darcy rides out of the Highlands of Hastings Pony Club and riding upon last Octave she captured firsts in stadium jumping and cross country, a third in dressage and a second in stable management to easily take the overall title.

Besides the Canadian championships a trip to the world championships in Japan is at stake for Darcy, in this her first year of provincial competition.

Two other girls out of the Hastings Club brought home ribbons from the provincial wide competition. Ruth Riley took first in the C division stadium jumping and Sonya Carson picked up two fifth place positions.

Malcolm Boys Let Out Bats

Malcolm Brothers left little doubt as to their hitting prowess in a Belleville Minor Softball tyke contest last night and United Realty can vouch for that.

Malcolm's bombed the Redmens 20-12 with Steve Garvin connecting for a triple, double and three singles. Greg Denard a homer and four singles and Rob Caverly two triples and a single.

Parsons Won't Be Kept Down

It's hard to keep a good team down and Parsons proved it last night with a 3-1 victory over Belleville United in a Bay of Quinte Soccer contest.

United had handed the Parsons their first loss of the season in last weeks Charity Cup play and jumped off to a quick 1-0 lead last night before Parsons got untracked and netted three first half goals to insure the win.

Nickie Del Grosso opened the scoring for United early in the first half but it was only time they broke through the Parson defense. John Thompson put Parsons on top to stay with a pair of goals minutes apart and Mark Mctus wrapped the game up in the dying seconds of the half.

Trenton Pair Shoot Same

One round of golf may be too little to predict the future but after yesterday's opening round of the Ontario Amateur Golf Championships a pair of Trenton golfers showed they would be in the thick of things.

Arnie Mathus, playing out of the CFB golf course, fired a 75 and Trenton product Jeff Howard came up with an identical 75 to stay in the running for the championship.

They trail leader Stu Hamilton who toured the tough 6,411 yard Toronto Golf Club in a two-under-par 68.

The winner of the tournament will qualify for the Ontario Willingdon Cup team.

Canucks Deal Blank

They may be the Canucks from Station Square but they rounded off all the rough edges Wednesday night in recording a 14-3 Belleville Minor Soccer atom win over the Kinsmen.

Dan Hounslow and Todd Crawford each picked up a pair of goals for the winners.

Due to last year's popularity summer is being repeated again this year.

Boot Beats Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Gerry Organ kicked an 18-yard field goal with three minutes to go in the final quarter to give Ottawa Rough Riders a 19-16 win over Saskatchewan Roughriders Wednesday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Organ's field goal gave Ottawa its second pre-season victory. Earlier they defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats 22-21.

Organ, playing his second year with the Riders, was set up for the winning points after Ottawa defensive back Rod Woodward intercepted a Ron Lancaster pass on the Saskatchewan 25-yard line.

The opening score of the game was unusual and unexpected as George Reed, the veteran plunging fullback of Saskatchewan, was pulled down behind his own goal line by Ottawa rookie Charlie Brandon with an assist from Dan Denver. The resulting safety gave the Rough Riders two points.

Terry Wellesley ran for the two-yard touchdown and Billy Cooper combined with Rick Cassata in the 43-yard pass-and-run score for Ottawa. Organ converted both.

Steve Mohekar caught a 14-yard pass from Lancaster for the first Saskatchewan touchdown and George Reed got their second on a one-yard run. Jack Abendschan kicked a 22-yard field goal and converted Mohner's touchdown to complete Saskatchewan scoring before 17,136 fans.

The loss was the second of the pre-season schedule for the Roughriders. They lost 31-23 earlier to British Columbia Lions.

Saskatchewan had a total of offence of 276 yards—95 on the ground and 198 in the air. Ottawa rushed 101 yards and passed for 158 for a game total of 259.

Lancaster completed 19 of 31 pass attempts for 196 yards and Bubba Wyche clicked on three of seven for 32 yards.

Cassata nailed down the starting quarterback job for Ottawa, completing nine of 20 throws for 158 yards. Rookie Harry Theofiledes couldn't find a receiver in five throws.

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — The International Lawn Tennis Federation approved Wednesday a truce with top professional stars which will again permit open competition.

Under the agreement, members of Lamar Hunts World Championship Tennis troupe, including Rod Laver, John Newcombe and Arthur Ashe, will be eligible to compete in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y., Aug. 31-Sept. 10.

The WCT pros, who include 30 of the top tournament players in the world, did not play at Wimbledon under a boycott that arose from a disagreement over purse money with the ILTF.

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Peter Tupling, a tall young Englishman whose golfing career is studded with frustration and obscurity, took a highly casual attitude about his stunning upset lead after the first round of the British Open.

"I haven't a chance in the world," Tupling said after carving out a 68 Wednesday, a three-under-par total that left the world's best shot-makers straggling behind.

Jack Nicklaus, 32 year old American who is favored to win his third British Open, and four other players were two strokes behind Tupper.

Wood's Favorite Dancing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wilbur Wood is going places —and his knuckleball is going someplace else.

"I don't know myself where it's going," said the Chicago White Sox lefthander after winning his 13th game Wednesday night, a 5-4 victory over Cleveland Indians.

Wood had his favorite pitch dancing in the dark in the first inning, successfully striking out Cleveland hitters. But then the Indians discovered its whereabouts in the second, scoring three runs.

"After the first inning, I got back to the dugout and said to my catcher, Tom Egan:

"Demo — really got it tonight," said Wood: "But then you saw what happened in the second inning.

"That's what I mean—when you throw a knuckler, you never know what to expect."

Wood literally held on by his fingertips, giving up just one run the rest of the way while his mates tallied once in the fourth and once more in the ninth on Carlos May's tie-breaking single to pull it out.

In the other American League games, Detroit Tigers downed Texas Rangers 3-1; Kansas City Royals defeated Baltimore Orioles 11-4 in 10 innings; Boston Red Sox trimmed Oakland Athletics 7-6; New York Yankees clouted California Angels 8-0 and Minnesota Twins ripped Milwaukee Brewers 7-1.

Wednesday night's performance wasn't one of Wood's better ones. The White Sox southpaw lost a 3-0 lead and then a 4-3 lead when the Indians came back to tie the game in the second and fifth innings.

Rookie Tony Muser led off the Chicago ninth with a single and took second on a sacrifice bunt off Ray Lamb. Tommy Hilgendorf replaced Lamb on the mound and was greeted by May's single to centre that made a winner out of Wood. The White Sox ace finished with a nine hitter.

Rookie Bill Slayback scattered eight hits while his Detroit mates took advantage of Texas' errors for a pair of unearned runs en route to victory over the Rangers.

Cookie Rojas' grand slam homer highlighted a seven-run rally in the fifth inning that helped Kansas City hand Baltimore its sixth loss in the last seven games.

The Royals first, broke a 4-4 tie when Baltimore reliever Eddie Watt forced in a run by hitting Lou Piniella with the bases loaded. John Mayberry knocked in the second run of the rally with a sacrifice fly.

Carlton Fisk drove in two runs, one with a seventh-inning homer that provided the margin of victory, to give Boston its 10th victory in 12 games.

Fisk's 12th homer in the seventh gave the Red Sox the run they needed to withstand Dave Duncan's two-run homer in the Oakland ninth.

Mel Stottlemyre continued his mastery over California, shutting out the Angels for the third straight time this year with a seven-hitter. The victory lifted Stottlemyre's career advantage over California to a lopsided 17-3 mark.

The Yankee righthander helped himself at bat, driving in two runs with a single as the Yankees scored four of their runs in the second inning to beat Lloyd Allen.

Bert Blyleven, who had pitched without a run from his Minnesota team-mates for 25 straight innings, rode the fifth-inning home run barrage of Rick Renick, Bob Darnell and Eric Soderholm past Milwaukee. Coasting on the Twins' biggest inning of the season—six runs—Blyleven won his ninth game against 10 losses.

Bench Belts Two For Granny

Johnny Bench's grandparents were in the Riverfront Stadium stands in Cincinnati Wednesday night when the Reds collided with Pittsburgh Pirates in the battle of National League division leaders.

"Grandma wanted a couple of home runs," Bench commented matter-of-factly after he'd given them just that: his 23rd and 24th round-trippers of the baseball season to power the Reds to a 6-3 victory over the Pirates.

In other National League games, New York Mets shut out San Francisco Giants 4-0, Los Angeles Dodgers hammered Philadelphia Phillies 9-5, St. Louis Cardinals blanked Atlanta Braves 7-0, Houston Astros outslugged Chicago Cubs 10-6 and San Diego Padres edged Montreal Expos 6-5.

Grandma and grandpa weren't the only people in the stands that Bench had on his mind. Lou Fonseca, his batting instructor, was also on hand "to point out any of my mistakes," Bench explained.

And how, pray tell, could the Cincinnati slugger, batting a solid .291 with 24 homers and 68 runs batted in—both tops in the majors—possibly be making mistakes?

"Oh, we had some kind of a signal," Bench said, "where I'd look over at Lou and he'd indicate to me any mistakes I was making.

"Yeah, he pointed out a couple of things," he added. But he wouldn't say what he was doing wrong. Nobody else has been able to figure that out either.

Boxing Club Revival Proposed for Belleville

The manly art of self defence may be alive and well in Belleville this season. The sport of boxing, dormant in this city for at least 10 years, could be revived in the form of the Belleville Boxing Club.

Former amateur boxer Terry Bennett is attempting to lay the groundwork for a boxing club in the Belleville area. "I know that a lot of parents might object to the violence, but it can be mainly a conditioning thing. There's nothing like the feeling of a few good workouts to put you in shape." Right now the fledgling club is looking for aid in almost any department — sponsorship, training, coaching, participation or ring jan-itors. They will be attempting to gauge the amount of enthusiasm for such a venture in the Belleville area before laying the solid groundwork of a club.

"We're going to call a meeting for next Wednesday in the old Legion building to find out just how many people in the city are interested in boxing," advised Terry, "after that, the Belleville Yardmen may be interested in helping us get the project off the ground."

The boxing club hopes to procure the services of the old Canadian Legion building to erect a training base for punching bags, bicycles and weight equipment. After that, the group hopes to approach the arena commission concerning the likelihood of using ring facilities at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

"We'd like to help boxers of any age," related Bennett, himself an amateur pugilist in Belleville, Toronto and Renfrew for two years, "we're certainly not going to make any money, we'd just like to lay the groundwork for a successful club. There's nothing like that around here."

The team would train five nights a week, pointing towards monthly cards which could begin next November. They plan to approach prominent sports figures such as former Legion sports director Jerry Downs, former boxer Jack Lucas

The first organizational meeting will be held next Wednesday in the old Legion building on Pinnacle Street and will be open to anyone wishing to join the club in any capacity.

Sea Cadets Sailing High

The Sea Cadet midgets are floating high after sinking the Sun Luck juveniles 5-2 in a Belleville Minor Lacrosse game last night.

Bill Donald and John Murphy each had two goals for the Cadets. Russ McPeak added the single score. Gabe Krekk and Bob Cook replied for the Gardens.

A hat-trick performance by Gord Mair paced A & D Esso to a 5-4 win over the Belleville Auto Dealers in another midget contest. Rick Barbeau hall a pair of goals in a losing effort.

The Police Association had little trouble in ticketing the Y's Men with a 9-2 stomping in the lone peewee contest played. Gerry Healey had four goals and Larry Inwood two for the winners. John Belanger and Peter Poole scored the Y's goals.

Tough Climb

It may take a step ladder now for Tod Bennett to deliver a solid sock to the jaw of fatter Terry, but through the efforts of the Belleville Boxing Club, the climb just may be shortened. Terry, a former amateur boxer is attempting to start a boxing club in this city to give local youngsters the right kind of start in the sport. An organizational meeting for the club is planned for next Wednesday.

Intelligencer, Foley's Grab Key Industrial Wins

The Intelligencer and Foley's both picked up important wins in last night's Industrial Softball League action but while Foley's were doing it the easy way, the Intell almost squandered theirs.

Foley's banged out 24 hits in blasting Morch's 15-6 and keeping their division A pennant aspirations alive.

Every man in the lineup got into the hitting act for Foleys as they moved within two points of second place Belleville Lenders. Glynn Reynolds paced the winners with four singles. Doug Mason, Bob Wannamaker, Georgy Fusco, Don Smith and Bruce Roth each has three safeties.

Smith hurled the win allowing 10 hits and gaining three.

Bob Bogle and Grand Parks had three hits apiece for Morch's. Don Fobert took the loss on the Morch mound.

The Intell watched an 8-2 lead slowly dwindle but hung on for an 8-6 win over the Utilities.

Ron Culloden and Gerry Genereaux were the men of the hour for the division leading Printers as Culloden smashed a three-run homer and a double and Genereaux fanned nine in preserving the winners 11th victory of the season.

Genereaux also tripled in his own cause with Bob Brooks adding a double and Brian Amaron chipping in two singles.

Wilson Bulpit threw four innings of two-hit shutout ball in relief for the Utilities. He fanned five and walked only one. Brian Lebow allowed all the Intell runs in his starting role. Larry Mason doubled twice for the loser.

Stables Upset Junior Farmers

The Junior Farmers realized the trials of being in first place when Wannamaker and Belly Stables went gunning for them last night and came up with a convincing 7-2 victory.

Earl Colton fired a three hitter for the Stables fanning seven and walking four. B. Morris had three hits and E. Callow two for the winners who piled up five runs in the first two innings.

Yardmen Gals Get Richer

The rich got richer in last nights Belleville and District Ladies Softball League when the Cosy Grill and BYBF both picked up impressive wins.

Sue Morton pitched the BYBF win allowing ten hits and striking out eight. Judy Johnston homered and stroked four singles and Penny Hughes pounded out two homers and three singles in the winners 28 hit bombardment.

No score sheet was available on the Cosy - Bob Blaind-Red Barn contest.

Not for Sale

You can be sure Les Lennox wasn't thinking of selling houses or his pattern after taking the low net honors and the Victoria Island Grey Trophy at the Belleville Realtors Golf Tournament Wednesday afternoon.

Lennox, who works out of C. D. Crosby Real Estate, came up with a "better than usual game" to record a 72 net score. Bill Pugeni walked away with the low gross title with his score of 67.

Kinsmen Bantams Win 7-2

The Ellis Printing bantams broke down Wednesday night and the Kinsmen fixed them to the tune of 7-2 in a Belleville Minor Baseball League game at the YMCA.

Mike McClelland fired a three-hitter for the Kinsmen, fanning 11 and walking seven. He also added three singles to his cause, but fell short of John Heidstra, who homered, and Larry Denike who tripled, in the hitting department.

The Kinsmen's peewee team made it two for two for their sponsors with a 9-1 victory over the Legion.

Paul Marineau powered the Kinsmen to the win stroking a homer and double. Dave Bennett had three singles and combined with Steve Irvine on the winners mound.

Another peewee contest saw Plane's Concrete chip Gagne Masonary 8-6.

The Kinsmen tykes weren't as fortunate as their older namesakes dropping a 15-8 decision to Mulroney's Sunoco.

They were even in the hit column but Crawford Metals doubled the count in the run column in taking a 6-3 tiebreaker.

pole verdict from Bob's Sports.

Rory McLeod homered and Steve Molaski tripled for the only two Metal hits. A homer by Paul Walsh and a single by Grant Scully were the hits recorded by Bob's.

Unloyal over-ran Gibson's Esso 14-4 in another tadpole contest. Eric Drudel and Steve Taylor homered for the winners with Stu Emerson tripling and singling twice.

Canucks Click

They may be the Canucks from Station Square but they rounded off all the rough edges Wednesday night in recording a 4-0 Belleville Minor Soccer atom win over the Kinsmen.

Dan Hounsiow and Todd Crawford each picked up a pair of goals for the winners.

Is Black Experience True Film Culture?

Black audiences are flocking to the movies to see films made by blacks for blacks about the "black experience." But is it just a gimmick which will vanish soon, or the real thing to become a basic part of film culture?

Orpheus Too Flashy

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Gabriel Charpentier's Orpheus started off the Stratford festival's Third Stage Program on Tuesday night in a splash of theatrical gimmickery that was visually appealing but shallow.

The first production of a Canadian work in the festival's 20th season, the chamber opera is a retelling of the classic myth of Orpheus who retrieves his bride Eurydice from the underworld only to lose her again when he forgets a commandment not to look upon her as he leads her away.

The Charpentier version of the legend borrows from medieval church ritual and classical Japanese theatre as well as Greek mythology.

The character of Orpheus is split into three roles for actor, singer and dancer. Director Andre Brassard explains in a program note that "Orpheus in his three representations is not simply a musician of ancient Greece; he is the embodiment of the artist and the idealist." The Stratford production relies heavily on lighting effects, gymnastic choreography, and sonorous enunciation to weave an atmosphere that at times comes close to pretentiousness.

The Third Stage, in its second year of operation, will present another musical work by a Canadian composer this season, Patria II: Requiems for the Party Girl by Murray Schafer, has its premiere Aug 22.

Other productions at the same theatre will be Betty Jane Wylie's new Canadian play, Mark, opening July 19 and a Shakespearean adaptation of the children's classic, Pinocchio, beginning a three-week run Aug. 1.

Two other openings conclude this year's festival roster. A production of Oliver Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer opens at the main Festival Theatre July 25, to play in repertory with Shakespeare's plays As You Like It and Eling Lear, and with Alfred Je Musset's Lorenzaccio.

Critics' comments on Orpheus:

John Kraglund, Toronto Globe and Mail: . . . the tendency to fall asleep during the performance was in direct ratio to the quantity of words being sung or spoken. . . . It is the visual side of the production, not the musical, which lingers in one's memory."

Urjo Kareda, Toronto Star: "The Third Stage, with Orpheus, retains its unique record of uncovering and hallowing a vein of solid, 14-carat kitsch. . . . A pompous artistic non-entity. . . .

Harvey Chusid; Vancouver Sun: . . . most of the mime and movement is stylized so self-consciously and with so little sense of purpose, that the performance seems much longer than its one hour and fifteen minute length.

Eric Mclean, Montreal Star: "It's hard seems to have sensed those points where the bald simplicity of Charpentier's text teeters on the verge of parody, and he has devised some startling visual effects to counter the threat."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Courtesy again proves intangible. Avoid unthinking emotional rejection. Obstacles are temporary if taken as such and worked around.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Stop to think, see if your feelings are reciprocated. Much of your stress is unnecessary, beyond the real extent of provocative stimulus.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): If it happened yesterday, forget it. Pick up with what you have now and go on the best you know how. Strife is available.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Self-reliance is your path to success today. Concentrate on finishing what you started with or without direct co-operation.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your money is hard to hold onto, with little gained from its use. Associates, family may be overly sensitive. You can help achieve harmony.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Remember that those who discredit have a different outlook standing; try or better communication. The deal you make today will be permanent.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pay immediate attention to whatever bothers you get active. Distant events provide news, possibly incomplete.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be free with your advice where it is asked, but wary about lending resources. Major purchases should wait, conditions are changing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Insist on going ahead with constructive action. Yesterday's planning shows flaws in proportion to your distraction, can be corrected.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): For once your natural tendency to organize everything brings some inconvenience. Let continuing matters go on over to another time.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Line up your facts and figures, review your situation, adopt new budgets. Any momentary surplus should go to savings.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Go along with others' ideas, at least long enough to see where they lead. Then you can charm those who count into adjustments.

Spinach Unlikely To Cause Stones

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any danger in eating "too much" spinach? My parents tell me it may cause kidney stones. Is this true or is it merely a rumor? If it is a fact, I'd be interested in the reason.

I vaguely remember reading that spinach is the best vegetable a person can eat for all-round health. I'm 17 and a senior in high school.—K. R. S.

I'm going to take a firm position somewhere in the middle.

Spinach as well as other greens contains oxalic acid. Some kidney stones consist of insoluble salts of oxalic acid.

So if a person happened to be a stone-former of the oxalate type (there are other kinds of kidney stones, too, you see), then he ought to avoid spinach and other foods high in oxalic acid. (Rhubarb and chocolate are a couple of others.)

But if somebody doesn't show any tendency toward forming oxalate stones, why worry about it? Anyway, food isn't the only factor in kidney stones. Ample fluid intake keeps the urine dilute—inhibiting stone formation. And to a healthy kidneys without infection, are much less likely to have stones. There probably are other factors, but the chemistry of the human body is a very complicated matter.

I'll dispute your idea that spinach "is the best vegetable you can eat." Being a green, leafy vegetable, it has its values in providing minerals and vitamins. One serving of some green leafy vegetable per day is a pretty valid rule of diet, but it doesn't have to be spinach.

I don't, in fact, know just how spinach got so famous in the first place. But then Popeye in the comic strip popularized spinach (would the word be "Popeye-uralized"? If).

But it doesn't contain any magic properties. I enjoy a mess of spinach now and then, but I've take it or leave it about. Eat it if you like it, but don't expect it to make you superhealthy. And don't be afraid of it unless you turn out to be an oxalate stone-former. Which you probably won't.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the danger, if any, to the unborn baby of a mother exposed to a child recently vaccinated for rubella? There seems to be conflicting opinion.Mrs. D. D.

There was concern that such a situation could be dangerous for the baby, but I believe this worry has been dissipated by studies at Western Reserve University.

That study indicated that the danger is minimal if any. If the mother has already had rubella (German measles), there is certainly no risk. If she isn't sure, this can be determined by what is called the HI test.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently purchased some furnace air filters treated with hexachlorophene. In view of the warnings of the Food and Drug Administration about using deodorants containing hexachlorophene, do you think it would be safe to use these filters? F. J. G.

I doubt that any danger exists. The FDA warning involved direct application to the skin (the possibility of absorption into the system through the skin) and was primarily concerned with use with infants, particularly repeated, full-body bathing, or absorption through broken skin.

You might, as a second check, ask the dealer whether any warnings have been issued about use in such filters, but I have not heard of any.

Opening lead — jack of spades.

There are all kinds of clues a declarer can utilize to accomplish his purpose. Searching out these clues and interpreting them correctly will generally pay very good dividends.

Consider this hand played by Harvey Cohen, California star. He opened with a notrump (12 to 14 points) and wound up in two notrump after East had bid two spades.

Cohen won the spade lead with the queen. East signaling with the seven, and returned a club, winning West's queen with the ace. East ducked the jack of clubs continuation and then took the ten with the king.

East returned the king of spades, won by declarer with the ace, and Cohen had now arrived at the crucial point in the play.

He knew that East had started with five spades and four clubs, and it seemed highly probable that East also had the ace of hearts for his two spade bid. To lead a heart to dummy's king in the hope that West had the ace seemed hopeless, so Cohen decided to take his chances instead on the possibility that East had a singleton or a void in diamonds.

Accordingly, he cashed the ace of diamonds before returning the four of spades. This method of play proved eminently successful, for while it permitted East to cash three spade tricks in a row, he then had to return a heart or a club to dummy and declarer finished with eight tricks consisting of two spades, a heart, a diamond and four clubs.

It is interesting to note that, if declarer had led the two of spades instead of the four, East could have turned the tables on him by winning the deuce with the ace and returning the three. In that case, South would have found himself up a tree and he would have gone down one.

Tomorrow: Sidding quiz.

Four-day School Week Proposed at St. Kitts

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A committee of the Lincoln County board of education, which admitted it was flying in the face of public opinion, recommended Wednesday:

—A four-day school week and an extended school day.

—A voluntary summer term for secondary school students.

—A pilot project which would have one or two area high schools remain open 12 months a year.

The committee said itself, in effect: "You can't do this!"

More than a year ago the committee began investigating problem of extending and reorganizing the school year.

It found:

—Almost everyone in the county is opposed to lengthening the school year.

Nevertheless, the committee made 10 recommendations and said they should be considered "if the restructuring of the school year falls within the aims and objectives of the board."

The committee was made up of school board trustees, board officials and educationists. It said in its recommendations that the board of education should increase summer school to a full day—rather than part of a day as at present—with more credits available and greatly expanded remedial and enrichment courses down to Grade 7 level.

The committee held meetings with businessmen school teachers, parents and a group that included a doctor, a minister, a psychologist, a university professor and a social worker.

In releasing the report, A. R. Petrie, the board's superintendent of instruction, said the same major objections were raised at every public meeting.

"Parents said they already are hard put to find time with their children and expected to having them go to school for any more time than they now do."

One thing surprised committee members during the hearings, he said.

"Most people are not unduly concerned about the taxes they are paying for education.

Tweed

Mr. Clarence Reeves, a former Tweed resident, and now living in Plainfield, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Some 330 persons attended the rose show of the Kingston Horticultural Society which was held Sunday in the Canadian National Institute for the Blind auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl McLaughlin of Kingston, both graduates of Queen's University were weekend guests at the home of Mrs. Mabel Marlin, of Marlbank.

Roundworm Kills Child

OTTAWA (CP) — An 18-month-old Ottawa child recently became the first person in Canada to die from roundworm, says Dr. Harry Rowsell, a veterinary surgeon and pathologist with the University of Ottawa.

He said the child picked up the infection from playing in a park where dogs defecate.

Ottawa hospitals have had several cases of roundworm that could be traced back to dogs and ringworm caused by infection from cats, but this was the first death recorded in Canada.

He explained that puppies which are not "wormed" by a veterinarian carry roundworm in their intestines. When an infected dog defecates on the grass it deposits roundworm eggs.

"The child gets some of the dirt on his hands, puts his fingers in his mouth and the roundworm eggs enter his body and penetrate his intestines.

"The eggs hatch and burrow through the intestine walls as larvae into the blood stream, muscles and organs. In this one terminal case, the larvae got into the child's brain. It was a heavy infection, so severe as to bring death."

Dr. Rowsell added that he and his colleagues believe many cases of "flu" among adults are really cases of roundworm infection.

He and his colleagues were alarmed about the growing numbers of cats and dogs, which spread the disease when allowed to roam freely.

Crown Says Gardens Used as Private Bank

TORONTO (CP) — Crown prosecutor Clay Powell said Wednesday Harold Ballard and his partner, the late C. Stafford Smythe, used Maple Leaf Gardens as their private banking source in perpetrating what are alleged to be frauds from 1961 to 1968.

In closing arguments at Ballard's trial on charges of fraud and theft of $265,000, Mr. Powell told court it was "inconceivable" that the 67-year-old president of the Gardens did not know that "goods and services were being provided at his home and cottage" for which he was not being billed.

Witnesses at the five-week trial have testified that the Gardens paid for improvements at Ballard's suburban Toronto home and summer cottage, billed as construction work at the Gardens.

Defence counsel John J. Robinette told court Tuesday there was no evidence linking his client with falsified invoices for private work paid for by the Gardens.

Mr. Powell argued that though there might not have been direct evidence, Ballard "knew perfectly well" he was not being billed for the private work.

Mr. Robinette, in his closing argument, had told court that some of the alleged frauds were in fact legitimate business expenses.

Moving Millions Wall St. Routine

NEW YORK (AP) — Millions of dollars in securities move through the Wall Street area every day in the hands of obscure men who are seldom noticed and like their anonymity.

"It's just a routine job," says one, a retired postal supervisor who now carries as much as $50 million a day in bonds and U.S. treasury notes for a Wall Street bank. "It's not my money so it just seems like paper."

No one really knows how many millions of dollars in securities are handled daily by the hundreds of unobtrusive messengers. But an executive vice-president of one medium-sized bank says he alone easily has had $350 million in securities on the street at a time.

Large cash transfers are handled by armored truck and the securities are all insured and the messengers, as are all bank employees, are bonded.

Most of the messengers are older men, usually retired from other jobs. Their ranks include a former professional baseball player, former brokerage house employees and many retired policemen and security guards.

Some carry guns, often tucked in their belts, with their coats open, to thwart would-be robbers. Sometimes banks require that messengers move in pairs if they're carrying more than a certain amount. Sometimes an armed guard will travel a few steps behind the messenger.

Trucks are also used for transfers of gold from the Federal Reserve's New York stock-pile to the vaults of foreign banks in the city.

The foot messengers, many unarmed, carry their valuables in simple black attache cases or even manila envelopes such as the one stolen recently from a United States Trust Co. messenger after a pickup at the Federal Reserve Bank. This envelope, contained $4.31 million in securities, about $3.8 million of which was almost as negotiable as cash.

Some securities, such as registered bonds, are made out in the name of a specific person and are difficult to sell. Others, like treasury notes, are bearer bonds which can be cashed by whomever has them.

India Tough with Maoists

Press reports say Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has asked the governor of West Bengal province to give more power to policemen so that they can deal with Maoist violence effectively. These reports say the West Bengal police force has been instructed by the governor to comb Maoist pockets in Calcutta and other areas, and told that in dealing with the pro-Peking terrorists they need not be inhibited by the fear of administrative difficulties.

West Bengal has been under the direct rule of the federal government for the last several months. New Delhi operates through the provincial governor who is its own appointee.

So long as the province was ruled by a coalition of left-wing parties, police officials were always afraid that any strong action to put down Maoist terrorists would not get the approval of the politicians in power.

Stocks turned lower in quiet mid-morning trading today.

The industrial index was down .16 to 201.43 after scoring fractional gains during the opening minutes of trading. Base metals lost .23 to 92.72 and western oils 1.29 to 228.72. Golds were up .33 to 221.16.

Volume by 11 a.m was 433,000 shares, down from 59,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Declines held a moderate margin over advances; 113 to 89, with 179 issues unchanged.

Sectors of the market which moved moderately lower included banking, industrial mining, paper and forest, chemical and steel issues while beverage, food processing and communication stocks were strong.

Microsystems International dropped ¾ to $7¼, Noranda ¼ to $27¾, Hudson's Bay Co. ¼ to $17¼, Ranger ⅛ to $20 and Fields Stores ¼ to $17¼.

Scotts Restaurants lost ¼ to $18¾, Guaranty Trust ¼ to $13, NTS Marketing ¼ to $12¼ and Asamera ¼ to $16.

Reader's Digest was up ⅛ to $20¼. Peoples Department Stores ½ to $11½, Occidental Fire ¼ to $11¾, Walker-Goodeham ¾ to $441 and Placer ⅛ to $41.

Lemons Can Be Returned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any rate housewife knows what to do with a new toaster that doesn't work. Demand a refund or a replacement.

The thought of returning a new $3,000 automotive lemon, however, never occurs to most car buyers. But the principle, spelled out in the laws of every American state except Louisiana, applies to cars as well as toasters.

The principle is called "revocation of acceptance." While it's relatively new, a growing number of successful actions for refunds on cars shows that it can work.

With a lawyer's help, a suburban Detroit woman who complained her compact car had transmission trouble convinced the dealer to return her money.

Springfield, Mass., couple had to fight through the courts for three years, but the courts finally agreed the couple had been within their rights by stopping payment on their $2,350 cheque for a new car.

Revocation of acceptance means a car buyer can return a seriously defective car within a reasonable time if he had given the dealer a chance to repair the vehicle.

The principle was written into the Uniform Commercial Code drafted in 1951 by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and subsequently adopted by 49 states.

The code does not fit in with the laws of Louisiana, which are based on the French Napoleonic Code rather than English common law.

University Grants Raised

WATERLOO (CP) — Two university presidents have expressed limited satisfaction over an announcement Tuesday that Ontario will increase per student grants by 3.4 per cent for the 1972-74 academic year.

Dr. E. C. Matthews, president of the University of Waterloo, said Wednesday the province should be commended for the move, but added the increase will not likely keep up with rising costs.

Dr. W. C. Weisgard, president of the University of Guelph, said following the announcement there Tuesday by George Kerr, Minister of universities and colleges, that the increase is "about as much as we had hoped for."

Mr. Kerr announced the increase in an interview following his meeting with Guelph University students to discuss a rise of $100 in student fees across the province this fall.

Mr. Kerr said the grant increase was arrived at "mainly by taking a reported cost-of-living increase projection of 3.9 per cent and rounding it off somewhat."

He said the increase will bring the basic per-student grant to $1,825 from the current grant of $1,765, adding that the government recognized it could not provide increases out of line with the cost of living since universities will have to make wage settlements at that level.

Gas from Dump Said Perilous

TORONTO (CP) — A Mississauga couple is claiming before the Supreme Court of Ontario that a garbage dump near their home has produced dangerous methane gas, rats, flies and gulls which drop excrement over their property.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Halliday, are seeking a temporary injunction against the private owners of the sanitary landfill site, Allan Bertil and Victor Trium, and against their biggest customer, the town of Mississauga.

The couple claim they live in fear that their house will be blown up by methane gas which is seeping into their basement.

Third Man Held

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI arrested a 29-year-old Bulgarian immigrant Wednesday in connection with the July 5 hijacking of a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet which two hijackers and a passenger were slain.

Robbit Gebhardt, special FBI agent in charge, said Lubomir Peshev was arrested while at work in Oakland, Calif., on charges of aiding and abetting aircraft piracy, conspiracy to commit extortion and conspiracy to commit air piracy.

VD Cases Up

OTTAWA (CP) -- The incidence of venereal disease jumped sharply last year to 170.2 cases per 100,000 population, from 150.3 per 100,000 in 1970, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday. Venereal disease were by far the most widespread of the two dozen or more diseases required to be reported to public authorities by medical practitioners.

Nude Shown

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — Chinguacousy Township councillors got their first look at their controversial nude statue Wednesday and no one seemed scandalized.

The 9-foot cedar statue of a West Coast Kwakiutl Indian was unwrapped in a barn beside Highway 7 for the councillors to get a peek.

"I don't see anything indecent in that," was Councillor George Garthwaite's verdict on the sculpture, which has caused protests from a local church.

Trapped

EDMONTON (CP) — Richard Douglas Cartier, 16, whose picture was taken by a home-made camera trap when he broke into a home in April, was sentenced to one year in jail followed by 18 months indefinite probation Wednesday.

Judge W. J. Haddad said the gravity of the crime was compounded as the picture indicated Cartier was carrying a revolver.

Charter Problem

LONDON (CP) — Britain proposes to do away with the club-membership rule on charter flights if other countries will go along.

A spokesman said Wednesday the proposal is being placed before British airlines and tour operators for comment. It later will be taken up with Canada, the United States and other countries.

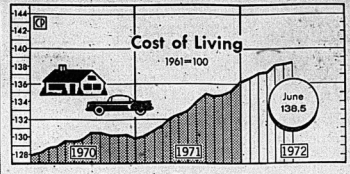
Under the proposal the existing rule that charter flight passengers must be members of a recognized club or organization for six months would be scrapped.

Fireworks Mortars Were Aimed Too Low

TORONTO (CP) — Mortars discharging fireworks bombs at a May 22 pyrotechnic display were aimed too low and directed towards the crowd of spectators, a federal ballistics and explosives expert said Wednesday at the inquest into the death of a 13-year-old girl killed by one of the bombs.

James T. Deslivieres, an explosives inspector with the federal mines and energy resources department, testified that had the mortars been tilted at a slight angle away from the crowd watching Victoria Day fireworks at Smythe Park, the rockets which took the life of Lucy Innocente likely would not have happened.

The inquest under Coroner Dr. A. E. Jones heard testimony earlier that the mortars, installed and supervised by Clough of York Fiberben, were tilted at angles ranging from 61 to 71 degrees towards the crowd more than 500 feet away.



Living Costs Up

Higher costs of housing and transportation pushed the consumer price index up one-fifth of a point to 138.5 in June from 138.3 in May, Statistics Canada reported Friday. The index based on 1961 consumer prices equalling 100, was 133.0 in June 1971.

CNE Wants No Trouble

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Liberation Movement's application for a booth to sell books, bumper stickers and posters was rejected Wednesday by the Canadian National Exhibition Association.

"We don't want people who advocate the overthrow of Canada and will cause trouble," a CNE spokesman said.

Coroner's Jury Wants All Bicycles Licensed

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the bicycle death of Timothy Lawson, 8, in an accident involving a car, recommended Wednesday:

—The provincial government should establish safety standards for bicycles, and no bicycle should be allowed to be sold unless they met these standards;

—All bicyclists should have an operators licence with an age limit of 30, plus a written and riding test to qualify for a licence.

—Police should have the power to order defective bicycles off the road until repaired.

—Police should issue tickets for traffic offences after an initial warning. Fines should be levied for the second and third offence, and after the fourth offence the licence should be suspended for a set period.

No Referendum

OTTAWA (CP) — A national referendum is not being considered as a means of determining the future of capital punishment, a spokesman for Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday.

He said the prime minister does not feel a country can be governed by referendum.

The referendum proposal was raised earlier this week by Syd Brown, president of the Canadian Police Association, now meeting in St. John's, Nfld. Mr. Brown told the association a referendum would receive public debate on the issue when a five-year trial of capital abolition ends this December.

Benson Confers With German

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt of West Germany held a one-hour talk with Canadian Defence Minister Edgar Benson Wednesday that centred on training facilities for the German army in western Canada.

Canadian sources said the two ministers discussed the broad "parameters" of a proposal by which German troops would train at the Canadian army base at Shilo, Man., 130 miles west of Winnipeg.

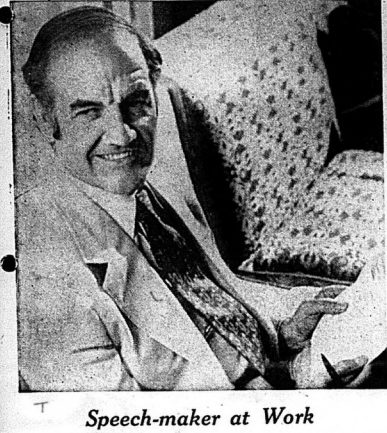
Pair of Fugitives Caught at Napanee



Speech-maker at Work

Senator George McGovern is shown working on a speech, something he has done a lot of lately. This one was to voice his acceptance of the position of Democratic Party's nominee as President of the United States. His victory at the party's nomination convention at Miami Beach means he has a lot more speeches ahead.

Democrats Close Ranks Behind George McGovern

MIAMI BEACH (CP) — The Democratic party convention sent its candidates off into the pre-dawn darkness today to begin their election campaign with an unusual display of unity and a promise from presidential nominee Senator George McGovern that "American politics will never be the same again."

Waves of applause rocked the hall as Hubert Humphrey, Edmund Muskie, Henry Jackson, Shirley Chisholm and Terry Sanford hitted high the hands of the 42-year-old nominee and his 42-year-old running mate from Missouri.

Only the crippled Gov. George Wallace of Alabama was absent and his supporters on the convention floor appeared to be the only ones not to join in the endless ovations for McGovern's acceptance speech, a reminder of their unbending hostility to the nominee.

A stream of speakers who had earlier extolled the virtues of eight official vice-presidential candidates prevented McGovern from starting his speech until 2.45 a.m. EDT today.

But the approaching dawn did not dampen the spirits of the delegates as McGovern said:

"Within 90 days of my inauguration (as president) every American soldier and every American prisoner will be out of the jungle and out of their cells and back home in America where they belong."

The United States he said, should resolve that "never again will we shed our precious young blood of this nation to prop up a corrupt military dictatorship abroad."

He said McGovern as "a new wind rising over the plains of South Dakota (the senator's home state) and spreading across the country." He said the United States was fortunate to find a promise for the future in the "wise and skilful hands of our leader. . . ."

Kennedy had floats from Hyannis Port, Mass., on the final day of the convention to join the other party leaders on their return in a public display of unity.

Ted Kennedy Given Rip-roaring Welcome

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy came to the Democratic convention early today and received a rip-roaring welcome as he introduced the new presidential nominee, Senator George McGovern.

He had the more than 3,000 delegates standing and shouting their admiration as he made a slashing attack on the Nixon administration and at the same time took an approving look back to former Democratic party leaders.

He hailed McGovern as "a

Army Hits 'No-go' Area

BELFAST (AP) — Gun battles engulfed the Northern Ireland capital early today as the British army shrugged off its politically-imposed "low profile" and launched a major offensive against guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army.

Shooting raged in all of Belfast's key Roman Catholic citadels after three battalions of troops invaded the IRA "no-go" district of Andersonstown to quell gunmen who had pumped intensive fire at an army command post for four days.

Two British soldiers and three civilians were known killed in various locations across the city, making 15 dead in fighting since Wednesday and bringing Ulster's toll in three years of torment to 431.

The invasion of the Suffolk area of Andersonstown was carried out on the express orders of Britain's Northern Ireland administrator, William Whitelaw, army headquarters said.

Whitelaw told a Conservative party meeting in London Thursday night he would "soldier on" with conciliation, but added if gunmen were ferocious "we will retaliate with the same ferocity."

That retaliation came at 11:15 p.m. Thursday.

Army headquarters said three battalions were called in—some 1,000 men. Then it scuggered the district would be stormed to protect civilian life and "establish a security forces presence in areas from which the attacks had been launched."

A soldier was shot dead and another wounded as the troops occupied the district, but generally the forces met little resistance. The army believes the IRA was taken by surprise.

Acquire Airport Land

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer W. Darcy McKeough said Thursday "encouraging progress" is being made in acquiring land for the North Pickering community development project. Mr. McKeough said that negotiations have been completed for the purchase of 19 houses and lots as well as several vacant areas and that talks have begun with many other property owners in the area.

Four Pescuers Drown

DUBLIN (AP) — Four young girls were drowned and seven injured Thursday when pounding waves smashed a human chain they set up to rescue a struggling schoolmaster from the Atlantic. The children saw the teacher get into difficulties. They linked hands to form a chain to reach him, but the seas dashed them apart and swept them out into the ocean. The teacher was unharmed.

Hydro Power Restored

TORONTO (CP) — Supervisory staff, aided by some striking workers, restored power to all but about 250 homes in Ontario Hydro's Georgian Bay area by Thursday night, after thunderstorms and high winds cut service to thousands of consumers in Huntsville, Walkerton, Bracebridge and other centres.

Protest Rejected

REYKJAVIK (CP) — An appeals committee rejected today Bobby Fischer's protest against his loss of Thursday's second world championship chess game by forfeit. The four-man committee supported the decision of chief referee Lothar Schmid to award the game to Boris Spassky of Russia because Fischer failed to appear.

Hospital Strike Injunction Denied

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice John Cromarty refused to issue an injunction Thursday that would have ordered 675 striking employees of Toronto Western Hospital back to work.

The Ontario Supreme Court Justice said there was no evidence of a breach of the peace, irreparable damage to the patients or interruption of an essential public service, as claimed by counsel for the hospital.

He said operations at the hospital should be able to continue until Tuesday, when the hospital will present fuller arguments for a permanent injunction before the Ontario Supreme Court.

The non-medical workers at the hospital went on strike at 5 a.m. Wednesday.

The hearing was held without any member of the striking union in the court.

Patrick Murphy, president of the Canadian Union of General Employees, and his negotiating committee refused to enter the courtroom unless 350 strikers who earlier had paraded before the court building also were permitted to be present.

Mr. Justice Cromarty said his courtroom was too small, and refused a union request to move to another building.

The employees—orderlies, nursing assistants, ward aides, kitchen and maintenance staff —went on strike in defiance of provincial labor legislation which bars strikes by hospital workers.

British Euromart Policy Clears Its Final Hurdle

LONDON (Reuter) — British membership in the European Common Market was assured today following a final clash Thursday night over the issue in Parliament.

By a majority of 17—301 votes to 284—the Commons passed the third reading of the European Communities Bill which will make Britain a market member on Jan. 1.

All that is needed now is passage—expected in two weeks time—by the House of Lords, but with the Conservative party having a huge majority there the vote is regarded as a formality.

The result of the Commons balloting was greeted by a roar of approval on the government side of the House, and with stunned silence by members of the Opposition. Prime Minister, Edward Heath was given a standing ovation as he left the chambers. But despite this initial reaction there were few of the wild scenes which accompanied the second reading—approval in principal—last February.

Then the majority was only eight. The margin Thursday night was higher than most observers expected and was accomplished despite votes against the bill by 16 Conservatives including five Ulster Unionists.

But five Liberal party members voted in favor of the legislation and 13 Labor followers abstained from the voting.

One in Town Seeking Smoke

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The military moved in to join police and prison guards as the manhunt intensified today for seven of 14 convicts who escaped from Millhaven penitentiary Monday night.

With half the escapees back in the bag, provincial police stations were still being bombarded by hundreds of phone calls.

Police spokesmen lauded the "100-per-cent co-operation" from residents in the area as calls poured in on possible sightings of those still free in the largest breakout in modern Canadian penal history.

But there was little doubt that residents were becoming nervous as the search for the prisoners, all considered dangerous, dragged into its fourth day.

"They (residents) are getting jumpy—they're quite nervous and you can't really blame them," one weary prison guard said Thursday night.

Thursday afternoon about 150 troops from the 1st Signal Regiment at nearby Barriefield roamed the 3rd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment from Camp Petawawa joined the search as Canadian Armed Forces representatives were called in by the federal government.

Their first sweep of the thickly-wood bush country in the area of the penitentiary, 17 miles west of here, turned up nothing.

Five of the convicts were recaptured Tuesday and the sixth and seventh Thursday.

Two Napanee town policemen captured Thomas Smith, 34, of London, Ont., Thursday night when he ventured into the business district to try to buy cigarettes. They were suspicious of his dirty overalls.

"The only thing that caught that guy was his yearning for cigarettes," said Constable Garry Goyer. "In the car he kept asking us to stop and get him some cigarettes."

Smith, who had been hiding in an abandoned house at the edge of town, offered no resistance.

Smith, serving 21 years on three charges of armed robbery, had $3 on him which he said he had when he escaped from prison. Identified at the police station by penitentiary guards, he was taken back to the maximum security institution.

Police said he had taken the dirty overalls and an old brown shirt from the abandoned house.

Another prisoner was recaptured in the afternoon thanks to the persuasiveness of a Napanee housewife who talked him into giving up after he was discovered in her barn.

Richard Smith, 32, of Petrolia, Ont., serving 12 years for armed robbery, first revealed himself to Mrs. Theresa Miller's son Paul, 11, when he asked Paul for a hatpiot what time it was.

Later, he entered the house and told Mrs. Miller he meant no harm to anyone.

"Don't get excited and don't call police, all I want is something to eat," he quoted him as saying.

Mrs. Miller said later she decided the best method was to talk Smith into surrendering.

She fed him bologna sandwiches with mustard and lemon tea before he surrendered to police.

Rival Fuels Him

MILWAUKEE (AP)— When Hugh Malo saw a service station selling gasoline for 22.9 cents a gallon, he drove in and said: "Fill it up."

It took eight hours to pump 7,000 gallons of regular into Malo's tank truck.

Malo, president of an independent oil company, paid 22.9 cents a gallon to the competing major-brand station — less than the 23.75 cents a gallon he was paying wholesale from another major supplier.

After the sale Tuesday, the station raised its price to 23.9 cents. Malo's two stations were selling regular for 24.9.

"It may seem funny to you," he said after paying the $1,600 bill, "but it's dollars to me."

Fat Albert Enters War

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Navy announced today the introduction of a new, one-ton video bomb called Fat Albert into the air war against North Vietnam and termed it highly effective.

The weapon is an improved version of the Walleye television bomb and has been in use for the last month, the navy said.

Capt. Marland W. Townsend, commanding officer of the carrier Kitty Hawk, said the first six Fat Alberts released scored direct hits against their targets.

Townsend said four bridges were downed and two military supply buildings were destroyed by the bombs.

RODERICK GRAHAM

TRENTON — Funeral service for Roderick Graham, 41 Second Ave., who died July 6 in Trenton Memorial Hospital, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, July 8.

In his 39th year, Mr. Graham was a retired forest ranger with the forestry lands and forests department and had lived 18 years in Parry Sound before coming to Trenton.

Born at Lion's Head in the Bruce Peninsula, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Graham. During World War I he saw service as an engineer. He was a Roman Catholic by religion and had been in failing health for the past two years.

Predeceased by Virginia Latour and Leah Leonelle he is immediately survived by a daughter, Mrs. Leonard (Leanna) Coward, and five grandchildren, James, Douglas, Susan, Leonard and Bruce Coward, all of Trenton.

Also surviving are five sisters: Mrs. Christina McLay and Mrs. Elizabeth McLay, both of London, Ont., Mrs. Elsie Davis, Willowdale, Mrs. Catherine Jackson, Downsview, Mrs. William (Effie) Prentice, Toronto.

Mr. Graham also was predeceased by a sister, Mary Mackley and a brother, Daniel.

The funeral was conducted by Msgr. W. Lynett, assisted by Rev. Father Smith, with interment in Mount Evergreen Cemetery.

JACK A. GOYER

Requiem Mass for Jack A. Goyer was celebrated by Msgr. J. P. Sullivan Thursday at 10 a.m. at St. Michael's Church.

Msgr. Sullivan also spoke the graveside prayers in St. Jahns Cemetery.

Bearers were Les and Terry Goyer, Joseph Stewart, Douglas Parkinson, Donald Barrett and Douglas Burley.

Mr. Goyer rested at the Thompson Funeral Chapel.

WILLIAM HENRY VESTERFELT

An employee at National Grocers Ltd., for 35 years, William Henry Vesterfelt of 24 Herchimer Ave., died Thursday in Belleville General Hospital. He was 64.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Vesterfelt, he was born in Belleville and spent his life here.

He is survived by his wife, the former Gladys Holly.

Also surviving are a son, William, a daughter Mrs. Donald (Doris) Hedger, and five grandchildren, all of Belleville.

He was the brother of Ira, Harry, John, Barney, Fred, Mrs. Emma Tugnett, Mrs. Alvin (Geraldine) Smith and Mrs. Violet Gill, all Belleville residents.

Funeral will be held from the Thompson Funeral Chapel Saturday at 11 a.m. Rev. George Ward will officiate with interment in Belleville Cemetery.

Amalgamation Not Likely

It is unlikely that amalgamation between the Thurlow Township community centre board and the township's recreation committee will take place, said Reeve Horace Casey Friday.

Both organizations may cooperate soon on a fund-raising draw but further union is not under consideration at the present time, he said.

Resident Says She Is Appalled At Township Treatment of Dogs

Mrs. Minette Bromley of Elmwood Drive said a resident of Thurlow Township for only two weeks says she was "appalled" to learn that within 72 hours, stray dogs collected in the municipality can be put to death.

A member of humane societies in her native England, the United States and Canada, she is also upset by the means used to dispose of dogs.

She said that Clifford Cassidy, a Foxboro farmer and the township's part time animal control officer, told her he injected doomed dogs with a fatal serum.

"I checked with my veterinarian," Mrs. Bromley, an owner of several purebreds, told a meeting of council Wednesday, and he laughed when I asked him for some of the serum." She accused Mr. Cassidy of obtaining serum illegally.

She added that Mr. Cassidy was unqualified to inject needles "because he's a layman."

Mrs. Bromley's accusations sparked quite a debate in council, particularly when she asked the members to verify Mr. Cassidy's method of disposing of dogs. Most councillors thought the dogs were shot.

Reeve Horace Casey suggested that the township was lenient in allowing 72 hours before animals can be put to death. He read a section of the Ontario Dog Tax and Livestock and Poultry Protection Act which stated that between sunset and sunrise, dogs trespassing on another person's property can be killed instantly by any means.

"How would you feel," retorted Mrs. Bromley, "if you went away for the weekend and came back to find your family pet put to death?"

Mr. Cassidy, who receives $50 per month plus mileage for retrieving stray dogs, says that on occasion, he has kept dogs in his barn for up to two months, usually in an attempt to find homes for them. Those he kills are often by special request of the owner who has usually decided the dog is too ill or aged.

Lately, he says, the number of dogs on the loose has more about one a month. He attributes the decline to the implementation of dog tags in the township.

Mrs. Bromley said she would like to see Bruce approach the Ontario Humane Society's mobile unit but council insisted the patrol and pickup service would be too expensive.

That prompted Mrs. Brownley to recommend the township build a retaining area on property directly behind Elmwood Drive. "There's enough dog lovers there," she said.

At last resort, Mrs. Bromley said she intended to have her lawyer draft a letter to the provincial department of agriculture and food stating that council could not tell her the means by which dogs were disposed. The three-day amnesty period would also be questioned, she said, adding: "I don't think 72 hours is fair to dogs."

Behind-the-Scenes Study Attempts to Solve Lease

SHANNONVILLE — Tyendinaga's Bay of Quinte Mohawks 30 hectares of flour land on lease one of Canada's most eccentric real estate problems took another step towards hopeful solution yesterday.

Mohawk local government spokesmen met with Indian affairs representatives in discussions centred on the situation to date, which sees the Mohawks seeking better rental for the land on which this hamlet lies exemplified in a modern day service and residential community.

Chief Earl Hill said the meeting discussed progress to date on groundwork investigations into the background of the 140-year-old lease. The probe — by department officials — is an exhaustive process involving detective work into archives and land deeds dating from before the mid-nineteenth century, said the chief.

However, after the meeting Chief Hill was hopeful investigations could sufficiently outline the situation so that a solution might be under way by this year's end.

The problem dates from British colonial administration in what was then Upper Canada when 200 acres of land was surrendered in the name of William IV to a Montreal mill operator. The lease was official for 999 years on payment of 30 barrels of flour to the Mohawks.

During the next century the original tract was sub-leased into various sized building lots some of which now include modern commercial buildings like service stations, groceries and a hotel.

The rental payment, has been the responsibility of successive owners of the mill site in later years a cunning factory, now recently purchase by Virgo Foods, owned by Cherry Valley businessmen.

Aside from complications caused by growth of the community, the situation is compounded by the fact Simonville is administered as part of Tyendinaga Township's municipal responsibility, and tax rates are levied accordingly.

There has been general agreement, however, that the flour rental is an anachronism in modern times, and the Mohawks who have refused delivery of the flour rental, have quietly been seeking a better deal through negotiations.

The meeting, yesterday, brought the Mohawks to a date on how far proceedings have progressed since government, reserve and Virgo spokesmen first held talks May 23.

New Belleville Parks Board Office

The staff the city's board of parks management has moved into its new offices and service centre at 259 North Park Street. The building, constructed at a cost of about $100,000, will accommodate the 35 staff members, their vehicles and equipment. Landscaping, it is hoped, will be completed before the Ontario Parks Association convention is held in August, with the Belleville parks board as host.

IN MEMORIAM

FOLLWELL — In memory of a dear friend, Harry Follwell, who passed away July 14, 1971.
What is a friend?
I said my friend.
Hand in hand.
Face to face.
Heart to heart.
A friend is a freedom trip,
A heart warm at rest free what you love most.
A smoke their own decisions,
To meet their own goals,
To choose their own unique life style.
Plus, a true friend means freedom.
Bob.

What is a friend?
I said a friend to dream,
To see a sunflower, like a drop of rain,
To feel each others pain.
To hear a lonely cry.
Who wishes with you, then the stars in the sky.
A friend is there,
To give you faith and loyalty,
Cascades thru the lazy trees.
Plus, a friend is a true friend, Harry,
Yet we shall meet again, in many ways.
Forever please,
We shall re-unite tomorrow, on the streams of happy tears.
For in our friendship, we reached the highest, highest, highest level,
With Love, Dr. John A. Campbell.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our relatives, neighbors and friends for acts of kindness shown us during the illness of a dear husband, father and brother, Ernest Wilson. Special thanks for cards, floral tributes and donations to Cancer Society and the staff of Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. D. A. Storm Misses Belleville

The weather disturbance moving through southern Ontario yesterday dumped 1.38 inches of rain on Bancroft.

Areas to the north of Hastings county were hit by more severe storms than the Belleville district.

Although Belleville got only .31 inches of rain Friday afternoon, Tweed was hit by .62 inches of rain, some hail, and a 40 mile-an-hour wind for about 19 minutes during the afternoon.

Unsettled weather conditions are expected to prevail

Fish Blood Transfusion Proposed

MCMURDO STATION, Antarctica (AP) — Art DeVries would like to catch a codfish in the cold, cold waters of the North Atlantic and then give it a blood transfusion.

He'd give it the blood of a codfish taken from the cold, cold colder waters of Antarctica, to see if a peculiar "antifreeze" agent in its blood could keep the northern cod from freezing to death when placed into the water here.

The experiment—no fish may ever before have received blood from another fish—would be one more step in pinning down facts about the fishy anti-freeze material, which one day could have practical human applications.

One possibility is that the anti-freeze, made synthetically in large amounts, could make it possible to preserve human blood for transfusions far longer than now is possible, by keeping it almost frozen.

It might help plant biologists find anti-freeze materials in plants, then to select and breed those strains having the most anti-freeze and thus the ability to withstand unexpected frost and freezes that take an immense toll of fruits and other crops.

Art DeVries is Dr. Arthur L. DeVries, an amiable man of 34 with a degree in biology and long blonde hair and bushy moustache and beard. He's spent two winters and three summers in Antarctica, and one summer up north in the Arctic.

Now with the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif., Dr. DeVries began research in 1965 with the question why Antarctic fish don't freeze when sea water freezes at 28 degrees F. Non-salt water freezes at 32 degrees F.

Separating fish blood into its components, he found the anti-freeze material. The temperature has to drop a fraction of a degree below 29 degrees before the blood will freeze. Fish living in the coldest water, right under the eight-foot thick ice of McMurdo Sound have more of the agent than fish at 1,500-foot depth where the water is warmer, he found.

A black perch taken off the California coast and placed in McMurdo Sound froze almost immediately. A man would die in five minutes in these waters.

Dr. DeVries has identified the anti-freeze substance as a glycoprotein, consisting of two amino acids or components of protein, and two forms of sugar.

A high salt content in fish blood will depress the blood freezing point, but the anti-freeze stuff takes it lower. And the glycoprotein also exists in other fluids and tissue of the antarctic cod. Cold seems to be a challenge for the fish to start producing the anti-freeze.

Presumably, he says, northi Atlantic cod have less of the anti-freeze than fish here. Putting a northern cod into cold water here wouldn't be a great shock to its metabolism or chemistry of life, as it would be for a warm water fish. And presumably blood from an Antarctic cod would be accepted by a northern cod without a transfusion reaction.

Keep-clean Has Drawbacks

Dr. John M. Knox, chairman of the dermatology department at Houston's Baylor College of Medicine, lashed out at the keep-clean mania in a recent lecture.

"We use all sorts of deodorants and they block up the pores, the opening of the sweat glands," he said. "Mother Nature put these openings there for a purpose and we should not try to block them."

Similarly, it is ridiculous to bathe twice a day because bathing removes the protective film of oil from the skin. "It was intended to be there or evolution would not have kept it there for us."

Women seem to feel compelled to wash their hands whenever they see a water faucet, Knox said, even when they don't plan to touch anything. "This damages the normal protection against bacteria. New mothers, in particular, are so clean they are positively dangerous."

Knox said a dirty old man who rarely washes his hands is really cleaner than the housewife because his normal de-germing mechanisms are still operating.

Mothers should also worry less about their children getting dirty. "A little dirt on a little boy is no good but him," he said. "Don't insist that the child take baths all the time."

And don't badger the children about candy giving them spots: there is no proof that chocolate makes acne worse or that dirt affects it at all.

Other Knox tips: Few women should use face cream before the age of 30, most don't need it until 40—and there is no secret ingredient to prevent or remove wrinkles. No cream is as good for the skin as its own natural oil.

But beware the current no-make-up "natural look." Make-up acts as a protective shield against wind, dirt and sunshine.

Don't keep pushing back fingernail cuticles, it invites infection. The cuticle is a protective seal to keep out bacteria. Constant cleaning of the fingernails is also risky because it damages the connection between skin and nail plate, providing a haven for germs.

The hair can be damaged by constant washing, brushing, permanent waving or dyeing. Do the minimum required to keep it neat and clean.

Water Colors to Watery Clay

Wayne Becker, 14, doesn't mind getting up to his elbows in clay as he sees the clay come to life on the wheel, turning into a pot or vase. While Wayne works with the wheel, donated by Centennial Secondary School, Arthur Allore and instructor Audrey Davies put their heads together to blow paint from one side of the paper to the other. As many as 30 young people each day come to the art class in the basement of King George School. There is no charge and no obligation as to how many classes you must attend. The program is sponsored by the city recreation - arena department.

Railroad Man's Railroader

He was born railroad, he works railroad, his hobby is railroad, model trains run through his basement, railway telegraph keys adorn his mantel and even the ticking clock on the wall came from a railway station.

Born at Snowflake, Man., where his father was a CPR station agent for 20 years, he says the first thing he remembers seeing was a belching steam engine. And it was that steam engine that began his great love affair with the rail.

Today, he is the mobile supervisor for the Brandon division of Canadian Pacific and his home is a showplace of railway nostalgia.

"I didn't weigh enough. In those days you started as a fireman, not a job calling for mtlch brain, but you needed plenty of brawn to keep swinging that scoop steady for hours at a time. . . I just didn't have the stamina needed."

So instead of becoming an engineer he became a telegraph operator, starting at Portage in 1939 and moving on to several points throughout Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Despite this frustrated ambition at becoming an engineer he did manage to get behind the throttle of an engine. He had an engineer chum who let him drive the locomotive over parts stretch of line on a 36 mile round trip.

The Corbett basement in Portage is filled with sa.shing, hissing miniature engines. He has built a miniature station, a the model to scale with the station at Wapella Sask., his last stop as a telegrapher. Even the clock on the Corbett wall is of railway vintage.

"I've never been out of sight or sound of a railroad track in my life, so when they closed the Portage station I just had to buy it," he said.

Among his souvenirs are a dozen or so pictures of steam engines crossing the prairie.

What about the big chuning diesels of today?

"You couldn't get me to cross the street for a diesel."

Cool It

David Giles, an 8-year-old Pembroke resident who visited Outlet Park this week discovered this unusual way to beat the heat. Buried beneath cool, moist sand he sucked on a snow cone while older onlookers watched in envy.

Grads Realistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national survey suggests that American graduates of the 1970s may be more job- and money-conscious and ready to join the establishment than were students of the 60s.

A popular trend among undergraduates during the past decade was to shun profit-making careers and turn toward service to mankind through such endeavors as working in urban ghettoes.

Employers were lined up bidding for those ready to take a job. Then the economic crunch hit. Now most graduates have to seek out potential employers. Many are finding it difficult.

"The unemployment situation has come as a shock to many college students who, up to this time, had considered stories of the Great Depression as part of American folklore," said William W. Carlson, president of the University of Toledo.

"The idea that an opportunity to have a job is something to be cherished is a new concept for some of them," he added.

Toledo was one of 80 schools that responded to a survey conducted by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities. The 228 schools in the AASCU award one in every four baccalaureate degrees.

President R. Leestarper of Worcester State College, Massachusetts, quoted a school counsellor as saying, "Generally speaking, I feel that the freshmen I have had contact with during this past year are running scared. By that I mean they are not only concerned with the question 'Who am I?' but far more concerned lately with the question, 'Where do I go?'"

Bangladesh Economy Has Nowhere to Go But Up

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Bangladesh, three months after its official declaration of independence is still the basket case among the struggling nations of the Third World.

This is a devastating yet true statement to make in the context of over 100 nations whose combined gross national products would probably not match our own — and whose population explosion grows at the rate of tens of thousands of new mouths every day of the year.

The new country is bereft of just about everything a public service (many went with the defeated Pakistanis), transport (most of it was wrecked during last fall's bitter war), state revenues (most of the accounts receivable also went with the defeated Pakistanis).

Bangladesh's greatest asset is her gallant Prime Minister Sheik Mujiter Rahman, who still must expend his limited energy on daily interviews with streams of publicity seekers.

The "father of his people" approach has always been inevitable with great leaders at the beginning of their careers in power. Nehru saw the common man in his office. So did Nkrumah at the start and Sukarno through most of his presidency.

The great tragedy of this kind of beginning is that it must soon stop. Sheik Rahman needs his days and his genius for solving massive problems of recovery.

It is true aid is moving in fast, not only from Canada, which is giving about $40 million, but from the Soviet Union, the U.S. and India's pledged $775 million.

So is food. Again India, the country whose military victory made the birth of the country, will deliver 700,000 tons of grain, some of which her own people could probably use.

Even the giant tanker Manhattan, which made its historic trip through Canada's Arctic two summers ago, is under a new charter, this time to the U.S. government as a floating granary off the coast of Bangladesh.

Some progress has been made, especially in human relations. The Biharis, who supported the old East Pakistani administration, and who were in danger of total extermination, have been saved, even though they subsist in incredible ghetto-like camps.

Jute, the country's basic export, is moving to world customers and the port of Chittagong, one of the largest in the Indian subcontinent, is open again for shipping.

Long term the future is bleak, as only it could be. The cement of the struggle for independence, the total support for Sheik Rahman during his imprisonment and threat of death, inevitably crumbles. There are even grumblings about the great influence of India in the present and future affairs of the new nation.

And Sheik Rahman has had to cool many passions, not only historic ones against the now down-trodden Biharis, but against India whose army in war made the republic a reality.

In toto, Bangladesh sums up in staggering proportions all the problems which most of our world then beyond those of the rich nations. Survival on this planet is a greater problem for most of mankind than when it did with technology and leisure time.

The real worlds of our planet in 1972 are the Bangladesh, not the Canadas.

How we help, and in time, with other than cash and food, is the basic problem the rich countries have not solved.

Sandbanks Report

If the embattled Sandbanks could have their say, if the dunes somehow could take human form (now there is an idea perhaps for a Walt Disney film), they might say of the latest developments in the quarrying controversy that the authorities (to paraphrase Ernest Dowson and his Cynara) are being faithful in their fashion.

It seems to us — arid aside from one or two still rattling their sabres, to most of those concerned about this matter — that the government-sponsored study has come up with a compromise solution that takes cognizance of the interests of both public and industry, as well as the environmental needs of the area.

The details of the study prepared by geologist Dr. Walter Tovell of Toronto are now known. The main points are that Lake Ontario Cement be permitted to remove all of the estimated 128,000 tons of sand remaining before it surrenders its lease (which represents only one per cent of the entire dunes area) at the end of a suggested three-year period and that the land would then become part of the nearby Sandbanks Provincial Park.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier, in releasing the report, said alternative sites are being considered for the quarrying operations. One possibility, according to geologist Tovell is below the water level at the existing site, but we have a feeling that only a complete withdrawal from the Sandbanks area will satisfy those still opposed to the operation. Mr. Tovell estimates that the leased land could return to its original state in 15 to 20 years if quarrying is abandoned.

The report seems eminently fair in that the long-term integrity of the Sandbanks is being respected while at the same time the jobs of some 200 employees of Lake Ontario Cement are being preserved. Mr. Bernier says he will be meeting with company officials to discuss the implications of the report.

As we have suggested, the developments of the last few days should allay the fears of most. We look forward to The Sandbanks being returned to nature but if this small percentage of ground that is the quarry site is essential to job security, under a legitimate lease, then we must be prepared to wait a little while longer.

Tiny Gibraltar, the British spur of land jutting out from Spain near Algeciras, is the only part of the Iberian peninsula with a free press and a free vote.

These are two of the many inherited privileges from the British system — another being representative government — which the 25,000 inhabitants of the Rock are determined to maintain.

To do this, means staying under the British flag. But since 1961, the government of Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco has slowly but surely increased the pressure on the Rock until now when all economic and transport ties have been ended between it and mainland Spain.

Spain wants the Rock returned to Spanish rule as it was before the British captured it in 1704. This month British Foreign Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Spain's foreign minister, the urbane Lopez Bravo, will meet in London to discuss again the future of Gibraltar.

In the recent crisis over Gibraltar, the British have made it clear, as they did with Malta, they do not want "to integrate" the Rock into the United Kingdom. As in Malta, there is a small "Integralist Party" on the Rock.

The Spanish in an earlier mood of reconciliation, once suggested an Anglo-Spanish condominion over Gibraltar, with the British assuming its foreign and defence policy, the Spanish domestic and economic policy over the controversial spur.

The fact is, the Spanish do have a case. If the British really want to "integrate" Gibraltar, the Spanish certainly will.

There are ethnic reasons. The Gibraltarians are certainly not English in origin. They are the greatest mixed bag of races of any place in the Mediterranean — Spanish, Turkish, Maltese, Italian, Jewish, Gypsy and Greek. Their basic language is not English, but the Andalusian dialect of south-ern Spain.

Visitors to Gibraltar believe English is mainly spoken. But behind the tourists backs the Gibraltarians joke among themselves in Andalusian, about the gawking tourists — including the proud ones from Britain.

The main Spanish case for Gibraltar, like the British, is based on history. In 1607 England is and alliance with Austria was fighting the War of the Spanish Succession to prevent a French Bourbon candidate from succeeding the childless King of Spain who had died in 1700.

An allied army and navy, under the command of an Austrian Hapsburg who was claiming the Spanish throne, captured the Rock in 1704.

The English, as part of a grand alliance against Louis XIV, the French monarch determined to dominate Europe, did not want his candidate on the throne in Madrid, then the centre of the world's largest empire.

For England as an emerging seapower, a Franco-Spanish alliance, linking their two vast colonial empires, was even worse. Gibraltar was the key naval base, by that plan.

The present Franco government, as strong on its historical claims as successive British governments, places much of its case on the illegality of the Rock's capture in 1704. It says it should have been returned at the peace treaty in 1713.

Too much history, as well as the lack of parliamentary rights if the Rock were returned to Spain, is the reason for the decision of Britain to keep it (but not integrate it) and of the Spanish to do both.

Division of Land at Issue
Land Said Too Rocky

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I write regarding your issue of Friday, July 7 under Division of Land. Mr. John McAvoy of Bloomfield spoke of land divisions in Prince Edward County are definitely dictated by Toronto", I will go further. Not only land development but the majority of the policies in Ontario are dictated by the Civil Servants and not the politicians.

This is widened by a letter in my possession signed for W. Darcy McKeough. This letter was without doubt carefully formed and written by a Civil Servant and signed for Darcy McKeough without even being read. The contents are so stupid as to be almost laughable. It presents that subdivisions in Barrie Township must be in the hamlets of Cloyne or Kaladar.

Kaladar is not in Barrie Township and is 12 miles from Cloyne where the new High School is located and the teachers and others are desperate for suitable building land. Yet these people are told they must live in Cloyne or Kaladar and that subdivision will not be approved anywhere else.

Kaladar is entirely surrounded by rocky hinterland. Here you could not find enough soil for a septic tank tile bed in a square mile. Cloyne is either surrounded by rock or marsh land and in the same position. What kind of stupid people have we got running this province that think what applies for Toronto is right for James Bay.

All they apparently want from the residents of Ontario is their blood in the form of taxes and not to have a care or a say in turning some value.

Prima Donnas of Chess Clash in Iceland
Fischer and Spassky Finally Get Down to Business

By PETER KIERNAN

NEW YORK (CP) — There's a kind of a flash over most of the chess clubs of the world.

It's a loud bash, following as it does the collecting sigh of relief that marked Bobby Fischer's final acceptance of terms to meet the reigning world champion, Soviet chessmaster Boris Spassky.

The relief was also felt in the U.S. state department, which had been able to do nothing but wring its hands in silent despair while Moscow scored propaganda points as the protracted U.S.-player-proposed parleys ate just about everyone in sight by his pre-game tactics.

He has, however, the player fans love to hate; in some respects not an unsympathetic sitor. From a publicity point of view, he couldn't have done better.

The Reykjavik confrontation between two players sitting on either side of a stone slab with 64 squares, which was hewn by a man who is generally adept at carving grave stones, is the chess match of the century, thanks largely to the antics of Bobby Fischer.

"The world of chess would be a full place without him," commented Spassky as one stage during the protracted negotiations leading up to the championship.

The world of chess could also be a lot less lucrative. Until Reykjavik, the largest purse as far as is known, was the $70 000 prize put up for the 1921 Capablanca-Lasker contest in Havana. This one is worth $250,000 and catapults gladiators of the chess board into the monetary ranks of those in the ring and on the football field.

There are 130 journalists from all over the world in the Icelandic capital and the coverage the tournament is getting in newspapers and on television is more that of space shots and the Viet nam war.

Again, thanks to Fischer.

In the Soviet Union and, for that matter, many other European and Latin countries, chess is a national sport.

Boris Spassky was "Soviet sportsman of the year" in 1963.

In the U.S. and Canada, chess ranks in the minds of most sports fans somewhere between knitting and tiddly-winks.

This match is changing that, too.

It will be a long time before championship chess is played in Yankee Stadium perhaps, but on thousands of boards across North America, players of all calibres are following every move made in Reykjavik.

In New York, the first match was shown on WNET's Channel 13 with a demonstration of the pieces on a large board and explaining the action. The station's audience was not overwhelmed with callers. Some to complain that the chess expert, Shelby Lyman was explaining too much, others to complain he wasn't explaining enough.

It's coverage that Joe Frazier could envy.

Through the years Fischer has complained in various matches about everything from the air conditioning, the lighting and the positioning of the cameras of the International Chess Federation (FIDE).

And through the years his complaints have been remarkably well heeded considering that even his closest friends find him a irascible, painfully moody and painfully stubborn.

FIDE, for example, tightened up its rules on tournament draws and changed the challengers' cut of the purse from elimination.

Now, all of his complaints have been answered, his whims satisfied, and he stands in contrast at the pinnacle of the chess world.

It was reported that despite his temperament, there was a slight smile on his face when he congratulated Spassky on his initial victory.

Even if he goes on to lose the series, he has a lot to smile about.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Canadian troops fighting in Korea believe they are fighting the war without the support of the people back home. That view was expressed today by Corporal Arthur H. Empey, 24-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Empey, Harriet St., who has returned after serving a six-month hitch with the PPCLI in Korea. Corporal Empey was among a group of five district soldiers who returned home. "There is nothing to do... nothing", he said. "There are no cities or towns, only villages. You might get acquainted and learn your way around, but by the time you get back next day, the village is gone. Shot up and destroyed".

The S. R. McCrory Construction Co. will build Belleville's new east end firehall at a contract price of $74,281. Only two tenders were received by council and although the accepted tender was the higher, contract was given to McCrory because of a "moral obligation" which council felt it owed the contracting firm.

Figures of fish fry distributed this season are 25,800,000 pickerel, 63,000 speckled trout and 1,950,000 Bass. Pickerel have been distributed all the way from Campbellford to Muskoka with the Trent River at Trenton belifford receiving 2,000,000; Crowe Lake at Marmora, 1,000,000. Bass another million; Hound Lake at Havelock, one million and another million at Paudaush Lake near Bancroft.

Hellyer Thwarts Bonus Bill

Kingston Whig-Standard

Why did the renegade Liberal, Paul Hellyer, alone of all those Members of Parliament who were present, block the new baby-bonus legislation? Mr. Hellyer succeeded in keeping the bill from being rushed through before Parliament adjourned until Sept. 18 by being the only MP to refuse to permit an encroachment on the private members' hour. A unanimous vote is necessary before that can be done.

The consequence was the failure of the effort to rush the bill through. This means that the new legislation will be indefinitely delayed and probably killed altogether.

The new plan would have increased the bonus by means test and abolished baby-bonus allowances for the first child in large families. The allowances would have been increased for about 1,000,000 families, reduced for two, and ended for three in 10 years.

The NDP wanted the bill sent back to a Commons committee for re-drafting because the party objects to the means test. The Liberal majority voted this down and thus, by a procedural clearing the legislation.

The question remains concerning Mr. Hellyer's reasons — apart from wanting to obstruct the Liberal Government even more than it is doing to Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet in 1969. Does he think that it is stupid to pay family allowances to all families regardless of need? A great many Canadians and Australians would agree with him, if he did. Or does he think the present increases or reductions — or both — are in need of revision?

It would be nice to know, because not many people in or out of Parliament are going to agree any more. If Mr. Hellyer did that he should give us a lift by telling us what his principles are.

"Music" Men

Another new word has been introduced into the multi-faceted jargon of our day. It is "orchestrated." As in the references recently to William Whitelaw's "carefully orchestrated" moves (now tossed asunder by fresh violence) to defuse the Ulster powderkeg and as in a current report from Washington about concern "among the masterminds orchestrating Nixon's re-election campaign." And what is their concern? It is, according to this report, complacency — a feeling abroad that President Nixon would be a "shoo-in" over Senator McGovern. In any event, we may be sure of endless "orchestrations" to come, in Ulster as well as in the United States. We may be sure also that a lot of the music will be sombre.

McGovern's Victory

Well, Senator George McGovern of South Dakota has finally made it. He has won the Democratic nomination for the presidential race in November. Once the controversy over the California delegates was settled and Senators Humphrey and Muskie withdrew, the road to McGovern's victory was finally clear.

The palaver, hot air and frenetic manoeuvrings of the United States political scene are now in temporary limbo. It will not be for long though. With an election in November neither President Nixon, who will be carrying the republican standard, nor Senator McGovern will have time for more than the briefest interludes between campaigning in an earnest. With rumors of a possible breakthrough in the Vietnam peace talks Nixon will want to try and have that hitherto intransigent problem settled and behind him. If he does, it could in all probability ensure a republican victory, an outcome which is thought fairly probable in any event.

CP News Briefs

Swann Sought Life Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Noah Torno, chairman of the board of trustees of the Royal Ontario Museum; said Thursday that Peter Swann is seeking employment with a Boston museum while still under contract to the ROM.

He said Mr. Swann requested a life-time contract with the museum at a time when there was still seven months to run on his existing 18-month contract as ROM director. Moreover, he was at the same time negotiating for a position with the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

Mr. Torno said the 18 month contract was the last attempt to work with Mr. Swann in restoring harmony in the museum's administration. He said also that Mr. Swann had received $83,337 in severance pay under the contract's terms.

Want Trade

BUFFALO (AP) — State University expansion and increased trade with Canada were suggested Thursday as ways to spur growth in a stagnating Buffalo-area economy.

The recommendations were contained in a 117-page report issued by Paul W. Dixon and Raymond W. Waszmansky of the Greater Buffalo Development Foundation. The report was commissioned by Erie County at a cost of $30,000.

May Use Shilo

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — German finance minister Helmut Schmidt said Thursday "most of the steps have been taken" towards signing a formal agreement with Canada to use Canadian Forces Base Shilo, some 23 miles east of here, as temporary training facilities for German troops.

Offer Rewards

CALGARY (CP) — A program offering rewards for anonymous information on drug trafficking is being planned by a citizens' group.

William Fisher said Thursday he has collected 60 signatures supporting the project which would be modelled after one operating in London, Ont.

No Public Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Dalton Bales announced Thursday that no formal inquiry will be held in the case of Judge G. G. Marshman of London, Ont., removed from the bench five months ago for reasons never made public.

Mr. Bales said in a statement he will direct Judge Marshman to meet with Chief Judge Arthur D. Klein of the provincial court.

Without elaborating, he said Judge Klein "will reassign Judge Marshman to the provincial courts in Middlesex County at a time as the chief judge, deems appropriate."

Deal Offered

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Police Association of Nova Scotia says it is prepared to surrender its legal right to strike in exchange for a firm government commitment that municipalities will not be allowed to replace police with private security men.

Youth Drowns

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Dobson, 16, of Toronto drowned Thursday when he was carried down a creek in a park by a sudden rush of water following a thunderstorm.

While being carried down the creek police said, he was swept through a block-long culvert.

Brian had been playing at the creek with three friends. Another youth was also carried through the culvert but was not injured seriously.

Jug Deposit

TORONTO (CP) — Dominion Dairies Ltd. of Toronto has added a five-cent deposit on its non-returnable milk jugs, making them technically returnable to comply with government regulations.

However the polyethylene jugs, which cost five cents to make, will not be used again. Instead they will probably be recycled and remoulded into other products.

Plan Search

CHICAGO (Reuter) — United Air Lines announced Thursday it will search hand luggage of all passengers boarding Boeing 727 jetliners in an effog to stop skyjackings.

A Cool Spot

One of the favorite outdoor lunch hour spots for office workers in downtown Toronto is the pool in front of city hall. Remember to arrive early to ensure a seat. (CP Photo)

Power Export Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — A Fort Frances, Ont., power and paper company has won cabinet approval to export electric power to its United States parent across the border, despite local fears that the decision could cost jobs.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday the cabinet has upheld a national energy board ruling to permit Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. to export power to Boise Cascade Corp. at International Falls, Minn.

Federal System Called Block to Aiding Poor

TORONTO (CP) — A report prepared for an international meeting on social welfare says Canada's federal government system is a major stumbling block to improving the lot of the country's estimated five million poor.

It also says Canadian politicians are so preoccupied with promoting what they call the "average quality of life, they forget one out of five Canadians lives in poverty.

The report was prepared by a 30-member Canadian committee of the International Conference on Social Welfare, a group represented by 55 countries that operates as a world forum of health, welfare and education spokesmen. It meets Aug. 13-19 in The Hague, Netherlands.

Reuben Baetz of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Council on Social Development and a member of the committee, says the report isn't as much an attack on federalism as it is a "recognition of the limitations of government, of the federal system in developing social policies."

Major conclusions of the report:

—Welfare programs are almost impossible to co-ordinate in a political structure that not only splits money, authority and responsibility among three levels of government, but also promotes hostility among local politicians who feel they have no say in federal programs.

—Politicians represent an upper-middle income bracket with no idea of what it's like to be poor.

—The federal government created high unemployment through restrictive economic policies but left the burden of welfare costs to provinces who retaliated by imposing get-tough measures on the unemployed.

—Canadian social planners react to "casualties" and social problems "after the fact" instead of trying to prevent problems.

—Canadians have little sympathy for the unemployed on welfare, even when the need for welfare is beyond their control.

London Bible College 'Doctorates' Assailed

TORONTO (CP) — George Kerr, minister of colleges and universities, said Thursday he is investigating the charter of Philathea College, an unaccredited Bible college in London, Ont.

His statement came after published reports that Philathea graduates hold, and have held, respectable academic and professional positions in New York City. The reports centred on the founder of a Long Island school for gifted children, faculty members at Fordham University and the City University of New York as well as the former director of a city-financed drug program whose contract was allowed to lapse after the program was evaluated as offering "pseudo-psychotherapy."

Dr. Morton Schillinger, executive director of the New York State Psychological Association, told the New York Times Sha because persons with "doctorates" from the college are deeply involved in mental therapy and counselling, he considers them "a serious professional and ethical hazard."

Mr. Kerr said he will cancel the college's charter if it is being misused, either obviously or subtly.

Mr. Kerr said the school is "considered a bit of a joke in the London area" but any restrictive measures taken in the future would have to include all small private institutions which issue degrees or diplomas and he is reluctant to take such measures.

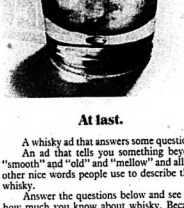
Test your whisky knowledge. Then test your whisky.



At last.

A whisky ad that answers some questions.

An ad that tells you something beyond "smooth" and "old" and "mellow" and all the other nice words people use to describe their whisky.

Answer the questions below and see just how much you know about whisky. Because the more you know, the more you'll appreciate the best. Which is what we honestly and firmly believe our whisky is. And once you've taken the test, we're sure you'll agree.

1. Canadian whisky is rye whisky.

True☐ False☐

Well, by definition, yes. Rye whisky, Canadian whisky, and Canadian rye whisky are one and the same. Rye is a grain that's always used, but you just can't make fine Canadian whisky without using others. Rye is important, sure, but corn, barley malt and other grains are very much involved. The variety of grains has a major effect on the flavour of the whisky. In fact, we consider grains so important that we've spent hundreds of thousands of dollars breeding suitable varieties and working with Canadian farmers to ensure the finest quality for whisky-making. We're the only distiller in Canada who goes so far. But we believe it's worth it.

2. Science has replaced the art of whisky-making.

True☐ False☐

False. Distilling whisky is a science, but blending whisky is an art. The thing that makes a great whisky great is a human being. A blender. It takes all of his artistry, experience and know-how to select the right whiskies, to balance the blend, and to achieve the exact taste every time. In fact, we consider this role so important that our blenders are the men in charge. Not only do they blend to our master blender's precise specifications, but every batch must be tasted and approved by our blenders before a single bottle is filled. If what we've blended doesn't quite measure up to their standards, the master blender can stop production. Which he's been known to do. Granted, that's a lot of faith to put in one man. But we believe that he knows more about the making of Canadian whisky than any man alive.

3. The more you distill whisky, the richer it becomes.

True☐ False☐

A definite no. Many whiskies of different characters—dry, mellow, heavy, medium, smooth, and light—go into the final blend. The richer ones among them just won't be rich if they go through the still more than once. And the lighter ones simply don't improve in flavour if they go through more than twice. The real secret of distilling is in the judgment and skill of the man who runs the still. And if he can't get it right those first times through, he just can't get it right.

4. The older the whisky, the better the whisky.

True☐ False☐

There's no magic age for whisky. Sure, it has to be at least a few years old, but there is such a thing as too old. You see, the whisky you drink is really a blend of many separate whiskies. To get the best flavour in the finished product, each separate whisky must see at its flavour peak. No one age is perfect because each whisky has an optimum age which depends on what went into it. A period of ripeness, if you will. Before which it's not quite smooth enough and after which it tends to taste weak and bitter. To say that all the whiskies in a blend will be a given age, just isn't good whisky-making. To become a part of our blend, every whisky has to reach its own particular flavour peak first. Even if it takes 12 years to reach it.

5. The smaller the distillery, the more consistent the taste.

True☐ False☐

Curiously false. To achieve the same consistent taste in every blend, a master blender needs a wide range of individual flavours. One distillery, it seems, just doesn't provide enough variables. And variations in local waters, in climate, and in the effects these have in every step of whisky-making—help provide the flavour difference in individual whiskies. With 6 distilleries across Canada, we have the flexibility to produce this wide range of individual flavours. Then, we ship these blending whiskies back and forth between our distilleries so that every final blend is identical. True, it costs us money other distillers don't spend. But we feel it's money well spent for the consistent taste it gives to you.

6. Whisky is a taste you have to acquire.

True☐ False☐

It all depends on you and the whisky. Pour a little of your whisky as you would a liqueur. Note the aroma and how long it lingers. Sip slowly and savour the taste. Add water, soda, or ginger ale if you like, because it shouldn't be able to mask the flavour. Now try Seagram's V.O. Notice the difference? That's because V.O. is a balanced blend of as many as 120 whiskies. If it weren't carefully balanced, it wouldn't be a blend at all, but a mix. And with what you now know about whisky, a mix is not nearly good enough for you. Is it?

Shouldn't your whisky be Canada's Finest?

Seagram's V.O.

Made in Canada and proud of it.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD MOORE

Moore — Kleinsteuber

Rev. William Lamb officiated at the recent double - ring wedding ceremony in Holloway St. United Church of Barbara Joan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kleinsteuber, Belleville and Donald Charles Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, RR 3 Belleville. Miss Elsie Barnard was soloist while Douglas Hoare provided organ music.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor length empire waisted long sleeved white gown made of crepe with white chiffon overlay. Silk organza ruffles enhanced the bodice and cuffs. Her crepe bow headpiece which was highlighted with silk organza ruffles fell to a cathedral train. She carried a lace covered Bible crested with a mauve orchid.

Maid of honor, Miss Shirley Kleinsteuber, of Belleville, sister of the bride wore a floor length mauve flowered polyester silk gown over deep mauve taffeta. The high waist was accented by a purple velvet trim. Flowered polyester silk bows were worn in her hair and she carried a nosegay of mauve and white mums.

Bridesmaids, Miss Linda Kleinsteuber of Belleville sister of the bride, Miss Nancy Powell, Mallorytown, niece of the bride, Miss Jean Rashotte of Belleville and junior bridesmaids, Miss Norma Powell of Mallorytown, niece of the bride and Miss Angela Watson of British Columbia, niece of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the maid of honor and carried similar flowers.

Flower girl was Tanya Powell, niece of the bride, of Mallorytown. She wore a gown identical to the bridal attendants and carried a basket of white and mauve mums.

William McQuire of Tweed was best man. Ushers were David Chalmers, Morley Cameron and Fred Smith all of Belleville.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, the Laurentians and points east, the bride donned white polyester crepe hot pants trimmed with navy polka dots. Navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations completed her ensemble.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 29 Charlotte St., Belleville.

Shower Held For Recently Married Pair

2nd THURLOW — Many friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson gathered at their home on Friday evening (June 16th) in honor of their daughter, Peggy and husband, Wally Fedderson who were recently married in Belleville.

An appropriate address was read by Mrs. M. Mitchell signed on behalf of the community by Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. B. Pyett and Mrs. S. Ray.

Gifts were presented to the couple and following the unwrapping, Mr. and Mrs. Fedderson expressed their thanks.

Later, lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Party Held for Students

TWEED — Grade 8 students of Tweed District Hungerford Senior Public School, said good-bye recently to their Algonquin Trail, as they advanced to the Centre Hastings Secondary School (Madoc) where they will begin classes in September. Mark Vance was the Valedictorian. Pianist for the evening's program was Miss Joan Mayer, as they advanced to the Centre Hastings Secondary School (Madoc) where they will begin classes in September. Mark Vance was the Valedictorian. Pianist for the evening's program was Miss Katherine Burnside and Garry Smith was master of ceremonies. Principal W. S. Brown expressed greetings on behalf of the staff while vice-principal G. Wilberden presented General Proficiency Grade Awards to Miss Elizabeth Seekings and Andy Roy. Diplomas were presented by L. Gunning and Mrs. I. Bateman. Mrs. Louise Wannamaker introduced the guest speaker, W. Beevor, principal of the Centre Hastings Secondary School, while Dean Lough, president of the Pupil's Council, expressed appreciation to the guest speaker.

Chaconne at the party held following the program were G. Wilberden, B. Treanor and Mrs. M. Cassidy.

Special Speaker At Convention

TORONTO (CP) — Recommendations that women be found to run for political office and to be appointed to the Senate were passed Tuesday by delegates to the national convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

About 300 women are representing the 4,800-member group at the four-day meeting that opened Monday.

They resolved that members should look for women qualified and willing to be nonpartisan for municipal office and give them support and encouragement.

Resolutions to be taken to the federal government recommended that more women be appointed to the Senate and that the $4,000 property qualification for membership in the Senate be abolished.

Women represent half the country's population, but only four percent of the Senate, the resolution said.

"Four provinces have never been represented by a woman Senator. The resolution is not asking for special consideration for women, but merely for a Senate more truly representative of the population of Canada."

Convention Recommendations

TORONTO (CP) — If women want an effective voice, they must join political parties, do their share of the work, and get elected as party members, says Grace MacInnis, New Democratic member of Parliament for Vancouver Kingsway.

She was the convention speaker Tuesday at the 22rd biennial meeting of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Mrs. MacInnis said women have been too slow to get involved in politics and now, with the interest in women's rights, are trying the wrong way to enter politics.

"One of the facts you've got to accept, whether you like it or not, is that politics today means political parties.

"There are women who believe they can go in as Independents, but if you want to be effective, there is no other way but to choose a party."

She compared independents to turning wheels or dynamos that go nowhere because they are attached to nothing.

She said women, if they take a new approach to politics, can make people and the human environment the top priority of government.

400 Women Pilot Their Own Aircraft

TORONTO (CP) — More than 400 women, some piloting their own aircraft, will converge on this city today for the annual convention of the Ninety-Nines.

The organization, with 4,000 members in 23 countries, was formed in 1929 with Amelia Earhart as its first president. At that time there were 99 members—hence the name.

To qualify for membership in the Ninety-Nines, a woman must have a private pilot's licence.

Although some convention participants will be flying here in commercial airlines, some will arrive in private planes.

This is the first time the annual five-day event is being held in Canada, where 150 members of the club reside.

Local Delegates at Convention

E. Aulin New B and P President

Women should prepare themselves to compete for jobs outside of teaching, nursing and office work says Mrs. Elizabeth Aulin, new president of the Canadian Business Clubs.

"Too many women act as shrinking violets and shy away from jobs in other professions and in politics and law" she said in a special interview with the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer.

Mrs. Aulin said women should accept the challenge and prepare themselves to compete as a person. First we are a person then a woman, she said.

During her two year term of office she hopes to see many of the recommendations contained in the Royal Commission Status of Women report implemented.

Important issues contained in the 167 recommendations concern day care, equal opportunity and changes to make abortions a moral and medical issue rather than a legal issue, family planning, changes in succession duties, and income tax changes to assist single parents.

The Canadian Federation, she said, plans to meet with the federal government early next year to present a brief based on the report. Earlier this year a delegation met with Prime Minister Trudeau and seven of his cabinet ministers.

Views concerning provincial matters are given to legislature assemblies by provincial delegates, she said.

Mrs. Aulin wants to increase the membership of the federation by 1,000 during the next two years. At present, the membership stands at 5,000. She said promotion of educational services offered by the organization is one way local clubs can foster new interest. The Canadian federation is joined with 51 countries to form the international body representing 300,000 women.

The Canadian federation wants to increase the working standards for women particularly in the area of fringe benefits, including medical plans and retirement funds, she said.

Mrs. Aulin says she will continue her teaching duties while president of the federation. Executives and members alike must be working women, she said.

Mrs. Aulin's son Dale, is a parts manager of a Kamloops auto firm.

She expects her hobby of gardening will suffer for the next two years because of her trips to each of the 10 provinces where clubs exist. "Already I have let the grass grow over the garden," she said.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Can phones ring with 'character'?

YES, despite the contentions of some technical people who maintain that the telephone is an insulated instrument that rings the same for casual or important calls. Walk by at a pay telephone in the street starts ringing, and notice how dull and impersonal it sounds. While using that same phone, you may have to ask someone to call you back on it because you've run out of change. Now you hear a difference that tells you that ring is just for you.

Should allowance loans be allowed?

OF COURSE, it is a rare parent who can deny his child a request for a loan on his allowance. It's the rare child, too, who will learn anything about thrift from his parents. While they are telling the youngster he should try to learn that he cannot have everything he wants immediately, the parents are usually running up charge accounts to buy the things they can't put off having until they have the money for them.

Must a happy wife 'pinch' herself?

NO. If a happy wife believes she must keep pinching herself to reassure herself she is not dreaming, she might need professional help to enable her to accept her happiness. Naturally, there are times when a wife hits extreme peaks of happiness, when she may wonder if it is really happening to her. But on the whole, a wife who loves her husband and knows he loves her is secure enough to be happy about having what she has.

Finds Double Standard Unfair

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: After 16 years I am getting sick of my husband's unfaithful behavior. It started some years ago, when he went to a family wedding two days after our twins were born and stayed away all night.

Now when he sees a woman with a big bust ant a nice figure he almost breaks his neck flirting and following her.

I asked him if he loves me and he says yes. I told him if I do things he didn't like he was to tell me.

He only told me once. I would go up to a man I know well, and kiss him on the cheek, and he told me not to do that because it looked fresh. I don't do that any more. But he ignores what I ask of him — to stop carrying on with other women. — Betrayed.

Dear Betrayed: It's what they call the double standard. Some men think the women ought to slow down but think they should be free to enjoy all the pleasures of bachelorhood.

Perhaps he does still love you — in his way. But it is an immature thing, a selfish kind of loving which ignores any self-discipline on the part of the lover. With privileges go obligations.

If you find the situation intolerable, say so to him. Then say it in more detail, to a marriage counselor. You might yet save that detestable marriage of yours.

Dear Doris: As a result of your mention in the column, we have received a number of requests for large print Bibles and New Testaments. We have supplied these.

Our special emphasis is the home and all of our ministry is done by or in the local church. We make Bibles available for Bible study classes and our edition of The Living New Testament is meeting a tremendous response. — Canadian Hi-w-ay Bible League, Box 324, Weston, Ontario.

Dear League: More power to you! I know many of my readers will be glad to seek the help you are ready to give.

Dear Doris: My cousin is getting married next month and we plan to give them a bridal hamper. This hamper will not cost us anything, so should we buy another gift besides? — Wondering.

Dear Wondering: Is this hamperful of groceries to get them started at housekeeping? If it is of fair size and value the couple receiving it will appreciate it, regardless of how much (or how little) it cost you.

If you would like to round it out by adding a few kitchen gadgets, this might add to its charm and your feeling of adequacy.

Make your gift appropriate and your bride and groom will be happy with it. It expresses your goodwill.

(To know all is to forgive all. Let Doris help you to understand and live happily with those you care about.)

Ann Landers

Good Advice for Others

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing this letter because I can't sleep. I'm leaving home tomorrow and will probably be gone a long time. Suddenly I realized what home means to me and what it means to have a mother. In spite of the hard time she has given me (and those I have given myself) I know that one day Mom will not be here. Until tonight I never stopped to consider that possibility.

I hope every kid out there who will be leaving home soon, whether it's college, a job, the service, or just to split, will let your mother know before you go what she means to you.

By the time this appears in the paper (if it does) I will have hit the road to get my head straightened. I had not written this letter my mother would like to think that I did, so I'll leave off without signing it. A few thousand other mothers would like to think their son or daughter wrote it, too. So call me—

Love And Peace.

P.S.—I used to read your column and snicker because I was sure I'd never get into phoney. Here's one Ann Landers didn't make up.

Dear Love And Peace: If you see this in print, you are—please drop a line and let me know. And to get your head together and how you're shaking it.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are busy with other serious problems but there is beginning to get to me. It's my mother. She's a wonderful person and every one loves her, but she can't get a name straight. When the kids were over the same kids she's been seeing for years), she calls them by the wrong names. Arthur is "Arnold," Larry is "Lennie" and Vernon is "Peter." Then she roll-m-t- her sister's name even though she is looking right at us.

Mom is 45, too young to be senile. The kids never say any thing but it's embarrassing. Any suggestions? — Redfaced in Redlands.

Dear Red: Wait 'til you're 45 and let's see how well YOU do. In the meantime, make light of it. Don't call attention. Be matter-of-fact. Say, "Mom, Arnold just left—this is Arthur."

Dear Ann Landers: The vacation season is here again. Nearly half of America will be packing up to spend some time this month and next. After twenty years of operating a beach resort I've decided we are rapidly becoming a nation of slobs.

I refer specifically to people who go into small shops to buy gifts and souvenirs. Usually they're in swimsuits. As the sun goes down, or when it begins to rain. This creates a problem because people don't use common sense. Here are some simple rules to help ease, if not eliminate, some problems:

1. Have your money ready. Don't wait to be served and then start digging around in the bottom of your handbag. You know you're going to have to pay for the merchandise eventually.

2. Decide what you want before you ask the salesperson to help you. Most items are on display for this purpose.

3. Return merchandise to the proper bin, hook or shelf.

4. Price tickets are taped to the outside for a reason. Don't break open packaged articles.

5. Don't jam the aisles while socializing.

6. Report dirty bathrooms to the management.

We'd like to enjoy your vacation, too. Please help us.—Kure

Women's Institutes

MOUNTAIN VIEW WI

MOUNTAIN VIEW — The July meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute was held at Huff's Island School with a good attendance of members and guests. Mrs. Leo Wood, 1st vice-president presided over the meeting as well as hosted with the assistance of Mrs. Harold Wood.

The 4-H Girls were present and gave a display of their notebooks and articles which they had made. Nancy Min ger gave a talk on being a Canadian and Debbie Ruston a space on the Cereal Shelf.

Mrs. W. Barber spoke on the books and crafts studied and mentioned the learning of artificial respiration by the girls. Mrs. Ken Hall, past president then presented spoons to the girls for each completing project and Penny Barber thanked the institute for the gifts.

Mrs. Bobby also presented gifts to the leaders, Mrs. W. Barber, and Mrs. B. Ruston. Mrs. Methey was also presented with a gift for her faithful years as president.

Mrs. Lottie Green, convener for Family and Consumer Affairs was called upon and with the assistance of Mrs. K. Hall and Mrs. R. Ruston showed the group the many uses of paper. Including her presentation were paper towels, tissue paper, paper clothes and paper table settings.

Parenthood Clinic Plans Campaign

HAMILTON (CP) — Birth-control information is being offered door-to-door in a 12-month campaign by the Planned Parenthood Clinic.

Marylen Wharf says that only about two per cent of the people visited have refused to talk to the workers and Mrs. Wharf says she has had only two indignant phone calls. One woman called the workers set snoopers. The other said she resented the visit as an invasion of privacy.

The campaign is being carried on in low-income areas. It grew out of concern over information in a 1969 poverty study report done by the social planning and research council of Hamilton.

Mrs. Wharf says two conclusions were that professional helpers were not reaching people on the subject of birth control and that much misinformation was handed around. Most of the people chosen have no more than Grade 12 schooling but they know their community, are parents themselves and in many cases speak two languages. Mrs. Wharf says they also believe in family planning.

"A number of the group working with us now are either on welfare or on family benefits."

Although their main job is to spread birth-control information, they were told how to refer people to abortion agencies. One worker helped prevent a woman from taking an overdose of pills. Another encouraged a needed visit to a doctor.

The workers confer with Mrs. Wharf every two weeks to discuss the visits they've made.

An anonymous form is filled out, including age group of the person interviewed, number of children, occupations and what contraceptive methods the husband and wife use.

At the end of the year Mrs. Wharf will write a report on the program. It is a demonstration program and funded by the department of national health and welfare grants division.

She will then be able to assess if we were correct in our premise that an indigenous group of workers have as much success if we were correct in our premise that an indigenous group of workers have as much work than a professional person."

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducing pounds and inches of ugly excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, thighs and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Naran is sold by many and endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Peaches Make Fresh Desserts

Fruit desserts make summer-fresh flavor a year-round affair is the word from the Ontario Tender Fruit Institute, Toronto.

For family meals or special entertaining this Peach Sparkle Pie is a light summer dessert that brings fresh peach flavor ahead of season. For the best "peach" flavor and texture, look for free-stone peaches. Peach slices in a graham base, and a wafer crust in place of pastry, create a pie that's light enough to go with any meal—serve it after a full dinner, a light lunch, or an evening of bridge.

PEACH SPARKLE PIE

1 1-3 cups graham wafer crumbs

1-3 cup brown sugar, lightly packed

1-3 cup butter, melted

¼ cup lemon juice

1¼ cups orange juice (unsweetened)

½ cup sugar

½ tsp. salt

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

¼ cup cold water

2 19-oz. cans Ontario free-stone peaches

1 cup whipping cream — optional

Combine crumbs, sugar and butter. Press into a 9-inch pie plate. Chill.

Combine lemon juice, orange juice, sugar, and salt in saucepan. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer 10 min. Soften gelatin in cold water 5 min.; add to hot juices and stir until gelatin dissolves.

Drain peaches. Cut halves into thick slices; place on towelling to drain well. Add peach slices to gelatin mixture, stirring gently to coat slices. Chill until slightly thick. Pour into pie shell; chill until firm. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream if desired.

Light 'n' lively, this peach sparkle pie makes fresh peach flavor part of every season. It's an easy occasion dessert for family or company. (Ontario Tender Fruit Institute)

Larger Families Encouraged

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government is encouraging couples to have three or more children. A monthly bonus of 500 drachmas, or $17, will go to parents for each child from the third onward.

Many countries try to discourage a growth in population, but some authorities say this country will have practically all old people by the year 2000 unless something is done now. Population is growing at about half the average for the rest of the world.

The deputy economy minister, Sotirios Agapitides, concedes that "Greece's social evolution is proceeding at a faster pace than its economic progress."

Cities have been absorbing more and more rural population. Architects and city planners have tried to cram as many people as possible into as small a space as possible. Clusters of apartment dwellings have appeared in the major cities. The average blue- or white-collar worker can afford only a two- or three-room flat—just large enough for one or two children.

Although illegal, abortions are relatively inexpensive and easy to obtain.

Emigration is another factor keeping the population down to 8.6 million.

Food Safety Tips

For food spoilage bacteria, life begins at 40 degrees (above refrigerator temperature). At room temperature, bacteria grow and reproduce best. Unless food is heated past 140 degrees, they will continue to grow. Food may look, taste, and smell safe, but still offer a possible hazard, say food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food. Eggs, poultry, processed meats, ham salads, custards, cream desserts, and milk products are easily contaminated. Without proper care of these foods, food spoilage bacteria can thrive.

Some types of food spoilage bacteria are present everywhere. Food can be contaminated by the person preparing it, by the air, or by utensils. Keep foods either well chilled or hot (above 140 degrees) to prevent growth of bacteria and the hazard that results.

At picnics take special care with sandwich fillings of meat, fish, poultry. Potato salads and chicken salads deserve similar attention. Keep foods cold, using a cooler or a well-insulated basket. Frozen bread or frozen sandwiches and frozen tins of fruit juice help keep temperatures low if food must be kept a few hours before eating. Juice will thaw in 3 to 4 hours and be chilled and fresh when the picnic is ready. For hot foods, use a good thermos jar to prevent cooling to lukewarm temperatures.

MP Urges Expanded Snowmobile Facilities

TORONTO (CP) — A member of the Ontario legislature took the government to task Thursday for not doing enough to provide snowmobile operators with the sport.

Margaret Scrivener, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto-St. David, said that although some areas are open for the use of snowmobiles in winter, "to date our authorities have not made a great enough effort to provide snowmobile operators with the facilities that they need."

She told the select legislature committee on snow vehicles and all - terrain vehicles that governments "have demonstrated their concerns for the skiers, tobogganers, skaters and curlers with tangible buildings and facilities."

"Too little has been done for the thousands of snowmobile operators."

The committee, under Chairman Alex Carruthers (PC—Durham), began hearing briefs Thursday after an organizational meeting Wednesday. The three-party committee was announced at the close of the legislature June 30 by Premier William Davis.

Earlier this year, Mrs. Scrivener introduced a bill, which died on the order paper, urging the government to set aside large areas of land as ecological sanctuaries which would protect animals and plant life from recreational vehicles.

She repeated the plea to the committee, saying there are more than 200,000 snowmobiles in Ontario.

Motorist Is Charged With Attempted Murder

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — James Lawrence King, 42, of Keswick, Ont., was charged with attempted murder after his car struck and critically injured a young cyclist Wednesday.

The injured cyclist, 18-year old Michael Chauvrette, is in "very critical condition" in Sault Ste. Marie General Hospital, suffering from concussion and a broken leg.

Constable Spencer Coutu, the Wawa OPP constable who investigated the accident, said the boy was travelling north from Wawa on Highway 17 when he was struck from behind by a car which then left the scene.

A man later turned himself in to police.

Montreal Chief Found Honest But Incapable

MONTREAL (CP) — Ripples from a Quebec Police Commission report Thursday that Montreal police director Jean-Jacques was incompetent have aroused spread to speculation on the director's future and possible shakeups in the regional government police force on Montreal Island.

The report cleared Mr. Saulnier of six charges of corruption stemming from his stint as captain of the morality squad but ruled that he has "neither the competence nor the aptitudes" to run the 4,122-man Montreal force.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said he intended to "follow up" the report's recommendation that Mr. Saulnier's place on the force be "re-evaluated."

Re-evaluation would, in fact, demote the chief, a process that could take two months.

In the meantime, it is "only normal" that Mr. Saulnier leave his post immediately "considering the conclusions of the commission report," Mr. Choquette said.

Early reports said Mr. Saulnier would quit the force rather than be demoted.

A spokesman for the Montreal Urban Community said the regional government's police director Rene Daigneault is to issue his own report on the division of police powers for the island.

The urban community official said a "far more equitable distribution of rank and power" would be recommended by Mr. Daigneault; a former assistant director of the Montreal City police force who was bypassed for promotion in favor of Mr. Saulnier.

Judgment Reserved In Ballard Case

TORONTO (CP) — Making his final statement at the fraud and theft trial of Harold Ballard Thursday, Crown counsel David Watt charged that Ballard used Marlboro hockey team money to pay off one of his own debts.

"I say the evidence is clear that $25,000 was used to pay off the demand loan—$25,000 from the Marlboro account and the other $2,000 coming from a savings account in Mr. Ballard's name.", Mr. Watt told Judge Harry Deyman.

Judge Deyman reserved judgment after hearing the final arguments from Mr. Watt a d Clay Powell, counsel for the Crown, and J. J. Robinette, who is defending the 67-year-old president of Maple Leaf Gardens against charges of defrauding the Gardens of $305,000.

The Crown alleges that Ballard and his late partner, Stafford Smythe, used Gardens money for services provided for them and put into private bank accounts cheques intended for the Gardens.

Mr. Watt cited bank records Thursday that showed Ballard and Smythe each deposited $25,000 in their personal bank accounts July 30, 1968—the same day $50,000 was withdrawn from the Marlboro hockey club's account.

Guild to Offer Sulman Plaque

Belleville Theatre Guild will commemorate one of its most devoted members, Miss Helen Sulman, who died last week.

A plaque in her memory will be permanently installed on a wall in the Green Room at Pinnacle Playhouse, and it will be awarded every year to a member who has contributed the most to the Guild during that year in any capacity.

Miss Sulman was a founding member of the Guild when it was organized about 21 years ago, and three years ago was made its only life member in recognition of her services.

A well - known personality in Belleville, Miss Sulman contributed her services to almost every charitable and cultural organization in the city, but the theatre was her first love.

Many years ago she was the star pupil of Albert College elocution teacher Miss Jessie Tuile and was a regular performer at the annual recital.

Miss Sulman moved on to act in plays in the city and eventually filled almost every position connected with theatrical performances from director to wardrobe mistress.

In the early days of the Guild she frequently lent her home for rehearsals, when no other accommodation was available, and stored props there.

After she stopped accepting acting roles in Guild performances, Miss Sulman attended rehearsals regularly, never missing a dress rehearsal and at least two public performances of each play the Guild presented.

The Theatre Guild will also put flowers at the altar of Bridge Street United Church on the second Sunday in September in memory of Miss Sulman. Among her many interests was the arrangement of altar flowers at the church, and she performed this task for a long period of time.

"Losing Helen from this city is like losing city hall," a co-worker said of Miss Sulman. "She was a cherished institution here for 70 years."

Most Oppose Open Season

PICTON (Staff) — A survey seeking Prince Edward County residents' views on an open deer season here to date has indicated little support for the proposal.

The survey conducted by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority has received 54 replies from 80 outgoing questionnaires. Of the persons who answered the survey 47 opposed an open season while seven favored it.

Most persons replying to the survey in favor of an open season stipulated that it should in their opinion, be restricted to county residents.

The authority hopes to have its survey completed in time to present its findings at next week's meeting of Prince Edward County council.

Swim Warning

Children from the Belleville-Cannilton area are warned by city police that care should be taken if they are to continue swimming in the area of Lazier's Dam.

The area is unsupervised said City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie and it creates a dangerous situation.

Statistics from Red Cross show that "of the 300 drownings last year in Ontario, 66 were of unsupervised swimmers under the age of 12."

Day Camp to Van der Water So Popular Expansion Taken

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The day camp — sponsored jointly by the city recreation arena department and the Belleville Family YMCA — began this week with virtually all spaces filled for the summer.

The camp takes children from the city to Vander Water Conservation area five days a week.

Originally the proposal was for three sessions for the summer, each consisting of two weeks.

When area parents saw the program was to be held again this summer, a flood of applications made it necessary to schedule a fourth period.

A bus takes the children to the conservation area where instructors split them into groups to begin five hours of playing games, teaching crafts, and stopping the boys from catching frogs.

One of the most valid parts of the experience is they get a chance to explore the outdoors," said one instructor. "City children sometimes miss this opportunity."

The program has been set up so that groups are small and personal.

Each instructor is responsible for 12 children and will take charge of teaching them nature lore, safety and how to have fun without a television.

Each group goes to a separate area in the park on a schedule basis to remedy the problem of one large group.

While one group walks a nature trail, the others might be fishing or playing Red Rover.

"That is what is really perfect about this park," said one instructor. "There is a place to do everything here. Wide open spaces for games, woods, nature trails and the river."

Individually the children are not allowed to go near the river, only in a supervised group.

The program has been enlarged this summer, not only in attendance but in the number of recreational outlets.

This year courses in art and macrame have been added.

One of the main projects done by the class is creating a costume from paper bags to resemble something from nature. After all the costumes are finished they are judged by the instructors.

Sometimes the hot dogs are a little too well done but they taste just fine to the children.

By the time lunch has been put aside and one more game of Red Rover has ended in exhaustion, instructors begin herding the children into the main camp area to prepare for the trip back to the city.

Cost of the course is $12 a child for one week or $20 for the more popular two weeks class.

To supplement the tuition fees, the ministry of community and social services made a grant of $1,500.

Taylor Not Happy With Report

PICTON (Staff) — James Taylor MPP Prince Edward-Lennox has expressed disappointment with the recent Sandbanks report accepted in principle by the provincial government.

The report compiled by Dr. Walter Tovell, associate director of the Royal Ontario Museum, supported continued quarrying by the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. at the Sandbanks for the next two to three years.

Dr. Tovell suggested a 75-year lease held on the 18.2 acre site by the LOCL through negotiation should reach early termination.

He recommended, however, that the LOCL should be allowed to remove the 128,000 tons of sand remaining at the quarry site.

Mr. Taylor said he felt the government should have been more active in assisting the LOCL in its search for an alternate quarry site and claimed other sources exist in Prince Edward and Kingston.

He observed that he was concerned for the job security of cement company employees but did not agree with heavy trucks hauling sand in a tourist area.

Summer Program Popular

Zwick's Park wading pool will be back operating soon — likely next week — after being shutdown more than a week.

A pool construction expert was called in from an out-of-town firm today to examine the floor of the pool — closed since last week when water was first discovered seeping through its sealed expansion joints.

The pool — a daily rendezvous for city and district youngsters as well as mothers seeking supervised recreation for their youngsters while they relax — is operated jointly with the city's recreation department.

It's not certain what caused water to begin seeping through the joints, but a sealant which won't react in water is being sought.

A spokesman for the parks department said today the pool — shut the first time since its 1967 opening — can be expected back in operation sometime next week "unless something unforseen happens."

However the shutdown has created no problems elsewhere in the city's outdoor recreation program. At Park Dale, where a second pool is operated, the area is jammed to capacity at wading periods.

To date, about 1,300 youngsters have registered at the city's 21 recreation centres — up 50 from 1971. For the second year running special programs at community schools are augmenting more traditional outdoor recreation. Archery, gymnastics, volleyball are among programs being held at Sidney Allinson, Queen Mary public schools and Quinte and Moira Secondary schools.

Car Recovered At Road Block

Robert James Gaw, of Toronto, charged with the incident spotted the road block, jumped out of the car at the junction of Highways 401 and 49, and ran.

Const. Howard Adamson of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police raced in pursuit and arrested him.

The car belongs to Kirk Downey of 81 Moira St. West.

House Entered

The stolen articles were a portable television, a stereo set and approximately 45 long playing albums.

Lazier's Dam Swimming Hole Still Popular

High Water on Moira Hinders Use of Beach

Abnormally high water in the Moira River is delaying installation this summer of the seasonal dam at Riverside Park.

And according to city parks officials this year's non - appearance of the dam which forms a small lake in the river, is resulting in enquiries from would-be swimmers and other park users.

However, installation of the seasonal dam is the responsibility of the Moira River Conservation Authority and Resources Manager John Wulz says the high water level is preventing the dam going in.

The reason is that a tractor is required to put the stop logs in place and the high water prevents operation of the tractor.

Mr. Wulz said that normally the dam goes in about the first of July in readiness for the summer holiday season.

He wouldn't even hazard a guess as to when the dam might be put in place.

"I might suggest a date and then a big rain might come along," he said.

In the meantime while awaiting appearance of the seasonal dam, young area swimmers have gone back to their ever popular swimming hole at the old Lazier's Dam a short distance downstream.

Sewer installation on Canniston Road, so far this summer appears to be reducing attendance at Riverside Park. On Thursday as up to three score bathers enjoyed themselves at the old Lazier's Dam, only two or three cars were stopped at Riverside Park and the park area was all but deserted.

Storm sewer installation on the west side of the Riverside Park is also slowing development of the West Riverside Park area.

Originally it was expected that the beach area, the roadway and parking lot would all be in use by this time.

However, the storm sewer installation has made it difficult to get equipment into the area and work will have to wait until huge piles of excavated rock are removed.

Parks administrator Lloyd Syer said yesterday that he was negotiating with the sewer contractor for removal of the rock as soon as possible.

The new eastern - channel - room building on the west river bank is almost ready for use and Mr. Syer says the sand for the 400 foot long beach has been contracted for delivery.

Mr. Syer says the beach area development will be carried out as soon as possible but admits this will be a short season for the west riverbank park area.

Hull Getting Help From All Quarters

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With a little help from his friends, Bobby Hull conceivably may still accompany the rest of Team Canada to Moscow, a city noted for its friendly reception of left-wingers.

But Prime Minister Trudeau made it plain Thursday that he has no plans to solve the Golden Jet's difficulties with the National Hockey League by appropriating him as a national asset and shipping him abroad in September as part of a Russian-Canadian cultural exchange agreement.

Hull, who recently left the NHL to sign a $2.5 million contract as player-coach of Winnipeg Jets of the new World Hockey Association, was one of 35 players asked to report to Team Canada's training camp. But the fine print on the invitation said players must have signed NHL contracts to be eligible.

While he has logged a great deal of ice time in his 15 years with Chicago Black Hawks, Hull is unlikely to commit himself to the uphill task of achieving another 50-goal season with the NHL and simultaneously terrorizing goaltenders in the WHA.

Hockey Canada, the organization of government, business and hockey officials that sponsors Canada's entry in the eight-game series against the Russians, wrote the contract stipulation into its agreement with the NHL last April.

Douglas Fisher, chairman of Hockey Canada's executive committee, explained that there was no thought at the time that anyone other than NHL players would be on the team. Hull's departure to the WHA was still two months away.

Fisher said Hockey Canada is bound by the agreement and NHL President Clarence Campbell, who doubles as a Hockey Canada director, added that the league has no intention of waiving in its direction.

In Ottawa, Mr. Trudeau expressed concern that the project would collapse if the government tried to put pressure on the NHL to play.

"We don't want to end up without an agreement and without players," he said, urging Hockey Canada to try to "put pressure on the NHL from that end."

Fisher said there was an additional problem. The WHA has not yet established relations with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Canada's recognized agency for arranging international games.

The International Hockey Federation, which sanctioned the Canada-Russia series, could approve the participation of NHL players, since the NHL has an agreement with the CAHA. But the status of WHA players was doubtful.

The Hockey Canada official said his organization will not take the initiative in asking the NHL to rescind its contract requirement. But if the NHL voluntarily agreed to let Hull play and if the IHF approved, "it would be a different ball game."

The Golden Jet even had a friend in the enemy camp.

President Harold Ballard of Toronto Maple Leafs said his fellow-governors of the NHL should not stand in the way of Hull's participation in the series.

"I don't give a damn if Hull signed with a team in China," Ballard said. "He's a Canadian and he should be on the Canadian team."

Cheevers Stays With Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — Goalie Gerry Cheevers, who helped Boston Bruins to their second Stanley Cup championship in three years last spring, denied Thursday reports he is considering a jump to the new World Hockey Association.

"There's no way, just no way," Cheevers said Thursday after returning from Toronto where he was introduced as one of the members of Team Canada to play against Russia in September.

Cheevers, a 31-year-old National Hockey League veteran said he is continuing to negotiate a contract with the Bruins and has not talked personally with the WHA.

Cashman Signs

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League announced Thursday the signing of veteran forward Wayne Cashman, 27, to a multi-year contract.

"I'm very happy and am looking forward to going after the Stanley Cup again," Cashman said after agreeing to terms.

Cashman will play for Team Canada against Russia in September before joining the Bruins in training.

Getting Her Lumps

Following six months of training, a broken wrist, and multiple cuts and bruises, Raquel Welch has completed filming MGM's "Kansas City Bomber", an action drama in which the well-endowed starlet portrays a roller derby competitor. In this sequence, Raquel is shown being wiped out by actress Helena Kallianiotes, a national figure skating champion during her high school days.

"You don't fod many women in contact sports" and that's one thing that attracted her to the film, says Miss Welch, who is currently studying the script for a film about the first female professional football player.

Theismann Tosses Last-minute Win

TORONTO (CP) — A last-minute touchdown pass from Joe Theismann to John Sirgusa Thursday night gave Toronto Argonauts a 22-24 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an Eastern Football Conference exhibition game.

A sell-out crowd of 33,135 watched the Argo rally, the first-ever sell-out for a Canadian Football League pre-season match.

The Argos, plagued by three lost fumbles in the first half, at which point they were down 15-7, and another fumble in the second half, got their best direction from Theismann who scored one touchdown himself on an 11-yard run.

Greg Barton played quarterback for Argos in the second quarter and part of the fourth but failed to gain much ground.

Argos' other points came on a Theismann pass to Jim Henderson for a touchdown and Zenon Andruszyn's field goal, two singles and a convert. Ivan Macmillan also scored on a convert.

Tony Gabriel, on a pass from Wally Gabler, Tommy Joe Coffey also on a throw from Gabler and Garney Henley, on a throw from rookie Chuck Exley, accounted for the Ticat touchdowns. Doug Mitchell scored one field goal and a convert while Ian Sunter added a convert.

The Ticats also got a single conceded by Argos when Toronto fumbled the ball out of bounds from the end zone.

The Argos struck first about midway through the first quarter when Theismann led them from their own 12-yard line in 10 plays to set up the five-yard pass to Henderson. Macmillan's convert failed.

Minutes later, a bad punt by Andruszyshyn set Hamilton up on their own 31 and Gabler passed to Henley on the Toronto five. After another pass to Henley went incomplete at the goal-line, Gabler lobbed one into the end zone for Gabriel and Mitchell converted to put Hamilton up front by a point.

The Ticats picked up another point seconds later when John Carlos fumbled the kickoff return. In the ensuing scramble, the ball bounced back into the Argo end zone and out of bounds.

Phaneuf Quits

MONTREAL (CP) — Defensive halfback Al Phaneuf, 38, has quit football after three years with the Alouettes of the Canadian Football League to devote more time to a youth ranch he founded last October.

"It has nothing to do with the Als," Phaneuf said in an interview Thursday. "I've enjoyed playing with them

Interception Gives Lions Big Lift

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Holm dashed back 35 yards with an intercepted pass to give British Columbia Lions a 19-17 victory over Calgary Stampeders in an exhibition Western Football Conference game.

The Stampeders, defending Grey Cup champions, dominated the game, but couldn't push across the points at crucial moments.

Larry Robinson provided all the Calgary offence, with field goals from the 14- and 19-yard lines in the second quarter and another from the 29 in the third.

But Robinson missed on two other opportunities and that'sla spelled the difference for the Lions who used two big plays to offset their scoring after being held in check much of the night by the rugged Stampeders defence.

On the second play Don Moorhead fired a strike to Jim Young in the end zone. Ted Gerela converted.

Hull's Absence Just One Sign

One of hockey's most prized awards since its inception in 1946 has been the Lester Patrick Trophy, awarded in honor of the fiery late New York Ranger coach and general manager "for outstanding service to hockey in the United States."

If there had been a similar award in, say, baseball, it would undoubtedly have gone at least once to Babe Ruth.

In 1969, Robert Marvin Hull's name was inscribed upon the life-size trophy, presumably because he had accomplished such hockey feats as making 50-goal seasons as plentiful as the apple blossoms in his Point Anne environs. The fact his presence helped keep the turnstile clicking in such hockey hotbeds as Oakland was probably another reason behind the selectors' choice.

FIRST FIFTY

His 604 goals for the Chicago Black Hawks make Hull the second - highest scorer in the professional game's history, but judging by the events of the past few days his contributions to the game are considered about as important as those of any third - rate rink rat.

The ommission of Hull from Hockey Canada's team that will play a Russia team an eight-game series this September is like the Baltimore Orioles infield without Brooks Robinson. Worse than that, it's like the Baltimore Oriole infield without bases.

Omitted is, of course, not the word. Blacklisted is.

Hull, you see, committed the heinous sin of accepting nearly $3 million for joining the World Hockey Association, a group that doesn't respect monopoly games like those played by National Hockey League owners.

Not surprisingly, former Hull employer Bill Wirtz was instrumental in making sure that players participating in the Russian series must be signed to NHL contracts, whatever their playing credentials.

What we are witnessing is not so much an encroachment of Hockey Canada's right to send whatever hockey players they want to play the Russians. It's the last straw in an attempt to remove the control of our national sport south of the border, into the hands of such show business wahoos as Charles Finley.

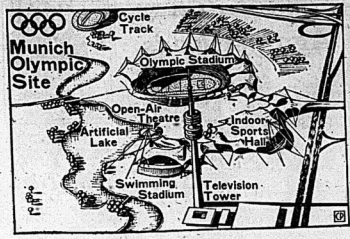
There have been small signs of this creeping Americanitis for several years. It's affected which hockey games Canadians can watch on television at which times.

It began when expansion brought governors into control of a sport played on ice, which they had previously thought was only good for dropping into highballs.

It's continuing with these same men charging newcomers to their exclusive little club $6 million for an entry fee that entitles them to 20 hasbeens or never-will-bes.

Where will it end?

Hopefully, in a Canadian league that will make a better television choice than the Mary Tyler Moore Show for Saturday night viewing.



Blacklisted is.

Swan Fourth Commercial League No-Hitter

Howard and Roberts were taking a few 'Swan' dives early in the season but lately the Printers rightfhander has found his stuff and is flying high.

Bob Swan had more than the Globe Hotel could ha dle in a Commercial Softball League game last night throwing a 5-0 no-hit win. In the second game of the night Quinte Hotel stopped the Ellis Juniors 3-0 on a two-hitter by Scott Reid.

Swan joins the ranks of Howard and Robert teammate Bob Ethier, Quinte's Scott Reid and Rollins' Ted Waite as no-hit pitchers for the season.

Swan missed his bid for a perfect game in the top of the seventh on a disputed call when Ted Wallwork was safe on an error. That was the only Globe runner to reach base as Swan struck out eight in becoming the fourth Commercial League pitcher to toss a no-hitter.

His team mates came up with five runs in the third inning to give Swan his second shutout win in a row. Singles from Pug Kellar, Dwight Rathwell and Swan combined with two walks and an error allowed the five runs to cross the plate.

Losing pitcher Bill Harrison also gave up singles to Kellar and Rathwell and one to Rusty Garvin as the Printers moved four points up on third-place Quinte Hotel and Devolin Motors.

Brian Gariepy and Ron Hill each stroked singles off Reid in the first inning but that was all for the Juniors who dropped their 15th game of the year.

Reid fanned the side to end the only Junior threat and allowed only one more baserunner, on a walk, giving Quinte a tie for third with Devolin Motors. The Hotelmen chuckered up with 12 strikeouts for the night.

A four inning surge brought Quinte all their runs on singles by Terry Lesage, and Rick Decarli p l u s and error and fielder's choice. Lesage added a double to his total hit. Denard bounced a triple off the centre field fence but was nailed at home by a relay from Wayne Andrews to Brian Garjeoy to catcher John Romano.

Ron Hill took the loss on the Ellis rubber, despite allowing only five hits. He struck out two and issued a pair of walks.

SIGNS WITH HAWKS

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Brian Ogilvie, 20, a centre who played last season in the Western Canada Hockey League, announced Wednesday he has signed a three-year no-cut contract with Chicago Black Hawks

Printing Girls Stick to Guns

The Ellis Printers refuse to become non-conformists and break with tradition by losing a game in the Belleville Girls' Minor Softball senior division and they demonstrated their fixed views with a 28-8 win over Mel Barriage.

In junior division games Turcotte Heating slammed the Dairy Queen 26-2 and Doug's Food outlasted Ed Thomas 33-32.

Top Pacers Miss Virus

They're still looking for a cure for the common cold but after the virus attack that has struck the area harness tracks the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway are looking for horses.

The virus is far from epidemic proportions but it has caused the scratching of some of last weeks entries.

Three horses that haven't been struck by the ailment are Hieland Battles, Canal View Way and Lee Bud, the top three finishers in last weeks featured race. All three will be at it again this week in the eighth.

Pirates Paltry Against Reds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates manager Bill Virdon spent a week in Cincinnati Thursday night.

It no doubt seemed that way after the Reds beat his Pirates 2-0 and swept a three-game series of National League division leaders.

"The sweep was just one of those things," said Virdon. "You don't expect them . . . but they happen sometimes in baseball."

It happened to the Pirates because they just weren't themselves. The normally heavy-hitting East leaders manufactured a paltry total of three runs in the series.

"The Reds had the edge on us in all departments," Virdon pointed out. "They beat us in pitching, the long ball and fielding with the big double play."

Along with their usual proficiency at the plate, the West-leading Reds also killed Pittsburgh with seven double plays in the series, including one Thursday night that helped Gary Nolan pick up his 11th victory of the year.

In the other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals topped Atlanta Braves 2-0 and Houston Astros defeated Chicago Cubs 7-2.

In American League action, Minnesota Twins belted Boston Red Sox 10-0; Texas Rangers whipped Cleveland Indians 5-0 and Detroit Tigers turned back Kansas City Royals 6-4.

Nolan allowed three Pittsburgh hits in the first two innings, but settled down to hold the Pirates off before Clay Carroll came in to pitch the ninth for Cincinnati.

"I simply ran out of gas," said Nolan, who explained that he was tired after throwing a lot of fast balls in his eight innings of work.

The performance lowered Nolan's earned run average to 1.81, best among National League starters, as he became the league's first 13-game winner. He has lost only two times.

"I made some awfully good pitches," said Nolan, "especially with my change up and it all just came together with my curve and fast ball."

Nolan was knocked down in a play at first base in the fifth inning when he sacrificed a runner and ran into Pittsburgh second baseman Rennie Stennett. But it didn't seem to upset his motion on the mound.

"After that collision I got a little fuzzy," said Nolan. "But I was picked up by the ovation I got from the crowd when I came out for the top of the sixth."

"I know Nolan got hit," said Virdon, "but from our guys, you couldn't tell that it bothered him that much."

Cesar Geronimo stroked three hits, including a home run in the fifth off Pittsburgh starter Steve Blaus. The Reds scored an insurance run int he eighth on Bobby Tolan's sacrifice fly.

Detroit scored five runs in the first inning to give Mickey Lolich a big cushion and the star Tiger southpaw held on to beat Kansas City for his 15th victory, tops in the majors.

Trio Tries For Title

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario amateur golf championship has narrowed into a battle among three men; one accustomed to winning the title and two others with a chance to grab it for the first time.

In the driver's seat going into today's final round of the 54-hole championship was Kelly Roberts of London, an 18-year-old who fired a sizzling 67 Thursday for a two-round total of 140.

The 67 was one shot short of the course record at the par-70 Toronto Golf Club set 10 years ago by a Toronto golfer, Gordon MacKenzie.

In second spot was Stu Hamilton of Brampton, who soared to a 73 Thursday after leading the 126-man field Wednesday with a 68.

Only other competitor with much of a chance was Nick Weslock of Mississauga, a 54-year-old winner of eight previous Ontario amateur crowns —the first back in 1944.

Weslock had 144 after shooting a 73 Thursday when his usually faithful putter proved disloyal.

The field was cut today to the low 60 and ties, with tee-off time at 8 a.m. EDT.

The amateur winner automatically gains a berth on the four-man Willingdon Cup team. The top 20 players and ties, excluding the winner, play 18 holes here next Monday to decide the remaining three spots.

Trevino Prefers Bigger Margin

MURFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Wise-cracking Lee Trevino, sharing the lead after two rounds in his defence of the British open golf championship, said today, "I'm not too happy. I like to be way out in front."

Trevino, revelling in his role as the self-styled Super-Mex of golf, had a 36-hole total of 141 along with Britain's breezy young Tony Jacklin over this course which has taken on a docile look in unusual sunshine.

Both Trevino and Jacklin were one under par. Breathing down their necks only one stroke back were such golfing heavyweights as Jack Nicklaus, the standout favorite, veteran Doug Sanders, South Africa's always-hungry Gary Player and Johnny Miller, a gutsy 25-year-old American pro who set a course record of 66 in the second round.

Also on 142, level par over Muirfield's 6,885-yard links, were three young Englishmen —Peter Tupling, John Garner and Peter Townsend.

After shooting a one-under-par 70 in his second round, Trevino said, "The sunshine caught everyone by surprise. Every guy thought that every other guy was burning up the British open golf championship, said today, "I'm not too happy. I like to be way out in front."

Teachers Back Right To Bargain

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Canadian Teachers' Federation has taken a step away from professionalism and toward unionism with the passage of four toughly-worded resolutions at its annual convention.

With delegates from British Columbia charging Wednesday the province's Social Credit government was "attempting to destroy the B.C. Teachers' Federation," members approved new policies on collective bargaining, employment conditions, income tax deductions and maximum pension rates.

The more then 150 delegates from 16 provincial and territorial associations vote solidly in approval of a national policy "that the members of every provincial and territorial teacher organization shall have the right to full and free collective bargaining legislation."

The motion was supported by a resolution that the national organization offer assistance to any member organization "striving to have collective bargaining legislation made applicable to them."

The national office also was instructed to investigate and define minimum conditions of employment and work toward standards for Canadian teachers.

In another resolution, a federation committee on the economic status of teachers was told to develop such standards for inclusion in collective agreements.

Rod Fredericks of Ottawa, the federation's outgoing president, said teachers should stop lurching with professionalism and accept a union-like stance.

He said most teachers now are more interested in economic security and it was doubtful if they would ever be accepted as a profession.

Severance Pay Cases Are Heard

TORONTO (CP) — The first witnesses were heard Thursday in a provincial inquiry into the closing of The Telegram Publishing Co. Ltd. despite protests from the company's lawyer that proceedings were illegal.

The inquiry was set up by Ontario Labor Master Fern Guindon in March to determine whether the closing of The Toronto Daily newspaper on Oct. 30, 1971, met requirements of the Employment Standards Act.

Some 500 former employees of the newspaper have filed individual claims totalling close to $1 million seeking severance pay they say the company refused to give them despite an alleged obligation to do so under provincial statutes.

Fireworks Sale Ban Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A coroners jury Thursday called for a ban on the sale of fireworks to the general public.

The recommendation came at the end of a four-day inquest into the May 22 death of Lucy Innocente, 13, hit by a rocket during a supervised fireworks display.

The jury also suggested that displays be permitted only if supervised by qualified persons trained in the use of fireworks and crowd control.

Prostitute Claims Police Take Payoffs

The allegations were made by an unidentified, self-proclaimed prostitute during an interview Thursday on a television news program.

A police spokesman declined to comment on a report that the prostitute had been taken to police headquarters where she gave the names of officers allegedly taking payoffs.

Wallace Recalls Shooting

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The chaotic moments that followed an attempt on his life were recalled publicly for the first time Thursday night by wounded Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Wallace told reporters he remembers trying to move his legs when he fell to the ground after being shot May 15.

He said he remembers his wife kneeling down over him.

He tried to push her away for fear there would be more shooting but she wouldn't leave, he said.

"I never lost consciousness. I was conscious until they put me to sleep in the operating room."

It was the first time the Alabama governor has talked with reporters about the shooting, which happened while he was campaigning at a Laurel, Md., shopping center.

Wallace said he remembered clearly everything that happened immediately after the shooting, even one of the first questions the doctors asked when he was taken into surgery at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md.

"They asked me what I had eaten," Wallace recalled. "I told them I had hamburger and mashed potatoes. They told me later that was important because food in your stomach increases the danger of infection."

"I guess," he added, jokingly, "if you have to get shot, it's better to do it on an empty stomach."

The governor chatted with reporters in his 20th-floor hotel suite while he ordered up an exercise bed and steel parallel bars which he uses for his physical therapy.

On the floor was a 40-pound barbell which he lifts above his head 30 times a day.

His wife, Cornelia, joked with him as the reporters came in and while he was talking about the hateful people who try to kill you, you want to show them your muscles."

Happy Anniversary!

Election Cost $40 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The next federal election, expected by many to be held in the fall, might cost politicians and the taxpayer somewhere between $35 million and $40 million, perhaps more.

That estimate is based on the progression of expenses over the years which show that politicians are spending more to win the electoral and that the cost of the election itself is steadily rising.

To take two significant years: A Commons committee on election expenses estimated in 1971 that the 1965 general election cost political parties $8 million and that another $8 million was spent by individual candidates. By the total of $16 million is added $12.9 million for government election expenses.

Khayyam Zev Paltiel, professor of political science at Carleton University, estimates in a study called Political Party Financing in Canada that the cost of the 1968 general election was $21 million. The government spent $13.8 million on the election.

Presuming that expenses will continue to rise at about the same rate, the politicians might be spending about $35 million this time and the government about $14.8 million.

Rising election costs are also matters of concern elsewhere. This week, the $3.3 million debt of the U.S. Democratic party from the 1968 election hung over the Miami Beach presidential nomination convention.

The convention tackled the problem here in June, far too late to do anything about it except in the fall even if the MPs had agreed on measures to limit individual and party spending in federal elections.

But they did achieve some measure of agreement on what Canada's first all-embracing expenditures legislation should look like.

There was agreement that there should be disclosure, restriction and some reimbursement to political parties by government.

There was agreement that an effective way to reduce expenses is to reduce the amount of spending allowed for advertising.

The government had belatedly fulfilled a 1969 election promise by producing a bill in May that would have limited election spending by individuals.

But strong opposition protests forced inclusion of restricted spending provisions. All so that at the summer recess, the bill apparently was acceptable to all parties.

Canadian-born Pair Trapped in Russia

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Six-year-old Leslie Lenko and her 10-year-old brother Jim are caught in the middle of a bitter dispute between their parents. Now they are taking up the Soviet bureaucracy in a struggle to return to Canada.

Nadia Demidenko, 31, and Eugene Lenko, 32, left their stories in crisp Canadian English. They show Canadian passports. Nadia has a letter from Prime Minister Trudeau saying: "You are a Canadian citizen by virtue of your birth in Canada and therefore entitled as a matter of right to enter Canada at any time."

All this means little or nothing to the authorities who say Leslie and Jim Demidenko are citizens of the U.S.S.R. Officials from Leslie's birthplace, Belleville, Ont., refused to issue her passport citing a law requiring both parents to agree in their applications, petitions and letters.

Lenko and Mrs. Demidenko took Soviet-born spouses and have had children since they arrived here, and that complicates matters.

Soviet citizenship, however acquired, is difficult to part with. Soviet citizens who try to do the same thing our parents did...

The Canadian embassy in Moscow is aware of these and similar cases, though it refuses to disclose figures. Embassy officials say the matter is being dealt with "at the highest levels" and they hope for good results.

Lenko notes that "the universal declaration of human rights says any person has the right to leave any country."

The Soviet Union is a signatory of the United Nations declaration. Lenko said he has written to the Soviet Embassy requests who reply: "That was written for people abroad, not for you."

Neither Lenko nor Mrs. Demidenko wanted anything to do with communism. Lenko, the Soviet Union. He was 18 and she 17 and they had their roots in Canada. She had a boy friend and was contemplating marriage. She says she still liked.

When the families arrived in Ukraine, the two say, they were shunted from town to town because there was no place to live.

"Our parents said everything they had worked for all those years in Canada—the house we had and everything—was lost," Demidenko asserts. "And it just disappeared when we left there."

Mrs. Demidenko applied to return to Canada shortly after she arrived here but few applications were refused.

"I gave up—not knowing the language, not knowing who to turn to," she says. "If the ministry of foreign affairs says no, who do you turn to next?"

Meanwhile her petitions in Canada have been referred to the Soviet embassy in Ottawa and was finally thrown out.

Eventually, Lenko and Mrs. Demidenko settled into life in the Ukraine and began studies at the Institute of Foreign Languages in Kiev. In 1969 both married English-language students at the institute.

Lenko and his wife, Svetlana, have two daughters and a son. Nadia and Anatoly Demidenko have a son of 11. All members of the families have applied for exit visas.

"We wouldn't separate," said Mrs. Demidenko. "It's all or nothing. I'm planning to have the rest of my children in Canada. I don't want them here, either."

The husband and Jim's wife support us completely in this. They would never back down and have been opened up to them now too."

Leslie was a grandchild of the Soviet Union.

Each family is trying to make ends meet on 120 rubles a month—about $346 at the official exchange rate. Both Soviet citizens were dismissed from jobs after they applied for exit visas.

Lenko and Mrs. Demidenko still work as clerks in the reference library at Radio Kiev, which beams programs to 36 countries, including Canada and the U.S. They had been broadcasters, but they were demoted and their salaries slashed when they began their struggle to leave.

Nadia visited Kiev in May, 1971, Lenko and Mrs. Demidenko were prevented from seeing him.

CN Still Rolling On Industrial Rail

Canadian Tire lost another one, Brooke Bond blew their chance and the CN just kept rolling along in a trio of Industrial Softball League games Thursday night.

The division B leading CN won their 12th game, tops in the league, by stopping U I C 5-1.

Mark Sheridan spotted the losers a 1-0 lead after four innings but picked up the win when his team-mates scored five times in the next two innings. Sheridan wound up with a five-hitter while fanning seven and walking one.

Zane Plumbe hammered out a triple and homer and Rob McMurter two singles to lead the winners' seven hits off loser Garry McMurry.

Tom Stinson had two singles and Bill Belnap a double for third place UIC.

Brooke Bond lost their chance to move ahead of AOCO in the division C standings when they tied the Utilities 8-8 at the CNR last night.

They were fortunate in picking up the one point being forced to come up with two runs in the bottom of the seventh after a 15-minute rain delay. Larry Bilham drove in the tying runs with a clutch single. Don Goodfellow had a homer, double and single for the Bond's big hits.

Dave Middleton had a homer and two singles off Utilities' Wilson Bulpit who fanned eight and walked one in going the distance.

Bob Chambers hurled for Brooke Bond.

Canadian Tire dropped their 12th loss of the season to Stewart Warner 8-2 in the third game played last night.

Jim Henn picked up the win, giving up three hits and striking out six. He added a homer and single while at the plate, Dominic Lintlid homered for the winners.

Andy Prudden was touched for seven hits on the CTC mound. He fanned seven and walked two. Wayne Trice homered and Prudden doubled for the only two extra base hits by the losers.

Yardmen Gals Narrow Gap

BYBF were obvious in their intent Thursday night in a Belleville and District Ladies Softball League contest as they moved within two points of league leading Cosy Grill by smashing Bob Blaind-Red Barn 9-4.

The winners pounded out 18 hits including a homer and single from Donna Preston, and double and three singles from Sheila Smith and four singles from Penny Hughes.

Sue Morton hurled the win giving up nine hits, fanning four and walking seven.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, July 15

Aries (March 21-April 19): Hold your temper. There may be something about provocation you haven't seen yet. Plenty of accumulated chores are at hand for selection.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Being stubborn isn't helpful, nor is sticking for petty details and repeating past arguments. Patience with loved ones is essential.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Stick with it despite differences of opinion. Yesterday's experience is merely for your reference pilot, nothing to discuss.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Make good use of your chances to ask questions, consult experts —you may not like the advice you get, but you can apply it quickly.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Enthusiasm runs ahead of means, so think what you are about when the spending urge hits you. Influential people are favorably disposed.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Circumstances are confining. Delayed response to past investment proves mixed, perhaps less than is convenient. Get busy.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct 22): Personal politics takes attention, may be complex. Even where you have strong opinions, wait to see what comes before declaring them.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your welfare is important, not necessarily served by the most expensive program. Let intuition bring guidance. It is a long day.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Put yourself in the other fellow's place, see both sides for special understanding—you don't often get today's opening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are likely to encounter resistance, some of it your own doing. How well you can adjust without criticism makes the difference.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): For you this day satisfies your normal trend—take all and any advice. Have fun without insisting that others commit themselves.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): With emotional expressions on all sides your own feelings have to come out on top as well. Select your companions thoughtfully.

To Your Good Health

Mental, Emotional Ills Are Same

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you explain the difference between neurotic and emotional problems? And could you recommend a book to me now to treat such people?—G.M.C.

As the terms are popularly used, there isn't any difference. An emotional problem, not being a physical illness, has to be a "mental" problem, doesn't it?

Strictly speaking, however, I think this is a fair distinction: A retarded child (or adult) would have a mental problem but not necessarily an emotional one. A sort of retarded person can be happy and adjusted to life within his limitations.

A person of normal or even high intelligence can have emotional problems. Some patients in "mental hospitals" have extremely high IQs. Their problem is a matter not of brainpower, but of emotions.

They may be suffering from illnesses with which they simply cannot contend. They may have periods of terrible depression. They may, from emotional but not logical causes, believe that people are plotting against them. They may go off into a world of private and unreal dream world to escape from problems they cannot cope with. They may simply view the world in an unreal way—hence be unable to get along in the real world.

When you seek "a book" to explain such a vast and complicated subject, I'm afraid you are going to be disappointed. Start studying up on subjects of mental retardation and emotional illnesses if you wish—but don't expect to find a simple answer to some very complex problems.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been a small asmatic. I am 30 and have learned to live with it, but I pray for a medical breakthrough for all of us with this disease.

My problem: I read somewhere that people with this disease should not fly. I would like to fly to the Bahamas but now am having second thoughts. Please advise me.—M. C.

A change in atmospheric pressure can precipitate a "crisis" with sickle cell anemia. However, on commercial flights the cabin is pressurized to compensate for the altitude. I doubt that you would have any trouble, but your own physician may have other thoughts on this.

Your prayers I think—I hope—are being answered. There have been some important breakthroughs on sickle cell anemia lately and more should follow because of intensive research in this field.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are the pros and cons of circumcision? Should a man be advised to have it done at age 22?—T. T.

It's an uncomfortable procedure for an adult. I wouldn't have it done unless your doctor sees some real need for doing it —the main consideration is whether it is needed because of infection or adhesion of the foreskin.

STUDENT SURVEY

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — A survey has found that of the 704 students who left the Medicine Hat public school system in 1971, 228 continued their education, 287 went to work, 35 got married, 30 were unemployed and 29 could not be accounted for. The school board didn't say what happened to the other 95 students.

Bidding Quiz

You hold the following hand, both sides vulnerable:

♠KJ63 ♥7 ♦KJ962 ♣AQ84

1. Your partner opens One Club and you respond One Diamond. Partner bids Three Clubs. What would you bid now?

2. You open One Diamond and partner responds Two Notrump. When you bid Three Clubs, partner bids Three Notrump. What would you bid now?

3. Your left-hand opponent opens One Heart, your partner bids One Spade, and your right-hand opponent bids Two Hearts. What would you bid now?

4. Your partner opens Three Hearts, next player passes. What would you bid now?

1. Four notrump. A grand slam is extremely likely if partner has three aces, and the surest way of finding out is by using Blackwood. There is very little to be attained by this bid, since partner is certain to have either two or three aces. If he hasn't, get yourself a new partner! If the response is five hearts, showing only two aces, bid six clubs. If the response is five spades, showing three aces, bid seven clubs.

2. Pass. The hand is not exactly ideal for notrump, but you must pass anyhow. You have warned partner against notrump by bidding three clubs, and he has in effect said that nine tricks in notrump are more likely than seven tricks in a minor suit. Partner will not be astonished by your singleton. Three clubs told him of that possibility.

3. Four spades. To bid less would be an affront to partner. True, you'd like to have a fourth trump, but you must nonetheless contract for game. Partner's spade overcall virtually guaranteed five of trump.

No good purpose would be served by bidding diamonds or clubs. This would merely fog the issue and could lead to a wrong contract. Three spades would be shortchanging partner because it would urge but not force him to bid again.

4. Pass. It takes two opening bids, or their equivalent, to make a game. While you have a sound opening bid of your own —weakened, of course, by the misfit in hearts — you know that partner has less than one; otherwise, he would not have started with a preemptive bid. A reasonable prognostication is that he will either make three hearts or go down one.

Tomorrow: The best laid schemes.

Lake Trout Stocking Is Urged

Heavier stocking of lake trout in Hastings county lakes and a reduction of the catch limit from five per day to three is being urged by the Bancroft Fish and Game Club.

Closing of the lake trout season on Sept. 15 in order to protect the trout that spawn early is also being asked by club members.

The Bancroft club resolution has been endorsed by the East Central Association of Fish and Game Clubs and Hastings county council.

Industrial Seminar Attractive

Early registration for the Prince Edward economic and industrial development training course and seminar to be held Aug. 22, 23 and 24 in Picton has been extremely satisfying according to William J. Duggan, county director of economic development.

Sponsored by the Ontario ministry of industry and tourism, the federal department of regional and economic expansion and the county of Prince Edward, the seminar is the first such activity to be held in the county and one of the first in the region.

Mr. Duggan said the response received was encouraging because it confirmed the interest in development.

The seminar gets under way at 9 a.m. Aug. 22 with the first day's program to include talks on the economic background for industrial development; the role of the community and organization for industrial development.

The last two days will see seminars on lands and buildings, identifying types of industry, the financing of industrial development, industrial promotion and industrial prospecting.

Quartet Found On Island

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — Three brothers and a sister who spent the night on an island in Georgian Bay after their outboard motor ran out of fuel were brought back today to the mainland by a police launch.

The three, William Moyle, 14, Richard, 13, Barbara, 12, and Mark, 11, all of Perth, Ont., were reported missing by Art Moyle when they did not return from sailing by 8 p.m. Friday.

Provincial police radio operator Don Cox said they landed their 16-foot boat on the island and stayed there. Police took up the search at dawn and found them.

Seventeen Calls On Prowlers

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police has been besieged with telephone calls in the past few days in connection with the Millhaven escape.

A spokesman for the detachment this morning said there had been 17 calls between midnight and 8 a.m. of prowlers and things that go bump in the night.

Nothing came of the calls.

The police advise that doors be kept locked and for drivers not to pick-up hitchhikers.

The same spokesman said, "there is very little chance that any of the convicts are in the Belleville area. Most have headed east or are still in the Millhaven area."

City Creates Wilderness Park on Great St. James St. Bluff

Pupils' Requests Result In Wilderness Park in City

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus.

Sometimes, he comes in the guise of politicians, and they do answer children's requests.

Because a teacher at Queen Victoria School firmly believed in fairy tales like the one above, the city will soon have a little gem of a wilderness park for children to play in.

It all began when Mrs. Helen Jones, a dynamic teacher at Queen Vic, set out to teach a lesson. Yes, politicians do listen to children, she told her class, and she challenged them to prove it.

The youngsters were familiar with a little-known area of the city, a hillside rising from behind Stokes Street, at the extension of Great St. James Street, to the rear of houses on Alexander Street.

It is a heavily-wooded and steep slope, with a never-failing spring sending a tiny stream down the hill. The Queen Vic youngsters had played there, but they found it was fast becoming an unauthorized garbage dump. They wanted it cleaned up.

So they contacted the chairman of the Recreation Committee Ald. Robin Jeffrey.

Now the children have their answers. Army cadets under a federal summer work grant are cleaning out the debris on the slope, and the city-is acquiring a parcel of land to maintain as a wilderness area.

Ald. Jeffrey investigated the site after hearing the children's request and found it "full of all kinds of bird life".

Because the area was never likely to be used for development, the city decided to assemble part of the land for the Millard Avenue Argue donated land on the slope to the city and two other property owners, the L. A. Young estate and E. J. Buckley, have agreed to deed their sections to the city for a nominal sum. Together with the unopened extension of Charles Street, the parcel comprises about 3 acres.

The city obtained permission from the conservation authority for a clean-up of the adjacent properties in the area and 18 army cadets are now hard at work.

The homeowners are enthusiastic about the clean-up, says Ald. Jeffrey, and residents of Great St. James Street are delighted to see an eye-sore vanish.

Although plans for its development have not been completed, the park will be maintained in an informal state, with plantings of ground covers and possibly wild flowers.

And it will stand as a monument to perhaps the youngest group of political activists at work in the country today.

Obituary

WILLIAM RYERSON VANDERVOORT

Life resident of the Belleville area and a resident of Hastings Manor since 1966 William Rerson "Ryde" Vandervoort, died Thursday in Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 90th year.

The funeral was held this Saturday morning from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with service in the chapel conducted by Rev. Alfred Poulter. Interment was in White's Cemetery.

Born in Sidney township, Mr. Vandervoort was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Vandervoort and prior to retirement worked as a farmer and carpenter.

Twice married, he was predeceased by both his wives, the former Pearl Benjafield and Lavilla Brooks. A son, Gordon, lives in Toronto.

Community Shower Tendered

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stevens, (nee Sharon Graff) of Port Credit were tendered a community shower Saturday evening July 8 in Mount Pleasant Church hall.

Ronald and Sharon were given seats of honor and Mrs. Robert Hazard read the address while Mrs. Stanley Williams presented the newlyweds with a purse of money on behalf of the community and a church plate from the United church.

The recipients voiced thanks for the remembrance.

Rev. W. C. Fox was master of ceremonies and selections were read by Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver. Harvey Couch and his son Garry provided harmonica and accordion selections. Mrs. W. C. Cox and Mrs. Mac Sharp conducted the assembly singing. Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited a number and Miss Margaret Hazard gave a piano solo. Lynn and Greg Hoslin sang with Mrs. Garth Joslin as accompanist.

Following the presentation of gifts, the committee in charge served refreshments.

Drive-ins Increasingly Popular

With sticky weather blanketing the city for the past week, the drive-in restaurants' business is booming.

"Mothers are people too," said a proprietor of one shop. "When it gets hot they want to get out of the house."

The philosophy of the drive-ins is "providing top quality food, quickly and inexpensively."

"People like to eat out and be able to just run around the corner and pick up something to eat," said the manager of McDonald's Food Store.

"One of the big plusses in favor of the fun food store is you can come in a bathing suit or your best suit," he said.

The convenience of the drive-in restaurant is gaining momentum here in the city.

"New shops are opening because a trend is being started in this direction," said one spokesman.

A customer said, "it's nice just to walk up to the screen window, holler your order and in a couple of minutes they treat to the car."

Snowmobilers haven't been forgotten even in this weather.

At least one store in the city is considering keeping its court yard clear of snow so that snowmobile enthusiasts can pull right up pand eat outside beside their machines.

"It's only an idea but it might work," said a company spokesman. "People come here in the summer for something to do so why not in the winter."

Most proprietors of the shops agree that a great percentage of their clientele come to the store as a means of recreation.

"It gives them something to do, especially when it is raining," said one man.

Relief at Last

Judy Nobes' hands weren't big enough to hold her treat but she knew what to do with the ice cream support from mother. Drive-in restaurants are experiencing booming business brought in by the sticky weather in the city. One nice thing about the heat is you don't need teeth to eat it. Thank heavens for that, gurgled Judy.

Chartered Accountants Elected

Several Belleville area Chartered Accountants were recently elected to the Executive of the Chartered Accountants' Association of Eastern Ontario for 1972-73.

The immediate past president is Maurice Stotesbury of George A. Wilson and Co.; the treasurer Kenneth Leavens of Wilson Concrete Products Limited; and chairman of professional development, Grant Harrison of McGill, Turner and Co.

Duncan Ivison of G. H. Ward and Partners, Gananoque, was elected president. Representative on the Council of the Ontario Institute is Jack Blakely of Thorne, Gunn, Helliwell and Christenson in Kingston.

The association encompasses the area from Trenton to Brockville, membership consists of chartered accountants both in practice and industry. Several programs are arranged each year of mutual interest to members including one or two social activities. The Association is concerned with professional development and assists with careers information where possible.

Chiefs Ask Murder Penalty

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Maritime police chiefs have called on the federal government to make a decision on capital punishment and to appoint an independent body to oversee the actions of the national parole board.

The requests came in resolutions passed Friday during sessions of the annual conference of the Maritime Association of Chiefs of Police.

Chief Roger Smith of Dartmouth said the Maritime association endorses a stand by the national association urging the federal government to decide on a penalty for murder and to ensure that such punishment is enforced.

The association asked that an independent body be set up to oversee the actions of the parole board after they were told that any two of its nine members could free a prisoner.

Two members of the board from Western Canada could free prisoners in the east without knowing anything about them other than the information they receive from prison authorities, the association said.

The Kiwanis Club of Picton is sponsoring summer concerts in Prince Edward County parks at 2 p.m. every Sunday, president John Wyers has announced. Warehous will entertain at Outlet Park July 16, Chance at Wellington July 23 and the Ted Reid Combo at Benson Park Aug. 6.

Art and Craft Show Planned

TWEED — Preliminary plans are now being made for an art and craft show to be held at Northbrook (on Highway No. 41) on Saturday, August 5, with ten peop cent of all sales to be donated to Education Europe, a project sponsored by the students of the North Addington Education Centre to finance an educational trip to Europe in 1973.

It is hoped that artists and persons making handicrafts will enter the show. Exhibitors are invited from an area west to Peterborough, south to Lake Ontario, in fact anyone interested, would be welcome.

Weather permitting, the show will be held out of doors.

Family Theme for Act

TWEED — Earlier this month the Schneider School of Fine Arts, at the village of Actinolite, five miles north of Tweed, held its annual Open House with 100 or more persons calling to see the school facilities and watch the artist at work.

The permanent managing director, Mary Schneider, a world renowned painter, reports that this promises to be the best season in the history of the school, with a good enrolment of students. This year the school is featuring family participation, with special classes for children.

Alan Jarvis, a well - known editor, lecturer, sculptor and writer will be instructor at the School from July 10 to July 22.

Another new feature in this year's program will be the introduction of film making.

The school was founded in 1963 to promote and encourage the fine arts. A draw will be held on Nov. 25 with proceeds to be used to support the school.

The prizes are mostly paintings donated by interested artists.

Teachers On Course For Summer

While Hastings county's students are enjoying their summer holidays, at least 50 per cent of their teachers have returned to school for summer courses.

School board administrators regard the number as encouraging as unusually high this year.

But summer school for students, once popular enough to call for regular bus runs to Kingston, has lost its appeal. Fewer than 10 local students are attending classes at Loyalist Collegiate in Kingston. The Hastings county board of education and the Provincietanac board, but the students must provide their own transportation.

Three professional development courses have been approved for Hastings county this winter. In Belleville, elementary school teachers can take a course on mathematics for kindergarten to Grade 6. In Madoc, a course in environmental studies will be offered, concentrating on outdoor education. And in Shannonville a course in elementary and intermediate art, will be offered.

Airlines May Save Some Seats

MONTREUX, Switzerland (Reuter) — The major airlines are considering a plan to reserve part of their transatlantic seating capacity for charter passengers to win back business from charter companies, a spokesman for the International Air Transport Association said today.

The plan is being discussed at an IATA conference called to consider flexible fare structures for 1973, well before the world-wide IATA conference at Torremolinos, Spain, next September.

The spokesman said the "part-charter" scheme was being examined in detail to decide how much seating should be set aside for charter traffic on regular flights, what prices should be charged, and other legal and marketing questions.

Dark Corners

In England recently a psychiatrist said of a young man accused of poisoning colleagues at work that perhaps only once in every generation did someone appear on the scene who was so deliberately evil. It seems the young man had spent many years in mental hospital, had tried to poison his family before that, and was released only recently.

Yet in this so-called enlightened age — this restless, materialist and for many rootless era — it would appear sometimes that evil, as a basic in every personality (but kept in check by the balanced personality) is at times rampant. Terrorism for instance, while its perpetrators may excuse it as political, betrays a cult of personality that has lost control over the civilizing process in human behavior.

We have read in recent days of a four-year-old Los Angeles girl killed by a shotgun blast from a passing car — a victim, police say, of a senseless "joy killing." Four young men are being held in the case. Here we have a classic case of primeval instability among sections of the youth of America, manifesting itself in brutal, insanse acts such as this. Closer to home there has been a case of a 17-year-old Lindsay youth being found guilty of kicking a 9-year-old girl to death.

Then there is the problem of drugs, which can exacerbate any latent tendencies toward this type of behavior, or at the very least make vegetables of once intelligent youngsters. A teacher in Oklahoma City told Ann Landers recently of seeing "bright teenagers deteriorate into zombies — lose interest in school work, sports, friends and cleanliness . ."

There are the times too when one reads of killings done by persons "high on drugs." We had been inclined to believe that maybe the drug thing was tapering off, but this letter suggests otherwise, in some areas at least. Fortunately such happenings do not reflect the whole mirror of life; they do however merit public concern and a counteracting desire to shed light on this dark corner of the human dilemma. In short, to get at the root cause of such aberrations and turn mankind into better paths.

Golfing Legend

As Jack Nicklaus works on the third leg of his "grand slam" attempt — at the British Open in Muirfield, Scotland — it is interesting to reflect that at 32 he is at the height of his extraordinary powers while some of his contemporaries have passed their peak, but some cases have faded from the scene altogether or, like Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Gary Player are struggling to recapture past glories. In a class by himself is Sam Snead who at 59 (he won his first post-war British Open in 1946) was among the leaders in the recent Canadian Open. Doug Ford is another United States pro from out of the past and he also competed in the latter event at Mt. Bruno. Roberto de Vicenzo, 49, the Argentine veteran, withdrew his British Open entry on medical advice. This brings us to another colorful U.S. golfer who seems to have given up competition — Frank Stranahan. Can we recall, the wealthy Toledo, Ohio, amateur was runner-up to Ireland's Fred Daly in the 1947 British Open, and de Vicenzo was third. While he did not spend the money, Stranahan the won the British amateur in 1948 and 1950) later turned professional and played on the pro circuit for a time. In more recent times, a virtual unknown, Orville Moody, won the U.S. Open. That was in 1969, but we have not heard much of Moody of late. This is one of the paradoxes of golf. Some endure, others drop out of sight. The legend however remains.

In Ottawa last week, while cabinet ministers meeting with members of the Great Plains project (for development of northern and western Canada) sweated in suits, Mr. Trudeau wore a flashy Hawaiian-style shirt and slacks.

Still Under Investigation
Strange Case of $135,573 Tax CBC Paid for Employees

by RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Toronto barrister Lowell G. Budd of the prestigious law firm of Gordon, Keyfetz, Hall, Baker and Goodman, can take heart; Parliament does show signs — at times but faintly — of keeping the arrogant bureaucracy at least under some control.

It was in March of 1971 that lawyer Budd began mailing The Sudbury Daily Star when his interest was hooked by an Ottawa Offbeat column telling the story of how "Mother CBC" paid $135,573 in income tax for 17 of her favorite "sons".

The Commons Public Accounts Committee was hot after "Big Momma CBC" and her errant 17 tax-dripping "children" to force them to square the account.

But, with no success. For George Davidson, then CBC president, said he did not see how in Justice he could make the 17 cough up — even though 13 of them were and still are on staff — and they just sat tight.

Leaving, of course, the taxpayers generally holding the bag.

Lawyer Budd was incensed that CBC should pay its employees' taxes, a regular nobody — especially federal government employees — should be permitted to do.

This went double for the CBC which every year comes hat in hand to Parliament, begging that the taxpayers shell out more than $100-million to keep it in business.

Aroused, then barrister Budd, in stern terms, wrote to the CBC president, the National Revenue Minister, the minister of Justice, Public Accounts Committee chairman Alf Hales, and members of that committee, and to Ottawa Offbeat, urging that all concerned pursue this matter.

Pursued it has been — but still without success, unless the writing of yet another Public Accounts Committee report can be seen as progress towards ultimate collection of the $135,573 tax bill.

The case dates back to 1965 when those 17 CBC staffers — one of them now extremely high in the corporation's executive echelon — had the pleasure of seeing CBC pay their personal income taxes for the three years they were working in New York and Washington.

Auditor General Maxwell Henderson caught up with this rather peculiar bit of CBC tax-fiddling in 1969 and whistled up the Public Accounts Committee to set it straight.

But the CBC and its 17 freeriders shrugged off the Committee, the Corporation admitting responsibility but denying any liability to force repayment and the staffers simply sitting tight and saying nothing.

The lucky 17 did have the "moral obligation" to make good the debt, said President Davidson, but he did not think it would be "right or just" for him to twist their arms.

So the Public Accounts Committee set up a special task force to do President Davidson's arm-twisting for him.

Now out comes the Committee with a third report complete with its Task Force's Arm-Twister.

But still nobody is crying for pain.

For quite obviously, the Committee, and its task force, clearly does not know how the CBC and the free-riding 17 can be compelled to come financially clean.

So they ask the CBC to do what it already has refused to do and demand reimbursement of the $135,573.

"It does not appear," says the Committee, hopefully, "that such an approach would impose an onerous obligation on the 17 individuals for in our view they received an unusual tax benefit at the taxpayers' expense."

Optimistically, the Committee says it believes the 17, when faced with a request or demand for repayment, would make good.

But if not?

Well here, the Committee only hints at possible future action, such as:

1. Legal action to extract, by law, the $135,573 "morally owing" to the CBC — and the taxpayers — from the 17 freeriders.

2. Publication of their names, two of which are reasonably well-known nationally.

3. Determination of interest owing on the $135,573 which at National Revenue's six percent over seven years could be a jolt.

4. Investigation to establish whether, while escaping payment of income tax in the United States, those CBC employees applied for rebates on their Canadian income tax.

5. Taxing, by National Revenue, of the 17 on the basis of the $135,573 clearly having been a "benefit" or even, in a sense, additional income.

Since the Justice department has told the Committee the chances of compelling reimbursement are reasonably good, most of the 17 may yet be shouting "ouch".

Ontario Institutes Series of Historical Studies

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Historic Park Bureau

One of the political shortcomings of Canada has been a great lack of written historical records.

Though probably not too apparent to the general public, this has been very evident to anyone who has been close to our political scene.

Try to look up anything that happened even 25 years ago and, aside from newspaper files, there are practically no sources. Except perhaps for some academic papers done for doctoral degrees, there is hardly anything on the development of the province and the personalities that have dominated it.

This omission now is to be corrected.

A bit more than a year ago, the government launched an Ontario historical studies series.

A board of trustees was set up to administer this series and its first report has been circulated. And from this first effort, the board and its project hold reassuring promise.

A bibliography of articles, books and theses on Ontario history has already been completed. And somehow or other, researchers managed to uncover a list of some 2,000 titles. Plans now are being made to publish this.

Major biographies of four premiers (Mowat, Whitney, Ferguson and Drury) have been assigned, as well as a book of essays on pre-Confederation premiers.

And studies are being prepared on further articles or books on the province's development, a definitive history of Ontario and an Ontario historical atlas.

There are three points of noteworthy interest about the project:

1. The board is stressing biography first. A good move, for history is most easily interpreted through its personalities.

2. It is stressing that the works be written in "interesting style." The goal may not be achieved, for historians that can write interestingly are less common then pitchers who can hit. But the aim is a good one.

3. It is going to get the living record while it can. Taping sessions are to be held with George Drew, Leslie Frost and John Roberts, our three former living premiers, to get an oral history from them.

Well here, the Committee only hints at possible future action, such as:

1. Legal action to extract, by law, the $135,573 "morally owing" to the CBC — and the taxpayers — from the 17 freeriders.

2. Publication of their names, two of which are reasonably well-known nationally.

3. Determination of interest owing on the $135,573 which at National Revenue's six percent over seven years could be a jolt.

4. Investigation to establish whether, while escaping payment of income tax in the United States, those CBC employees applied for rebates on their Canadian income tax.

5. Taxing, by National Revenue, of the 17 on the basis of the $135,573 clearly having been a "benefit" or even, in a sense, additional income.

Since the Justice department has told the Committee the chances of compelling reimbursement are reasonably good, most of the 17 may yet be shouting "ouch".

Long Hair and All That

By Brantford Expositor

The once hot controversy about long - haired males has died down of late but, like a smouldering fire, it needs only a puff of criticism to flare again, as it has done in our readers' letters lately. As with most arguments, no minds are changed. The maxi mop is as grimly entrenched as the mini-skirt. The sideburn flourishes anew 91 years after its invention U.S. Major General Ambrose E. Burnside, ceased to need the services of a barber.

Accommodation to the modern hair style for men has been officially approved for the Canadian, U.S. and West German armed forces, among others, with limits. But now the West German defence minister has ordered shorter hair following a medical commission report on long hair. Having combed all the evidence, the doctors decided that because long hair could not be kept clean under combat or manoeuvre conditions, it promoted parasites and skin diseases. Hairnets, introduced some time ago, became dirty and further encouraged infections, and long beards, it was found, prevented gas masks from fitting tightly.

Off limits now are untrimmed beards and sideburns and hair that obscures vision, covers the ears or overflows the back of the collar. So shorter hair could mean longer inspection parades.

George McIlraith's Time-saver

Senate and Commons Should Study Bills Simultaneously

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

One of the major parliamentary problems is the seemingly much to pass legislation in the dying hours before an adjournment or recess. Despite the best-laid plans, this always happens and the Commons sends the bills to the Senate for approval on the final day or two.

Understandably, the Senate resents the procedure as it is forced into hasty perusal in relation to that royal assent can be given before Parliament closes down. It turns the bills into a rubber stamp and lowers the pr stige of that body in the eyes of the public.

Is there a way around this situation? A veteran pro Conservatarian, Senator George McIlraith, believes there is. A member of the Commons since 1940 and a long time cabinet minister prior to his appointment to the upper House earlier this year, Mr. McIlraith has a unique position to understand both sides of the problem and to offer a solution.

He believes the rules of Parliament should be changed to allow both Commons and Senate to consider a piece of legislation at the same time. Under the present system, most bills are introduced in the Commons where they are given first and second reading, referred to a committee, reported back to the House and finally given third reading. Only then can they go to the Senate which goes through a similar procedure of its own.

Senator McIlraith does not see any serious objection to having a bill presented in both places at the same time. Under the proposal, both Houses could go through their procedure simultaneously. But under the proposal most in favor with the veteran parliamentarian, the Commons would proceed at its normal way. The Senate would give the bill first reading as an introductory measure, which Senator McIlraith likes to describe as the Senate "taking up a parcel" on the Upper Floor. The upper House would then be free to debate the bill and send it to the Commons and would be free to suggest amendments before royal assent.

The time saved by the concurrent consideration of the legislation would be great, and the charge the Senate simply rubber-stamped it in the last day or two would no longer be valid.

Also, if outside witnesses are called to appear before committees, it would not be too difficult to arrange that they appeared before both Senate and Commons' committees in succession, making one trip to Ottawa instead of being called on two separate occasions.

It was suggested to Senator McIlraith that perhaps there should be provision for a standing committees of the Senate and Commons, as are now occasionally established for consideration of special items. But he feels this would be going too far and that the committees should continue to operate independently.

The closing days of the recent parliamentary period offered an almost classic example of how Mr. McIlraith suggests a new way to work to the benefit of all. The Commons was kept in session primarily to pass emergency legislation to put the dock workers back on the job. But while the Commons was also debating two important bills, one on foreign take-overs and the other on family income measures, it was conceivable that on the last day before the summer recess the Senate might have been presented with all three measures and told, in effect, to ship them through in a matter of hours so Parliament could adjourn.

Under the McIlraith formula, the Senate would pass the legislation on the longer-term with a minimum of debate because it was an emergency measure and there was general unanimity of opinion. The other two bills would already have been considered in depth in the Senate and Commons since the time they were first introduced and there would be no hold-up in their passage.

At the same time, no one could claim the Senate was shoving the bills through without the famous sober, second thought.

It's an interesting idea, and one that merits some serious consideration. Senator McIlraith makes it clear the Commons would continue to sit on Saturdays because its members are elected. But the plan would allow the Senate to sit longer hours in a more productive way, instead of putting in time on make-work projects, waiting for the legislation to clear the Commons.

French Church Turns Left

PARIS (CP) — The church in France is turning to the left.

"A door has been opened," writes Jacques Duquesne in his book La gauche du Christ—The left of Christ—recently published here. "The Catholics range of choices has widened.

"Moreover, certain revolutionary themes, but not revolutionary systems, are beginning to make their way into the church. It would still be fastest if extreme left-wing Catholics showed themselves more pedagogues and less aggressively intolerant of others who do not share their opinions."

The revolution and Christ represent a surprising union. Roman Catholics were believed to be on the conservative side. However, Christians can be found in left-wing movements. Some even join the Communist party. Bishops of the church must be a force of contestation. Theologians are working on a theology of revolution.

In Chile, Catholics helped Marxist Salvador Allende gain power, writes Duquesne. The left's fascination is found in all the churches of the world without the indignation or condemnation of ecclesiastical hierarchy.

Social encyclicals have modified considerably the church's attitude towards money and capital, Pope Paul VI said in 1971 that Christians could be attracted by certain forms of socialism.

Duquesne goes as far as to claim that the church's true loyalties is not right-wing.

A well-known reporter in France, Duquesne has already published several books which have attracted the interest not only of Catholic circles but the public at large.

His books include:

—Demain, une Eglise sans prêtres—Tomorrow, a Church without Priests.

More Czech Children Get Religious Training

PRAGUE (AP) — Despite heavier pressures against religion, more Czechoslovak children are reported to be receiving religious instruction than before the 1968 Soviet crackdown on the country's liberal government.

This was revealed in a 140-page booklet on atheistic propaganda and the status of churches published here by the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee.

The report, published as a special issue of the political monthly, Nova Mysl, provides the most comprehensive survey of the position of the churches published here in recent years.

It said there had been an increase in religious life in the liberal era, with a rise in the number of baptisms, church weddings and funerals, but gave no figures for that period.

However, later statistics were given showing 34 per cent of the country's children were receiving religious instruction in schools in 1970, compared with 22 per cent in 1966.

In Slovakia, more than half of the children are attending religious classes, Nova Mysl said. It noted that the state recognizes 18 church denominations. However, no official statistics on membership have been available since 1954.

The Roman Catholic Church remains the largest and most influential. Nova Mysl said the church's hierarchy exploited the 1968 relaxation, prior to the August crackdown that year, to press for several prerogatives.

These included demands for restoration of religious orders disbanded in 1950, abolition of state supervision of church activities and for publication in Slovakia of religious education of children from state-run schools, Nova Mysl said.

Nova Mysl said the 1949 law disbanding religious orders continues to be valid and there is therefore no legal basis for their re-establishment.

While asserting that male religious orders had no place in Czechoslovak society, Nova Myel conceded female religious orders were necessary as useful work in hospitals and social institutions.

Protestant churches likewise expanded their activities in 1967-69 and demanded changes in Czechoslovak church laws or their liquidation.

One of the Protestant churches, "the greatest number of problems continues to exist in the Evangelical Church of Czech Brethren where a group of ministers of the so-called new orientation continues to put forward various unacceptable church demands," Nova Mysl said.

The second-largest church in the country, the Czechoslovak Church, which recently changed its name to "Czechoslovak Hussite Church," had advanced most in the process of consolidation," Nova Mysl said. This meant that the church has expressed full loyalty to the present state leadership.

Canadian Nuns Teach in Idaho

DE SMET, Idaho (Reuter) — Founded in 1878 by a Canadian religious order, Mary Immaculate School here in western Idaho helps children of the Coeur d'Alene Indian band to learn the ways of the white man.

It is the only Indian mission school in the United States maintained by the Sisters of Providence. The Roman Catholic order, whose mother house is in Montreal, operates similar schools in Canada.

Eight nuns, assisted by a man-wife team of the Jesuit lay volunteer group, carry on the mission's work at the school here, located among thousands of acres of farmland owned by the band.

Nazareth Cradle Of God's Kingdom

By The Rev. Gordon C. Smyth

Nazareth was what Ernest Renan, French historian and philosopher, called "the cradle of the kingdom of God". It was not always praised. Nathanael asked, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" Jesus did. For about 30 years he lived there. There he got his training. There he got the long, long thoughts of youth. There he caught his first vision of the world's great need.

The curtain of silence on this period is only lifted once. The pilgrimage to Jerusalem was expected when he reached the age of 12. A visit to the temple was the crowning lesson of what it meant to be a bar mitzvah now, a son of the Covenant, a full member of the House of Israel.

The story (Luke 2:41-52) reveals two things especially. The question, "Did you not know that I must be in my Father's house?" is a glimpse into the dawning awareness of Jesus that He had a unique relationship with the heavenly Father. The information that He "increased in wisdom and in stature, and in favor with God and man," points us to one who was like us in palpable, through every aspect of human development, but unlike us in faithfulness in each stage to God.

What was happening behind the scene? The incarnation being real, there is just one answer. Written on His inmost consciousness, written on His response to nature and human nature, written on His developing experience, written everywhere, Jesus read His Father's mind and will.

Nazareth was a village secluded in a cup of hills. A bowl enoys climbing and having his own—except Jesus saw wild flowers round about His hilltop haunt. They spoke to Him of God's unfailing care. Years later He drew the attention of a crowd to a similar sight and conclusion, "I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Jesus could look out for miles from His favorite spot. For instance, Sepphoris was within His range of vision. One night He saw a raging fire. The next morning He saw crosses going up. Jewish patriots had made the city a centre for revolt. The Romans were merciless. They crucified 2,000. The time came when Jesus would teach, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

Jesus became the village carpenter. A local farmer would want Him to make a yoke for oxen. Military and commercial routes, teeming with traffic, must have exits to nearby communities, as our highways do. Jews feeling a wrench from taxation than we feel, pilgrims going to the temple in the holy city in the hope of unburdening sins we know. Galileans restless for freedom like the lives of many lands — these had occasion over the years to find the carpenter shop of Nazareth. As Jesus worked for them He listened to them. He was actually fashioning those words, "Take my yoke upon you and learn from me . . . for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

Not all the main influence on Jesus was His home. Its members were housed in the kind of field stone structure, with a mud roof, that would have been common by a Board of Health. And yet Mary and Joseph saw to it that Jesus received the heritage of the synagogue. However, unlike many modern parents, they did not have it to others. Joseph and Mary were priest and priestess to their son. Jesus was to pay them the highest tribute when the based His teaching ministry on our behavior within the family of God.

Can any good come out of Nazareth? The Savior of the world found there an environment equal to His task. Those who would be His apostles today need not hesitate because of seeming insignificance or remoteness from major centres of politics and religion. I mean so long as they are quick like Jesus to see what is happening in a de-humanized society. I mean so long as they are also ready to climb with Him another hill called Calvary.

For many of us the apostolate is a challenge to bear the Cross right where we are and are likely to stay. For all the perfect before us is the knowledge that the Bread of Heaven is broken in the Sacrament of daily life.

MADOC SENIOR CITIZENS

MADOC — The Madoc and District Senior Citizens enjoyed a trip to the country after their recent monthly meeting for July. The group saw a modern new concept of dairy farming in operation. After the lunch was served, they travelled by car to the farm of Allen Ketcheson in the Madoc Township. Here they saw the machinery in operation and the new method of milking cows and the processing of milk in one time saving operation.

Previously in the afternoon the meeting was held in the United Church basement. President, Mrs. Broadworth opened the meeting and welcomed the 46 members present.

A short business period followed which was conducted by the president. Mrs. Johns, the secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting. The members welcomed back Mrs. Bateman who had been in the hospital and she in turn, thanked the members for their remembrances to her during that time.

"Senior Citizens Week" was observed by a large number of the Madoc and District Senior Citizens Club attending a joint church service on June 25 at Trinity United Church. The members were reminded of the senior Citizens' picnic to be held at Zwick's Island on July 19.

One item of special interest was announced by Mrs. Broadworth pertaining to a letter which she had received which confirmed the local club's application to join the United Senior Citizens of Ontario. A Charter was enclosed and the Madoc and District Senior Citizens Club will be number 463.

The president gave two humorous readings which were followed with a sing song conducted by Miss Adams. Several games concluded the business meeting.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS ROGER NERON

Neron – Arbuckle

St. James the Minor Roman Catholic Church, Stirling was the scene of the marriage ceremony on Saturday, July 8, 1972, when Debra Dianne Arbuckle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arbuckle, Stirling was united in marriage in Dennis-Roger Neron, Picton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Neron of Trenton. Father James McGarvey officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Jerry Fenlyn who also accompanied the soloist Miss Lana Chappelle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor length gown trimmed with pink and accented with a large flounce at hemline. Guipure lace accented the bodice skirt and sleeves. A headband of lace was caught in a four tiered chapel veil trimmed with matching lace. She carried a single pink rose.

Maid of honor Miss Caroline Shoniker wore a pink floor length gown featuring a smocked bodice with ruffled sleeves, and a flounced skirt. She wore a white picture hat enhanced with pink flowers. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, pink startfire and baby's breath. Bridesmaids Miss Lois Geen, Miss Carolyn Merrick and Miss Terry Arbuckle were identically attired to the maid of honor and all carried similar bouquets.

Larry Wannamaker attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Dennis Lebrun, Robbie Arbuckle and Tim Neron.

The reception was held at the IOOF hall where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a street length peach crepe ensemble with a corsage of orange sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a street length chartreuse crepe dress with chiffon overlay complemented with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Neron will reside in Picton.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS LEE

Lee – Tripp

Christ Church was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony of Wendy Joyce Tripp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tripp, Belleville and Dennis Maurice Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee, Belleville. Canon R. B. Worrell officiated while James Noakes provided the organ music.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a full length gown of organza and nylon lace over taffeta with a scalloped lace neckline and empire waist. The scalloped lace over the skirt extended to an oval train and the bride wore a rayon satin headpiece. The shoulder length bouffant nylon veil was accentuated by lilacs with pearl like buds. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses with white and pink carnations.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. George Butler, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Margie Scanlan were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in pink. They wore pink flowers in their hair and carried nosegays of baby 'mums tinted with pink.

Best man was Ricky MacDonald and Carl Byrd, brother-in-law of the bride and Bob Wessels, brother-in-law of the bridegroom were the ushers.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a coat and dress ensemble in pink lace. Beige accessories and a corsage of white mums tinted pink enhanced her dress.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 49 Dunbar St., Belleville.

Information Booth Opened

TWEED — The Tweed tourist information booth operated by the Tweed Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Land 'O Lakes and Highlands of Hastings tourist regions was opened on Monday, July 3, with the hostess, Miss Sally Courneyea and Miss Carol Martin reporting that the pages in the visitors' register are filling up rapidly.

The booth is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Saturday, but closed all day Sunday. Lodge owners and businessmen in the area are invited to bring their brochures for display and distribution. There is no cost for this service.

Miss Courneyea and Miss Martin are familiar with the area served by the tourist information booth.

Visitors are invited to call at the tourist information booth, which is housed, as in previous years, in an Ontario's smallest jailhouse, on Tweed's main street. The Chamber of Commerce believes it to be the only jailhouse where visitors are welcome to leave when they please.

The jailhouse is one of the most photographed buildings in the area, so visitors are invited to bring their cameras and plenty of film.

District Deputy President Installed

At a special meeting in the Oddfellows Hall, Bay Drive, Belleville, the members of Belleville District No. 4, of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario met for the purpose of installing the newly elected District Deputy President of Belleville District No. 4 for 1972-1973, Sister Alice Adams of Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 133 as her staff.

The installing officer for the evening was the retiring District Deputy President Sister Ruth Jardine of Tweed Rebekah Lodge and her marshall Sister Jean Dushane with her staff and guard of honor assisting, Sister Dorothy Webber rendered a solo. The newly installed Dist. Dept. Pres. Sister Adams presented Sis. Jardine with a Past District Deputy jewel.

Sister Adams was presented with several gifts, after which she welcomed all those present, and thanked the lodge and district for the honor of representing District No. 4 of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario.

Guests were present from Madoc, Stirling, Tweed, Thomasburg and Belleville.

Refreshments were served after the close of the meeting by the Past Noble Grand's Club under the direction of Sister Georgina Charleton, president of the club.

Festival Members Meet

STIRLING — Recently, the executive and annual meeting of the Stirling Music Festival of Sacred Praise were held at the home of Mrs. Spear with 20 present. Mrs. Glendinning presided over the meeting and Rev. John Ivey led in prayer.

Mrs. Reilly gave the treasurer's report showing a balance of $1542.81. The festival of Praise award was read. A letter from Mrs. Gardiner of the Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise award was read. A letter from Mrs. Gardiner to Miss Lee of Wilson and Lee Ltd., Music Store was discussed concerned some orders for music that were not acknowledged.

Suggestions were made from the 1972 festival by the members. The minutes of the annual meeting were read and adopted. Mrs. Spear gave her report for the ministry committee. Mr. Carlisle gave a report for the finance committee and Mrs. Morton for the Scripture committee. Mrs. McArton gave the secretary's report.

Mr. Keefer spoke as chairman of the advisory board of ways that this committee should be used. It was decided that this board should attend to the awards for the various classes and bring their decision to the executive meeting in the fall.

The newly elected executive are: hon. pres., Rev. John May; past pres., Mrs. Potter; pres., Mrs. Glendinning; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Williams; 2nd vice-pres., Miss Hales; 3rd vice-pres., Mrs. Keefer; rec. sec., Mrs. May; asst. rec. sec., Mrs. McArton; festival sec., Mrs. Carlisle; asst., Mrs. Doran; treas., Mrs. Reilly; and asst. treas., Mrs. Potter.

The committee chairmen elected include: Mrs. Carlisle Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Warren, Mr. Carlisle, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Spear, Mrs. Morton, and Mrs. Potter.

A list of the committees will be brought to the Sept. meeting by the committee chairman.

Mrs. Glendinning thanked all for the support they had given her in the past year and thanked Mrs. Spear for having the annual meeting in her home.

Women's Institutes

WALLBRIDGE W. I.

The recent meeting of Wallbridge W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Ted Evans with a good attendance. The president Mrs. Gordon Garrison conducted the meeting and the secretary Mrs. Everett Pike read the minutes of the last meeting and the correspondence.

She also reported an enjoyable day when 19 members and three visitors enjoyed dinner at the Dutch Mill Inn and toured the Vanden Mills and Crane of Canada Ltd. in Trenton. This tour was arranged by the Canadian Industries convener Mrs. Robert Spears.

Mrs. Allen Spencer gave the report of the district annual held in Stirling in May. After the benediction at the close meeting Mrs. Ted Evans, education and cultural activities convener called on Mrs. Frank Tucker, who showed beautiful slides of their trip to the Fiji Islands, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan and Hawaii, a 36 day trip that covered 31,000 miles.

Mrs. Roert Spears conducted a contest "Famous Quotations". The meeting closed and refreshments were served by the hostess and lunch committee.

BOTTLES RECYCLED

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 211 million used glass containers have been reclaimed and recycled into new bottles and jars during the first three months of 1972, it is reported by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute. The institute also reported that more than one billion bottles have been recycled since the glass containers and other secondary products since the reclamation program began about two years ago.

REV. DR. H. B. HERRINGTON AND WIFE

Couple Celebrate Diamond Anniversary

WESTBROOK — Rev. Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Herrington of Westbrook celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary with a dinner at the Westbrook United Church hall, recently.

The couple who were married in Melrose, Mass. in 1912 have one daughter, Mrs. Ralph Wightman (Lucille) of Westbrook. They also have two granddaughters and two great-granddaughters.

Dr. Herrington received a special ordination into the Methodist Church in 1917 having served in the pastorates of Montesqle Valley, Havana Denbigh, Bethel Ormemer, Cordova Mines, Warsaw, Athrley, Thomasburg, Lyn, Newburg and Keene. He retired in Keene in 1958.

During the 1930s Mr. Herrington began the study of Molluses (soft bodied, hard shelled aquatic animals) as a hobby and consequently became a specialist in the family of Sphaeriidae. Waterloo University conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Science on him in May 1971, for his work in the field of aquatic study.

Thirty relatives attended the dinner celebrating the couple's 60 years of marriage. Mrs. Ethel Barnes of Woodstock, Mrs. Herrington's sister attended the celebration.

Seeded on a love-seed, Mr. and Mrs. Herrington received congratulations from over 125 friends who arrived from near and far.

ASIA THROUGH A BUS WINDOW

"Monuments under construction and ready to be unveiled in October, 1971, for 2,500th anniversary of the founding of the Persian Empire." Phyllis Walsh.

* * *

On August 22, 1971, Phyllis Walsh of Belleville, is one of the 29 passengers on a London bus touring Europe and Asia, none in her class!

"Here in Goreme, Turkey, first underground city near Avange, discovered six years ago. It was inhabited first by neolithic people, then a series of all sorts. It finally became a Christian refuge from 200-400 A.D. . . . 20,000 people lived there.

"There are seven levels with underground tunnels branching off everywhere. I really admire the ingenuity of the original diggers.

"After visiting pottery and marble factories, back in Goreme, to see a community carved out of rock cliffs and isolated spikes of rock, inhabited from 2000 BC. Christians moved out in 1400 AD. There are primitive paintings and the frescoes — quite intriguing."

The next day, the passengers encountered a delay when their autoban broke down, but had an early start the next morning, and drove until noon. "Then the bus stopped half way up a mountain because we ran out of gas. So I went for a walk over rocky mountains, picked cactus flowers. Such desolate country! Could not suggest other use for goats.

"Finally a little man came with a truck and gas, towed us up the hill. Fine after that, and we were through the mountains. Observe that people becoming more westernized in dress. Farming habits not progressed though. Enormous crowds outside bus when we stopped and stayed in hotel at Malatya.

"The next day, August 25, "sunny, hot and breezy. Traveling through mountains all day on gravel roads. Scenery spectacular. Mountains from afar look like paintings though not a very high range.

Most of them very sandy and gravelly, mostly covered with scrub grass and cactus. We crossed the Euphrates River. The population very sparse. A town every 100 kilometres or so. Lots of towns have two storey concrete duplexes, and look out of place according to what we've seen. Lots of carts drawn by oxen still going hard at the hay fields. We drove for 13 hours, average speed 25-28 mph! Camped in a hay field near a trine of gypsies — who wanted our soap, low-

To Stay 'With It' Calls for Continuing Education

By DORIS CLARE

Palermo, Sicily — city of sunny climate and perfect temperature (in May) — was the meeting place of our International Association of Women and Home Page Journalists. Members came from 23 countries, and of a membership of 500, there were 180 journalists who made the trip.

Besides the more or-less nearby nations, like France, Great Britain, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, they came from faraway spots like Canada (one — and a group of French Canadians), Mexico, Tunisia, Finland, U.S.S.R., Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, India. The distance I travelled was 4500 miles.

It was worth it. The theme of the conference was "Permanent Education". We discussed the importance of acquiring new knowledge all your life. Just because a man or woman has a university degree, this does not mean that he knows all he needs to know and can then safely forth into the world on the strength of that knowledge alone.

You see, things have speeded up. Look at the changes that have happened in the last 10 years, 20 years. And if you add another 20, you'll understand the economist who said, "No one alive today will die in the same world as the one he was born."

To bring it down to individuals: Can you, as a mother or father, help your youngster with the New Math? What about the radical alterations we make in maps, charts, and even the names of countries?

Farming isn't being done at all like it was even a few years ago; and so many of

Family Reunion

MADOC — The Dafoe family reunion was held on Sunday, July 2 at the summer residence of Reverend Findlay Dafoe on the Ridge Road, Old Hill.

The event was most successful and the day and weather fitting for the occasion. More than 100 people were present from points in USA and Ontario including Flint, Detroit and Troy, Mich., Kingston, Sault Ste. Marie, Toronto, Belleville and many other places.

Nearly 100 years ago, Philip and Melissa Dafoe moved from West Huntingdon to the Gilmour area, Hastings in their wedlock ten children. Out of this family came two sons, Findlay and Kenneth, who in turn are responsible for this reunion. The family expects this will be the beginning of many more reunions in years to come.

SLICK TRICK

● Here's a good excuse for postponing oven cleaning: overnight. Set a dish of undiluted ammonia in the oven, and close the door on it until next morning. . . By that time, sticking on the stainless will be loosened by the ammonia fumes, so they're almost easy to remove.

Dad's Noon Visits Source of Irritation

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When I was first married several years ago, my dad used to come over almost every day at 11:30 a.m. and stay for lunch. It never occurred to him that I might have some place to go or something to do. He just assumed he was always welcome. I was inconvenienced plenty but I never said a word. If I had plans, I slipped upstairs to the extension telephone and postponed or cancelled them.

My husband was transferred to another state after two years, and one of the things I was happiest to leave behind was dad's daily visits. Last week my husband informed me that he is being transferred back to our home town. The first thing I thought of was you-know-who.

Ann, my dad can talk the ta-enails of a brass monkey. I happen't the patience I once had. Also I now have four children. What can I do about those daily noon visits without hurting his feelings?—Badly Best In Boston Harbor

Dear B.B.: Write your dad and tell him how delighted you are to be coming back. Tell him you'll miss those daily noon visits which will be impossible now with four youngsters and a big grer house, but you'll invite him as often as you can—etc., etc.

Dear Ann Landers: I laughed when I read that letter from "Wisconsin Ann Fan" who told about the ad in the paper by the owner of a bridal shop. It seems he was fed up with mothers parading through his store with their daughters pretending to be interested in buying gowns when all they wanted was to look so they could go home and copy the styles.

I'm a mother of a bride who got married two years ago. I sew quite well. To keep expenses down I decided to make my daughter's wedding gown. We went "shopping" for ideas.

ALERT TELLER

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)— A bank teller spotted a suspicious-looking customer in her line and asked a colleague to keep an eye peeled. When the man grabbed the first teller's loot as predicted and fled the second tailed him in a taxi and called police to the scene on the cab radio.

In the bridal store my daughter tried on a perfectly magnificent gown with a cap and veil and fell in love with it. I knew at once I could never duplicate the fabric or workmanship. We bought the outfit on the spot.

I'll bet dozens of mothers have had this same experience, so I wish the bridal shop owners wouldn't be so critical of us "amateurs."—Ladders Reader In The Okinawa Star

Dear Reader: Thanks for writing—and while I'm at it, I'd like you to know that I stopped in Okinawa on my way to Vietnam in 1967 and you have a nifty newspaper there.

Dear Ann Landers: I have this very good friend who is as pretty as a woman as you would want to meet, but she has a personality trait that drives me up the wall. Should I tell her, as an act of friendship?

Whatever she's talking to, within five minutes she takes on that person's personality, speech patterns, facial expressions and hand gestures. Others have noticed it and commented. In the space of one hour at a cocktail party, she can be a southern coquette, a French artist, a midwestern housewife, a German scientist and a Cook County Democrat.

How about it? Should I tell her? — Across The Room.

Dear Ac: Leave her alone. In all probability her chameleon behavior is not contrived and she couldn't change if she wanted to. Incidentally, who put together that guest list?

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Must a stepchild feel unwanted?

NO, Although not all cruel stepmothers and stepfathers are in novels, a stepparent can love a stepchild. Sometimes, when a stepchild does feel unwanted and unloved, it is because his stepmother or stepfather may unconsciously feel the same way. A stepmother, for instance, may find it hard to love the son of her new husband if she herself feels the marriage is not all she dreamed it would be.

Are some sicknesses too 'convenient'?

YES. Some minor illnesses seem to come at a time to suit the subject. Dr. William C. Schutz, in "Here Comes Everybody" (Harper and Row), tells about a cold he would come down with at encounter workshops at Esalen Institute, Big Sur, Calif. he said, "The cold meant 'Don't judge me too harshly.' I didn't have much energy for those workshops." He felt if he had a cold, people would be more tolerant of his performance.

Can a minor fight wreck budding love?

NOT as a rule. If love is beginning to grow, a man and a woman will usually be so considerate of each other that they will rarely let any disagreement "upset the applecart." Sometimes, however, a man might seize the opportunity presented by a minor spat to avoid any further involvement in love. Then he knows it wasn't that minor fight that caused the split, but his own problems of immaturity.

Wrestling Friendship Turns Sour

It was billed as a friendship turned sour and after Eric the Red and Beautiful Bruce Swayze had finished with each other, sweetness and love were still dirty words.

Beautiful Bruce teamed up with Vic Rossitani in the featured bout of Friday's Memorial Arena professional wrestling card against Eric the Red and the Beast and when the pre - match intimidations and threats were completed the proverbial bloodbath began.

Beautiful Bruce received the brunt of the 'bad-guys' attention and was pinned by the Beast for the first fall after a series of boots, gouges, bites punches, flips and chokes.

The tables were turned once again as Bruce and Rossitani were being knocked around the ring but somewhere during the excitement the Wildman had crawled into the ring giving Eric and the Beast an unfair advantage. The referee promptly awarded the match to Swayze and Rossitani much to the delight of the crowd.

In the opening bout of the night Golden Boy Apollo and Pat Kelly fought to a draw. Brother Mike Kelly wasn't as fortunate in the second bout although he did come out a winner when the Wildman was disqualified after a series of kicks and punches.

The Little Bruiser and Billy the Kid took the two-out-of-three midget tag team match with a victory over Bobo Johnson and Tiny Todd.

Holoway Close To 2nd No-Hitter

The 'Son' was shining for Mead Johnson last night but Foley's future became suddenly cloudy after an Industrial League contest at the Alemite.

Sonny Holoway came within one swing of the last of a perfect game Friday as he led his Mead Johnson team to a 3-0 win over Foley's.

George Foote's single was the only hit off the right-hander who has already recorded one no-hitter this year. Holoway fanned eight and did not walk a man. His pitching heroics kept Mead in the thick of the division B race, two points behind leading CN.

Gary Matier took the loss for the fading Foley's who dropped eight points of the pace set by The Intelligencer in division A. Matier allowed six hits while fanning three and walking two.

The Intell strengthened their first place position by stopping the Unemployment Insurance Commission 10-7 in the second half of the Alemite double-header.

The winners built up a 9-3 lead before the UIC got untracked in the final two frames.

Gerry Genereaux paced the Intell's eight - hit total with a pair of singles while Ron Culloden smashed a double. John Edwards went the distance in taking the win. He allowed 12 hits, struck out four and did not walk a man.

Ron Embury had a perfect night at the plate for UIC, picking up two doubles and a pair of singles. Relief pitcher Pete Hamilton stroked a triple and Bill Healy a double and single as the losers hit too late.

Howard's Total Respectable

Jeff Howard didn't win the Ontario Amateur Golf Championship at the Toronto Golf Club this week but he did put forth the old college try to place a respectable 24th at the event.

Howard, a native of Trenton, fired a 34-hole total of 230 to trail the winner Kelly Roberts of London by 18 strokes.

Billiard Bayle Right on Cue

The National Billiards mosquitoes were rolling well in a lone Friday night Belleville Minor Soccer contest, stopping the Steelworkers 4-2.

Elvin Leonarduzzi picked up two goals for the winners, with George Maletta and Mike Crawford adding single tallies.

Tim Turner had both Steelworker goals.

AOCO and Brooke Bond kept pace with each other in the division C standings when both picked up wins last night.

AOCO whipped the Independents 7-2 behind the two-hit pitching of Grant Collet. He fanned six and did not walk a batter. Doug McKay doubled and singled for the winners big hitter.

Doug Campbell took the loss for the Independents.

Brooke Bond made their second come - from - behind win in a row by scoring five times in the fifth inning to nip the Post Office 7-6.

Don Goodfellow, Bob Chambers and Joe Scott each had two hits for the winners. Chambers fired the win.

Reverses Stand

Tradeau Joins Hull Muddle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada and Russia are look-a-likes in many ways, but after one telephone call and one telegram Friday there's no danger they'd ever be mistaken for twins.

The telephone call was to an official of the Soviet Hockey Federation in Moscow. Asked for reaction to Bobby Hull's exclusion from the Canadian team for the Russians in September, he replied:

"We are not interested in him at all. It makes no difference for us whether he plays or no."

Canada, on the other hand, seemed to be interested in little else, and one telegram showed how firmly this preoccupation had gripped the country Friday. It was from Prime Minister Trudeau.

The prime minister and Health Minister John Munro, apparently reversing their stand of a day earlier not to intervene in the affair for fear of scuttling the Canada-Russia series, enabled the major parties concerned a strongly-worded request that they find a way to include Hull.

BOBBY HULL

Talking to reporters, Trudeau said the matter had been discussed in cabinet, and that he had received a "great many" telegrams from concerned Canadians.

The former National Hockey League superstar has been declared ineligible for Team Canada because he no longer is in the National Hockey League. He has signed a player-coach of the Winnipeg entry in the new World Hockey Association.

When the series was conceived in the spring, Hockey Canada agreed to an NHL embargo lation that only players who had signed their NHL contracts for the coming season would be recruited.

In addition to the Trudeau telegram, Canadians exchanged countless other points Friday, including newspaper and broadcast editorials, calls for resignations, and free words from some other public figures.

—Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said in Prince Albert, Sask., that Hockey Canada was displaying "a change of attitude" that would hurt Canada. The action was "simply a petty way of the NHL dealing with Hull," and if Parliament were sitting "a resolution would be forthcoming immediately to express our concern."

—Jack Matheson, Winnipeg Tribune sports editor, resigned from the board of governors of Hockey Canada. His resignation is "effective July 13, the day the NHL became bigger than our country."

—Harold Ballard, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs, said diverting himself from the rest of the NHL hierarchy in the matter, said Hull should be on the team. He earned this Winnipeg Free Press headline: "Hark, the Angel Herald Sings."

In the other camp, an NHL spokesman said president Clarence Campbell would not comment until he has "a chance to discuss the prime minister's telegram with his principles."

The Trudeau telegram, sent to Hockey Canada president Charles Hay and Red Berenson, president of the NHL Players' Association as well as to Campbell, said:

"You are aware of the intense concern, which I share with millions of Canadians in all parts of the country, that Canada should be represented by its best hockey players, including Bobby Hull and all those named by Team Canada, in the forthcoming series with the Soviet Union.

On behalf of these Canadians, he urged the groups "to take whatever steps may be necessary to make this possible."

"In making whatever arrangements may be called for I would ask you to keep the best interests of Canada in mind and make sure that they are fully respected and served."

The prime minister told reporters the government could not order the NHL to let Hull play. But it said the three major parties would be "big enough" to agree to his request.

The telegram was followed Friday by another to the three groups from Supplies and Services Minister James Richardson, MP for Winnipeg South, saying it "is vital that Bobby Hull play for Canada. . . .

"In Canada's interest and particularly on behalf of Winnipeggers, I urge your groups to meet at the earliest possible date to negotiate some method that will enable Bobby to play for Canada."

Premier of Province—Toronto Maple Leafs owner Harold Ballard says he doesn't "give a damn" if Bobby Hull signed with a team in China. He's a Canadian and should be on the Canadian team to beat the Russians this fall. Damn right he should be on that team, but they must be with a team in the National Hockey League, now dominated by American owners, which is apparently keeping Hull off the team. In a surprise to the Canadian public, Hockey Canada should completely ignore Prime Minister Trueau's appeal for Hull's inclusion on the team. He is not eligible, and for the majority in Canada who believe that the selection should not be restricted by . . . author ities in other countries.

Tickets Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey Canada announced Friday it will place advertisements in all daily newspapers Monday with information on how to obtain tickets for the Canada-Russia hockey series.

The advertisements will contain an entry form for a national ticket draw. Tickets are to be allotted in pairs only at $15 a pair.

Draws to select applicants for the games in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Team Canada, composed of Canadian-born National Hockey League players, meets the Russian national team in an eight-game exhibition series that will bring in Montreal Sept. 2. Outer Canadian games are in Toronto Sept. 4, Winnipeg Sept. 6 and Vancouver Sept. 8.

Four games will be played in Moscow Sept. 22-28.

Arrangements are being made to televise all games on national television.

Russian Players Named for Series

MOSCOW (CP) — Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said today that hockey players have been selected from which will come the players who will face Canada in eight games to be played in September—four in Canada and four in the Soviet Union.

The list as transmitted by Tass contained only 32 names however, including the stars of the Soviet team that has won the Olympic gold medal in four of the last five Olympic Games. The list:

Goal—Vladislav Tretyak, 20, Central Army Sports Club, Moscow; Vladimir Nesovalov, 25, Central Army Sports Club, Imported; Alexander Pashkov, 28, Moscow Dynamo; Alexander Medelnikov, 22, Wings of Soviet, Moscow; Viktor Krivopalov, 21, Spartak, Moscow.

Defence—Alexander Ragulin, 31; Viktor Kuzkin, 32; Alexander Gusev, 25; Gennady Tsygankov, 25; Yuri Blokhin, 30; Vladimir Lutchenko, 22; Yevgeny Paladiev, 22; Valery Vasilyev, 21.

Forwards: Vladimir Vikulov, 20; Alexander Maltsev, 20; Valery Kharlamov, 24; Boris Mikhailov, 2; Vladimir Petrov, 26; Yevgeny Mishakov, 25; Vyacheslav Anisin, 25; Vladimir Shadrin, 21; Alexander Martynyuk, 27; Vyacheslav Anisin, 25; Yuri Lebedev, 21; Alexander Martynyuk, 27; Vyacheslav Starshinov, 28, playing coach of Moscow Spartak; and Anatoly Firsov, 32, coach of Central Army Sports Club. These three have long experience in international competition.

No Friendly Hug

This wasn't a friendly hug of greeting although Eric the Red and Beautiful Bruce Swayze haven't seen each other for awhile. Rather it was Eric's turn to rearrange Bruce's facial features in a revenge bout at Friday's Memorial Arena card of professional wrestling. The two were former tag team partners before their friendship turned sour. Bruce joined with Vic Rozakartani to defeat Eric and his partner the Beast in the featured bout of the night.

Eric Versatile Villain

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

Eric 'the Red' Hansen is a man of many ways and means and when he's not a villain in the wrestling ring he has any number of ways to dispose of an opponent.

"My style of wrestling would be described as rough and tough," says the 318 pound villain. "Everything goes. I go into the ring to win and I don't care who it is. In this business you can't trust anybody and you've got to beat them to make the money."

Eric, a Danish citizen from Odense (home of Hans Christian Anderson), has been on the professional wrestling circuit for seven years and although he plans to be around for a long time to come there no means is entirely dependent on this particular line of work.

"There is good money in wrestling and I like the physical contact part of it but I have an apartment block back home and I have my drawing and plumbing papers so if something should happen I'd have lots to fall back on."

Plumbing doesn't seem to fit into Eric's pattern of living however where a wife

Alouettes Can O'Quinn

Grey Cup Bosses Split

MONTREAL (CP) — The partnership that brought Montreal its first Grey Cup in 7 years split Friday when Alouettes owner Sam Berger fired John (Red) O'Quinn as the team's general manager.

Berger immediately named J. Allerchek general manager and director of player personnel with the Canadian Football League club under the Berger-O'Quinn regime, to the general manager post.

The decision to fire O'Quinn came amid reports of dissension in the club's front office, particularly of O'Quinn's objections to the pecking order involved in some club affairs.

Berger said simply: "Obviously I had to have good reasons, but because of legal implications I can't say any more.

"I'll have to fall back on legal terminology and just say I have discharged him for good and sufficient reason," he told a news conference.

The firing throws up in the air the future of O'Quinn's five-year contract with the Alouettes, which his lawyer says still has two years to run.

"I know Sam Berger is an honorable man and I'm assuming he will honor the terms of my contract," O'Quinn said in an interview from his home Friday. "I hope there is no problem in that regard.

"I had hoped to survive all this and see this club come back to what it can be, but if they feel they can do better another way, I can only wish them all the best."

Allrecht said he first got wind that something was afoot when he received a call from O'Quinn Thursday telling him he now was in charge of veteran players contracts.

As that meant more duties for Allrecht's office, he arranged to meet Berger Friday to discuss the situation. O'Quinn told Allrecht not to go to Berger's office without seeing him first. Allrecht said he tried to reach O'Quinn before the scheduled meeting but to no avail. He answered Berger's charge that he was late by saying he had been trying to get in touch with O'Quinn thinking he wanted to attend the meeting.

"When I got upstairs Red was called again and after a short discussion Mr. Berger told him he was fired—and I was hired.

O'Quinn's statements of disappointment at the end of the partnership also echoed at least in part by Berger who said he had not approached the decision "with any gladness."

"When I came to Montreal the first thing I relied upon was Red O'Quinn," he said.

Berger had purchased the bankrupt Alouettes from previous owner Joe Atwell following the 1969 Grey Cup. He brought O'Quinn here, after the season as general manager of the Montreal club.

Conditions at the club have clouded lately with the departure last month of defensive coach Bob Ward who termed Etcheverry "incompetent," and the trading of several key players. Others are playing out their contracts and there was a reports of an austerity program.

Allrecht served on the coaching staffs of several United States universities prior to his appointment as special talent consultants in 1959 with the then-embryo American Football League.

He was enlisted by Perry Moss in 1968 as director of player personnel with the Alouettes. He resigned that post in 1963 to become assistant general manager and business manager of the AFL Oakland Raiders.

Allrecht organized the Montreal-based Quebec Rifles of the United States Football League in 1964, serving as general manager and director of player personnel. He brought Etcheverry back to pro football in Montreal as coach of the Rifles.

The new general manager then worked as an NFL scout until he was hired here by O'Quinn, following Berger's purchase of the Alouettes.

Allrecht said he had not signed a new contract with the team, but that his first concern was to get the Alouettes back to the winning spot the club held in 1970. The Als finished last in the four-team Eastern Football Conference in 1971.

Duncan Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Fullback Dennis Duncan, 29, a two-year veteran with Ottawa Rough Riders, was cut from the team roster Friday. He came to Ottawa after two seasons with Montreal Alouettes. He was suspended from the Montreal team just before their successful 1970 Grey Cup game against Saskatchewan. He had been out to late at night.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING

THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE UTILIZATION OF EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES

The Legislative Assembly of Ontario has established a Select Committee of its members, drawn from all three political parties, to "enquire into the utilization of Educational Facilities." The Committee is guided by the following Terms of Reference:

1. The Committee should enquire into the potentialities and previously unrecognized uses of educational facilities throughout Ontario at all levels including post-secondary facilities.
2. Specifically the Committee should examine such matters as,
   (i) The wider community use of its educational facilities
   (ii) The year-round use of such facilities for educational and/or community programs.
   (iii) Ways and means by which the above-mentioned activities could be brought about and emphasized.

In order that the Committee be made aware of the thoughts of the public in this regard, interested individuals and groups are invited to attend the Public Meeting which the Committee will hold as follows:
BELLEVILLE: Centennial Secondary School, Palmer Road

Tuesday, August 1, 1972, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

To enable all interested parties to attend, such persons or groups are requested to contact the Clerk of the Committee at least 48 hours prior to the agenda at the meeting.

The Clerk of the Select Committee at the following address:

Education Committee
Queen's Park
Toronto 182, Ontario.

(This registration is for convenience only. Everyone wishing to speak will be heard after the agenda is exhausted.)
Please note that the Committee is pleased to accept written briefs at all times; consequently, should you or your organization not complete your submission in time for the Public Meeting, mail it to the Clerk of the Committee at the above address.

There is no time limit to submit the brief, or formal structure to follow, as long as the brief relates itself to the Terms of Reference.

Chairman: Charles Melanson, M.P.P.
Clerk: Guy F. L. Sukko

Nicklaus Eyes Narrow Escape

Nobody Discounting Nicklaus

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Just because Jack Nicklaus is six strokes out of first place in his quest for the third leg of his pro grand slam, don't count him out.

That's the word from both Lee Trevino, the defending champion and third-round leader, and Nicklaus himself.

The taunting began today.

Emulting in five straight birdies that gave him a one-stroke lead after Friday's first round, Trevino said: "Don't rule out Jack Nicklaus for the title. He doesn't like to be beaten."

And Nicklaus' comment was: "I've won many times from six strokes behind the leader."

The 31-year-old Golden Bear needs to win his third British open title for the third leg of the more accomplished grand slam of modern golf—all four major pro championships in the same year.

A play in the final round got under way over Muirfield's historic links, 6,892 yards of Scottish grass and heather, Trevino told friends: "You can never put Jack Nicklaus out of a tournament until the last man has sunk the last putt."

Then came Trevino's qualifications.

"Although Jack is the type of man who doesn't like to be beaten, he has to compete both myself and Tony Jacklin. He could beat one of us, but I don't think he can beat both.

"Jack has to get aggressive to make up the distance. That means he has to drive every par four and eagle every par five. He cannot afford to be conservative.

"On this golf course that attitude could pay off but more likely it could result in a lot of bogeys."

Trevino's score over the par 36-35—71 links was 71-70-66—207, six shots under par. Jacklin was one stroke back.

Trevino's five successive birdies on the last five holes in the third round left even the self-styled Super-Mex searching for words, a commodity of which he usually has a plentiful supply.

"I cannot remember when I've had such a sequence," Trevino said.

"It makes me feel good for the final round. It would be the greatest thrill for me to win the British Open again."

"I'm going to be under tremendous pressure but I'm not going to let anyone pass me by if I can help it."

Doug Sanders, who has twice been runner up to Nicklaus for the British championship, was in third place with 71-71-67—211. Brian Barnes, Britian Ryder Cup star, was fourth with 71-72-69—212 and Nicklaus loomed with 70-72-71—213.

Sixty-four golfers qualified for the final round with 54-hole aggregates of 225 and less.

South African Glad He Stuck it Out

WINNIPEG (CP) — Al Kietzmann has been frustrated on the Canadian Professional Golf Association tour this summer and last week was ready to pack it up and head home to Benoni Lake, South Africa.

The lanky 21-year-old decided to give it one more chance by entering the Manitoba Open, and Friday he shot his second consecutive three-under-par 69 to take a two-stroke lead into today's final 18 holes of the $8,500 event.

Kietzmann's 138 total leaves him two shots up on John Morgan of Victoria, B.C. and three in front of Gary Pitchford of Freeport, Bahamas, Tom McGinnis of Memphis, Tenn. and Al Balding of Toronto.

Only seven golfers managed to break par in the second round as strong winds and intermittent rain continued to mar the event. Four pros, Kietzmann, Morgan, Ken Trowbridge of Bolton, Ont., and Tom Hanna of Cumberland, Md., led the way with 69s.

Hot Putter Hands Roberts Ont. Amateur

TORONTO (CP) — At the end of the first nine holes Friday at the Toronto Golf Club, it looked as if young Kelly Roberts of London had blown his chances of winning the Ontario Amateur golf championship.

Roberts, who had started the final round of the 54-hole tournament with a three-stroke advantage over his nearest rival, shot a four-over-par 38 on the front nine of the 6,441-yard course.

But he came back with a two-under-par 34 on the back nine to finish the round at 72 and the tournament at two-over-par 212.

That was good enough to give him his first Ontario amateur title by two strokes over veteran Nick Weslock of Mississauga, who shot a final-round 70 and had a 54-hole total of 214.

In third place at 216 was Stu Hamilton of Brampton, the first-round leader with a 68, who shot a 72 Friday. Hamilton knocked himself out of contention by taking a double-bogey five on the par-three 16th hole after his tee shot landed in a trap.

Roberts, 18, accepted the Birks Silver Cup as champion almost reluctantly.

"I didn't make many real good shots out there today," he said. "I didn't think this morning that a 72 would be good enough to win."

He said he scrambled throughout the final round, and was saved only by his putting. Weslock, 54, who won the amateur in 1961 before Roberts was born, agreed with the young London golfer.

"He made about four clutch putts out there today and that saved him," said Weslock.

There were only three sub-par rounds over the 54 holes—Hamilton's first-round 68, a 67 by Roberts the second day, and Reynolds' surprising third round.

The victory automatically placed Roberts on Ontario's Willingdon Cup team.

The other three spots on the team will be decided here Monday when the top 20 players in the amateur, excluding Roberts, play an additional 18 holes. The low 7-hole totals will decide who makes the team.

"O.K. it's a bet. I say over 15 strokes and you say under 15 strokes!"

Have-nots Battle For Title

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Colbert and George Johnson, with one major victory between them in 11 combined years on the pro golf tour, survived swirling winds and a four-way challenge Friday to share a one-stroke lead after two rounds in the $125,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Johnson, one of four first round leaders at 65, came back with a 68 for a nine-under total of 133 over the 6,844 yard, par 71 Tripoli Golf Club course.

Colbert, one down at 66 Thursday, was six under for his first eight holes Friday before settling for 67.

Tied at 134 were rookie Billy Ziobro, veterans Rod Funseth and Gardner Dickinson and Tom Ulonas, a second year non-exempt player. Ulonas, another of Thursday's co-leaders, blew a chance to tie for the lead when he missed a four-foot putt on his last hole for a bogey.

It took a par 142 total for the low 70 to make the cut.

The other two first day leaders, Bruce Fleisher and Labron Harris Jr., slipped but made the cut. Fleisher shot a 72 for a 137 and Harris 73 for 138. Defending champion Dave Eichelberger was still in at 141.

Gorge Knudson of Toronto, with a 68, was the only Canadian to make the cut, carding 139 for the two rounds. Bob Panasiuk of Windsor and Don Kern of Toronto had 72 and 72, respectively for totals of 145, and Ken Fulton of Toronto was 73-74 for a 149.

It Didn't Help

Big Brother Watching Tigers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big Brother was watching . . . and little brother couldn't have been happier.

"I think there was a little anxiety over what might happen, but I was delighted it finally came to be," Detroit Tigers catcher Tom Haller said Friday night after his older brother, umpire Bill Haller, had spent the evening looking over his shoulder.

Having a brother in on the action didn't help Tom and his Tiger team-mates—which of course, is the way it should be.

"It proved," Tom said after Kansas City Royals squeaked past Detroit 1-0. "Dad when you're on a ball field, you have a job to do and you worry about brotherhood second.

"It's a credit to baseball," the 35-year-old catcher, two years younger than his ball-and-strike-calling brother, added. "It proves the game has integrity."

In the rest of the American League, Cleveland Indians beat Texas Rangers 5-0 in 14 innings, Minnesota Twins edged Boston Red Sox 7-6, Milwaukee Brewers belted California Angels 7-3 and, in a pair of twi-night doubleheaders, Oakland Athletics took two from New York Yankees 9-3 and 1-0 and Baltimore Orioles swept a pair from Chicago White Sox, 7-4 and 3-0.

Tom Haller has been a major league catcher for more than a decade. But until this year he didn't have a chance to come face-to-face—or, more precisely, mask-to-mask—with Bill. Until this season, he had toiled behind the plate in the National League while Bill spent his major league career in the American.

"I'd always hoped I'd be behind the plate with my brother," Tom said, "but Billy Martin (Detroit's manager) didn't put me there because I did."

Martin agreed, pointing out he had Haller catching only because Bill Freehan needed a rest.

"It didn't faze either one of them," Martin said of the Haller-ers. "It didn't hurt or help one bit."

The only things that helped the Royals to victory were Amos Otis' fourth-inning double and John Mayberry's run-scoring single plus the combined three-hit hurling of Bruce Dal Canton, Tom Burgmeier and Ken Wright.

Gaylord Perry hurled 13 innings of shutout ball, then bowed out and picked up his 18th victory in the 16th inning as the Indians pushed across a pair of runs on two Texas errors and run-scoring singles by Buddy Bell and John Ellsbarner.

"After the ninth," Perry said, "Warren Spahn (Cleveland's pitching coach) asked me if I was strong enough to continue. I told him I was and that when I was no longer able to pitch well enough to help the club, I'd tell him.

"When the 12th ended, I went to him and said: 'I'd like to continue but my pitches are getting higher and higher. It's time for me to step aside. A fresh pitcher could do us more good than I can now.'"

The fresh one was Ed Farmer, who silenced the Rangers the rest of the way to protect Perry's victory.

Harmon Killebrew hit his 12th homer of the season in the third inning, then drew a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth to force over the winning run, capping a three-run rally that propelled the Twins past the Red Sox.

Nolan Ryan of the Angels struck out seven Milwaukee batters to raise the league lead with 146, surpassing the Tigers' Micky Lolich.

Ryan was about the only thing Ryan did right. He couldn't do much with the Brewers' Johnny Briggs, who drove in six of their seven runs with two homers, his 12th and 13th, the first of them his first major-league grand slam.

Berra Tickled With Free Agent Slugger

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave Schneck was the 40th player chosen by the New York Mets in the 1968 free agent draft.

But today he's not just another number with Yogi Berra.

"He really picked us up at a time when we needed a hit," said the New York manager after Schneck's first major-league hit—a two-run homer—helped the Mets beat San Diego Padres 3-2 Friday night.

Schneck, last brought up to the big club from the minor leagues Thursday, made his major-league debut a smashing success with his belt in the sixth inning.

The young outfielder had a gloomy record with Memphis of the Double AA Texas League—10 home runs in 81 games. That gaudy mark, plus the Mets' shortage of outfielders due to injury, were reasons for his chance in a big-league uniform.

"I saw the boy for the first time four years ago and I liked the way the ball jumped off his bat," said Berra, admiringly. "With all those homers he hit at Memphis, you know he has good power."

The Mets' victory, also fashioned on Tom Seaver's five-hit effort, kept them in pursuit of Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East race.

The Pirates retained their three game edge after beating Houston Astros 5-2.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago Cubs defeated Atlanta Braves 9-8; Cincinnati Reds turned back St. Louis Cardinals 6-3; San Francisco Giants whipped Philadelphia Phillies 8-1 and Montreal Expos blasted Los Angeles Dodgers 9-1.

YOGI BERRA

Baylor Moore earned his first major league victory, relieving Steve Hetzler, and Ron Fairly drove in four runs as Montreal came up with a clubs-record 19 hits en route to victory over Los Angeles.

Moore, who had lost three straight decisions this season, including one to Los Angeles, retired the first 15 Dodgers and breezed behind the Expos' longest-ever hit total. Fairly singled him two runs in the fifth, doubled in one in the seventh and singled home another in the ninth.

Tweed

TWEED — A plastic wares party was held at the home of Mrs. Hilda White, of Plevna, Tuesday evening, with a good crowd in attendance.

The final meeting of the year of the Kaladar Community Club, at Kaladar, was held at the hall with plans made for a smorgasbord dinner and a field day to be held during the summer recess.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Bean, of Kaladar, recently attempted a motor trip to Northwest Territories but were turned back at Regina due to a freak snowstorm. They anticipate travelling again later this summer.

Miss Heather Stein of Denbigh and David and Phillip Plotz of Eganville, Ontario, left recently for Prince Rupert where they are employed for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. John Corrigan, of Read, Ontario, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Monday.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, July 16

Aries (March 21-April 19): Minding your own affairs while doing your share in communal Sunday customs is the best path. Later hours find relaxed conditions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Give everybody something to do, get things shaken down to tidy comfort. Then for evening you can enjoy a small party with old friends.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Stay on your island, go about it directly. Future should be left for later discussion, along with unanswered questions. Where you are up to now.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Seek advice today, enjoy the attention, but make no definite promise of what you'll do about it. Sentimental interest comes alive.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You can't stay put this Sunday either in personal maturing or actual moving about. Lean, live, evolve toward wholeness, dignity.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This Sunday is indicated as nearly a free ride for you. Take short cuts, skip routines wherever people will let you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get out early with your plans and good thoughts, and you have it made. Sunday activities should include catching up on your friends' news.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Doing things your way is the only effective course, requires skill. There are details which are hard to discover beforehand, but important.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Impulse can lead to strange and wonderful adventures this Sunday—it's better to hold off long enough to reflect on what you are asking for.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Staying near home pays off, you make unwanted incidents while adding to your resources. It is time to review recent developments.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Spread yourself to catch up with your family, inlaws, relatives—to listen rather than to instruct or direct.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Give some thought to your health and its care, avoiding stress and fatigue at present. Friends and family can make this a most enjoyable day.

Monday, July 17

Aries (March 21-April 19): Disagreement needn't lead to unhappiness—tell it like it is and take your share of responsibility. Your work deserves full attention.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Let people keep their distance—stand off if they won't. Precautions routinely taken today save endless difficulties later on.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): There's no point in starting a conflict. Listen before complaining, wait for people to find fresh situations for themselves.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Hold your previous plans despite tempting offers for quick gain. Where differences develop it seems there's no ground rules.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Getting almost anything done depends on your efforts and resources. Start early. Results begin to show soon—keep at it!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Time to resume work is not time to forget play. Assign priorities, get something done in all important projects. Relax early.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go directly to the point without dragging in unrelated questions. Activities dependent on you will yield better and quicker results.

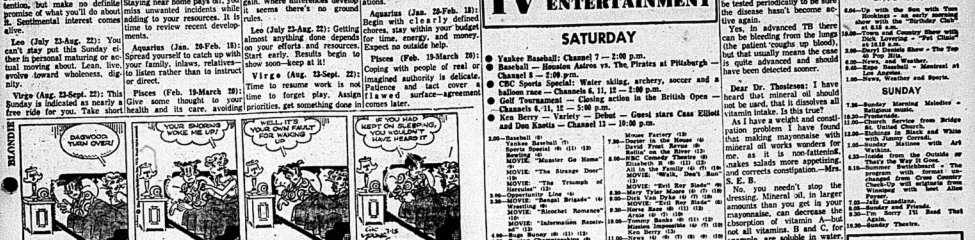
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make this a quiet day, at as many a pace as people and conditions permit. The evening brings a lively mood—let go and enjoy yourself!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You harder you work on the most demanding tasks, the quicker you get this week's enterprise off the ground toward success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get actively involved in promoting your own interests that are already going. Timidity is to do without getting into new situations.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Begin with clearly defined chores, stay within your budget for time, energy, and money. Expect no outside help.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Coping with people of real or imagined authority is delicate. Patience and tact cover a multitude of surface-agreement comes later.



To Your Good Health

TB Contagious, Not Hereditary

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am getting excited hereditable. They tell me it isn't contagious. I have always been told that it was. And it is also hereditary. When people have TB, they should not be with others in the home to spread the germs. Am I right?

Don't people have hemorrhages from the mouth when they have it real bad?—Mrs. B. J.

Who's "they?" Certainly TB is contagious. It is passed from person to person, carried by germs. The tubercle bacillus.

No, TB isn't hereditary, but of course a woman with active TB had a baby, the baby would be very likely to contract the disease from the mother.

Close contact with a person who has active TB is the way the disease spreads, primarily from the germs being scattered by coughs, sneezes, kissing or other intimate body fluid contact. In controlling TB is that a person may have it for quite some time before knowing it, and in that time can spread the disease to others.

If only TB showed up quickly, like scarlet fever, or whatever, we would have much more success in stamping out the disease.

When a case is discovered, then the patient should not stay home and risk giving the disease to those around him. Without symptoms, hospitalization is much shorter than it used to be, and when the disease is discovered early enough and the patient no longer has the germs in his sputum (and modern tests won't be showing TB germs with every sneeze and cough) it is safe for him to go home again. But he should be tested periodically to be sure the disease doesn't become active again.

Yes, in advanced TB there can be bleeding from the lungs (the patient 'coughs up blood), but that happens when the case is quite advanced and should have been detected sooner.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that mineral oil should not be used, that it dissolves all vitamin intake. Is this true?

As I have a weight and constipation problem I have found that making mayonnaise with mineral oil works wonders for me, as it is not fattening, makes salads more appetizing, and corrects constipation.—Mrs. S. E. B.

No, you needn't stop the dressing. Minerol oil is harmless other than you get in your mayonnaise, can decrease the absorption of vitamin A—but not all vitamins. B and C, for example, are soluble in water, but not affected by oils.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a "calcified aorta," what causes it and what are the dangers if any?—L. H. F.

Part of the process of hardening of the arteries involves laying down calcium in the walls of the arteries, and when enough calcium has been deposited, it may be seen by x-ray.

The aorta, of course, is the biggest of the arteries, the main one leading from the heart. But other arteries can harden, too, and accumulate calcium. This can be noticeable, for example, in the arteries serving the legs.

There is no particular danger from such calcification since it does not obstruct the flow of blood. But since it is an indication of hardening of the arteries, it is wise to see that your blood pressure stays within normal limits.

Note to Mrs. D. A. P.: No, you won't become addicted to B-12 injections. B-12 is a vitamin and not a drug.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♠	5 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — ace of diamonds.

This deal occurred in a match between Great Britain and Lebanon and cost the British team 850 points.

At the first table, the Lebanese South got to five hearts on the bidding shown and West led the ace of diamonds. Everyone followed suit and the British West then had an extremely difficult problem to solve.

He realized that if declarer had the missing diamond, the best play would be to lead another diamond for East to ruff. But he was also painfully aware that East had it a continuation of the suit could be fatal, for it would hand declarer an immediate discard.

Torn with indecision, West switched to the ace of clubs, hoping to elicit some kind of signal from East that would help resolve the diamond situation. If East followed low on the ace, it would mean he wanted another diamond lead; if East played a high club, it would mean he wanted another club lead.

But, alas, the best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft a-gley, and to West's disappointment, South ruffed the club and so made the contract for a score of 650 points. Had West led another diamond, the contract would have gone down one.

At the second table, with Britain now North-South, the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	4 ♠	4 ♥
5 ♦	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass	Dbl

Here, the Lebanese West, who had had the advantage of a spade bid by East, led the jack of spades. East threw upon made a good play when he switched to the jack with the queen and returned a diamond. West took the ace and led back a diamond—whereupon East had gone out of his way to identify a singleton — and South ended up going down one before he could even get started.

Women Must Do Jury Duty But Can't Talk About It

OTTAWA (CP) — Hijacking an aircraft, disclosing what went on in a jury room and paddling a child while under the influence of liquor or drugs all became criminal offences today.

These and other changes to the Criminal Code were approved by Parliament in June and were proclaimed law in this week's edition of the Canada Gazette.

Justice Minister Otto Lang said the amendments are part of continuing government efforts to keep abreast of the changing mood and needs of the country and its laws.

About three years ago, the Trudeau government made its first sweeping changes in the Criminal Code. Most attention went to those dealing with homosexuals and Mr. Trudeau's statement that the government had no business in the bedrooms of the nation.

In this second major overhaul, the most prominent changes have been the new offence of hijacking—carrying a maximum penalty of life imprisonment—and doing away with the whip in jail sentences.

While there is no common theme to the changes, a number can be traced to recent terrorist activities in Quebec and the resulting court reforms.

Example: A witness in a Montreal court refused to give testimony, saying that Quebec courts discriminate against women by not allowing them to serve on juries on the same basis as men.

The new laws effective today do put women on the same footing as men in jury duty. The practice of giving women an option to serve or not to serve is abandoned.

A second change arising from Quebec trials is the new offence of revealing to others the discussions in a jury room.

This now is punishable by up to six months in jail. The revision, which attracted little attention in parliamentary discussion, makes the ban effective for life.

In the same vein, newspapers commit an offence when they publish arguments presented in a courtroom while the jury is excused.

While newspapers in general withheld such news last year they so found in contempt of court, the changes spell out the ban.

Pesticide Found

FLORENCE, N.S. (CP) — Five hundred gallons of toxic pesticide lying in an underground tank at an abandoned chemical plant in this Cape Breton village for more than 20 years was removed and secon terminated this week.

Provincial health authorities were unaware of the deadly chemical until recently when "some children in the area saw the stuff coming through the ground and an investigation was started," Ernest Bishop of Lunenburg, deputy minister of Cape Breton County, said Friday night.

Plan Wine Show

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liquor Control Board of Ontario is getting into the spirit of things, and amateur wine-makers will have their day in court.

With a little prodding from the Central Canada Exhibition, the board has approved for the first time in the province the holding of an amateur wine show.

The show and contest will be held daily through the exhibition Aug. 18-27. Three judges and an LCBO wine consultant will be in attendance.

Because transport of home made wine is illegal in Ontario, special tags will be issued and attached to contestants' bottles, permitting them to be taken from the basement wineries to the exhibition.

Girl's Body Found

MONTREAL (RP) — Quebec Provincial Police said Friday 19-year-old Ursula Schulze was shot in the head after being abducted Thursday from a bus stop near her home in suburban Brossard.

They said the girl's body was found Friday by a truck driver in some bushes behind a vacant soap factory in nearby La prairie, about 15 miles from her home. There were no signs of struggle at the scene.

U.S. Will Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis said Friday that a United States promise to pay all the costs of damage to Canada from American oil pollution is "a big step forward."

Mr. Davis said in an interview that the promise was made when he talked with U.S. officials in Washington Thursday. He said the U.S. agreed to pay not only direct costs of pollution, such as the cost of hay bales for soaking up oil spills, but indirect costs, such as a reduction in property values for places near oil-covered beaches.

Limit Parole

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Canadian Police Association says people convicted more than once for violent crime, or crime resulting in extreme financial hardship, should not be eligible for parole.

The policemen said first offenders serving sentences for acts of violence, or crimes involving economic loss, should not have their sentences reduced by more than half.

New Bible

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new translation of the Bible into everyday English was released Friday during the meeting of district assemblies of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The publication, The Bible in Living English, is a translation from the original Hebrew and Greek, and not a revision of existing English versions, said the assistant assembly chairman, Donald Walters.

Picket Pit

SNELGROVE, Ont. (CP) — A group of Chinguacousy Township residents picketed the Peel Sand and Gravel Co. Friday to publicize their discontent with gravel operations in North Peel County.

Festival Opens

TORONTO (CP) — About 5,000 persons, mostly teenagers, slushed through the wet grounds of Toronto Island Friday for the opening of the three-day Mariposa Folk Festival.

Alberta Signs

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta today became the first province to sign an agreement to enter the federal small farms development program.

Clams Banned

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP) — Clam digging has been banned along three stretches of the Bay of Fundy coast in New Brunswick because of danger of paralytic shellfish poisoning. The ban was announced here Friday by J. P. McAvoy district supervisor of the fisheries service of the federal environment department.

Not Good Enough

TORONTO (CP) — A five-cent deposit added to the price of disposable milk bottles will not satisfy Ontario law, the environment ministry said Friday.

Dominion Dairies Ltd. of Toronto announced Thursday it will add the deposit to its milk price in order to evade proposed government regulations against non-returnable milk jugs.

"The point is not whether the jugs are returnable; it is whether they are reusable," Wesley Williamson, assistant director of the ministry's waste management branch, said Friday.

Peterborough Peoples Get More Compensation

TORONTO (CP) — Ignoring protests from the Ontario high ways ministry, the Ontario Land Compensation Board has ordered the provincial government to pay three people $15,750 compensation plus about $10,000 interest and costs for land expropriation.

Victor and Shirley Wikstrom and her sister, Margaret MacGregor, all of Peterborough, were seeking $48,000 from the board.

Late in 1968, the department of highways announced plans to expropriate three cottages and water frontage to straighten highway 507 and build a new bridge at Buckhorn Lake in the Kawartha region.

But in 1970, plans were changed and only a small area of land was expropriated.

The Wikstroms and Mrs. MacGregor had in the mean time sold a lodge and seven cabins on an adjoining property for $72,000. A real estate appraiser later estimated the properties could have been sold for $110,000 had there been no expropriation.

The highways ministry said the loss was only $3,605.

In a written decision, board vice-chairman Gordon W. Ford said the loss in market value was $15,750. The three were also awarded legal and real estate costs resulting from the proceedings.

Six-per-cent interest per annum will also be added to the $15,750 from Dec. 5, 1968.

The decision also stated that the department's appraiser, who estimated the market loss at $3,105, did not examine the interior of the lodge, nor did he have any knowledge of repairs and improvements made to the property.

Match Uncertain

REYKJAVIK (Reuter) — Bobby Fischer, U.S. challenger for the world chess title, kept everyone guessing about his intentions today with the third game in his match against the Soviet Union's Boris Spassky a day away.

Whether or not he plans to continue the match—two games down and with Spassky playing white on Sunday—is unclear not only to the organizers and the public but, it also seems, to Fischer's own lawyers, friends and advisers here.

Seek Funds

TORONTO (CP) — The Union of Ontario Indians announced Friday that it will occupy the Toronto office of the secretary of state Monday to protest the federal government's refusal to provide funds to the union.

"We'll stay until we get some money to reopen an office," said the organization's president, Fred Plain, at a news conference called Friday to announce the union has closed its Toronto office.

Tighten Security

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air and United Air Lines Friday announced they are stepping up security measures at Vancouver International Airport as a result of the recent spate of skyjackings.

CP Air said it now will apply to domestic flights the security measures previously applied only to international flights.

Red Weapons Are Seized

MANILA (AP) — Philippine armed forces units stormed a stronghold of the Maoist New People's Army in northeastern Isabela province on Friday and captured large amounts of arms and ammunition, the presidential palace announced.

The seizure of the weapons, one of the largest ever by the military against the Communist rebels, included 467 rifles and 615 boxes of various ammunition for weapons.

The capture of the weapons followed nearly a week of fighting between government forces and a large number of NPA followers near Palanan, 200 miles northeast of Manila.

Stocks Weak

Wall St. Leads Decline

By PETER LEICHNITZ
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Influenced by a severe decline at New York, prices on most major Canadian stock markets suffered widespread losses in quiet trading this week.

Markets, which edged fractionally higher Monday, registered moderate declines during the remainder of the week. Industrial and western oil issues suffered some of the largest losses.

Analysts said the threat of a major steel strike, a dividend omission by a major mining company and a general lack of interest among investors were some factors which adversely affected price trends.

At Toronto, the industrial index a major indicator of market trends, lost 2.09 points during the week, closing Friday at 200.55.

Back in Prison

OTTAWA (CP) — Commissioner P. A. Fagoy of the Canadian Penitentiary Service said late Friday he has ordered the re-imprisonment of four Doukhobor women who were charged with disturbing the peace after being released from prison as a result of the physical effects of a hunger strike.

Strike Ends

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Nurses at St. Rita Hospital voted 73-4 Friday in favor of accepting a wage proposal from the hospital, ending Canada's first nurses' strike.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index dropped 1.74 points, closing Friday at 206.39.

Combined volume on the two exchanges was 5.1 million shares, up from 4.39 million a week earlier.

Trading was slow throughout the week on the Toronto market with a total of 9.16 million shares changing hands, up from 8.46 million last week.

Analysts said a decision by major producers, Falconbridge Nickel to omit its third-quarter dividend due to lower profits and a general reduction of domestic copper prices announced late last week combined to drive prices in the base metal sector of the market sharply lower this week.

Traders said many investors appear to be abandoning the market on fears of further declines.

Others, many concerned about poor first-half earnings by some major producers.

Bruce Curtis and Phil Snyder Agree

Two accounts are better than one, particularly if one is our Royal Bank Bonus Savings, and the other our Personal Chequing Account.

Our Bonus Savings Account pays high interest because you're not tempted to write cheques against it. You can't! But you can draw from it if need be. Even transfer funds when necessary.

As for our Personal Chequing Account (PCA for short), it's such a simple way to keep organized. You list all your cheques in your Cheque Book Register, as you write them. And we list them, too, in the monthly statement we mail to you — with all your cancelled cheques. Makes double-checking a cinch. You know exactly how you're doing.

And, with a Personal Chequing Account your name and address can be printed on all your cheques. You can even have them beautifully monogrammed with your family initial for a small charge.

Who do you talk this over with? You decide. (Or flip a coin!)

Bruce Curtis is our manager at 241 Front Street (telephone 962-9161) and Phil Snyder manages our branch at North Front and Valleyview (telephone 968-4553).

Bath Woman Hears Convict Raid Kitchen

Napanee Man Is Abducted

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — Officers of Quebec Police Force (QPF) in Montreal today are questioning an orderly of the Lennox and Addington County Home for the Aged, who claims he was forced to drive to Montreal by a knife-wielding man he believes is one of six convicts still at large from Millhaven.

Donald Parkinson, 32, owner of a small farm six miles northeast of Millhaven, told police in Montreal he was on his way to work last night when he came to a stop sign. He said as he braked his truck to a stop, a man entered the cab, and threatened him with a knife.

He told his wife Barbara, in a telephone call from the Quebec city, he believes the man to be one of six convicts still at large from the federal maximum security prison near his home.

Under the knife-wielder's orders, Mr. Parkinson says he was forced to drive his truck north on Highway 41, then east on Highway 7 out of the area and then east to Montreal. There he was forced to strip off his orderly's uniform, and hand the clothing to his abductor. Whether the man left on foot or in the Parkinson truck has not been learned at this time.

Mr. Parkinson told his wife over the phone that he was not injured but was "pretty shook up" by the whole affair.

Catholics Fear Army, Quit Homes

BELFAST (AP) — Nearly 4,000 Roman Catholic women and children camped overnight in a football field after leaving their homes in a Belfast battle zone to protest the British army's occupation of the area.

Five more deaths Sunday pushed Northern Ireland's toll this year to 236 killed, already the worst since 232 died in sectarian battling in 1922. A land mine killed two British soldiers at Crossmaglen, a policeman and a civilian were shot in Belfast, and an 18-year-old youth died in a riot in Strabane.

The Catholic women and children fled from the Ballymurphy area, Jack Fitzsimmons, out of the Lenadoon Avenue area Sunday, claiming the army's show of force was "endangering their lives."

The troops and gunmen of the Irish Republican Army have been spared off in the area since last Thursday. Despite army fears that the exodus was planned to clear the ground for a massive IRA attack, there were only sporadic incidents.

Father Fitzsimmons and other community leaders protested until after midnight Sunday night with British officials in an attempt to get the troops pulled out. Meanwhile, the women and children bedded down in the open or in tents at nearby Casement Park.

They left their men behind to guard their homes against looters. The British government said it was considering the families' plea for the army to withdraw.

The army moved 200 troops into the district after the IRA launched a massive attack in an attempt to destroy a military post.

Early today, troops claimed they had shot two gunmen in a squad of four that traded shots for two hours with the army across the Andersonstown area, of which Lenadoon Avenue is part.

Security chiefs and Protestant leaders are expected to increase pressure this week on Northern Ireland administrator William Whitelaw to end the discrimination of internment of IRA suspects following the disclosure that a gunman shot dead by the army last week was a former internee released only recently.

To Russia With Hull

TORONTO (CP) — A sign at the Toronto hockey clinic seems to be: "To Russia with Hull."

These words in a red circle were put up during the weekend on billboards in Toronto and Montreal in a campaign to get Bobby Hull onto the Canadian national hockey team for the games against the Russians.

The billboards also contain a note on the bottom urging hockey fans to petition Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, Harold allard.

Six-hour Hunt Traps Fugitive

BATH, Ont. (CP) — A tip from a terrified 66-year-old woman helped police and prison guards capture today the eighth of 14 convicts who escaped a week ago from the maximum-security Millhaven prison.

Police, working with tracking dogs and a helicopter, today cornered an escaped prisoner identified as William Yardley, 24, of Toronto, serving 12 years for robbery. The capture came after a six-hour hunt set off by Bernice Millman.

Mrs. Millman, who moved out of her house in this community 15 miles west of Kingston after the prisoners broke out of nearby Millhaven, decided the danger was past Sunday and prepared to spend the night alone in her home.

But early this morning she heard a noise downstairs. She sprang from her bed and flicked on the hall lights.

"I was really petrified. I stood there and it seemed like an eternity."

She telephoned neighbors and then went down stairs with in time to see a man jump through a rear window of the house. He had taken five cans of soup and a can of beans and had left a weapon a wire-bound stick-enhind in his haste.

Police immediately moved in on the area and provincial police with tracking dogs were in pursuit when they received Lil- Ontario and jumped in.

Police searched the area and later found signs where the came out of the woods. A bulcan of beans had been dropped down and police moved in for the capture.

The prisoners still are free in Canada's biggest prison break and there were signs during the weekend that some might have slipped through the intensive dragnet.

The other missing escapers:

Donald Oag, 22, London, Ont., 11 years for manslaughter and related charges; Thomas McCauley, 33, 23 years for armed robbery, and Charles Bonnar, 25, 37 years for armed robbery, both of Edmonton; Serge Dramboss, 25, life for non-capital murder, and Gerald Larocque, 32, 17 years for robbery, both of Toronto; and Rudolph Nye, 25, St. Catharines, 20 years on five charges of armed robbery.

Quang Tri Now City Of Rubble

QUANG TRI CITY (Reuter) — This city of rubble and ashes trembled in the incessant roar of gunfire today as South Vietnamese paratroops battled their way inch by inch towards its centre.

The paratroops fought to within 200 yards of the old citadel where an estimated regiment of well-armed Communist troops waited in deep bunkers for the coming climax of the battle.

Two battalions of the South Vietnamese airborne division crawled their way forward house by ruined house almost under the walls of the 100-year-old fortress and a third combed through the southern outskirts of the town.

North Vietnamese and government troops are trading thousands of heavy artillery rounds daily in and around the city as a prelude to the decisive contest for the citadel.

Other Tips Checked By Police

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Weekend reports of possible sightings of some seven prisoners still at large from a July 19 breakout at Millhaven penitentiary in Ontario appeared to have fizzled out Sunday.

A helicopter carrying three members of the Ontario Provincial Police, three soldiers and a dog team flew Sunday from Napanee to Pembroke, 80 miles northwest of Ottawa, where a gas station attendant had seen two men resembling two of the convicts.

The searchers combed the east end of Pembroke but found no fingerprints or other traces of the fugitives.

The OPP also reported no results from an investigation into the Friday hijacking of a mail truck near Spencerville. The driver was forced to take two men to Dorion, a Montreal suburb.

Meanwhile, Ottawa police denied a rumor Sunday that a car had been stolen in Vanier, an Ottawa suburb, by three men, one of them reported to be Donald Oag, 22, serving 11 years for manslaughter and several other offences.

At Cobourg, the OPP stopped a CP Rail freight train Saturday night and searched it after receiving a call from the OPP at Belleville asking them to look for a man.

No one was found. Cobourg police said they believed the search was in connection with the prisoner hunt.

Eight Hurt In 12-hour Prison Riot

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — The Maryland House of Corrections remained quiet today as officials tried to assess the situation at the maximum security prison following a 12-hour riot that left four guards and four prisoners injured.

State prison officials planned a news conference today at the rural facility to answer questions about the disturbance.

Prison officials continued to return to normal Sunday as Warden Ralph Williams and guards started to estimate the damage resulting from the nearly $1 million riot.

"It was the worst damage I've seen," said Gov. Marvin Mandel, whose agreement to meet with a delegation of convicts finally prompted the last few hundred of the rebelling prisoners to return to their cells about 5 a.m. Sunday.

Rolling Stones' Truck Bombed at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — An explosion under a parked truck carrying equipment for a concert by the Rolling Stones rock group shattered windows in apartment buildings and the Montreal Forum early today.

The truck, which carried the slogan "Let's get the show on the road" was held in the bottom and Peter Rudge, the group's manager, reported some damage to speakers but not enough to cancel the performance.

"There will be a show tonight," he said. The group is to perform in the Forum, home rink of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The technical squad of the Montreal police was investigating but could not describe the bomb.

"It may be a couple of days before we know for sure," said Constable Yves Gagnon of the technical squad. "We are collecting fragments and debris and the whole thing will be analyzed at the laboratories."

Neither police nor Mr.-Rudge could find a motive for the bombing.

There were no injuries.

A Forum watchman, Gaston Lesage, 56, was sitting outside the rear door of the building about 15 feet from the truck when the explosion occurred shortly after 3 a.m.

"There was a hell of a bounce," he said. "All those windows broke, a ball of fire came out from under the truck and then there was a lot of smoke.

Donald K. Donald, the Forum's concert producer, said the truck arrived in Montreal at about 1:30 p.m. Sunday. It was parked outside the Forum in the street, with another truck also loaded with equipment, ready to be unloaded at 2 p.m. today.

News Briefs

Combine Charged

BURTON, N.B. (CP) — Combines charges involving five Irving newspapers were sent up for trial in the New Brunswick Supreme Court today. Provincial Judge Charles Tweedale ordered the trial at the end of a preliminary hearing that began last March. He said that "in my opinion the evidence is amply sufficient to put the accused corporations on trial." The trial is expected to be held in Fredericton in October.

Dubcek's Friends on Trial

PRAGUE (Reuter) — Three trials of prominent supporters of Alexander Dubcek, former liberal Communist party leader of Czechoslavakia, opened in the Prague city courts today. The accused included Jiri Littera, former secretary of the Prague city committee; Jiri Mueller, former student leader; Jan Tesar, a historian, and Rudolf Battek, a sociologist.

Parachuters Hit Plane

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (Reuter) — Two men and a woman leaped from a plane at 10,000 feet Sunday only to discover there was another plane immediately below them. Michael Bolton, 33, and Michael Taylor, 30, both hit the plane but escaped alive.

Libya Plans Referendum

BEIRUT (AP) — Col. Muammar Kadafi will run unopposed for president of Libya in a yes-or-no referendum next month, Arab diplomatic sources reported today. The move was described as a part of a compromise redistribution of power.

All Zoo Animals Stolen

Missing are 11 sheep, 11 goats, six Shetland ponies, one llama, one tortoise, one miniature white hatted a coop of chickens, police said.

Presumably, the animals were loaded on the zoo's 18-foot trailer, which also is missing, and hauled away along with a ticket booth, six rolls of fencing and 12 saddles.

The owner reported his zoo disappeared sometime after 3 a.m. Sunday. The animals represented the entire stock of the zoo and the loss was estimated at $5,300.

Touring Youngsters End Week-Long Quinte Visit

The Young Voyageurs, a youth group from Alberta, boarded their train for Ottawa Saturday to the cheers, tears and waves of their host families and new friends made during their week-long visit to Belleville.

The Young Voyageurs are subsidized through federal and provincial grants, in the student exchange they visit provinces other than their own.

During their stay in Belleville, the group toured many institutions including Loyalist College, Ontario School for the Deaf, and Corby's Distillery.

The real treat of tours was the free swimming time.

The students, all coming from small towns to the north of Edmonton, were delighted to have the chance to relax, some actually learned to swim for the first time. Some while in the city.

One girl, after heaving her bags onto the loading ramp, said "this will probably be the last time I will swim in the next two years."

Anticipating that swimming would be high on the popularity poll among the young visitors, host families and organizers scheduled swimming periods every day the group was in the city.

Students were sightseeing at the Outlet, Presqu'ile and Algonquin provincial parks.

The group of 16 and 17-year-olds found Belleville residents most friendly.

The exchange is to give young people across the country a chance to see how other people live and to see the country.

After a whirlwind tour of Ottawa, where the 21 students will be billeted at a university, they will travel to Montreal and back to Ottawa for one and one half days.

From Ottawa they will take a plane to Toronto and then home.

Overseas Visitor To Attend

A Y's Men's Club delegate from New Zealand will arrive in Belleville Tuesday, to visit with local club members and continue to Athens, Ohio for the international convention of Y's Men.

Russel George Clearwater, from N e w Plymouth, N. Z., had his passage paid through the brotherhood fund, gathered from c l u b s around the world.

Each club, saves and sells used postage stamps. The money earned is used to pay for the delegates who come over seas.

Mr. Clearwater will arrive in the city late Tuesday night and will spend Wednesday and a portion of Thursday visiting with local members and sightseeing in the Belleville area before leaving for Buffalo.

A group from Buffalo will drive him to the convention in Ohio, beginning Monday, July 24.

The convention will continue for five days.

He will be greeted at Toronto airport by Hugh Watson, a member of the Belleville Y's Men's Club.

A Time for Parting

Twenty one students from Alberta finished their week-long visit of Belleville Saturday and left for Ottawa and Montreal. Here Karen Rembish, Gloria Lebedkin and Marie Kolene say goodbye to their host Mrs. Joan Pare and pet Mitzy.

Hydro Has Information Call Number

Ontario Hydro has set up a telephone line to keep employees abreast of the latest developments in the dispute between management and the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 1000.

Although the taped information will be geared to the area's 200-odd employees, anyone is free to call.

Norm Manning, director of public relations for eastern Ontario, will combine news releases from Toronto where negotiations are taking place with local material to produce regularly updated three-minute bulletins.

Called a Codiphone, the line will remain in operation until the strike is resolved.

Mr. Manning said information about local power blackouts could also be included in the tapes should staff facilities at the Belleville office become overloaded. Telephone number is 962-8166.

Beer Stolen

Carrying a case of beer along Great St. James Street late Saturday night, proved an unwelcome event for a 22-year-old Belleville man.

Constable Steven Tebworth spotted Paul Wayne Lesse, 22, at 10:24 p.m. As a result of questioning, the man has been charged with break, enter and theft from the Station Street Brewer's Retail Store.

Several cases of beer were found outside of the retail beer and ale outlet.

Barley Crop On Increase

In keeping with grain growers in other parts of Canada, Ontario farmers are cutting back production of oats in favor of more barley.

This is indicated in a Census of Agriculture release which says that a preliminary survey of 1972 agricultural activities shows Ontario farmers this year have only 612,000 acres of oats compared to nearly double that in 1966.

In the same period Ontario farmers increased barley production from 265,300 acres to 353,651, for an increase of 45 per cent.

Also in the five-year period Ontario farmers sharply increased soy bean acreage from 278,800 acres to 367,185 acres.

Last year's agricultural census shows that wheat acreage in Canada dropped from 2.917 million acres in 1966 to 19.4 million acres in 1971. However, prairie farmers this year have increased wheat acreage by 10 per cent over last year.

For the first time in the history of the Canadian farm census, prairie land used for barley exceeded that sown to oats. Prairie farmers this year reported 13.3 million acres barley, more than double the 5.2 million acres of oats grown for grain.

Four-car Crash

A four - car accident on North Front Street at 8:47 p.m. Saturday, resulted in damage totalling $2,450 and minor injuries to occupants of the vehicles. The accident occurred near the entrance to the Sun Luck Gardens.

Drivers of the cars are Stanley Swart, RR 6, Belleville, Ralph C. McCauley of 25 Johnson Street, and Marilyn Kimmerly, 245 Robert Street, Napanee.

Gordon E. Spencer, 29, of RR 3, Stirling, driver of the fourth vehicle, has been charged with careless driving.

Mariners Attend Service

SOUTH BAY (Staff) — A capacity crowd filled South Bay United church yesterday afternoon for the annual mariners' service marking the careers of Prince Edward's old salts.

Guest speaker for this special program was Rev. W. J. Price, secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference, Kingston.

Commodore James Plomer, Bluck Creek, gave the scripture reading while Allan Ralley read a progress report for the Mariners' Park Museum.

Soloist during the service was Mrs. Phyllis Antognini, South Marysburg.

The service was attended by sailors and fishermen from Prince Edward, Belleville, Kingston and surrounding areas.

Anchored in the harbor near the church were the brigantine Pathfinder, a coast guard vessel and the Trident. Crew members came ashore to attend services.

All donations accepted yesterday will be used toward construction of a building to house marine artifacts given to the museum.

Service Commemorates Mariners

Organist Dennis Dulmage of South Bay played for yesterday's Mariners' Service, attended by many of Prince Edward's seafaring men as well as old salts from Kingston and Belleville. The altar was decorated with binnacles, fish nets, miniature ships and flags for the annual service.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother who died one year ago today, July 17, 1971.

Sincere peace, shadows fall.
Heavenly memories call.
And though the years be many or few
They are filled with remembrance of you.
— Husband, children, grandchildren, son-in-law Olive and son Isaac.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of Mary Ann Johnston, who passed away on Monday, July 17, 1939.
We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
As all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of mother, dear,
Come smiling through the door.
— Sadly missed and remembered by daughter Barbara and Elwood.

KLINE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother Danny who passed away July 17th, 1970.
Gone are the days we used to share,
But not the memories we have left behind.
The gates of memory will never close,
We miss him more than anyone knows.
We cannot have him with us here,
When we were all together,
But we can remember and recall thoughts,
Will be with us forever.
Sadly missed but always remembered by Mom, Dad and Brothers.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Madeline who passed away July 17th, 1965.
We are sad within our hearts today,
Our thoughts are loved so dearly,
Has forever been called away,
We think of her in silence,
No eye may see us weep,
But deep within our heart she's shed,
What others will never know.
—Lovingly remembered by husband, Ernie, daughter Joan and Barbara.

CHAPMAN — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Annie, who passed away July 17th, 1968.
Sadly missed along life's way,
Quietly remembered every day,
No longer in our life to share,
But in our hearts, she's always there.
—Forever remembered by Madge, Ed and Bob.

KLINE — In loving memory of a dear grandson Danny, who passed away July 17th, 1971.
Though his arms are free from worry,
Though his heart cannot touch,
Still we have so much to remember,
Of the one we loved so much,
His memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part,
God has him in his keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
—Always remembered by grandparents Tom and Mary Donaldson.

WHAT CAUSES A STY IN THE EYE?
A sty is a bacterial infection of one of the small glands on the edge of the eyelid. Though some people believe it is the result of eye strain, or a run down body condition, most likely it is caused by rubbing the eyes with fingers bearing bacterial germs.
A sty can last from a few days to three or four weeks. It can cause much discomfort and sometimes pain. If one persists more than a few days, it is wise to have your physician open it and permit this small abcess to drain and heal quickly.

Army Aids Search

Armed Forces personnel, 225 strong, have moved in to assist police searching for six escapees from Millhaven Penitentiary. Here, an Ontario Provincial Police constable stands by as soldiers search an abandoned barn during a sweep of the area surrounding the penitentiary. In addition to the soldiers, another search force of about 200, including OPP officers, penitentiary guards, dog handlers, aircraft pilots and boat operators is patrolling the area.

BELLEVILLE OPP Constable Edward Arthurs, handler of OPP tracking dog Sabre, both pictured here, were instrumental in the capture of Wilbom Vanderley, the Lapeer, Michigan escapee to be returned to custody. Following sighting of the 24 year old Yardley, who has been serving a 12 year term for armed robbery, armed forces personnel and Constable Arthurs, were sent into brush around Bath, forcing the escaped convict ahead of them.

Two accounts are better than one, particularly if one is our Royal Bank Bonus Savings, and the other our Personal Chequing Account.

Our Bonus Savings Account pays high interest because you're not tempted to write cheques against it. You can't! But you can draw from it if need be. Even transfer funds when necessary.

As for our Personal Chequing Account (PCA for short), it's such a simple way to keep organized. You list all your cheques in your Cheque Book Register, as you write them. And we list them, too, in the monthly statement we mail to you – with all your cancelled cheques. Makes double-checking a cinch. You know exactly how you're doing.

And, with a Personal Chequing Account your name and address can be printed on all your cheques. You can even have them beautifully monogrammed with your family initial for a small charge.

Who do you talk this over with? You decide. (Or flip a coin!) Bruce Curtis is our manager at 241 Front Street (telephone 962-9161) and Phil Snyder manages our branch at North Front and Valleyview (telephone 968-4553).

U.S. Influence

Whether American influence on Canada and on Canadian society is any stronger than in years past we do not know but we see there is further clamor about the reportedly tightening influence of United States academics in Canadian universities.

We would agree that Canadians should have priority for posts in universities but what then of the argument that in a competitive society the best people available should be hired. And isn't it a fact that there are also people on university faculties from British as well as other parts of the Commonwealth? Isn't it also true that Americans for the first time recently surpassed Britain in the number of immigrants arriving here from the two countries, which could account in part for any increase in U.S.-born university staff. Some of these moreover will surely be planning to become Canadian citizens. Aside from that, are American faculty members indulging in any overt politicking that might be considered prejudicial to Canadian interests? If not, what is the problem?

If these people are furthering the intellectual powers and knowledgeability of Canadian students, even if they are wearing extravagant, not to say belligerent statements against American academics? Such as that by Professor Robin Mathews, an English professor at Carleton University (whether he is an "English" professor or "Professor of English" is not clear) who in protesting Americanization in Canada says he "expects there may be bloodshed . ." There will certainly have to be revolution, he says, "by which I mean a shift of power to organize and exploit and to distribute the wealth of Canada from those who presently possess it, a class alienated from the Canadian people, to the Canadian people themselves."

Professor Mathew's own political leanings seem fairly clear and we are not sure that we would care to have the country's wealth "exploited" by him or by those who share his political views, any more than it should be exploited for the benefit of non-Canadians, other than for normal trade purposes. Sometimes those who would deliver us from the Americans, capitalism and all that, hint strongly they would be more totalitarian than any government past or present.

Foreign Takeover!

What is all this about a United States firm planning to develop a small Canadian Island in the Detroit River into a recreation and hotel area? A report from Windsor quotes as a Ford Motor Company spokesman as saying the auto firm had been contacted by another U.S. firm to use fill from a Ford development in downtown Detroit to expand the island from 15 acres to more than 100 acres.

What does the federal government say to this? If it is in earnest about controlling foreign takeovers it should not neglect even our smallest territories. If the island has a name it is not mentioned, but if anyone is going to do any developing why cannot it be Canadians?

Moreover, if this dastardly takeover takes place anyway, despite any protests by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp or even Prime Minister Trudeau, will Canada be compensated? For example, how about the Americans handing over that little American enclave tacked onto British Columbia — Point Roberts?

Hockey Selection

With a jaundiced view (shared by just about everybody) of the petty politicking that has kept Bobby Hull from the Hockey Canada team to play a Russian side in an eight-game series this fall, our Sports Editor expresses the hope that ultimately the current intrigues may lead to a Canadian league which will make a better television choice than the Mary Tyler Moore Show for Saturday night viewing."

Well-now . . . we would not miss MTM Saturday-night in the world — re-runs and all! Or Mr. Grant, or Ted Baxter or Rhoda or Phyllis in this weekly saga of radio newsroom farce. Besides, it is only a half-hour piece which still leaves ample time for hockey.

Meanwhile, bring on Bobby Hull. Let's have him on that team. Let's keep sporting politics out of the team selection. The game's the thing — and Bobby Hull plays it better than most.

Was He Too Patient ?

Martin O'Connell's Baptism of Fire With Longshoremen

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

Martin Patrick O'Connell is a quiet, intelligent, well-liked and very patient man. The fact that he is so patient has brought a storm of criticism around his head in recent weeks.

Mr. O'Connell has been Canada's minister of labor since late January of this year and has administered the department in an effective and efficient way. But in his first big public test, the protracted longshoreman's strike which tied up three important Quebec ports for weeks, Mr. O'Connell gave the impression of a gu [illegible] who leans so far backward he may fall flat on his face — you know what I mean.

Day after day, in the Commons and outside, he resisted opposition demands for federal action to end the damaging wildcat strike with the true, but futile conention that the arring parties in the dispute had the means within their own grasp to settle the affair without government intervention.

Unfortunately for Mr. O'Connell, the [illegible] had has probably the worst record in Canada for irresponsible action, for stubbornness and for unrealistic demands. The longshoremen have been a pain in the neck of successive governments for a number of years. This has lost them the sympathy of most Canadians and gave rise to the corresponding demand that the government act tough and pass legislation forcing them back on the job much earlier than Mr. O'Connell or the government were prepared to move.

It is possible, of course, that opposition demands for federal action to end the damaging union is one of the very few in Quebec that does not seem to have close political affiliations. The Quebec and Canadian governments have been plagued recently by unions in that province which seem to be more interested in attacking the established order and bringing about separatism than in bolster their membership with legitimate union objectives. The longshoremen have stayed clear of this and appear to be striking solely for their own personal benefit.

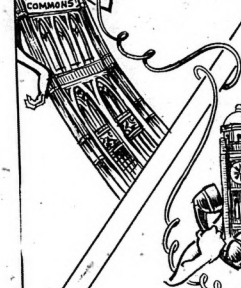
But it has been a rough debut for the freshman MP and cabinet minister, particularly as he followed former labor minister Bryce Mackasey, who earned something of a reputation for personal and successful intervention to bring strikes to an end. As a Quebec MP, Mr. Mackasey is no doubt thankful the longshoremen's dispute was not his baby. As a Toronto MP, Mr. O'Connell's patient but clearly adequate approach to the problem can probably be weathered without too much personal harm.

One further interesting note about Mr. O'Connell: He hardly ever speaks French in the Commons but he surprised a group of French-speaking journalists recently by carrying on an interview with them in very good French. For a person born in Victoria, and who spent most of his life in Toronto and Ontario, this led to questions about his bilingual ability. It turns out that he decided to write his Ph.D thesis in French at Bourassa and to do that adequately, he found it necessary to learn French, which he did with considerable success.

Quebec Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay continues to prove himself one of the toughest politicians in the country. In his continuing battle with Ottawa over control of social affairs, he is plunging ahead with changes in the Quebec Pension Plan, despite pleas from federal health and welfare minister John Munro for a delay.

When the original Canada Pension Plan was devised, Ottawa had to amend it to suit the proposals of Quebec's own pension plan. Now Mr. Castonguay claims that the proposed amendments will make the amended Quebec plan uniform across the country without another major Ottawa-Quebec confrontation. The federal government doesn't see it in quite those simple terms and is justifiably concerned about the complete portability of the pension plan in all provinces.

It's another good example of the Quebec tail wagging the Canadian dog.



Liberals Plan to Counter PC Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal campaign strategists, preparing for an expected fall general election, will place heavy emphasis on issues and ideas, including strong counter-attacks against Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

In the 1968 campaign, with Prime Minister Trudeau's personal popularity an over-riding factor, little was said about Mr. Stanfield and his proposals. "We gave him a free ride," one highly placed Liberal described it.

This time, replies are ready to some Stanfield statements and policies. His tax cut proposals will be directed, sources say, and his charges about the alleged failure of the government regional development program in the Atlantic provinces will be countered with elaborate statistics on spending there.

News Sections will also be told that the trouble-plagued heavy water plant at Glace Bay, begun while Mr. Stanfield was premier, cost provincial taxpayers more on a per-capita basis than the entire space program cost U.S. taxpayers.

Sources say Mr. Trudeau will enter the campaign with a hefty package of "forward-looking ideas and policies." References to Mr. Stanfield will arise "in a negative way, in relation to our ideas."

The party has prepared a long series of confidential documents to assist campaigners. One, prepared by the party's youth group, relates specifically to the estimated three million young people voting for the first time. There are plans to emphasize Mr. Trudeau's leadership in relation to these people, but always in connection with issues and decisions.

* Other documents relate to regional development, to rural people, to the elderly. Although the youth program has received the greatest advance publicity — through leaks — one official described it as "just one string on the violin."

"This campaign," he said "will be much broader than a study in personalities — it will ultimately boil down to the best ideas and the best available leadership.

"Our record in office will be used as the evidence to make our approach for the future believable."

With opinion polls not predicting any major New Democratic Party breakthrough, there are no plans to concentrate heavily on that party's policies.

But with the Conservatives, it's a different bail game.

"What most people seem to forget is that over the last four years we have never seriously considered anything he (Mr. Stanfield) has said," the Liberal party spokesman said.

"It will be an interesting new dimension in this campaign."

Sequel To UK Action on Pound

Commonwealth Countries Quitting the Sterling Area

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Less and less is heard these days about the British Commonwealth of which Canada — more concerned with other regions of the world — is still a member.

This summer, Commonwealth countries are in the news again because of the large sterling balances they have held during the sharp drop in value of the British pound.

The result of floating the British pound, which has meant a seven per-cent drop in its value, is that almost all the Commonwealth countries are leaving the sterling area. The reasons why are complex. But basically they are withdrawing their sterling reserves held in London and probably are switching them to dollars.

With the British pound floating downwards, this will be a costly process. But the Bank of England is pledged to give purchase losses to sterling bloc countries if the pound goes below $2.38 (U.S.).

These gloomy financial ramifications are important because they point up the latest trend in Britain and her Commonwealth unbinching from each other. Earlier ones had been the determination of many Commonwealth countries, large like India and small like Ghana, to become republics within the Commonwealth.

This meant the end of the governor general as the Queen's official representative in such realms and of that constitutional curiosity of the Queen of England being concurrently Queen wherever her official representative still resided.

Nor are we in Canada far removed from the time when the Governor-General might be a thing of the past — if we accept the opinion of a growing number of articulate Canadians. Mr. Michener should be the last Governor-General, they insist.

Implicit in this, is the future status of Canada as a republic and not as a monarchy. Many Canadians will just as strongly resist the trend to time when the prime minister might become president.

It will be harder for Canada to reach this new constitutional status, (if she in truth ever does), because Canada as the first Dominion has been the model for all the other Commonwealth realms. Originally they were primarily racially white: Australia, New Zealand, South African and after the Second World War, primarily Third World countries like Ghana in Asia, the Caribbean and South East Asia.

Many of these which now are slipping away (from the economic ties of the sterling bloc) long ago slipped away from the constitutional ones. To name others: Pakistan, South Africa, Guayana, Sierra Leone, Malta and Cyprus.

The remaining ties terminate, (British exports this year to her Commonwealth are the lowest in history), will anything be left of an association of nations, which seems was always more mystical than practical?

Officially, during the 1970s, ass and less. What will remain within the sector of "former British places" are the British ways of doing things, both bad (slow-minded bureaucracies) and good (representative government).

Even the latter is in jeopardy in many places. Before 1980, it looks as though the British Commonwealth will be an experience future generations will know about only through the history book.

Humphrey's 'Last Hurrah'

Ottaw Journal

Spare a moment for Hubert H. Humphrey.

. . . Hubert Humphrey suddenly seems a like ancient history, an obstacle who was overcome which, for all its supposedly engaging amateurism and dedication, has learned quickly how to be as ruthless as any organization of the old bosses.

But Hubert Humphrey does not deserve to be thus cast aside.

The Humphrey who has been campaigning in 1972 for the Democratic nomination against John Kennedy in 1960 or the man who was swamped in 1968 and lost out to Richard Nixon in an election which was much closer than many remember.

The 1972 Humphrey was a sad parody of himself, talking even more incessantly than ever and making little sense on local soul in a desperate last hurrah.

The earlier man was as full of idealism, and as committed a fighter for justice and compassion as George McGovern is now supposed to be. Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern's candidacy publishe, not only as a personal master and friend for many years, but as the champion of McGovern's brand of liberalism.

The time Humphrey was from those who now distrust McGovern. The irony is that Humphrey ended up being the "bad" candidate, something he never wanted to be.

Perhaps it is better that he is out of the race, better that he be remembered, as some one ahead of his time, not one dragging up the rear.

Humphrey's liberalism is not everyone's choice. But it represented a powerful tradition within the whole U.S. body politic. And now Humphrey's boundless enthusiasm has kept a great force alive.

Rolling Stones Visit an Anti-Climax

TORONTO (CP) — The Rolling Stones came to Toronto Saturday and in almost every respect their visit was an anti-climax.

Because the start of the British rock group's current North American tour in Vancouver June 3 was marked by violence; that included tossing of Molotov cocktails and injuries to 31 police officers, there was speculation that the same might be repeated here.

This speculation increased as later concerts in the 31-city tour also were accompanied by major disturbances.

More than 500 policemen were assigned to the Stones' two concerts here at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Police reported 13 arrests, only one on criminal charges of possession of drugs for purpose of trafficking and possession of narcotics, and the others all described as minor. There were a few charges of ticket scalping.

As for forged tickets, the reason behind the disturbances in other cities, there was "the odd one, but no poorly done they were readily detected," a spokesman said.

On the inside, fans were loud but made no attempt to break through the feeble police barrier that kept the audience about three feet back from the stage.

Beer and marijuana were in evidence.

Dozens of tickets were for sale all along the street before each show. And while some scalpers were getting as much as $15 for a pair of tickets that originally cost $4.85 apiece, and some people spoke of others paying as much as $50 a ticket, many scalpers found business so poor they were glad to sell at cost and even below cost moments before the shows started.

After an excellent warm-up act by Stevie Wonder the Stones themselves appeared.

The reputed "bad boys" of the rock world, emanating from the impression they established in the early days of their career back in the early 1970s and the aura of violence—including a murder at their 1969 concert at Altamont Raceway, Calif.—that have surrounded their performances, the Stones of 1972 are shown men first class—not the vulgar, arrogant hooligans they frequently have been depicted.

Mick Jagger is the whole show, bopping, clapping, pursing his lips like a fish at every time as he yells into the microphone words that are for the most part undistinguishable over the high-decibel music and approving din of the audience.

He makes his initial appearance resplendent in sequined jump suit—white and sleeveless for the first show, gold velvet in the second—with wide gold belt bound by a red floor-length sash, matching colored scarf around his neck dangling to his knees, the suit incongruously covered by a denim jacket with fraged cuffs and a ripped-out shoulder seam and topped by an English cheesemaker cap.

If you haven't already received it, in the next few days you'll be getting your new Postal Code in the mail. It's not very exciting to look at. But it is very necessary. And it's really not as complicated as it looks.

After two years of studying the systems of most of the countries of the world, here's how we developed Postal Codes for Canada.

The map sequence on the right shows just how accurate Postal Codes really are.

To uncomplicate your Postal Code, you will be receiving a Postal Code Package. It contains your code, instructions on how to use it, a handy address book, special Postal Code stickers for your envelopes, and postage paid address cards that you should send to your friends. If you don't have enough, you can get as many as you need at your nearest Post Office. Because, after all, your Code doesn't move your mail unless your friends use it.

And if you haven't received your Code by July 31st, please call your local Post Office. We will mail it to you immediately. It is possible however, that you are not in the EASTERN ONTARIO POSTAL DISTRICT, in which case your area may not have been coded yet.

Get the habit.

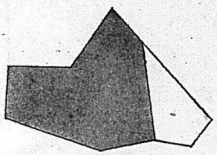
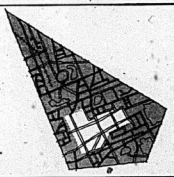
K:

Canada was first divided into 18 large areas, each designated by a letter.



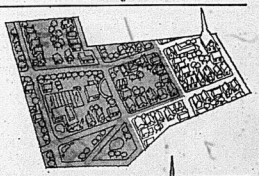
K2:

By adding a number, we narrow that area down—for example, a city.



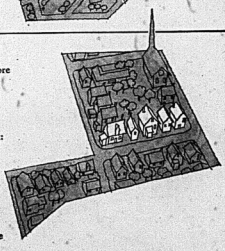
K2P:

By adding another letter, we indicate a specific section of that city.



K2P 0P4:

And by adding three more characters that section of the city is further narrowed to one side of a street between two intersections.



Codes can also represent:
—an office building with 10 or more companies.
—or a company that receives large volumes of mail.
—or an apartment building with over 50 suites.
—or, in less densely populated areas, a code will represent the whole town.

Marmora Couple Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

MARMORA — Open House was held in Sacred Heart Church Hall on Sunday afternoon, July 9 for a well-known and popular Marmora Township couple, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Maloney, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on July 10.

Born at Hogsworth in Bruce County, Dick Maloney moved with his family at an early age to Marmora Township and grew up on the homestead that is now George McGregor's.

He married Madeline Golloher in Sacred Heart Church where Father John Hanley officiated and settled on the farm which Mr. Maloney inherited and which they now share with their son Joseph and family.

Attendants on that day, 50 years ago, were Mr. Maloney's sister, Veronica, now Mrs. Fehrenbach of Oshawa, and Mrs. Maloney's brother, Charles Golloher, since deceased.

Mr. and Mrs. Maloney have one daughter, Mrs. William Doyle (Marjorie) of Marmora Township, and eight sons: Michael of Marmora Township, Bernard of Oshawa, Leo of Toronto, Paul of Peterborough, Joseph of Marmora Township, Patrick of Deloro, Carl of Peterborough and Harold of Bancroft. Another son, Daniel, died in 1956.

Mr. Maloney saw service during World War 1 and was made a Life Member of Canadian Legion Branch 237 early this year.

To start off a day of celebration, Mr. and Mrs. Maloney, their nine children and 25 grandchildren attended 9:30 mass on Sunday morning at Sacred Heart Church.

During the afternoon friends and relatives from a wide area called at the church hall to congratulate the happy couple. Mrs. Maloney received her guests wearing a lovely violet coloured one-piece crimplene dress, the bodice beautifully decorated with sequins, and a corsage of yellow roses.

Baskets of flowers decorated the church hall and a lovely three tiered cake made by their daughter, Mrs. Doyle, and decorated by Mrs. Maurice McFall, was the centre of attraction. Gold candles and a pretty floral centrepiece completed the tea table. Guests were served by some of the Maloney grandchildren.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Maloney's two sisters, Mrs. Michael Shannon (Bertilla) and Mrs. Veronica Fehrenbach and by Mrs. Maloney's two sisters, Mrs. Myrtle McCormick and Mrs. Helen McKinnon.

Also present for the occasion was Mr. Maloney's only brother, Edward of Oshawa.

Following an address read by their neighbour Jim Hughes, the presentation of a reclining chair was made to Mr. and Mrs. Maloney by Donald Shannon and Pete Quinn on behalf of their friends and neighbours.

Rev. T. G. Scanlon presided the happy couple with a framed Papal blessing and the Maloney Coat of Arms was given by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Maloney of Niagara Falls.

In addition to the many cards and good wishes extended, telegrams of congratulations were received from Governor-General Roland Michener, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Premier William Davis.

Guests were present from Niagara Falls, Toronto and Peterborough.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD D. ANDERSON

Anderson – DeRushie

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of the July 8 wedding ceremony of Denice Deborah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene DeRushie RR 4 Belleville and Richard Dennis Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Anderson, RR 4 Belleville. Rev. J. William Lamb performed the ceremony and Mary Draeup was soloist with the accompaniment of the organist Linda Johnson.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor length sheer nylon gown with a guipure lace bodice, wedding skirt and train of pure silk hood and matching veil edged with dainty lace. The gown also featured long full sleeves with wide lace cuffs of guipure lace and teardrop edging on the two rows of lace on the bottom of the A-line skirt. She carries a Victorian style bridal bouquet of white carnations and sweetheart roses.

Matron of honor Mrs. Bonnie Mitchell wore a hoofed blue Swiss dotted dress with an empire waistline bordered with Swiss lace, long full sleeves and wide cuffs. The front of the dress featured Swiss lace on the yoke and two rows of lace down the front extending to a row of lace on the bottom of the gown. She carried a basket of daisies and poms tinted lilac.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Jane Mason and Miss Wendy Anderson were identical gowns to the matron of honor, but in apricot color. They carried baskets of daisies and poms tinted apricot. Flower girl, Miss Christine Carman wore an identical dress to the matron of honor's and carried a basket of daisies and poms tinted lilac.

Best man was Ronald Mitchell while the ushers were Larry Mason and Jim Grosjean.

For the reception held at Club Canara, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a lilac coat and dress ensemble with the coat matching the lace on the dress. A corsage of white mums and blue sweetheart roses completed her ensemble.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a rose colored chiffon dress with a matching lace coat. Her corsage of white mums and pink sweetheart roses enhanced the dress.

For the wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride donned a long sleeved pink fitted dress with white accessories. A corsage of white and pink sweetheart roses complemented her dress.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 108 West Moira St., Belleville.

Fashion Business Flourishes in Germany

MUNICH (CP) — They used to say that the dream of every German male was to have a sensible German wife and an exciting French mistress.

But not any more.

Today, German girls are interested in the latest styles, watch their figures, and, if the men are to be believed, are "a delight to look at and fun to be with."

Of course, the plump fraus are still around in their tailored suits and polished exfords with no makeup on their shiny faces.

But with the outlook of the new generation of frauleins, the fashion houses, shops, boutiques and cosmetic businesses are flourishing Swiss, French and United States companies have moved in to take advantage of the big market. The American firm, Revlon, alone has 200 girls in the field demonstrating makeup.

Of course, we have to accept our lines to German tastes," an executive said here, women prefer yellow tints—in England, it is pink. We know that most oldies' men will never lose that fancy-up about it being in bad taste to use lipstick. My own mother is one of them. But most of our lines sell well with younger women and girls.

Alfred Worm, director of Mode-Woche-Munchen, the Munich fashion fair, says the industry in Germany is behind that of France and England as a money producer but is ahead of Italy.

Germans have earned the title of the greatest beer drinkers in the world and Munich is the beer capital of the country. But suits don't exist as much for the city as for styles. The Munich fashion fair draws buyers and 1,500 exhibitors from 21 countries.

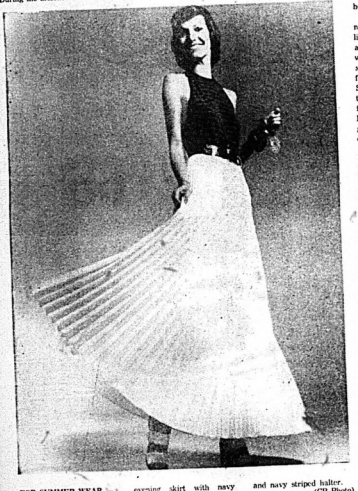
Munich still is a strong field for the traditional Bavarian costumes of dirndls and loden capes, jackets, skirts and coats. The old family firm, Lodenfrey, still is making and selling Bavarian clothes little changed in style from the last century.

But one of the successful fashion houses in Munich Quisnar, has built its reputation on the youthful, sporty look and co-ordinates 100 pieces to make maximum vampire tops for evening wear; longer, looser top coats; easy, pleated or flared knee-length skirts.

But there's nothing cheap or flashy about German clothes —even outfits for the extremely young have that careful workmanship and fine material that are the trademark of the country's clothing industry.

WANTS GIRL PAGES

VICTORIA (CP) — Eileen Dailly, the New Democratic Party MLA for North Burnaby, has been trying for the last six years to have girls permitted to serve as pages in the British Columbia legislature. She says it may seem a minor point, but "it really is important especially at a time when women are being urged to take an interest in politics."



FOR SUMMER WEAR — From Anne Klein of New York is this white pleated evening skirt with navy patent belt worn over a red and navy striped halter. (CP Photo)

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Can 'losers' find love together?

YES, provided the man and the woman who have been "thrown together" by their common failure in past romances are not embittered. Actually, they would have to develop a positive outlook over what has happened. Rather than feel sorry for each other, the couple should try to become more understanding and considerate because of what has happened. If they succeed, they are almost sure to find love—if that is what they want.

Do moods affect the senses?

YES; the sun streaming in in the morning can be bright and cheery, or glaring and harsh—depending on the mood of the awakening person. Or, let a hi-fi stereo buff, in a mood to "get the best," try to pick out speakers. He remarks how much richer the more expensive ones sound as he hears the same music through the different models in the store. If he were to listen to them with his back turned, depending on only his sense of hearing, the buyer might save some money.

Should parents be TV censors?

WELL, they should certainly pay attention to the type of programs their children are watching. Dr. B. B. Herzenhahn, in "Shaping Your Child's Personality" (Trenslee-Hall), says if a parent lets a child watch anything he wants to, then "television receptivity could influence the child more than the parents do . . . It is the unconcerned parent who ends up being amazed when the child acts contrary to the way he was brought up."

Ann Landers

Many Ways to Say No

Dear Ann Landers: This morning when my neighbor came over for our regular 10 o'clock cup of coffee she had just had her husband had brought home from work. He thought it was pretty funny. We wonder how much kidding on the square was involved. Here's the letter, Ann. Please decide:

Dear Loving Wife:

During the past year I have used to make love to you 365 times. I recorded 229 excuses and 36 successes. I kept track of the reasons which accompanied the refusals. Here they are:

We'll wake the children—17. It's too hot—10. It's too cold—5. I'm too tired—32. It's too early—15. It's too late—23. Please, dear, I'm asleep—5. Windows open, neighbors might hear—9. Backache—18. Headache—16. Toothache—2. Drank too much—4. Ate too much—14. Not in the mood—21. Mud pack—2. New Hair do—17. Company in next room—11. Wouldn't you rather watch the late TV show?—40. Is that all you men think about?—29.

Thanks, dear. Your Loving Husband (But Not Enough)

How about it, Ann. Is it funny?—Paradises. Called.

Dear Paradise: Yes, it's funny, but like a great deal that passes for humor, I sense a lot of kidding on the square.

Dear Ann Landers: Since your column appears in the Rapid City Journal we feel that you are a member of our community. Will you please give us a hand? As you know, the people in Rapid City are trying very hard to recover from the worst disaster ever experienced in this tenstate area. Almost every family in town has lost relatives, friends, property and possessions not covered by insurance.

The major industry in the Black Hills is the tourist business. Almost all our local people are dependent, either directly or indirectly, on the tourists who visit Mt. Rushmore and the Black Hills in July and August. If the ourists stay away, the financial impact of the flood will be multiplied many times.

The people of western South Dakota are more interested in having an opportunity to continue earning a living than in receiving massive doses of federal aid. Please, Ann, tell the world that the Black Hills are as beautiful as ever. None of the major tourist attractions was damaged by the flood. Fewer than one per cent of the hotels, resorts and campgrounds were in the flood area. Tourists will also find the local people as friendly and helpful as in the past.—J.W.H., President, National College of Business

Dear J.W.H.: I have visited in Rapid City and loved it. Here is your letter with an edited word from me to all of you who have never been there. Go this summer if you haven't been. You'll have the time of your life—and the community needs the money.

Successful Living

All About 'True' Love

By DORIS CLARK

There are so many things to say about falling in love, being in love, living in love. Perhaps it is summed up by this unknown writer:

"I love you not only for what you are, but for what I am when I am with you.

"I love you not only for what you have made of yourself, but for what you are making of me.

"I love you for the part of me which you bring out.

"I love you for putting your hand into my heaped-up heart and passing over all the foolish, weak things that you can't help dimly seeing there, and for drawing out into the light all the beautiful belongings that no one else had looked quite far enough to find.

"I love you for ignoring the discords in me and for adding to the harmonies in me by reverent listening.

"I love you because you are helping me to make of the lumber of my life not a tavern but a temple of the words of my every day not a reproach but a song.

"You have done all this without a word, without a touch, without a sign. You have done it just by being yourself."

Perhaps this is the meaning of true love after all.

Dear Doris: My wonderful husband has one major failing. When we married he had two large debts hanging over our heads and it will be three years before we will be debt free.

But now I can see this debt-oriented existence becoming a way of life. I gave him complete control of our finances (I work) and he managed it. Then last month he forgot all our bills, including $80, back income tax on my return. I had wracked my brains to find that $80!

This has made me bitter, after paying his bills for two long years, and also I was laid off my job, which doesn't help. I have decided to take over our budget myself and merely discuss expenses with him.

Where can I go for budget counselling? In The Red.

Dear Red: Money may not be the root of all evil—but it rears its ugly head to the dismay of many seemingly happy marriage mates. Surely the answer is in a shared responsibility.

Do what I have advised many times before: work together at setting up a budget book; record expenses and determine what your costs in each category should be. Each month the total intake is then assigned to its various "pockets" (or couple jars), with a receptacle left over for emergencies.

Most banks have a budget book they hand out. Most parts of Canada have budget counsellors. Your regional welfare office can guide you to the person you need.

Confidential to Trousseau Tea: I'm sending you the 20-cent leaflet, "Pre-Wedding Parties," which gives you some ideas about a trousseau tea.

• • •

Since nobody is expected to bring a gift, the invitation should most certainly not include a phrase like "No gifts". If some do bring one along, it may be that they are delivering their wedding gift; or they may want to express their friendship in a small gift even though they have not been invited to either shower or wedding.

• • •

(Ask Doris about your difficulty. She will discuss it, or send you to a source of help.)

Miniskirts Could Be Banned

NAIROBI (Reuter) — A Kenyan woman faced with a possible miniskirt ban is threatening to wear only her grandmother's traditional beads.

A man writing to a Nairobi newspaper complains that miniskirts encourage prostitution. Here ants women wrapped from chest to head to toe.

Kenya is in the midst of a hot debate on just what constitutes traditional African dress and who should wear it.

Threatening to ban miniskirts, President Jomo Kenyatta told a rally recently that wearing such clothing was a wild habit that had propelled the pace of prostitution in Kenya.

Appealing to parents to eradicate miniskirt wearing, he declared: "If this step will not yield fruit, I shall not hesitate to pass a ruling to this effect—so that foreigners who visit our country may not leave with the notion that Kenya is a prosperous market for prostitutes."

The president's attitude is by no means shared by all Kenya's women. Though meetings of parents and councillors in country towns condemn the miniskirts, girls continue to wear them.

Some feel strongly about a possible ban. Writing to the newspaper Daily Nation, James Kemsui said his wife refused adamantly to wear ancestral styles.

Minstrel of Don Messer Show, Charlie Chamberlain Is Dead

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — Charlie Chamberlain, 61, familiar clown and minstrel of the Don Messer radio and television shows, died here Sunday and will be buried Tuesday in a parish cemetery in northern New Brunswick.

Chamberlain started life in the northeastern New Brunswick woods July 14, 1911, and spent his early years as a lumberjack.

The news of his death reached the cast of the Don Messer show in Hamilton Sunday as they arrived for rehearsals of the fall 1972 series, now being taped at CHCH-TV studios.

The Messer-Chamberlain connection began in the 1940s when Charlie, a guitar-playing entertainer, left the lumber camps to join the original Don Messer band.

Charlie as he became affectionately known by thousands of Canadians, collapsed late last month during a show rehearsal in Hamilton and recuperated in a Hamilton hospital.

On July 9, he and his wife headed for their summer cottage for a rest. Charlie went into Bathurst hospital July 10.

Pensioner Fears He Will Lose Prize

TORONTO (CP) — Sam Pallet, a pensioner who won Saturday's $20,000 Art Gallery of Ontario draw, has gone into hiding for fear of losing the money.

"They take everything from old - age pensioners, you know," John Donovan, who purchased the winning ticket for his friend, said in an interview Sunday.

Mr. Donovan said Mr. Pallet is afraid he would lose the money if his name and address were given out, and was leaving town.

Janet Conover, assistant administrator of the lottery, said she had to make special arrangements to talk to Mr. Pallet who answered her call to the Donova residence at an arranged time.

She said Mr. Pallet told her he was so excited that he had not been able to sleep at all overnight.

Mrs. Conover said neither man would comment on how the money would be used and insisted on special arrangements to pick up the cheque.

Canadian Codes Broken

Magazine Says U.S. Knows Location of Every Red Plane

SAN FRANCISCO (CP-AP) — Government officials have declined comment on a Ramparts magazine article which says U.S. intelligence can pinpoint the location of Soviet military and space craft and monitor every transatlantic telephone call.

The magazine also suggests that Canada is not receiving its fair share of material under an intelligence-sharing agreement signed with the United States in 1947 and that the U.S. monitors Canadian diplomatic and other security communications.

The Western White House in San Clemente, Calif.; the defence department in Washington and a spokesman for the National Security Agency at Fort Meade, Md., would not respond to the article entitled U.S. Espionage: A Memoir.

The article, appearing in the August issue of the magazine which went on news-stands today, is based on an interview with a man said to be a former NSA analyst.

The former analyst, identified by a spokesman for the magazine as Winslow Peck, a pseudonym, is quoted as saying flights over Russian territory are made routinely by jets "which climb high enough to reach the edge of outer space."

In San Diego, a man who said he was Peck, 36, refused to give his real name but said he was employed by NSA for 3½ years after joining the air force in 1966. He said he was on vacation.

The Ramparts article said the United States monitors every government in the world, including its allies, and listens in on all transatlantic telephone calls to or from the U.S., even those by private citizens.

"As far as the Soviet Union is concerned we know the whereabouts at any given time of all its aircraft, exclusive of small private planes, and its naval forces, including its missile-firing submarines," the former analyst said in the article.

"The fact is that we're able to break every code they've got, understand every type of communications equipment and enciphering device they've got," he added.

Marc Stone, a former Ramparts publisher, now working in New York City to promote the August issue of the magazine, said the article refers to a 1947 treaty signed by the United States, Canada, Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

The agreement provides for an interchange of information by the signatories, Peck said. "Of course it doesn't work out this way.

"As it works out, the treaty is a one-way street. . . . We are late it even with our second-party allies which the magazine says includes Canada by monitoring their communications constantly."

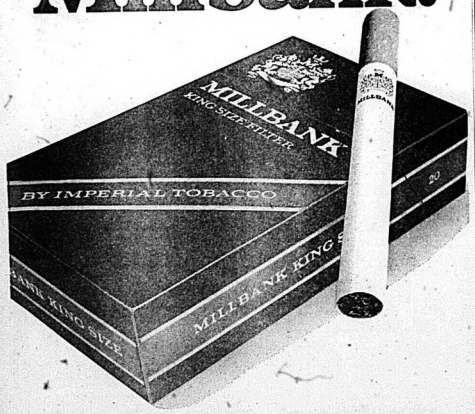
Asked whether the allies knew of the practice, the magazine quotes Peck's reply:

"Probably . . . in part we're allowed to do it for Comsec purposes under NATO." Comsec is the U.S. designation for the communications security organization responsible for codes and related intelligence security equipment, Stone said.

Ramparts said Peck acknowledged an agreement for "regular checking of security procedures" but it quotes him as saying: "I know we also monitor their diplomatic stuff constantly."

The article said the U.S. is able to monitor allies' communications because "they're all working with machines we gave them."

This is Millbank.



We believe it's the best cigarette we've ever made.

Ling's Double Spells Trouble for Howard and Robert

One run was all Rollin's Construction and the Ellis Juniors could score last night in a Commercial Softball League doubleheader but the difference was that the one run meant victory for Rollins and merely another loss for the Juniors.

The Constructionmen scored in the first inning of the first game and then hung on to blank Howard and Roberts Printing 1-0 for their 16th win of the season while the Juniors were dropping their 16th game 10-1 to Quinte Hotel.

Ralph Plane scored the winning and only run for Rollins in the first when he singled and raced home on a double by Steve Ling.

It was the only moment of glory for the hitters, as both Rollin's Ted Waite and Howard and Robert's Bob Eshler settled into a pitching duel. Waite fired a three-hitter and fanned 13 men in taking the win from Eshler who gave up five hits and struck out 11.

Paul Goodfellow, Dale Duval and Ralph Boomhower added singles to the winners' hitting parade while Dwight Rathwell, Moe Hunter and Bob Eshler had safeties for the second place Printers.

The Juniors were on the whipping side of the Quinte Hotel attack last night but the only run they managed broke two of Scott Reid's streaks.

A fourth-inning earned run broke Reid's eight-game run of not allowing an earned run, longest in the league this year and spoiled the right-hander's bid for his fifth shutout in his last eight games.

It was of little concern to the results of the game, however, as Quinte moved into third spot in the league standings. The winners picked up three runs in the third and fourth and four in the fifth to cement the win.

Martin Walsh led all Quinte hitters with a triple, double and single. Wayne Woods had two singles as did Bob Parsons and Terry Lesage with new addition Larry Mavety punching a double.

Reid wound up with a five hitter, including singles by Wayne Andrews, Rick Graham and Ron Hill, all in the fourth, producing the lone Junior tally. Reid struck out ten and walked only two.

Dave Horwood started for the Juniors lasting three innings before Ron Hill relieved.

Spitting Pits Not Olympian

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

NAPANEE — There was a pregnant pause just before Bill Daverne made his third and final attempt — much like there is when Olympic shot putters prepare to hurl their massive missiles through the air.

Bill stepped up to the official starting line, right there on Pearl Street in front of the Rotary Club Pool, took what looked like a deep breathe, and: "Paaloiie."

The North American Watermelon Pit spitting champion had done his thing.

BILL DAVERNE

At least everyone there, including the Chamber of Commerce organizers of the event and the rest of Napanee's Hoopla Days, were convinced Bill's spit was a record.

The problem was, only one such contest was ever been held before, to anyone's knowledge, and that was in a little United States town.

The record there was supposed to be 55 feet, set by a 15-year-old spitter. Bill Daverne went one foot better than that. In fact the 17-year-old high school student propelled his pit six feet past the public address system truck stationed 50 feet at the other end of the spectator-lined course.

No-one had counted on anybody spitting past the 50 foot chalked-out lines, but fortunately, a tape measure was produced to authenticate Bill's record.

"Practice?" Bill grinned. "I just decided to enter five minutes ago!"

The new standard for watermelon pit spitters was aided by a slight cross-wind — AND the fact the Pearl St. course happened to slope downhill. Bill also wears glasses, but that probably didn't help him do anything but keep his projectiles between the rows of spectators.

The hazards of viewing a watermelon pit spitting contest, incidentally, are likely among the key reasons such events are not on the Olympic calendar.

There are the "sprayers", whose attempts come complete with generous sprinklings of saliva. And in one instance, S a t u r d a y, viewers close to the starting line were threatened with the possibility of being struck by flying dentures.

There is also something uncouth about some of the staging techniques. Watermelon pit spitting will never get off the ground if starters keep saying: "All right, everybody spit". There should be an official starting gun, or, better yet, a wafer pistol.

Also, there are no qualifications, or eliminations, leaving one with the strong impression that people w e r e merely entering for a free piece of watermelon, which they got in order to choose their three pits.

And the public address procedure needs some stricter attention. Going around advertising a "watermelon spitting contest" is misleading advertising. That would be a Herculean feat, to say the least.

But when the pits were cleared and eight watermelons had been devoured, the consensus was that watermelon pit spitting is in the Quinte region to stay. Unless something like lettuce - head bowling takes its place.

Heads-Up

Kingston International Dennis Bradley was heads-up on this play in the first round of the Ontario Cup zone play-downs against Lino's Rovers, keeping the ball away from Belleville centre Dave Zdravko. Both Bradley and Zdravko scored for their teams with Kingston coming out on top with a 3-1 win. Kingston advances against Sudbury while Lino's have been eliminated.

Meads Left Waiting For Third Title Shot

The Belleville Mead Johnson squirts are hanging on the edge of their third tournament A championship of the season and they've been hanging there since Saturday afternoon.

Mead's had advanced to the final championship game of the Oshawa Squirt Tournament Saturday before rain forced the postponement of the contest until tonight.

The rain was a breath of life for Mead's final opponents from Cobourg who were trailing the local crew 1-0 before the rain came in the fourth inning.

Mead's opened the tourney against North Bendale, the team Belleville nipped 10-9 to win their own tournament earlier this month, but there was little doubt as to who had the power Saturday as Meads demolished them 19-3.

John Henry had four singles and three rbi's and Bob Hedge a triple and single to lead the winners 24 hit attack. Andy Rassit added a single and double as did David Urch.

Tim Soule allowed 10 hits but fanned 11 in taking the win. He belted himself at the plate with a double and two singles plus driving in four runs.

Soule had less trouble the next game firing a four-hitter in blanking Richmond Hill 10-0.

Meads had advanced to the championship game by defeating Richmond Hill 12-9 in a game that went into extra innings.

He also punched a triple and two singles to lead all Mead hitters. Jean Henry connected for a double and single and Ron Begley two singles.

Muskie Motor

Bob Shire learned you don't need a motor to propell your boat, especially when you've hooked on to a 42-pound muskie. Bob took ten minutes to land the 54-inch muskie, his biggest catch ever in eight years of fishing. The catch hooked on and literally pulled the boat around Moira Lake until Bob and fishing partner Ron Smith (left) managed to land the prize lunker.

Thompson Churns Out Record

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (Special) — Exhaust problems could ground Bloomfield driver Doug Thompson when he competed in the Valleyfield Regatta. Instead it was his hydro boat competitors who wound up exhausted.

Thompson collected three firsts at the Valleyfield, Quebec competition, the biggest in Canada. Included in his performance was a new Canadian record for a "B" class racing hydro.

Thompson had exhaust problems in the second elimination heat, but his three-man pit crew managed to install a completely new system in just two-and-a-half minutes.

The Bloomfield driver guided his craft to a Canadian record of 69.23 miles per hour around the five-mile course. The old mark was 64.9 mph. Thompson's boat was a Marschetti hull powered by a Kohig engine.

The boat is owned by Don Channel of Wellington with Bill Wannamaker, Gary Brown and Jim Smith serving as mechanics.

"I didn't tag him, eh? Then what are those teeth doing in the ball?"

Juveniles Afford Loss

Belleville clinched a second place finish in the Quinte Lacrosse Association, despite a 10-8 loss Saturday. The loss came at the hands of the pennant-winning Napanee juveniles, a team that Belleville failed to beat all season.

One category that the local team did finish first was in the individual scoring race, where Belleville's Kerry Reid secured the championship by scoring two goals in the loss to Nepean. Rick Barbosu had a hat trick in the 10-8 defeat with singles going to Gerald Grier, Glen Sine and Ray Muldoon. Nepean's top scorer was Sandy McTaggart who counted three times.

SACO Peewees Lose Big One

The Belleville S.A.C.O. peewees were two for three in the Lindsay Softball Tournament Saturday but they got their 'scars' in their only loss.

Belleville picked up first and second round wins Saturday but ran into a rough Scarboro squad in the A championship game and dropped a 13-6 decision.

Belleville started off well in the final game sending ten men to the plate in the first inning and scoring five runs but Scarboro equalled SACO's output in their half of the inning and then went on to wrap up the win.

Catcher Kevin Ward stroked three singles and shortstop Dave McBride a triple in a losing effort. Dan Vance took the loss on the Belleville rubber.

SACO had opened the tourney with a 12-1 clobbering of Cobourg.

Randy Smith fired five hit ball and fanned nine in picking up the win. Wayne Ervin led all Belleville hitters with a triple and two singles with John Jianopoulos and Dan Vance adding three singles apiece.

A 6-4 win over Woodstock propelled the local boys into the A championship game. Vance pitched the win and received batting support from Ervin, Brad Rose and Bill McQuaid with two singles each.

Trevino Trumps Slam

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Flamboyant Lee Trevino, still bubbling over his second straight victory in the British open golf championship, admitted generously today that his great rival Jack Nicklaus is a better player.

By winning the British title Saturday, Trevino put an end for this year to Nicklaus's dream of capturing the first grand slam in modern golf—sweeping all four major titles.

Trevino's triumph was to survive a super-charge by the 32-year-old Golden Bear in the final round over Muirfield's 6,892-yard, par-71 links, swelter-ing in unaccustomed sunshine on the shores of the normally windswept Firth of Forth.

But the man who calls himself Super Mex paid this subsequent tribute to Nicklaus: "I don't think I am in the same class as Jack."

"Nicklaus can be beaten, simply because nobody can win all the time," Trevino said. "But to beat him, you really have to play well.

"There was no one in the field who could honestly say he was in the same class as Jack."

Trevino said he hoped Nicklaus would go on to win the U.S. PGA championship next month at Birmingham, Mich., the final leg of the grand slam.

"Then I'll be known not just as the British open champion but as the man who stopped Jack from doing the big one this year," Trevino said.

Nicklaus already holds the Masters and U.S. Open crowns and needed the British championship and the PGA to achieve the all-but-impossible dream.

Trevino picked up the winner's pay cheque of £5,500, equal to $14,300 at official rate, with a 72-hole total of 278, six under par. His rounds were 71-70-66-71.

Nicklaus took second place, one stroke behind, with 70-72-71-66—279.

"I rate my last round as one of the finest I ever played," Nicklaus said.

That 66 matched the course record, set earlier in the week by talented young Johnny Miller and equalled by Trevino later.

In one of the most exciting finishes in the history of this tournament, Nicklaus made up a six-shot deficit and one stage actually overtook Trevino.

Trevino had to hole a chip from a green-side trap at the 17th for a par five that saved his title. He became the first man to defend the British crown successfully since Arnold Palmer did it in 1961-62.

Tony Jacklin, the young Englishman who held both the U.S. and British open titles, was tied with 280. Doug Sanders totalled 281 for fourth place, British Ryder Cup star Brian Barnes was next with 283 and South Africa's Gary Player had 285 for sixth place.

Nicklaus had this comment on Trevino: "The man is quite extraordinary. He doesn't play golf the way I play it, but there comes a time when he scores better.

"It can't be any disgrace to lose to a guy like this."

Dash Record Set Out West

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Canadian record was set on the weekend at the Manitoba open and age-class track and field championships.

Murray Delorme, a 19-year-old speedster from Kenora, Ont., set a Canadian juvenile record for the 100-metres dash with a 10.5-second performance.

The Grade 12 student wasn't surprised at his performance.

"I equalled the record a couple of weeks ago. . . . it was just a matter of time and the right conditions before I'd get the record."

Niekro Perfect

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Righthander Joe Niekro was just as surprised as anyone else when he pitched a perfect game Sunday for Toledo Mud Hens just one day after Detroit Tigers handed him his walking papers.

Niekro shut down with the idea of pitching a good game." Niekro said after his 2-0 no-run, no-hit victory over the Tidewater Tides. "I never expected anything like this. I hope this opens some people's eyes.

Niekro's performance was the International League's first second perfect game of the season, both of them in Toledo. On June 30 Rich Hinton of Syracuse hurled a perfect 5-0 game against the Mud Hens.

Niekro had just arrived in Toledo Sunday morning and signed his contract with the Mud Hens less than one hour before he walked to the mound.

His record with the Tigers was 2-2 with an ERA of 4.07 in 31 innings of work.

Albatross Rich Young

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Albatross became the youngest millionaire in the history of harness racing Saturday, covering the mile in 1:57 3-5 to romping to victory in the $6,000 Bret Hanover Invitational race at Saratoga Raceway.

The triumph marked the 30th time in his racing career that standardbred stepped a mile in less than two minutes. Only Bret Hanover has more—31

Although Albatross, syndicated for $2.5 million, will retire to stud duty later this year he will race about 15 more times. The final time will be for a $100,000 race at Hollywood Park.

Four years ago, Albatross had been sold as a yearling for $6,700.

Albatross was considered such a standout Saturday that betting on him wasn't permitted.

So for betting purposes second-place Jonathen Hanover and third-place Nevele Pride were the only horses left in the race. Nevele Pride finished third, returning $3.40, $3.20 and $2.80.

Saturday's win, his ninth straight after three losses at the beginning of the 1972 season, gave Albatross winnings to date of $1,201,008, the track said.

Speedy Crown Breaks String

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Speedy Crown won the $125,000 Roosevelt International Trot at Roosevelt Raceway Saturday night, giving the United States its first victory in eight years in the global spectacular of harness racing.

A son of Speedy Scot, the last previous American winner of the International in 1964, Speedy Crown took the lead after the first quarter and stayed off the challenge of Fresh Yankee of Canada by three-quarters of a length before 35,000 spectators.

Fresh Yankee, driven by Joe O'Brien and the only mare in the race after Une de Mai was scratched, went off the 7-to-2 second choice and returned $2.40 and $2.10. Flower Child, of the U.S. was third, 1¼ lengths behind Fresh Yankee and paid $2.20 to show.

Pirates Thrive on Fake Turf

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We hit the ball and they caught it," said Lee May of Houston Astros. "They hit the ball and it was in the hole. That's baseball."

No, that's Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates use the home-field advantage as good as any team in the National League—and Sunday turned it to their advantage again.

Base-hits whistled through the infield on the hard, artificial surface at Three Rivers Stadium and the Pirates literally ran off with a pair of 3-2 victories over the Astros.

"I've never seen so many ground balls shoot through like they do for the Pirates," said Houston manager Harry Walker. "Manny Sanguillen hits that ball on the ground and—boom—it's gone. Gene Clines, too. And the Pirates have the speed, which helps a lot."

The Pirates killed two birds with the double triumph. For one thing, the East leaders moved 4½ games up on second-place New York Mets, who lost a 7-3 decision to San Diego Padres. For another, they dropped the Astros, who had been the only club to have a winning record against Pittsburgh this season.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers cut down Montreal Expos 4-2; San Francisco Giants defeated Philadelphia Phillies 10-7 and Chicago Cubs downed Atlanta Braves 5-3.

Saturday, Pittsburgh beat Houston 5-1, Atlanta downed Chicago 4-2, Philadelphia walloped San Francisco 11-4, Cincinnati thumped St. Louis 12-2, Montreal edged Los Angeles 3-2 and New York squeezed by San Diego 2-1.

The Pirates' first-game victory Sunday was fashioned with the help of speed, combined with that Tartan-Turf surface. The contest was tied 2-2 when Willie Stargell opened the 10th inning with a walk. Stargell raced to third when Sanguillen rifled a sharp single through the infield.

After Rennie Stennett was walked intentionally to load the bases, Bob Robertson was struck on the right wrist with a Fred Gladding pitch, forcing in the winning run.

In the second game, the Pirates took a 1-0 lead with an unearned run in the first inning—then used that tailor-made combination of speed-and-playing surface again to build their lead.

The Pirates scored their eventual winning runs off Houston's Don Wilson in the fourth when Al Oliver singled and scored on Stargell's double. Stennett then drilled a ball through the Astro infielders for a run-scoring single.

Bruce Kison got the second-game victory with last-out relief help from Dave Giusti, who nailed it down after giving up a two-run single to May.

Brewers Break the Ice

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When you're hot, you're hot and when you're not, you're probably the Milwaukee Brewers.

The baseball Brewers were stuck in one of their cold spells Sunday—a six losses in eight games including a 1-0 two-hitter at the hands of California Angels' Rudy May in the first game of their doubleheader.

What's worse is that the second game was also 1-0 in California's favor as Milwaukee came to bat in the bottom of the eighth inning. The Brewers weren't cold—they were frozen.

Clearly, it was time for action and so manager Del Crandall used his old pinch runner for a pinch runner move.

The double pinch-runner strategy paid off—helped considerably by George Scott's two-run single—as the Brewers rallied for a 2-1 victory and a split of the doubleheader.

Starter Lloyd Allen and reliever Rick Clark had limited the Brewers to four hits in the nightcap when pinch hitter Ron Theobald opened the eighth inning with a single. Here Crandall started working: pinch runner No. 1.

"When the first guy up in the inning singled, I didn't want to use a player we might need later, so I sent in pitcher Skip Lockwood," Crandall explained.

The situation cried for a bunt and Rick Auerbach delivered it. What's more, Auerbach beat it out. And here comes pinch runner No. 2, not for Auerbach, but for Lockwood.

"We get men on first and second and this is our chance to win the ball game," said Crandall, "so I sacrifice a little speed at second base for experience by sending in Bob Heise to run for Lockwood."

And Heise followed with another bunt single and Scott delivered with his game-winning two-run single.

Elder Makes Bid for Olympic Riding Team

TORONTO (CP) — Jimmy Elder, riding a horse just off the injury list, won the final Grand Prix jumping even in the Canadian equestrian team's Olympic selection trials Sunday.

Elder and The Immigrant, veterans of the 1968 Olympic gold medal-winning team, had only four jumping faults in their first round and one-half time fault in the second.

It was a disappointing week-end for Tom Gayford, another 1968 Olympic gold medallist, who reported that an unknown attacker broke into his barn Friday night and injured his best mount.

Gayford had to scratch his mare Big Dee, which carried him to a team gold medal at last year's Pan-American games, from Sunday's competition.

Barbara Kerr of Calgary appeared to have one of the berths locked up after winning the team challenge trophy with most points in the four-event selection series.

Mrs. Kerr, riding her checkered gelding Magnor, earned a total of 71 points in the four-event series. Tied for second with 66 points were Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., with Steelmaster, and Torchy Millar of Montreal on Hoopy Fellow.

The points standings are Cudney's main guide in selecting an Olympic team but he said other factors will be considered.

One such factor is that veterans such as Elder would be given consideration if their home mounts recovered in time.

Big Dee Badly Beaten

TORONTO (CP)—Big Dee, a veteran bay mare chosen for Canada's Olympic jumping team, has been badly beaten in her stable and her owner said Sunday it was obviously done by someone wanting her out of Sunday's final Grand Prix event here in the equestrian team's Olympic selection trials.

The 11 - year - old mare was smashed across the shoulder and leg with either an iron bar or baseball bat twice at 4 a.m. and had to be withdrawn from the trials. She will not likely be fit for the Olympics in Munich next month.

Tom Gayford, son of owner Maj. Gordan Gayford, rode Dreamy Jo in the trials but scratched at the end of the first round after scoring 29 faults with the inexperienced gelding.

Sets Pace

OTTAWA (CP) — Silent Maj. Jetty led the $15,000 Connaught Cup pace all the way Sunday, setting a record mile time of 1:58.4 for the half-mile Connaught Park raceway in Lucerne, Que.

The previous track record was 2:02.2.

A Winning Week

Ed, who has had problems with Rosedale breaking in the past, reigned a tight race taking Rosedale to a 2:12:3 win.

Weeks Guides Mare To Sloppy Track Win

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

It only took two minutes and 12 seconds to run the second race at the Saturday night Quinte Exhibition and Raceway Harness Races but it seemed like a "week" at the finish line.

In fact it was a week, Ed Weeks, who guided his brown mare Rosedale Gratton to a victory.

Ed is a 10-year veteran of the harness driving profession but unlike many of his cohorts driving is still his main concern.

"I might train some horses but right now there is more fun in driving for me—Anyways you should spend about four hours per six days a week to train a horse, and I just don't have the time," comments Ed.

Ed limits himself to mostly driving for Trenton owner Albert Defosse whose farm supplies more than enough material to keep Weeks busy, and on the road in his spare time.

"I guess I've been around the circuit, Montreal, Greenwood, the States — all over. They have been mostly Defosse's horses though, I don't own any myself."

Weeks has been reining three separate Defosse horses on the Belleville oval quite regularly and after having fairly good luck with each, sees no reason to vagate the local track in the near future.

"We race in Kingston and will probably be in Peterborough but as long as the purses hold out the same here we'll stick around."

Rosedale Grattan added a little impetus to stay for Weeks when she walked away with the second race in Saturday's rain-soaked card.

"She's been doing well if she doesn't break. We've had a lot of trouble with her but she straightened out. I guess they all make mistakes."

Rosedale didn't make any mistakes Saturday winning the mile in 2:12:3 and combining with first race winner Pointee Hal to return a $141.50 daily double.

Despite the sloppy track April M. Magic finally broke into the winner's circle by capturing the featured ninth race in a time of 2:08:3. The brown mare, driven by Al Vance, outraced Hieland Battle, and Shelley Dawn to win the purse.

David Del Direct and Superior Ted (3 and 5 on the card) placed first and second to pay a $99.50 seventh-race exacta.

The downpour limited the crowd to under a thousand people, 991, but they still managed to push $31,843 through the betting windows.

Holoway Derails Trainmen

Casey Jones, could take a few lessons from Sonny Holoway when it comes to wrecking trains, at least the Industrial Softball variety. Holoway was at the controls as Meads derailed CNR 6-1 Sunday to move into first place in the "B" division of the Industrial loop.

The veteran hurler halted the league's top team on just three hits, losing his bid for a shutout in the bottom of the fifth. Holoway struck out seven batters and walked three. The loss was tagged on Mark Sheridan who was touched for ten hits and two walks, while fanning five.

Cliff Hineman belted a double and single for Meads with Tim O'Connell and Wayne Storms knocking two singles each. Gord Tamblyn's double and singles by Sheridan and Milt Bell were the only CNR safeties.

The Toyota Half-Ton; biggest engine in this size of import truck. Only $2630*

Its big 2000 c.c., 110 horsepower overhead cam engine puts out more power than its competitors with their 1600 c.c. and 1800 c.c. engines. Power enough to haul a trailer and a full load of camping equipment with ease. Strong and reliable enough to take you into hidden spots on hunting and fishing trips or camping vacations. The Toyota Half-Ton has what it takes to get you there and bring you back with the economy you expect from an import.

The 2 litre engine is teamed with a smooth, synchromesh four-on-the-floor transmission. Its rugged suspension can manhandle the roughest back trail. Unit body cab construction and the "car-comforts" we build in, make the roughest going easy on you. Which all adds up to so much value when you consider its low price and good mileage.

So if you dream of discovering the beauty and peace of quiet places, off the beaten trail, discover our Toyota Half-Ton. It's more than just a tough truck. It can do a whole lot of things. And what they are depends upon what you want to do.

TOYOTA

*Suggested retail price $2630. F.O.B. Vancouver, Calgary, Toronto, Montreal and Moncton; local transport, tax and licence extra.

New York Mafia Boss Shot 5 Times in Face

NEW YORK (AP) — Shot five times in the face, Thomas (Tommy Ryan) Eboli, top Mafia figure and underboss for the late Vito Genovese, was found dead early Sunday in what police indicated was a gangland slaying.

Police said Eboli, 61, apparently had been taken "for a ride" by other mobsters and was cut down in a burst of gunfire as he struggled to get out of the car.

His body was found sprawled on a sidewalk in the quiet Crown Heights section of Brooklyn, surrounded by broken blood-stained glass from a car window. Police said he had more than $2,000, mostly in $100 bills, on him.

They theorized that when Eboli realized what was about to happen, he tried to force his way from the car. They said at least two shots from a small caliber gun hit him while he still was in the vehicle.

A witness told authorities that at about 1 a.m., he saw flashes near a truck in the area and heard a man say, "Iet's get out of here."

The truck, apparently stolen, was found abandoned with its engine running about a block from Eboli's body.

Police said they also found a .45-caliber M-3 machine-gun with a silencer in a car registered to a Newark, N.J., overand parked near the murder scene.

They were unable to determine immediately whether either truck or machine-gun was connected to the shooting.

The murder of Eboli was the latest in a series of shootings involving reputed underworld figures which began over a year ago with the wounding of Joseph A. Colombo Sr., identified by authorities as head of the Profaci Cosa Nostra family in Brooklyn.

Six alleged underworld figures, including Joseph (Crazy Joe) Gallo, were slain within 12 days here this spring. Gallo was said to have been behind the shooting of Colombo at an Italian-American Unity Day rally.

Federal authorities have identified Eboli as an underboss in the Genovese family while Genovese was in prison for bankrolling a narcotics smuggling operation.

Trudeau Visits Leeds

BROCKVILLE (CP) — The Liberal party's campaign to win the hearts and minds of eastern Ontario voters received a boost Saturday as Prime Minister Trudeau breezed through a fast-paced tour of Smiths Falls, Prescott and Brockville.

Everywhere, crowds warmly applauded him and people ran up for autographs and handshakes. There were no hostile questions during a hot-line radio program in Smiths Falls or a question-and-answer session in Brockville.

Those two towns are the largest communities in the federal riding of Leeds, where 17 senior Liberal party workers resigned earlier this year in what was considered to be a protest over government bilingualism policies.

Brockville was also the scene of a more recent political squabble, when several Conservatives protested the inviting of Mr. Trudeau by local service clubs.

Criticism of bilingualism policies has also come from the riding of Grenville-Dundas, which includes Prescott, the third stop on the prime minister's nine-hour helicopter tour.

Gervais Black, Liberal candidate in Leeds, and Gordon Blair, Liberal MP for Grenville-Carleton, accompanied Mr. Trudeau on portions of his tour. The Conservative MP for Leeds, Desmond Code, was not present in his party and use press.

An aide to the prime minister said his was an official and non-partisan. Canadian Forces helicopters were used to carry his party and press.

The first stop was Smiths Falls, where the prime minister spent an hour answering telephone calls at radio station CJET from local residents.

One caller wanted to know how much seven-month old Justin Trudeau weighs and how much time Mr. Trudeau can spend with him. The answers: 20 pounds and "never enough."

Other replies:

—Federal policy on the non-medical use of drugs such as marijuana will be announced within two weeks;

—A program called "New Horizons for the Aged," similar to Opportunities for Youth, is to be unveiled next week;

—Mr. Trudeau has not decided the date of the next federal election;

—The government will bring back its family-allowances bill during the next session of Parliament. Independent Liberal Paul Hellyer blocked the bill from passing on the last day of the last session;

—The Canadian dollar has a higher value than the U.S. dollar because international money-buyers consider Canada's economy to be doing extremely well.

U.S. Needs Will Fix Pipe Route

QUEBEC (CP) — The route for a proposed pipeline to bring natural gas from the Arctic to southern Canada will be determined mainly by demands from United States markets, says Gilles Masse, Quebec natural resources minister.

Mr. Masse said that if Panarctic Oils Ltd., which is developing recently-discovered gas supplies in the Arctic, decides to supply the Boston area first, the line would probably go through Quebec to Montreal.

But if Chicago and the mid-western region of the U.S. is to be served first, the line would probably go through Ontario.

Panarctic is a member of a consortium planning a pipeline from the Mackenzie Delta to the south. Another possible route for Arctic Islands' gas is a pipeline running southward to link up with Delta-Alberta line. Panarctic is owned 45 per cent by the federal government and 55 per cent by 12 private firms.

Mr. Masse said in an interview that if the pipeline follows the Ontario route, it could also supply a proposed giant petro-chemical development at Sarnia.

Mr. Masse along with Guy Saint-Pierre, Quebec minister of industry and commerce, is to meet today in Montreal with Jean-Luc Pepin, federal minister of industry, trade and commerce, to discuss the future of the province's petro-chemical industry.

Mr. Saint-Pierre recently criticized the Sarnia development, which coupled with the Ottawa River demarcation line for the sale of domestic oil products could, he said, spell the end of the petro-chemical industry in Quebec.

Two Live in Ghost Town

Bachelors Wilford Thomson, 81, (left) and 82-year-old Harold Garden, are the only residents of the ghost town of Barkerville, in central British Columbia. The city was based on Billy Barker's 1862 shaft near Williams Creek, which yielded $600,000 in gold. Both men are sure there is still gold in the area, and that they may strike it rich one day. Divers Find No Hootch

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — What started out as a search for bootleg hootch has ended up as a donation to a museum.

James McCrady, an insurance salesman and amateur scuba diver, persuaded several friends to accompany him on an underwater search three years ago in Bateau Channel between Howe Island and the mainland.

Their target was a 1923 National truck that rolled off a ferry dock in 1929 during prohibition in the United States. Local rumor had it that the truck contained a cargo of liquor although authorities maintain it was a load of cheese.

Several dives failed to locate any alcoholic beverages on the truck, but the men decided to salvage it anyway and donate it to a museum.

Using 12 air-filled barrels, Mr. McCrady and his companions finally managed to raise the vehicle Wednesday and despite some minor difficulties in towing it ashore, brought it in Friday.

The Kingston Kitsmen Club has expressed interest in taking on the truck's restoration as a project.

As for Mr. McCrady, he intends to continue diving — the channel to retrieve "a lost city" of old boats, motor vehicles and a steam engine from the channel bed.

Plan to Inform Metro Public

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a confidential proposal to the Ontario government and Metropolitan Toronto calls for a $500,000 public information campaign to inform and consult the Metro public about new Metro transportation plans.

The newspaper says its aim is to prevent another bitter issue like that of the Spadina Expressway here, which was started by Metro but later cancelled by the Ontario government.

'Ridiculous'

SARNIA (CP) — Mac McCutcheon, Conservative MP for Lambton-Kent, labelled as "ridiculous" over the weekend a federal estimate of $40 million for removing unexploded ammunition from the Camp Ipperwash rifle range.

Plot Alleged

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government announced Saturday the arrest of eight Greeks who it claimed planned to kidnap John F. Kennedy Jr., son of Jacqueline Onassis who lives part of the time on a Greek island.

'Timmy' Chosen

REGINA (CP) — Danny Musgrave of Saskatoon, an active 10-year-old red-head who has been crippled since birth, has been chosen the 1973 national Easter Seal Timmy.

Oppose Strike

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto student council voted Saturday against a fee strike in September but agreed to recommend to students registering this fall that they defer total fee payment and possibly withhold the second installment in January 1973.

Join Communists

ROME (AP) — A left-wing splinter group which broke away from the Socialist party five years ago has emerged with the Communists after suffering a setback at the polls this spring.

The Proletarian Party of Socialist Unity has been voting with the Communists in parliament all along. It split from the Socialist party before the 1968 national elections in opposition to Socialist participation in a centre-left government.

Drugs Seized

LONDON (CP) — The son of a Canadian diplomat has disappeared after police questioned him following a $30,000 drug seizure in a London boarding house.

G.W. Bennett of Halifax, a defence production counsellor at Canada House, said today he does not know the whereabouts of his son David, 23.

Bike Thefts Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California is being plagued with bicycle thefts. In 1970, an estimated 500,000 bikes valued at up to $30 million were stolen. In some areas of the state the increase since 1969 has been 400 per cent.

Bennett Wants Quebec Vote To Decide Separatism Issue

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett says a plebiscite on Quebec's future is long overdue, and if the province voted to separate from the rest of Canada, it would not mean the end of the country.

"I think Quebec should have had a plebiscite a long time ago to decide whether they wanted to go," the B.C. Social Credit leader said in an interview Friday at his home in this Okanagan Valley city.

"I don't agree with Prime Minister Trudeau at all when he says that if Quebec decides to go, it would be the end of Canada. That would not be the end."

The premier said that, as the leader of the B.C. government and "a citizen of Canada," he would regret a Quebec decision to leave Confederation, but he was sure "nobody would fight to stop them from going."

Mr. Bennett said he believes that only the citizens of Quebec should vote in such a plebiscite. Prime Minister Trudeau's mind is "is too much on Quebec and not on the whole Canadian vision."

The premier said the gap between the Maritimes and the rest of Canada that would be created by an independent Quebec should not be a matter of great concern.

"They say the rest of Canada wouldn't run because the Maritimes would have to look toward the United States. Well, what difference would that make? The railways now go to the United States and you can fly into the Maritimes and everything else."

Safety Award Is Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The executive director of Consumers Union announced Saturday he has resigned from a government advisory council to protest the council's designation of General Motors President Edward N. Cole for an auto safety award.

Ralph Nader, head of consumer research groups, also criticized the award, to be given by the National Motor Vehicle Safety Advisory Council, which advises the department of transportation on auto safety.

Walker Sandbach of Consumers Union said the recipient of the award should be someone who has been truly outstanding in the effort to develop safer cars.

"By no stretch of my imagination could that person be Edward Cole," Sandbach said.

Cole was general manager of GM's Chevrolet division when the ill-fated Corvair went into production. It was discontinued after relentless criticism by order of its stability and handling.

Killed by Train

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto youths died Sunday shortly after being struck by a GO train on a city bridge.

Robin Paul Wright, 18, and Patrick Michael Casserly, 15, were trapped in the middle of the 250-foot-long bridge when the east-bound train approached.

One Union Balks At B.C. Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP) — The war between union and management in the British Columbia forest industry appeared over today, but there is still a battle raging that could leave both sides without any timber to sell or jobs to go to.

Although the International Woodworkers of America, representing 29,000 coast workers, and Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for 115 timber companies, have agreed on a new master contract, 800 union fallers have rejected their chunk of the package.

The fallers are the first link in the forest industry chain, the men who cut down the trees, and their spokesmen say they won't return to work today when the rest of the IWA men report for duty.

They went on strike in mid-April—two months before the rest of the IWA's coast division left their jobs June 22—to back demands for a standard pricing formula for the trees they fell.

Under the old contract, the fallers performed their tasks on a piecework basis, getting paid for the number and size of the trees they cut down. The rates varied widely from camp to camp, even within the same company, and the fallers wanted a uniform rate covering all companies, all logging operations.

However, the IWA negotiating team obtained a flat rate of $30 a day for the fallers in its negotiations with FIR to replace the last collective agreement, which expired June 15. The fallers rejected that deal by a margin of more than 50 per cent.

By the time the IWA coast division went on strike, many of the major logging camps and mill operations had already been shut down because of an acute log shortage created by the fallers.

It was not clear how many of these operations would be reopened today. But the companies will be forced to shut down even more facilities if the fallers stay off the job.

Fallers spokesman Mike Davis said some "scabs" would be back at work today, but the bulk of the fallers will remain off the job to hold out for their standardized piecework pricing formula. They plan meetings today to solicit the support of other union members.

FIR President John Billings said the industry expects every faller back in the woods today. Jack Moore, IWA regional president, said the loggers Local 1-71 includes about half the fallers and has taken the position that the master contract is a fair one. But he declined to predict what would happen.

Japanese Terrorist Convicted in Israel

LOD, Israel (Reuter) — Japanese terrorist Kozo Okamoto was found guilty today of participating in the Lod airport massacre on May 30 in which more than 100 persons were killed or injured.

However, the Israeli military prosecutor asked the court to sentence Okamoto to life imprisonment, forsaking the death penalty.

The verdict of guilty was inevitable not only because of the overwhelming weight of material evidence produced during the trial last week but also in view of Okamoto's open claim in court to responsibility for the attack by a three-man Japanese suicide squad.

Okamoto alone survived, one of his companions dying when caught in cross-fire between the three, and another when a grenade blew off his head.

Okamoto was found guilty on all four charges belonging to a group which opened fire and threw grenades, opening fire himself, throwing grenades him self and worked for an illegal organization, The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, an Arab guerrilla organization.

The first three carry a possible death sentence, while the fourth carries a 10-year jail term.

Adolf Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann, who was hanged 10 years ago, has been executed in Israel. Recently another military court commuted a death sentence passed on an Arab guerrilla to life imprisonment.

Fischer Has Advantage In Third Game of Match

REYKJAVIK (Reuter) — American challenger Bobby Fischer was back in the running for the world chess title today with an excellent chance to win the adjourned third game and cut Russian Boris Spassky's lead by half.

The third game, already five hours old is scheduled to resume on the 41st move at 1 p.m. EDT, and experts thought Fischer would have it wrapped up fairly soon. Spassky leads the 24-game series 2-0.

The 29-year-old challenger bounced back Sunday night with a striking display of originality and aggression, taking almost instant command in the game which was played in a sealed back room of the Reykjavik exhibition hall.

Carpenters Plan Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners planned to go on strike today, slowing construction of subway extensions and other building projects.

The 4,000-member union rejected at a Sunday meeting a settlement reached by negotiators for the union and the Toronto Construction Association. The tentative settlement had been achieved last week after the previous agreement expired April 30.

The rejected settlement included a 12-per cent wage increase during the one-year agreement and continuation of the present 40-hour week.

This is thought to be a major point in the rejection of the settlement, since the union has been asking for a 37½-hour week.

NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville proposes, at its first meeting after the expiration of 30 days, to pass a By-law to stop up and close the Road Allowance between Lots 1 and 2 in Concession 1 in the Township of Thurlow, and more particularly described as follows:

"ALL AND SINGULAR that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the City of Belleville in the County of Hastings and Province of Ontario and all of Donald Street according to a Plan registered in the Registry Office for the City of Belleville as Registered Plan Number 2347."

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the said Council proposes at the same time to pass a By-law to authorize the sale and the execution of a deed to the abutting owners, namely Lots 1 and 2 in Concession 1, to be fixed by said Council, and that the said owners shall be entitled to their rights to purchase within 30 days of the passing of the By-law, or any other person or persons may tender to purchase.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that Council will hear in person, or by Counsel, Solicitor or Agent, as well as any person who claims his or her lands will be prejudicially affected by the By-law, and who applies to be heard.

DATED at the Belleville City Hall this 26th day of June, 1972.

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — Bob Panasiuk, 30, of Windsor, Ont., moved from out of the pack in the second round of the $18,000 Waterloo open golf tournament here Sunday to win top honors and a new car. He put together a four-under-par 68 Sunday for a 138 total to edge Gary Cockerill of Davenport, Iowa, and Jim Ahern of Norfolk, Neb., who carded 139s.

BLALOCK A WINNER

MASHPEE, Mass. (AP) — Jamie Blalock and travelling partner Sandra Palmer combined for a six-under-par 66 and a 36-hole total of 130 Saturday to win the $20,000 Angela's Ladies Professional Golf Association four-ball championship at New Seabury Golf Club. Miss Blalock, a former New England champion from Portsmouth, N.H., and Miss Palmer collected a total of 14 birdies without a bogey in the two-day tournament, earning $3,200 first prize.

RON STEWART SIGNS

BARRIE (CP) — Veteran Ron Stewart said Sunday he has signed with New York Rangers for his 21st National Hockey League season as a "very substantial raise." He serves the Rangers as a checking and penalty-killing specialist on right wing.

Croatia Unbeaten In 35 Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Croatia extended its record undefeated streak in National Soccer League play to 35 games Sunday with an 11-1 victory at Kitchener over the Maple Leafs.

The streak began last season and Croatia has maintained it this year with 11 victories and six ties.

Yardmen Got By With Pair

The Belleville Yardmen midgets could manage only two runs Sunday, but that was more than enough to win as Ron McTaggart led the Belleville Minor Baseball representatives to a 2-0 win over Frankford.

McTaggart threw a two-hit- ter Belleville gunning down 12 Frankford batsmen on strikes while showing flawless control. Jim Coulter also recorded 12 hits in absorbing the loss.

Leading the Yardmen's batting attack was John Masterson with a triple and single followed by Randy Pascoe and Gary Christopher with two singles each. Frankford hits went to Conley and Bon Byer.

In a Saturday minor baseball bout it was Thurlow sykes slithming Newcastle 13-2.

Tom Masterson went the distance for the wingers, striking out 12 batters and walking five, in addition to picking up three singles at the plate. Tony Parks was top hitter with a homer and three singles while Gerry Cole, Jeff Hegzie and Rob O'Brien had two hits each for Thurlow. Don Nicholson paced the losers with a triple and double.

City Sailors Fare Well

PICTON (Special) — Bay of Quinte Yacht Club entries definitely weren't running in circles in the triangular course competition of the Eastern Yachting Circuit Annual Regatta held here this weekend.

Two Belleville boats came up winners in the triangular course competition with Dr. Ken Douglas taking the "LOR course racing event in the Serendipity. Treston's Don McDonald grabbed the "Kite" wake" to a third-place finish in that race.

The other Belleville victory went to Don Deming in the "Kyte". He was competing in the mariner class.

Kingston's Jack Orgill won the shark class in the Bianca while the long distance 36-mile CCA sail from Kingston to Picton was won by Waterloo's Wendell George in Georgy Girl.

Quack Quicker

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quack, a three-year-old who skipped the Triple Crown races in the East, equalled the American record for 1¼ miles Saturday in beating older rivals in the $175,000 Hollywood Gold Cup Race at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif.

Quack, ridden by Donald Pierce and carrying 115 pounds, ran in one minute 58 1-5 seconds, equalling the American mark set by Noor in 1959.

Quack surged ahead in the stretch and won by 3½ lengths over 13 rivals in this richest of races. Droll Role finished second and Sir Droll Role, ridden by Eddie Maple, paid $5.80 and $4.60. Mac's Weir Heim returned $5.

The time, matching the fastest ever recorded for the distance, goes into the books as a tie for the American record because the United States is the only country that clocks dirt races, track officials said.

One Hole Too Long

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Colbert said he played the best pressure golf of his life in posting his second victory in seven years on the pro tour, but the Greater Milwaukee Open nevertheless will be one he lost Sunday for the 31-year-old Kansan.

Colbert, 14-under par for the meet and nursing a two-stroke lead when he bogeyed the 16th hole, finished at 283 under heartstopping tension after hanging George Knudson and steady Bud Allin, the final twosome, each bare'y missed birdie putts that would have forced a sudden-death playoff.

Colbert's final 69 on the par-71 Tripoli Golf Club course earned him $25,000 with a 13 under total of 271. Johnson, who had shared the second- and third-round leads with Colbert, finished a stroke behind along with Allin, Grier Jones and Chuck Courtney.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 66 on the final round, bringing his total to 276 for $1,703.

Golfing Homer Needed Putter

WINNIPEG (CP) — Strong-swinging Wilf Homeniuk returned to his home course and fired a five-under-par 211 to capture the $8,500 Manitoba open golf championship Saturday.

But he needed a little bit of help from second round shots to grab the top prize of $1,500 in the 54-hole tournament, played at the Lyyard Glendale Country Club course.

The strokes behind were defending champion John Elliot of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., John Morgan of Victoria and second-round leader Al Kietzmann of Bernard Lake, South Africa.

Playing under near-ideal conditions for the first time in the three-day tournament, Homeniuk, who didn't appear talented, had some tough luck in the early going.

On the fourth hole, he drove a three wood behind a tree, managed to chip out, and on the green in three, hit a three-putter for a double-bogey that dropped him to an even par for the tournament.

Then he birdied the seventh to get back on track, parring in a 35-foot birdie putt on the ninth. He also racked up birdies on the 10th and 11th to take over the lead as Kietzmann and Morgan faltered.

Stepping into the 16th hole, Homeniuk was five under, facing a tight 178-yard par three. His tee shot bounced once to the left and then, hit a young spectator on the head and rebounded to within six feet of the pin.

He would have kicked down into a ravine if it hadn't hit that spectator, Homeniuk said later, "but the bystander was not seriously injured."

Although missing the putt, he parred out the rest of the way to wait for Morgan, Tom Mc-Cullough and Kietzmann to finish.

Morgan, who was four-under-par with only three holes to go, bogeyed the 16th and picked up two strokes on the 18th hole, as did Kietzmann.

Kietzmann took a double-bogey six on the first hole and Cars normally run on the ground, adhering to the law of gravity. But in Monaco, Italy, "Long John" flew over Roberto Filannino of Italy during the Formula Italia car race. "Long John" (his real name is unknown), from Italy also, and Filannino escaped injured in the crash.

Brooks Jumps Way To All-Ontario Meet

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Joe Brooks and Dan Gutoskie had things jumping for the Belleville Minsmen Track Club at the District F Legion Track and field meet in Peterborough Saturday.

The two Belleville athletes, largely on the strength of their jumping ability, marked up to qualify for a total of seven events at the All Ontario Meet to be held August 12 at University of Waterloo. The top three finishers in each track event and the top two from the field competitions in Saturday's meet qualified for all Ontario.

Brooks competing in the bantam age group qualified in four events. He took a first in the 4-pc game and triple jumps while added seconds in the high jump and 100 metres. Gutoskie added seconds in the midget triple jump and high jump competition. He also placed third in the triple jump last failing to qualify for a fourth all Ontario event.

Stephen Montgomery also qualified in three midget boys' events by placing second in the 100, 200 and 400 metres. Other qualifiers from Belleville included Lori Masterson with a second in the bantam girls 200 metres. Steve Lynch with thirds in the bantam 100 and 200 metres, Scott Simmons with a third in the 100 metres, and Doug Ross who finished second in the bantam boys long jump. Bob Crawford earned two thirds and three fourth place finishes qualifying in the bantam boys' role.

Read Splits Weekend

The weekend held good times and bad times for Read in South Hastings Baseball League action. The good: a 7-2 stomping of Plane's Concrete; the bad: a 2-1 loss to Shannonville.

Frank Farrell went the distance for Read's Sunday win over Plane's throwing a five hitter. He struck out six and walked two.

Steve White and Larry Coffey each had two singles in the winners nine hit output.

Bob Roble went seven innings for Plainsy giving up six hits and two runs. Garney Adams received a rude welcoming in relief being touched for three hits and five runs.

Ken Abrams hammered a homer and single and Bob Neilson a double and single for the losers.

Larry Coffey wasn't as fortunate while on the mound against Shannonville taking the five-inning loss. He gave up six hits while fanning four.

Pat O'Connor smashed a homer and Tim Eurich two singles for Read while Bob Lafie connected for a double and single in Shannonville's victory.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, July 18

Aries (March 21-April 19): Commerce proceeds steadily. Take your share of it in stride despite momentary distractions. Gather good friends for social activity.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Dealings with technical specialists bring results in ways you hadn't anticipated. It's about time for a show of your feelings.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Tact and caution are the watchwords of the day. With several concerns on your mind, a complex and lengthy schedule is likely.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Think in terms of what comes next as you invest time, energy, and money. Cater to any health problem, however slight.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Abrupt resolution of some long-standing problem is indicated, according to earnest application of your patience throughout disagreement.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Today's decisions later turn out to be impractical. Cut back where you've taken on more than you can handle.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put forth your finest skills, make a good appearance where it counts. There's just enough resistance to inspire a superlative achievement.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Common sense turns out to be your guide today. Steady, consistent effort brings unusual results, with sudden credentials gained.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Not all progress shows in physical or material forms. Seek refreshment. Well-done work finished on time brings satisfaction.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Reform, personal as well as in working conditions is promised, perhaps in unordered allowances which add up, but definitely on the way.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): For once you've expected perfection and come near finding it. Let well enough alone, realize what you have. Try for inner growth now.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Be gentle to those you love, a bit firmer toward those you don't. "Good fences make better neighbors" is a saying which serves well.

To Your Good Health

Salmonella Cause Of Much Illness

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor tells me I have a germ called salmonella and has given me antibiotics for it. But it doesn't seem to clear up. Is it dangerous and can it be cured? —Mrs. G.M.

Salmonella infection, at last getting some deserved publicity, is vastly more prevalent than people suppose, largely because it is passing off as "something I ate" or "intestinal flu" or some other such vague identity.

The germ is harbored in the intestinal tract and in the excreta, and is spread largely through food that has been contaminated, or by the fingers.

Recent warnings about turtles as pets are an example of this. Turtles often carry the germ, and youngsters who play with the critters and then forget to wash their hands can easily be infected.

Other domestic animals (cats, dogs, cows, chickens, pigs) also can carry the germ. Salmonella is indeed a very common germ.

Salmonella also can multiply very rapidly, and a small contamination can become a disease-causing one rapidly. It accounts for a great deal of the "intestinal upset" at church or community dinners, on picnics, etc.

The symptoms are in the digestive tract—diarrhea, vomiting, abdominal cramps. They appear from one to several days after exposure.

Generally speaking, salmonella infection is more a nuisance than dangerous, but it can make life thoroughly miserable for a few days.

Antibiotics usually subdue it readily, but having it once doesn't protect you from having it again. If your case hasn't responded to treatment, I would suspect some source in your environment from which it keeps recurring. Crushed eggs, for example, are a possible source; the germs multiply with great rapidity in raw egg. But cooking destroys the germs, and that's why I am suspicious of raw eggs and want mine cooked.

Some individuals become chronic carriers of salmonella which I suppose could be the case with you. A more potent antibiotic may be necessary. I presume you have told your doctor that you don't seem to be throwing off the germ as readily as expected.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I don't understand the operation to sterilize females. I know the tubes are tied, but what I don't understand is the physical problems I may have later, ovulation, early menopause, etc.—M.V.

The fallopian tubes—through which the ovum from the ovaries travels each month—are cut and the ends closed or "tied."

The operation has no physical consequences except that the ovum cannot pass through the tubes to reach the uterus, so pregnancy no longer is possible.

There is no change (other than that) in ovulation; there is no effect on when menopause will come; nothing else happens. The ovum each month, which is so much you need a microscope to see one, is readily absorbed and disappears.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does butter, left at room temperature, lose any of its properties? I have been refrigerating it, but I like soft butter.—Mrs. R.H.

No, it won't lose any of its properties in the length of time you are likely to be using given amount of butter. Left out too long, unrefrigerated, it can turn rancid, but that will be apparent from its taste and odor.

38. Vanderbilt team of four championship. Crane was South and got four spades on the bidding shown. West led a diamond to his partner's ace and Crane returned a diamond, which South ruffed.

It is not easy to see how Crane managed to make the contract, and in fact some players would say that this was one mission really impossible — even if they saw all four hands.

But Crane accomplished the feat very effectively and with flair fare when, at trick three, he made the unnatural play of the queen of spades.

This singular thrust rendered the defense helpless. It did not matter whether East or West won the queen: in either case the defender would score two trump tricks and a diamond, but no more.

Crane based his play on the reasonable assumption that East had a doubleton honor in trumps, and his queen lead was directed specifically towards that end.

In the actual case, East took the queen with the ace and returned a club. Crane went up with the ace, led another trump, and the battle was over. He later discarded two clubs on dummy's hearts and so brought home the contract.

Tomorrow: The two - way view.

Barry Crane, of Hollywood, Calif., is probably best known to the public for his role in producing and directing the popular television shows "Mission Impossible" and "Manix".

But in the bridge world Crane is a standout for an entirely different reason. Of the more than 18,000 life masters of the American Contract Bridge League he ranks number one, with some 14,000 master points, a position he is likely to maintain for years to come. His nearest rival has only 10,000 master points.

Heat and Beer Brew Boston Riot

BOSTON (AP) — Police blamed "the heat and too much beer drinking" for a rock-throwing rampage involving an estimated 2,000 which broke out following a Spanish-speaking festival here.

Nineteen persons were reported injured and at least 35 persons were arrested in the Sunday night disturbance, police said. Of the injured, six were policemen, including one who suffered a broken arm when struck by a tire iron.

Dairy Firm Complains

TORONTO (CP) — Dominion Dairies Ltd. accused the Ontario government Sunday of harassment through the media in a dispute over a single-use milk jug.

Frank Warnock, vice-president of sales and marketing for the firm, said in a news release the company received verbal government permission to use the container.

He said the company has never been approached by the environment ministry to discuss the new container or the proposed regulations to ban it announced July 5 by James Auld, environment minister.

Mr. Warnock said: "Only after receiving clear permission from both levels of government did the dairy invest $300,000 in machinery and building modifications to produce the new package in Toronto."

He said verbal permission to use the container was received by a company lawyer from A. G. R. Lawrence, provincial secretary for resource development. He said the government has not disputed that permission was given.

A senior environment ministry official said Friday: "If it (Dominion Dairies' new container) is used only once, it will not be acceptable."

This was in response to a company announcement the day before that it had added a five-cent deposit to its milk jug until then non-returnable, to make them comply with the proposed regulations.

Mr. Warnock said Sunday that at least two other dairies had been marketing a similar returnable container for several years in Ontario."

South Front Street Apartments Planned

Project Needs Zoning Change

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Revitalization of Belleville's long-neglected waterfront area has been given a million-dollar sprinkling of imaginative reality.

Intangible touch to possible redevelopment was imparted by last night's proposal to city council for an apartment complex centred on the city harbor's east side, on South Front Street.

A glamorous replacement for what for years was a coal wharf, the project calls for:

— Some 60 apartments in three low rise complexes;

— Parking space for 120 cars;

— Possibly some offices and boutique stores;

— Recreation facilities, including a swimming pool;

— Landscaping of half the ground site.

Rezoning is needed to realize the project, but a spokesman for the development group, hopeful of seeing the development carried to elegant completion, believes a start may be possible in the fall.

Jack Sills, owner of a major building supply firm, estimates the project could cost up to $1,750,000 to complete — on a South Front Street site owned by fuel suppliers Moirs Schuster Ltd.

Mr. Sills says he is one of four city businessmen who are partners in a company now being organized for the development.

The others are travel agent Fred Rawson, Jack Preston and Ken Munson, part owners of Belleville Livestock Sales, says Mr. Sills.

Mr. Sills said he and his partners are "excited" at the prospects of realizing such a development in the waterfront area — the first definite proposal for an area for which revitalization has often been suggested but never produced.

"I know it will take a while to be rezoned but we think it'll be rezoned favorably," said Mr. Sills. "And I can say we would like to get underway as soon as we can and make a real complex there — with 60 to 70 facilities that go with apartment living."

Police Catch Two Convicts

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two more escaped prisoners from Millhaven penitentiary were recaptured early today, bringing to 10 the number back in custody out of the 14 who staged a mass breakout July 10 from the maximum security penitentiary 17 miles west of here.

Seized at Napanee 24 miles northwest of here was Donald Oag, 22-year-old convicted slayer from London, Ont.

Captured at Niagara-on-the-Lake, about 300 miles by mud from Millhaven, was Rudolph Nuss, 25, seized at his parents' home as he was believed getting ready to cross to the United States.

Oag, traced by a police tracking dog after Napanee residents told police of a blonde man in the vicinity, had been serving 11 years for manslaughter, assault causing bodily harm, escape, two chances of robbery and possession of burglary tools.

He was the only one of the 14 to have been sentenced in the April, 1971, riot at Kingston penitentiary which wrecked that institution and left two convicts dead. He pleaded guilty to manslaughter in one of the deaths.

Nuss, of St. Catharines, Ont., was serving 20 years on five charges of armed robbery.

Police and army troops here believed they might have trapped another fugitive near the small community of Conway, 29 miles west of here. Thirty-five soldiers and nine provincial police officers were concentrated in the area just north of Lake Ontario. Two police tracking dogs were on the scene.

Lt.-Col. Bev Toman, commander of the 400 Canadian Forces soldiers brought into the area in the intensive search, said Oag's identity was confirmed by Millhaven officials.

He said OPP Constable Ray Carson of the North Bay detachment, the dog handler, and Constable P. J. McCaffrey of the OPP Napanee unit made the arrest after the dog Club tracked Oag about three-quarters of a mile northeast of the outskirts of Napanee.

He was picked up between the CNR tracks and a small swamp just north of Highway 401. Police went into the area after a phone call from a Mrs. Lesher of Napanee to say she had seen a blonde man near her home after her dog started to bark. It was one of hundreds of tips police have received.

Napanee Constable Peter Craig spoke to her, then went to the OPP Napanee detachment for help. About that time, soon after 4 a.m., George Brandon of Napanee called in to say he had seen a similar man.

At Niagara-on-the-Lake, also after 4 a.m., a confined force of OPP and Niagara regional police converged on the house to push Nuss, who gave up without a struggle.

He was taken to the cells at regional police headquarters in St. Catharines to await transfer back to Millhaven.

The arrest was actually made by Staff Sgt. Ken Williams of Niagara police and Constable Henry Probst who entered the house.

Lower Away

Steel pipe 21-feet in diameter is about to be lowered into the water-input channel at Ontario Hydro's new Lennox generating station near Bath. Hoisted from an off-shore crane, the pipe is the first link of a 750-foot-long tunnel out into the lake. The 2,295,000 kilowatt station is scheduled to begin operation early in 1975. For story see page 2.

Too Much Realism

MONTREAL (CP) — The "DC-10," with a New Zealand and a Canadian cabinet minister at the controls, careered down the runway, jumped into the air and immediately went into a stomach-twisting turn at a 45-degree angle.

Fighting the buckling and heaving, the two honorable gentlemen prepared for their descent to the "runway."

On their approach over a golf course, the plane sheared off a wing and destroyed the 18th hole.

Co-pilot Jean Luc Pepin, Canadian minister of industry, trade and commerce, apparently was less than confident in the skills of his pilot, New Zealand Transport Minister Peter Gordon. Mr. Pepin called for an ambulance.

But Mr. Gordon brought the "plane" in with one heavy bounce.

The two stumbled out, praising the DC-10 flight simulators which are being sold to Air New Zealand, but wondering if the visual attachment built into them was not a little too effective for comfort.

IRA Heeds Catholics' Truce Plea

BELFAST (CP) — The prospect of a ceasefire in Northern Ireland dangled tantalizingly today after the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army agreed to appeals from Roman Catholics to stop shooting in Belfast's suburban battlefield of Lenadoon.

The Associated Press said top move came amid reports that the Provisionals were holding secret talks with Britain for another ceasefire in the boosted province.

But there was no confirmation from British Administrator William Whitelaw's office that talks with the IRA had been reopened.

The Provisionals agreed late Monday to call off their gunmen in the half-deserted southwest Belfast suburb after the British army said it would withdraw most of its 700-man force there if the gunmen quit first.

Abductor Asks Half Million, Beer and Pizza

RICHMOND, Va. (Reuter) — A man demanded $500,000 ransom, a free car, a case of beer and some pizza held at least five persons hostage in a bank near here Monday before surrendering to police.

Police said the man, whom they identified as Warner Wallace Jr., 22, of Richmond, gave himself up almost three hours after he entered the main office of the Bank of Chesterfield, just south of Richmond. He carried a shotgun and allegedly fired shots inside the bank, but no one was reported injured.

Police delivered the beer and pizza to the bank. Witnesses said that the gunman surrendered.

Council Rejects Move To Probe Mayor's Acts

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council Monday turned down a bid by Alderman Donald M. Sc[illegible] to have Mayor J. Russell Scott's conduct investigated for alleged conflict of interest.

Council by a decisive 7-2 vote defeated Alderman Scott's motion requesting a judicial enquiry to investigate the conduct of Mayor Scott from December 1965 to the present in connection with his position on council and his relationship with Sanctuary Developments Ltd., owners of 37 acres of undeveloped property in the city's north end.

Alderman Soutter charged that Mayor Scott as part owner of Sanctuary Developments Ltd. had delayed granting of an easement for the Valleyview Crescent sanitary sewer until construction of a storm sewer draining his property was assured by the city.

The notice of motion, presented in council nearly a month ago, was seconded Monday by Alderman Robin Jeffrey.

Alderman Jeffrey's vote was the only support Alderman Soutter received for his motion, with all other council members present registering opposition. Aldermen Enos David and Jean Smith did not attend the council meeting.

Speaking in support of his motion, Alderman Soutter said it was self-evident that some members of council — himself possibly more than others — had become disenchanted with the position of Mayor Scott on Council.

When the actions of Mayor Scott indicated that he would again seek office, Alderman Soutter said his personal conviction was that the mayor's position must be clarified in the best interests of all residents of the community.

He didn't go along with the argument presented that the issue should not have been broached but rather the electors could make this decision in December.

"I suggest this would be avoiding the issue," Alderman Soutter said. "The elected members of this council are the individuals closest to the scene and are those who possess the information or have the ready access to it."

'New Horizons' Is Cure For Isolation of Aged

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare Minister John Munro has unveiled the government's New Horizons program for retired people, an attempt to cure their loneliness and isolation but not to increase their incomes.

The program, introduced Monday, "is designed to substantially improve the quality of life for the retired our country," Mr. Munro said in a prepared statement.

"It is through participation in self-help and other community activities, the barriers which cause social isolation and feelings of loneliness among these Canadians over 65 will begin to be removed."

The program, mentioned in Finance Minister John Turner's May-8 budget, has since been developed after discussions with the provinces.

Mr. Munro said the program will provide money—normally between $5,000 and $15,000—to groups of 10 or more people who design their own programs.

"To cite illustrations, physical fitness and travel aid projects may be created for the specific benefit of the retired themselves, while programs such as a foster grandparents plan and a counselling service for first offenders might be implemented for the benefit of other groups."

Mr. Munro said he expects the program's budget for the current fiscal year, which ends next March 31, will be about $10 million, including up to $360,000 for administration costs.

He guessed that 60,000 to 120,000 people would participate during the year.

Eight regional offices would be established across the country to help administer the scheme.

The New Horizons program is not an employment program or an income maintenance program, the minister told a news conference. In fact, participants in projects could not receive wages from federal funds, although temporary staff could be paid.

Hydro Opens Display

Looking like a transplant from the Ontario Science Centre, the information building of Ontario Hydro's Lennox generating station has something for everyone.

Personal involvement dominates the colorful corridors of the pre-fab structure, stuck in the middle of a site that will supply enough power to feed the cities of Belleville, Kingston, Ottawa and Hamilton twice-over for the next 30 years.

Hydro realized some time ago that people are naturally curious about things like 21-foot diameter tunnels and 600-foot high stacks. Other large power sites have attracted hordes of visitors suddenly grown interested in electricity and its wonders.

That's why the utility decided to make an information centre one of its first projects at Lennox.

They used the latest in skylling techniques to produce educational entertainment right in keeping with a 20th century power source.

Illuminated boards describe how electricity is made and how it changes form for the oil-fired boilers demonstrate Hydro's concern for pollution-free operation.

Eventually, says communicity relations officer Dennis Wilkinson, the centre hopes to obtain a pedal machine on which youngsters will be able to test their own electrical generating capacity.

Until the station goes into service sometime around April of 1975, tours around the site and films in the viewing room will be revised regularly to keep up with progress in construction.

Buildings housing the four turbo generators and miles of accompanying tubing should be completed earlier, enabling Hydro to offer first-hand looks at its futuristic machinery.

At this point, only channels have been dug to carry water from the Bay. But Monday, the first of several 21-foot diameter pipes was lowered on to the culvert that will one day transport 573,000 gallons of water a minute to the steam generators.

Only one of the two stacks designed to disperse effluents high into the atmosphere has been started. It is rising at a rate of more than seven feet a day and will eventually be lined with steel.

The remainder of the site is a jumble of rock, gravel, tubes and beams. All casings for the transmission of water, steam and oil are given the final touch in one relocatable workshop while in another area, rock dug from channels is recycled into paving gravel.

Lennox is Hydro's first oil-fired station and the largest plant of its kind in Canada.

Later in the decade, a switch will be thrown linking it to a grid of power stations around the province, each capable of helping the others up should the need arise.

The 1,500-acre site is located directly south of Napanee.

Generator May Improve Fishing

Public utilities officials in eastern Ontario won't be the only ones rejoicing when Hydro opens its new Lennox generating station three years from now.

Fishermen can also share the joy. If past experience points the way, fishing offshore from the power plant should be superb.

Community relations officer Dennis Wilkinson says temperatures of water being poured back into the lake will differ from intake temperatures by anywhere from two to 17 degrees, depending on the time of year.

The warmer water attracts certain fish, notably bass, perch and sunfish, and makes for excellent sport, particularly in the fall and winter when the temperature difference is greatest.

Hydro may even build a fishermen's wharf as it did at Lakeview generating station in the west end of Toronto. There, so many anglers were lured to the teeming waters offshore that a special dock became a necessity.

Dr. Donald Hurley, a research scientist at Glenora Fisheries Research Station south of Picton, warns there is a danger of food shortage for fish attracted by the heated bay.

"If, in the fall or winter, there isn't much to eat," he said, "they could get into a problem there."

On the other hand, the moderate temperatures could also encourage further plant growth, he advised.

Water used to drive the generators is superheated into 1,000-degree steam, then condensed for re-entry into the lake.

Blowout Causes Crash

An American visitor's car was damaged to the extent of $300 in an early morning accident on Highway 37 on the curve just south of Thomasburg.

Miss Judith Ellen Hoch of Decatur, Georgia had a blowout about 6:30 a.m. Another car, driven by Gary L. Palmateer of RR 1 Gilmour, went into the ditch to avoid the Hoch vehicle, but sustained no damage. No one was injured in the accident.

Museum Opening Delayed

Glanmore House, the new Bridge Street headquarters of the Hastings County Museum, will not be ready to open until about October 15.

This was indicated Monday to city council by Alderman Robin Jeffrey following an inquiry by Alderman Gerald Joyce.

Alderman Jeffrey said that the contractor, William Belch was still on the job completing interior work although it was originally expected the work would be completed by the middle of June.

Now it was expected the work would be completed about the end of August, following which articles from the present Church Street headquarters would be moved and set up at the new location.

Council Opposed to Inquiry

Answering the questions as to why there had been a delay in bringing in his motion since he first raised the question on April 24, the Alderman said his intention had been to await council's third reading of the bylaw to provide sanitary sewer service to the Valleyview Crescent area.

"These residents had waited five years for the owners of the property — Sanctuary Developments — to allow an easement. Rather than run the risk of this agreement being withdrawn at the last minute, I considered that the two-month delay was justified."

Alderman Soutter also explained why he had taken the course of asking for the enquiry under Section 240 of the Municipal Act rather than under Sections 199 or 200.

Under the two latter sections Alderman Soutter said he would likely have been disqualified. In both these sections a six week time period is stated.

The alderman said that when he was elected to council he was not aware of the five-year agreement between the city and Sanctuary Developments signed by the now mayor as an officer of the company to construct a northside storm sewer system (about at $750,000) which is to cross the Sanctuary Development property.

Neither did he realize the significance of the matter when it was placed in the capital works budget in February 1971 and was then given two readings of council in December last year.

He said he had missed the significance of council's action until it was too late for him to bring action under either sections 96 or 199.

"The situation then is quite simple," Alderman Soutter said. "If this council is so desirous of clearing the air on the matter it can fulfill an obligation to the residents by agreeing to call an enquiry.

"If council is so disposed to avoid this decision it can veto the request. The only recourse then, to my knowledge, would be for an individual citizen — other than a member of council — to initiate his or her own action under Section 36 or Section 199."

Alderman Soutter also exmatter of public record that Sanctuary Developments had an agreement — a contract — with this municipality. This requires the city taxpayers to underwrite the cost of a storm sewer which will drain 37 acres of land owned by Sanctuary.

He said the land is now assessed at $4,800 but once the sewer is built the 37 acres becomes one of the most desirable and valuable blocks of land within the city limits.

The alderman said a judge ruling on a conflict of interest case in Thunder Bay in 1967 that a declaration of "noting one's interest" and refraining from voting is not sufficient if a contract exists between the individual and the corporation. As result of this ruling the judge disqualified four under Bay aldermen.

Earlier this year Ald. Soutter noted that city council members had been advised not to vote on a sidewalk matter if they lived on the street because it would be a conflict of interest.

"If that routine matter constitutes a reason for "noting one's interest," surely council members should be prepared to agree that it would be worthwhile to having a judge determine if a contract involving a considerable sum of money constitutes a conflict," Ald. Soutter supposed he had been absolutely fair in his approach to the matter.

He had offered the mayor on April 24 a chance to make some comment in order to ease the concern but he had declined to do so at any fashion other than to remain silent.

Also, he had asked the question three weeks ago if the mayor's election to office on the provincial municipal association could be interpreted in any other fashion than him running for office again this December. Again the mayor had refused the opportunity to clarify his position.

By virtue of his notice of motion he had given all council members the opportunity of consulting city folks, to discuss the matter with city officials, with each other and even with the mayor himself.

"I think that was a fair approach," he said.

In seconder of Alderman Soutter's motion, Alderman Dalton Jeffrey said that both Mayor Scott and Ald. Soutter were entitled to a fair an impartial inquiry.

Without an inquiry, an inherent man could be hurt or a man guilty of misconduct could be allowed to continue in office," she said.

Ald. Jeffrey also claimed that an inquiry would be in the best interests of the citizens of Valleyview Crescent — the residents of the affected area in the accusation.

Also, she asserted, the citizens of Belleville want the truth.

"They want the answers to the charges and we should have not the answers — if given."

As other council members were involved in all the votes on this issue, council as a board that a localage," said Mrs. Sills. "We are excited about this vote on the coal dock. It takes a little imagination, but it has a local potential."

The imaginations of the developers sullied for a low tone, as opposed to a high - rise apartment project. The three building units will have a maximum height of 69 feet, or six storeys. There will be interior parking for 45 cars, exterior parking for 75 vehicles.

If there is, in office development it will be minor, and will be constructed in such a way as to preserve the existing character.

The entire project will be set in an area flanked by the waterfront, its entrance enhanced by landscaping of 82,000 square feet, exactly 20.4 percent of the total land area.

Front St. Apartments Planned

Proposals for rezoning the site was introduced by Alderman Arthur Keegan, who said the undertaking would revamp the waterfront.

Ald. Gerald Joyce agreed the proposal would start us redevelopment in the area.

The formal motion for rezoning was referred to the Belleville Industrial Commission and various city boards committees and planning board, before it will be returned to city council for final consideration.

If we can retain rezoned, we anticipate would hope to get underway late this fall," said Mr. Sills. "We are still keen and anxious to get going on it."

The actual sale is just under four acres and is on Belleville's inner harbour where the fuel company's coal piles and storage warehouse were located.

The warehouse and part of the coal shed were dismantled last autumn.

The concept of building a higher class of apartment for quite some time, but we never settled down to getting excited about a location," said Mrs. Sills. "We are excited about this site on the coal dock. It takes a little imagination, but it has a local potential."

The imaginations of the developers sullied for a low tone, as opposed to a high - rise apartment project. The three building units will have a maximum height of 69 feet, or six storeys. There will be interior parking for 45 cars, exterior parking for 75 vehicles.

The entire project will be set in an area flanked by the waterfront, its entrance enhanced by landscaping of 82,000 square feet, exactly 20.4 percent of the total land area.

But he said he had brought the matter of the mayor's involvement in Sanctuary Developments before council early in the year with all owners in the area invited.

He said it was hard to condemn a person for something which occurred five years ago.

Council, he said, had had a good run at the matter earlier in the year and no great purpose would be served by an inquiry.

Alderman Ben Corke also asked what purpose would be accomplished by an inquiry.

"We would be told that some members of council were not altogether saints."

He said that Belleville has a city manager form of government and council should accept the city manager's view that there had been no unreasonable influence on council.

"There may have been but it certainly was not brought to our attention," he said.

Alderman Gerald Joyce didn't think that sufficient information had been presented to council to warrant it resorting a judicial inquiry which might cost anywhere up to $10 000 or more.

He suggested there was nothing to prevent a private individual bringing action if there was additional information.

The alderman questioned regulations concerning conflict of interest which he said made it difficult for any person to sit on council if he owned any amount of property.

He felt the regulations discouraged many potential councillors who have an active interest in the community.

In reference to Ald. Soutter's motion, Ald. Joyce felt the mayor's interest was minute.

"Many times I have heard the mayor excuse himself because of ownership," he said.

Alderman E. A. Orr said on the basis of evidence presented he was not prepared to vote to spend city money on an inquiry.

This however, did not rule out any citizens taking private action.

Also citizens could take further action at election time.

The claim of insufficient information to warrant a vote for the motion was echoed by Alderman Arthur Keegan.

"I have every confidence in you," the alderman told the mayor.

Mayor Scott didn't enter into the discussion and after all other council members were heard the recorded vote was called.

Negative votes were cast by Mayor Scott and Alderman Corke. Ireland, Joyce, Keegan, Orr and Russell with Alderman Jeffrey and Soutter giving the only support to the motion.

Medical Centre Plans Progress

A KADOC clinic to help centre the directors of Centre Hastings Medical Centre decided Monday night in a determined effort to raise funds so that construction on the building can begin this summer.

Last week, an donated in excess of $600 was raised through door to door canvassing in the Kadoc area. On Friday of the next week, an additional $1,000 had been sent in. At the September 5 meeting last week, additional donations, amounting to $1,000 were reported, bringing the total to over $3,000.

Other business at last week's meeting included reports from the health committee and the building committee. The legal committee has been in touch with the head planners in another municipality where a medical centre has been constructed. This contact should get the legal matters to progress more quickly than might otherwise be possible.

The building committee reported that they held a committee meeting, where the architectural drawings in plans were made. The changes include a fire wall at the front of the building, a lobby washroom, a side entrance to the building and a change from the main floor to the basement. It is expected that detailed plans will be drawn up for the next meeting which will be held on July 24 at 8 p.m. All interested citizens are welcome.

Other business included discussion of a letter which could be given to all interested parties explaining the need for the centre and the developments to date.

160 Senior Citizen Units Indicated for West Hill

The Ontario Housing Corporation is likely to construct not one but two 80-unit senior citizens' units in the city's West Hill district.

This is indicated in a letter to city manager J. R. Reynolds which indicates the OHC has options to purchase both the 2.05-acre Albert College Manor playground property on Wellington Crescent, and a 2.04-acre site on West Bridge Street adjacent to the existing senior citizens' building opposite the Belleville fairgrounds.

The OHC was also considering a 4.65-acre site on Bridge Street East, immediately north of the Unemployment Insurance Commission building.

However, the feeling of the housing corporation's chief architect is that a scheme for two 80 unit structures should be carried out on entirely separate sites of equal size.

Accordingly, the OHC board of directors approved the purchase of the two, 2-acre parcels subject to negotiating satisfactory prices. This has now been accomplished and options to purchase are held on both West Belleville sites.

It is the intention of OHC to appoint an architect to design a building containing 80 units on one site and to advertise a proposal call for 80 units on another site.

This, the letter said, is the result of the corporation's decision to carry out an experiment to test the relative merits of the proposal call technique versus the more normal tender call method in a few selected municipalities.

Belleville is one of the municipalities chosen for such an experiment, the letter said.

Earlier this year city council requested OHC to give preference to sites in the downtown area for the 160 senior citizens' units to be built in Belleville.

Nine sites in the downtown area were investigated by OHC but it was found that all were too expensive, in some cases too small, and in others not acceptable.

McFarland Gets Dundas St. Job

The tender of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton has been approved by city council for the reconstruction of Dundas Street West from Holden Street to the west city limits.

The amount of the McFarland tender, the lowest of three received, is for $693,443.40.

The reconstruction of Dundas Street West to four lanes to the city limits will match up with the rebuilt Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton which is currently being widened to four lanes.

Although to be widened to four lanes from the present two, the new roadway calls for only a minimum of property acquisition.

The only property required to be purchased by the city was a small parcel at the northeast corner of Dundas and Sidney Streets which has been purchased from Albert College at a cost of $7,972.

The reconstruction of Dundas St. West will mean that traffic will be slowed on still another main artery into the city.

Other routes on which traffic is disrupted either for repairs, reconstruction or sewer installation are Cannifton Road, the Bay Bridge Road, Dundas St., East and North Front Street which soon will be temporarily reduced to two lanes to allow storm sewer construction.

The West Dundas Street project is scheduled to get under way within the next two weeks and base coat Pavement is expected to be completed late this fall.

DOES AN OWNER NEED A REALTOR TO BARGAIN FOR HIM?

ED McKINNEY
J. E. McKINNEY
Realty Ltd.

He wouldn't, if it weren't for a few "ifs".

If humans did not have feelings; and if they did not have preconceived ideas about the worth of property; and if they had a knowledge of the legal pitfalls to avoid; and if a dozen other problems did not exist — then everything would be smooth sailing.

A Realtor is a neutral expert linking seller and buyer, and owes an obligation of integrity to both. This position enables him to act as a go-between and advisor to both parties. He becomes a buffer against hurt feelings and misunderstandings.

When a prospective buyer makes an offer — the seller dealing directly with the buyer can find it difficult to negotiate such things as price, terms and possession.

When to concede a point and when to remain firm are decisions that simply need an expert. This kind of expertise comes only from experience, knowledge of the market, study of real estate law and considerable skill-in all-important human relations.

North Country

A Bancroft citizen who read our piece on "darkest Hastings" — things the travel posters leave out and all that — phoned the other day to say in effect he was not amused.

Well of course we did not intend to imply Bancroft is peopled only by long-hairs and agree there are just as many, probably more, in Belleville. In any event, for better or worse, they seem to be pretty well a fixture these days. And yes, there are "peace" signs in Belleville too, or one at least on the wall of a Coleman Street plant, as well as around the world from Haliburton to Stonehenge.

We never said a word about pollution, lamenting only that mosquitos drove us from the picnic area at Jordan Lake and that while there was some litter on the shores of the lake on the fringe of Haliburton it was a tidy enough spot compared with some.

As for the sewage treatment development just this side of Madoc, we simply mentioned it in passing. Our caller evidently felt that here we had missed another scenic curve at the north country. Not a bit — as we suggested to him, it represents progress.

There are indeed some aspects of our environment that do not find a spot in the travel publicity. However, as the heading of the editorial stated, we still have no hesitation in saying Go North Man!

Promises... Promises

Remember Lester Pearson's "100 days of decision" and how the former Liberal Prime Minister came to rue the day he ever made such a promise. It haunted him the way it has haunted Prime Minister Trudeau and his "Just Society."

Senator McGovern of the United States may find to his cost that he is clutching at similar straws. If he wants proof he could ask Mr. Pearson, or Mr. Trudeau, for if anyone is aware of the pitfalls of making political promises, each of these worthies is.

The South Dakota senator, should he make it to The White House in November, might find it easy enough to have the remaining U.S. troops out of Vietnam in three months or so, but there is absolutely no guarantee the North Vietnamese would respond by releasing U.S. prisoners.

Is there any chance then of Senator McGovern (whose mother was from Iroquois, Ont.) looking to Canadian politicians' experience in the matter of election promises? Well we are not so naive as to think that, for as everyone knows the Americans in general are not too well informed about Canadian affairs. Consider an illustration from the Canadian Open golf tournament which was attended by many from across the border. "Who is this Peter Jackson," a U.S. couple asked some newsmen concerning the sponsor. "He's the Prime Minister of Canada," one writer answered. "Oh," they said, "is that so?" And where were they from? "Buffalo," they replied.

Promises . . . promises. Poor Senator McGovern — he will find out soon enough that anyone can make a promise, but unfortunately it is not so easy to fulfill.

Still Going Strong

Eyer hear of The Quinte Belle? It sounds like one of the old paddle-wheelers of old that plied these waters, but in point of fact it is an old tub currently plying between the Bay Bridge, whose antiquity it seems to match, and East Zwick's Island, pushing a barge loaded with broken concrete from the bridge operations. Come to think of it, maybe it is the aging hulk we have seen, tied up beside the Bay of Quinte Fisheries in times past and which we had thought no longer in use. In any event, on some of these unseasonably grey mornings we have been experiencing lately the sight of The Quinte Belle is like something from an old print, or from The Sea of Galilee long ago.

Exiles from Baltic Lands Keep Alive Torch of Freedom

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Three times since the Second World War broke out in September, 1939, the tiny, former Baltic states have been invaded and ruthlessly ransacked by Communism and Fascism.

In the fall of 1939, the U.S.S.R. invaded the small and defenceless republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and annexed them to the Soviet empire of captive races.

The German invasion of Russia in June, 1941 blanketed much of European Russia and included the conquest of the three Baltic states. Finland the fourth of these, suffered a different fate. In the winter of 1939-1940, the Finns, you may recall, actually held off the Soviet attack — revealing the great weaknesses in Russia's huge armies.

Partly out of self-protection, partly because they had no choice caught between the German and Russian steamrollers, Finland sided with Nazi Germany during the war and her borders became part of the ghastly Russian Front.

With Germany defeated and in ruins in early 1945, the Finns paid a second tribute to Moscow in the form of the 1947 peace treaty. It took away more of the Finnish territory which the Russians had started to annex after the 1940 Russo-Finnish War, tied the Finnish economy to the Soviet Union's desperate, postwar economic needs.

Hapless Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania fared much worse. Nazi German occupation between 1941 and 1944 was bad enough, but nothing like the horrors which came to stay when the Russians re-invaded in 1944.

Today, the three so-called Soviet Socialist Republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania are restive parts of Moscow's empire.

But free Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians around the world keep their lamps of freedom burning wherever they have settled, constantly remembering their enslaved brethren and the sacrifices and days of terror of the past.

Last week in Toronto, Estonians gathered in the Estonian World Festival, a 10-day song celebration and remembrance of Estonian culture and history in the world.

Estonians bearing the new nationalities of over 50 countries (but chiefly Swedish, Canadian and American) engaged in the historic activities of a country which, so briefly between 1919 and 1939 flourished as one of Eastern Europe's very few democracies.

These events included the famous Estonian gymnastics — Estonian young women trained for these activities, have to be even more beautiful than Swedish girls — readings of classic and contemporary Estonian literature, especially poetry, choirs and church services singing the old songs of homeland, the new songs of today.

Wherever free countries flourish, there are still Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian embassies, in Washington, London, Ottawa, Paris and Bonn. Such determination to keep the remembrance of their country alive is not chauvinism.

It is proof of the fact that those who are free to do so will never submit to the tyrannies against person, race and nation perpetuated by the U.S.S.R. since 1944.

Today in the Estonian S.S.R. Estonian books published abroad are smuggled from place to place like the forbidden works of the great Russian writers Solzhenitsyn and Sinyavsky banned in the Soviet Union.

We who take freedom, peace and security so lightly should refresh ourselves about the downfall of the Baltic states. Tyranny is always close at hand, waiting for the chance to break our door down.

The Estonian World Festival reminds free men the terrible price some must pay to stay free, to keep a way of life from destruction by tyrants.

Big Store Development Boost to Peterborough

Peterborough Examiner

Downtown redevelopment is coming to Peterborough. . and in a big way.

After decades of indecision and speculation, wishing and hoping, planning and pussy footing the 1972 version of city council has finally decided to take the plunge.

And if the multi-million dollar plan to redevelop three blocks of downtown is pulled off — and we have no reason to believe that it won't be — then Peterborough will be able to compete for the regional retail dollar once again. Simply, many area residents who now choose to go to the fine complexes in Belleville, Kingston and especially Oshawa will be buying in this city.

T. Eaton Company, impressed with city administrator Alex Crate's 'tantalizing concept' put Peterborough ahead of many other municipalities across Canada in deciding to build here. In fact, Peterborough was not in Eaton's eight year plan a few weeks ago.

To be able to go ahead with such a gigantic redevelopment as the city planned, a major department store had to be secured. In Mr. Crate the city had a man with a terrific business background and a man eminently capable of selling a few strings.

With the help of a few personal contacts in Toronto Mr. Crate made downtown redevelopment his pet project and it was almost a one - man show, except in the latter stages Mayor Douglas Calvin was necessarily called in.

But apart from bringing back the shoppers to downtown, the new shopping mall, which will be called Peterborough Square, will mean so much more.

Peterborough will have a new focal point. It will not only be a shopping complex, but it will become a meeting place. There will be an office block, a new bus station, a motor hotel, perhaps a public library, townhouses and more.

Its dollars and cents it will mean an increase in taxation of something like a half a million dollars a year. And the beauty of it is it will only cost the city a little more than half a million dollars in hard cash.

Reason for this is the city will own all the land by the time the development is likely to start — about a year from now — and the city will lease the land to a private developer who will be responsible for all the financing.

Inventory investment by merchants will likely top $10 million and retailer investment in fixtures could go over $2 million. And these figures do not include the proposed motor hotel which will likely cost about $2½ million.

Some 500 new jobs will also be created when the complex is in full use, not to mention the terrific impact it will add to future economic developments.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Canadian National Railways yesterday estimated at $1,000,000, the loss caused through destruction by fire of the main building of the company's Jasper Park lodge. The building was insured.

Six chartered buses and members' cars will form a convoy to transport those attending the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans Branch 201 to the annual picnic at Cedardale Beach near Brighton.

A Canadian Sunday School Mission Camp began last Monday at Redmersville Gospel Church under the direction of the Rev. Fred F. Kreick, Ontario superintendent, and the Rev. H. Alkenbrack, Dominion superintendent, with Muriel Craig, as assistant director.

30 YEARS AGO

July 18, 1942

Culmination of 64 years of courteous efficient service to Belleville came today when the doors of the shop of Harry G. Wills, well-known Front St. provision merchant closed permanently. The business was established in 1878 by the late Charles Green, father of the present proprietor, in a shop on Bridge St. The business gradually expanded, requiring newer and larger quarters; the firm eventually transferred to the present location at 191 Front St., where it has flourished for the past 44 years. A fine testimonial to the manner in which employer and employees co-operated, is seen in the fact that four of the employees aggregate 63 years of service with Mr. Green. Heading this list record is that of Morley Tugnette with 23 years service; Vernon McKnight 20 years; Henry Donnelly, 12 years and George Frechette, 8 years.

Government and Liability Insurance

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

Once again there is pressure on the government to start some control over liability insurance rates.

This is a question that arises every few years. Usually it has come up when there have been substantial increases in automobile insurance rates.

There is a change this time, in that it was an increase in fire and household policies which got the members concerned. And soon after the increases were announced, the pressures began.

Opposition members began asking Consumer and Commercial Relations Minister Eric Winkler whether he was going to do anything and what he might be able to do about them.

The fact was that Mr. Winkler had been able to do very little.

He admitted that he had been concerned when he first knew of the increases. And he had, through his superintendent of insurance, let the companies involved know about this concern.

But beyond this he had no power to do anything.

Insurance companies do have to register with his ministry. But there is little control over them, and certainly not their rates. In the case of household policies, they don't even have to file their rate schedules (auto companies do have to file).

To date, there have been demands on the government, varying from occasional insurance companies be forced to justify increases before a committee of the legislature to the submission (by the NDP) that the government should take over control of rates.

What gives these demands some force is the large portion of the premium dollar that goes to administrative costs.

The key argument in all demands for public insurance, or firmly controlled private insurance, has been that too much money goes out in overhead and too little in payments to policyholders.

In the current case it is claimed that 45 per cent of the money taken in goes for operation.

It is contended that in public insurance programs the operating costs are drastically lower.

The current incident possibly could have some form of control over insurance rates and operations a step closer. The trend of the day is for more of such control.

Even the Conservative government in Alberta, which certainly could be expected to be moderate, has called companies before a committee, as was suggested here.

It at least wouldn't be surprising to see something along the same lines eventually done here.

Focus On Sandbanks Decision

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Natural Resources Minister, Leo Bernier followed the usual Tory policy of capitulation to industry with his press conference announcing the decision to allow Lake Ontario Cement Company to continue mining operations at the Sandbanks.

We must allow that Mr. Bernier is no joker—he said if ever he had to make a decision he would come down in favour of the cement company and he kept his word.

The architect of the investigation that precipitated the decision was Dr. Towell on whose report Mr. Bernier based his decision to allow quarrying to go on for another three years. Dr. Towell, who apparently was assisted by two lawyers (whether they had bucket and shovels has not been made clear), made some astonishing statements. For instance, he claims Dr. Dudnes which took some 100 to 125 years to form will be back in their natural formation and height within 20 or so years. By what magical process this is to be achieved he did not say. Another remarkable point was his suggestion that possibly the cement company could carry on by digging downward, thus returning the area to its former natural state. This chap is full of ideas, but somebody should have told him that Ontario already has over 200,000 lakes of its own and there hardly seems reason for extending Lake Ontario.

At any rate, according to Mr. Bernier, the 250 employees of the cement company do not have any part in this decision. He claims his action has "protected their jobs. I think they ought to get it in writing or it might well go the way of so many other Tory promises.

On the subject of jobs. Never, at any time has the cement company suggested that it was intending to lay off personnel — only Mr. Towell, a government official, who acted so capably as the company front in the company has not suggested that it will not or may not lay people off, so perhaps Mr. Bernier had better get in touch with the management and advise them that he has "protected" the employees jobs.

I sympathize with Mr. James Taylor, MPP, who had the courage and foresight to recognize an environmental problem and tried to do something about it. Apparently his words carried little or no weight with the minister.

Mr. Bernier would have done well to have emulated the federal counterpart Mr. Jean Paul Cretien whose gutsy refusal to allow the commercial harvest of the Lake Louise area puts him well in the forefront of responsible and concerned politicians.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

Control Lacking

Christian Science Monitor

It is a simple fact to those of us who must publicly deal with gun-ownership matters, that the mail generated will run three-to-four to one against gun control laws.

The most dangerous misconception about gun control is that guns are good for self-defence. As gun law expert Donald B. Zimring pointed out in a recent issue of The Nation:

"Despite the great majority of handguns are kept for household self-defence, it is absolutely clear that the handgun in your house is more likely to kill you or a member of your family than to save your life. In Detroit more people died in one year from handgun accidents alone than were killed by homicidal robbers or burglars in four and a half years."

Indian Woman Tells Probe Police Jumped on Husband

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Christine Quill, the 43-year-old widow of Chilcotin Indian Fred Quill, told a coroner's jury through an interpreter Monday that a policeman jumped on her husband three days before he died in hospital at Williams Lake.

Mrs. Quill was testifying for the second time about events leading up to her husband's death. She gave evidence at an inquest in Williams Lake last January, but its verdict was recently invalidated by the British Columbia Supreme Court and a new inquest ordered.

Mrs. Quill said that on Nov. 28, 1971, she, her husband and four other persons left their home on the Stone reserve near Alexis Creek to visit the neighboring Anahim reserve.

She said her husband had been drinking at Anahim, and that she had "a little bit of wine" and fell asleep in the cab of the vehicle on the way home. Her husband was driving.

The truck took a wrong turn on leaving Anahim, she said, and when she awoke her husband had parked the truck and was asleep. Mrs. Quill said a police cruiser approached and the officers got out.

He did not wake up until "the policeman threw him out of the truck," she testified. It was after this that the policeman jumped on him, Mrs. Quill said. Her testimony was to continue today.

At the inquest, rigid precautions were taken to ensure Indian participation in the six-member jury. Eighteen potential jurors filed into the courtroom, nine Indians and an equal number of non-Indians.

The final six were chosen by lot. Four names were drawn from a metal box containing the names of the non-Indians and two from a box that held the names of the Indians.

"In view of the circumstances I was felt that we had to have some native Indians on the jury," said provincial court Judge Fenton McNeil of Quesnel, who is conducting the inquest. "The raids of non-Indians in this area is greater than four to two, but this seems a reasonable way to go about it."

Probe Asked

TORONTO (CP) — In a letter to the editor published in The Globe and Mail Monday, retired RCMP deputy commissioner W. H. Kelly says much of the criticism directed at the force recently "is unsound" and called for an investigation "of the whole system" and publication of the findings.

Pair Fined

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Ronald Fegan, 31, of Toronto, one of Canada's top harness drivers, was fined $13,000 in provincial court Monday after his attorney entered a plea of guilty on a charge of evading income tax and four counts of making false statements on income-tax returns.

His grandfather, 76-year-old George Fegan, a well-known Goderich horseman, was fined $1,665 after reviewing an earlier plea of not guilty on a tax evasion charge involving $28,000 income and three charges of making false tax-return statements in 1960, 1967 and 1968.

Up to Public

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — The fate of Chinguacousy Township's statue of a nude male Indian now will depend on public opinion.

The statue, carved by a Vancouver sculptor, will be taken from the barn where it has been stored for a week and will be unveiled at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The statue was locked up last week when a local committee objected to its nudity as immoral.

Sad Doors

NEW YORK (AP) — In an effort to restore skyjacking, Trans World Airlines said Monday it had permanently sealed the rear exit doors in all 72 of its Boeing 727 jet passenger planes.

The step was taken in the face of recent incidents involving air pirates demanding parachutes and ransom money and using the rear exit as an escape hatch.

Seek Payment

KINGSTON (CP) — Seven prisoners and one correctional officer involved in the Kingston penitentiary riot in April, 1971, have applied for payment from the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board which will conduct hearings at the penitentiary today and Wednesday.

The correctional officer, Terrence Decker, was the first of six hostages released by rioting prisoners. The prisoners seeking compensation are Robert Sheenan, Alan Saunders, Leslie Zimmer, Julius Martiar, Donald Arsenault, Wilfred Lacelle and James Rice.

Envoy Slain

BOGOTA (Reuter) — The first secretary of the Swedish embassy in Colombia, Kjell B. Vegard, was shot to death in his car here Monday night, police said.

The 29-year-old diplomat received several bullet wounds in the head and died instantly.

Some Resigned

TORONTO (CP) — A lawyer said Monday the former Telegram Publishing Co. Ltd. forced some of its employees to resign last October to deprive them of termination pay.

Martin Loftus made the charge as legal counsel for Gottlob Konig, a former machinist with the newspaper, who has filed a claim against The Telegram for $4,537.

Fischer Wins

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer, the 29-year-old American chess whiz, won his first game ever from world titleholder Boris Spassky on Monday and now trails the Russian 2-1 in their 25-game match. In seven previous meetings, Fischer lost five times and two were draws.

Receives Award

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As pickets protested outside, General Motors President Edward Cole received an auto safety award Monday and announced that GM is testing an experimental diagnostic system which continually will monitor a car's major parts for failure.

No Control

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Municipalities have no authority to restrict fund-raising campaigns conducted on private property, council was told Monday night.

City solicitor Douglas Kerr told the Ontario Municipal Act does not give municipalities authority to restrict door-to-door campaigns as it does with toy days.

Injuries Rise

TORONTO (CP) — The number of injuries suffered by persons on bicycles and tricycles has increased almost 60 per cent this year in Metropolitan Toronto' an inquest was told Monday.

Wayne Pett, assistant superintendent of Metro's accident records bureau, said that 276 persons were injured while riding such vehicles up to last June 16 compared with 168 for the same period of 1971.

None Registered

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's legislation to control pyramid sales has been in effect for a month but so far no company has registered with the registrar of pyramid sales.

Nixon's Farm Subsidy Plan Expected to Cut Stockpiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sweetened billion-dollar farm subsidy plan by the Nixon administration is expected to take into huge surplus stockpiles next year even if the Soviet Union doesn't buy any more U.S. bread grain.

The plan, announced Monday by the agriculture department, could pay U.S. farmers about $1.1 billion, assuming wheat acreage next year, a record high subsidy for the crop and about $100 million more than payments for 1972.

It is basically the same as for this year, but includes additional incentives to entice more acres from wheat production. The basic government price support item will remain unchanged at $1.25 a bushel.

A department spokesman, noting the buildup of wheat surpluses to the highest level in nearly a decade, told reporters the 1973 acreage "set-aside" program benefits could run $100 million more than the $1 billion spent on payments this year.

"It was drawn up without taking into consideration the possibility of the Soviet sale," Glenn Weir, deputy administrator of the agricultural stabilization and conservation service told a reporter.

"But if exports, and sales to the Soviet Union materialize, then farmers stand to gain and the cost to the government will be more," he said.

The program is keyed partly to markets, meaning that if farmers get higher prices for cash sales they will rely less on government payments.

Weir referred to a recently-announced $750 million sale of U.S. grain to the Russians during the next three years.

The formal arrangement covers wheat, but officials do not have indicated the major interest of Moscow is for livestock feed grain, also in surplus as the result of record U.S. harvests.

The program is aimed a taking 25 million acres from wheat production next year, compared with about 20 million made idle this harvest. Wheat payments to farmers this year are expected to run about $1 billion.

Jane Fonda Says Hospital Bombed Deliberately

TOKYO (AP) — American actress Jane Fonda said Monday that U.S. planes intentionally bombed a hospital in the North Vietnamese capital, a Hanoi broadcast reported.

The official Vietnam news agency, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, quoted Miss Fonda ex saying in Hanoi: "I visited the Bach Mai Hospital on Monday. I saw a huge bomb crater in the centre of the hospital. It was obviously dropped by American pilots. With the kind of bombs they kind of technique, that have been developed now you know, particularly the pilots know, that accidents like that don't happen. That is no accident."

20,000 Rock Fans Cheer Rolling Stones

MONTREAL (CP) — About 20,000 rock fans cheered the Rolling Stones at their Monday night concert at the Forum while police took care of some less-satisfied afficionados outside.

Shortly after the last fans entered the Forum, police cleared perimeters without tickets into a nearby park to prevent trouble.

Some bottles were thrown, most harmlessly into the street, two windows were broken, and two cars including a mobile unit from a radio station were set on fire. The flames were quickly extinguished.

Police seized about 500 bogus tickets.

Teamsters Back Nixon

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Leaders of the 2.2-million-member Teamsters Union endorsed President Nixon for re-election Monday. It was only the second time since the Depression that the union had failed to endorse the Democratic candidate for president. In 1952, the Teamsters supported Nixon in his unsuccessful campaign against the late President John F. Kennedy.

U.S. and Russia Plan 1975 Space Mission

HOUSTON (AP) — United States and Soviet space experts said Monday they have agreed to a basic technical outline for a joint space mission in 1975 and work on hardware needed for the mission will begin immediately.

Soviet and U.S. Space officials, reporting on two weeks of talks here, told a news conference that basic agreements as to docking system and a schedule for a mission to test the system have been achieved.

Boris Petrov, president of the Council of Intercosmos and head of a 22-member Soviet delegation, said the agreements "can hardly be overestimated in importance."

He said the development will include "an entirely new, novel docking system . . . which is at this time not in existence in either country."

In the future, such an arrangement assures the possibility of one spacecraft coming to the assistance of another if it is necessary.

Indians Offered Use of Office

TORONTO (CP) — Eleven members of the Union of Ontario Indians were given permission to use the facilities of an office of the secretary of state indefinitely after they occupied the office Monday to protest federal grant activities to the province's Indians.

The Indians, who had occupied the office for about 20 minutes, expressed shock when G. P. Allen, province liaison officer for the facility, offered them the telephones, typewriters and other equipment for an indefinite period.

Chief Fred Plain, president of the union which represents 28 status Ontario Indians, said the union was forced to occupy the office recently and suspend 24 workers when Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier refused the organization a grant.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Social And Personal

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Keilar, Belleville announce the engagement of their daughter Margaret Ann, to Mr. Michael Albert Goodfellow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanely Goodfellow, Consecon. The marriage will take place in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday August 26, 1972 at 3 p.m.

* * *

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Richard Andersen (nee Denice Deborah De-Rushie) was honored at a community miscellaneous shower held at Point Anne Parish Hall. Another miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Bonnie Mitchell and Mrs. Jane Mason. The parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Anderson held a rehearsal party in their home also.

* * *

Visitors have now been restricted for Garth Bradshaw who is reported seriously ill in the Kingston General Hospital.

* * *

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Dennis Neron (nee Debra Dianne Arbuckle) was honored at several miscellaneous showers. Mrs. Donald Williams, Stirling, gave one in her home with the assistance of Mrs. Ruth Cessford as hostess. Mrs. Clarence Shoniker of Batawa also gave a miscellaneous shower and her daughter, Catherine co-hosted.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS R. NERON

Neron – Arbuckle

St. James the Minor Roman Catholic Church, Stirling was the scene of the marriage ceremony on Saturday July 8, 1972, when Debra Dianne Arbuckle, daughter of Mr. Robert Arbuckle, Stirling and Mrs. Jean Calnan, Belleville, was united in marriage to Dennis Roger Neron, Picton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Neron of Trenton. Father James McGarvey officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Jerry Fowtyn who also accompanied the soloist Miss Lana La-Chappelle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor length gown trimmed with pink and accented with a large flounce at hemline. Guipure lace accented the bolero skirt and sleeves. A headband of lace was caught to a fingertip chapel veil trimmed with matching lace. She carried a single pink rose.

Maid of honor Miss Catherine Shoniker wore a pink floor length gown featuring a smocked bodice with puffed sleeves, and a flounced skirt. She wore a white picture hat enhanced with pink flowers. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, pink starfire and baby's breath. Bridesmaids Miss Lois Green, Miss Carolyn Merrick and Miss Terry Arbuckle were identically attired to the maid of honor and all carried similar bouquets.

Larry Wannamaker attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Dennis Lebrun, Robbie Arbuckle and Tim Neron.

The reception was held at the IOOF hall where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a street length peach crepe ensemble with a corsage of orange sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a street length chartreuse crepe dress with chiffon overlay complemented with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Donald Rodgers of Stirling was master of ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. Neron will reside in Picton.

Canadian Sales Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian fashion industry, with sales booming abroad, is aiming its sales campaigns this year at Canadian consumers and retailers.

The campaigns will be organized by Fashion Canada, a government and industry-sponsored program. Specially-selected fashion items will be promoted in week-long Fashion Canada campaigns in each of Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec City and Halifax, during September and October of this year.

More than 250 fall and winter fashion items—men's, women's and children's wear, furs and footwear—were submitted by Canadian manufacturers to a board of evaluators. Each commodity was judged by a panel of industry experts, including buyers and fashion writers and 180 items were selected for the nationwide Fashion Canada promotion, the second annual Canadian campaign of its kind.

Canadian designers have been participating in New York export shows since 1968. Since the first export promotion, a spokesman for the department of industry, trade and commerce reports, sales of Canadian-designed fashion items have risen from $15 to $67 million a year.

Canada will participate in its second design showing in London this October.

About 175 fashions in the competition were awarded a Fashion Canada tag signifying recognized design and quality. Another part of the design promotion includes a bursary to be awarded to a promising young Canadian designer, providing a year at any school of fashion design, on the condition that he or she return to work for a Canadian manufacturer.

Babysitting Course Now in Session

By BONNIE KING
Women's Reporter

"Children are our most valued possession and I feel that community qualified babysitters are important for everyone," said Miss Lee McDavitt, co-ordinator of a babysitting course which is now in full swing at Bridge St. United Church for this week. Special guest speakers from the community will speak under the guidelines of the Canada Safety Council to the girls aged 13 to 16. Anyone is welcome to join.

This idea occurred to Miss McDavitt in April when she submitted it as a project for an Opportunities for Youth grant. It was not accepted and due to the enthusiastic response she had received when inquiring for speakers and enrollees, she decided to continue with her project.

With the assistance of Mrs. T. Fuller, a social worker and the only financial backed supporter, Miss McDavitt in purchasing the guidelines from the Safety Council and Mrs. Dorothy Jeffries, head of Christian Education at Bridge St. United Church, who arranged the church facilities, this course was created.

The lateness in summer of this project, due to the time taken in preparation, accounts for the small enrolment. It is hoped that 30 girls will attend.

Yesterday, registration began with a get acquainted session for the 12 girls. Miss Leslie Hockley, a recreational instructor at OSD was on hand with Miss McDavitt. The girls in their various groups presented in short plays, mistakes the babysitter and the employer make such as not leaving a phone number and having friends in without permission. Following each presentation, the mistakes were evaluated.

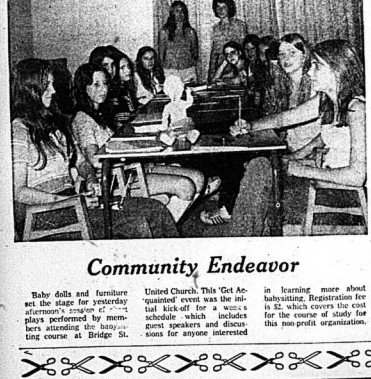
Today, Mrs. Ruth Britnell from St. John Ambulance is scheduled to speak on child safety and first-aid. Wednesday, two public health nurses, Mrs. Lois Hughes and Mrs. Dorothy MacDonald will discuss child care and good health with the girls. Thursday, Mrs. Komer, an instructor from the Loyalist College early childhood education program will speak on child behavior and games for pre-adolescents and also show a film. On Friday, Miss Valerie Traux of the VON will present a film on special care of the convalescent.

After this week's activities, a written examination is slated for Wednesday, July 26.

This exam was prepared by the Canada Safety Council and those who successfully complete it will be qualified to babysit in the community.

The St. Andrew's Church day nursery has assisted with this project also. Mrs. Anne Pearson has offered a tour of their day nursery facilities for the girls to observe the operation and following the results of the exam, all requests for babysitters will be handled by the St. Andrew's Day Nursery. They, in turn, will contact the babysitters.

Miss McDavitt hopes that this project will continue next year and become an annual event, but as she will be leaving Belleville to attend university, she will not be able to carry on this project.



Community Endeavor

Baby dolls and furniture set the stage for yesterday afternoon's session of plays performed by members attending the babysitting course at Bridge St. United Church. This 'Get Acquainted' event was the initial kick-off for a weeks schedule which includes guest speakers and discussions for anyone interested in learning more about babysitting. Registration fee is $2. which covers the cost for the course of study for this non-profit organization.

Stars Sent to Handicapped Collector

By DORIS CLARK

Remember the lady in the wheelchair who wants to collect the stars from whiskey bottles and coupons from coffee cans? The following are excerpts from responses now received:

1. "Have been purchasing the rye labelled with stars for some time. Thinking there might be someone who could make use of the golden stars for some artistic purpose I tossed them into a dresser drawer. Have now accumulated 23 and would gladly forward them to the lady and pay postage."

2. "I have several stars I would like to send to "Collecting Stars." If you would please send me her address. My children are very interested in this lady and are asking everybody if they drink the kind of whiskey with stars on the bottles!"

3. "I have a few of the labels, as my husband is the liquor vendor here and I would be most pleased to send them to "Collecting Stars". I have used a lot of them on kiddies' fifth birthday cakes and they make quite a hit."

4. "We have accumulated a fair sized number of these stars and we save them for the children to play with and we would be very glad to forward them to help the lady in the wheelchair."

Several more letters along the same lines indicate the kind-heartedness of our readers. I am sending each one the address. How about the coupons from coffee cans friends? Isn't coffee a popular beverage too?

Dear Doris: Thank God for people like you who at least listen to problems and do what they can to help people like us. I sincerely pray that I can keep on looking after my husband at home.

Our poor old neighbor is in the nursing home. They keep her tranquillized or tied in a chair; yet if she had someone to look after her she could still be at home at $350. per month. The neighbors had reported that she was out in her nightgown.

It took five people to get her in the car and then they had to use a straight jacket. Frankly, don't let them take me."

she kept saying to her unwell husband. She was heartbroken. All she seemed to need was company.

My husband still likes company and we have wonderful neighbors who come in and cheer him up. He has a droll way and makes everyone laugh.

And shen inflation has made a joke of the few dollars we were able to save by thrift and hard work, we would be on the 'poverty line' if it were not for the government, pension — Still Holding On.

Dear Still Holding On: You are a brick. Our institutions are far from perfect, but the day will come when the elderly will get a better deal.

Nurses who work with elderly patients have a rare kind of patience; and are sometimes called upon to do what might seem unkind, in order to give their oldsters more tranquil days and nights.

Dear Doris: The address of the Registrar General in Belfast is given incorrectly in the letter from the British Information Information Officer, Ottawa.

The Avenue where Fernanagh House is situated is ORMEAU, pronounced "ORMO". There is no Ormeau in Belfast. — Former Belfast Resident.

Dear Belfast: Is my face red! And so, I presume, is half of the British Information Officer.

I have a note from him this morning which reads as follows:

"I have to confirm, with profuse apologies, that your reader, Former Belfast Resident, is right and our information was wrong; Fermanagh House is situated on Ormeau Avenue."

Sorry about that. I hope there aren't any letters floating around Belfast right now looking for Fermanagh House on a non-existent street. Thank you, and our thanks to the British High Commission, for putting this straight.

Students Raise Funds For European Trip

TWEED — The students of North Addington Education Centre's Education Europe are still pushing towards the distant goal of $5,000 in a determined effort to get to Europe next March. Since the money raising campaign began in March, the students have been successful in most endeavors and to date their bank account holds almost $2,000. The enthusiasm the group demonstrated over six months ago has not been dampened, and new ideas for raising funds are popping up every day.

Through several local stores in the Clayer area, the students are selling attractive notepaper bearing sketches of Ben Echo Rock.

The group has also made arrangements to use the Clayer Town Hall every Saturday night to squeeze dances for the young people. The first dance, a grass success, was held July 1. Bands have been arranged for every weekend from now until the end of August.

Many other activities are being carried out by the Education Europe group, including selling steak boards, raffling a beautiful hand stitched quilt, writing a cookbook of local recipes, selling firewood and many others.

Council of United Church to Meet

SASKATOON (CP) — The largest number of women ever to attend the general council of the United Church of Canada, 131, will be among the delegates when the highest policy-making body of the church meets in biennial session here next month.

But the possibility of a woman presiding over the council disappeared with the withdrawal from the election for a moderator of Rev. K. Hornel Christie, nominated by the Maritimes in preference, and followed by the church in Toronto earlier this week.

Dr. Christie is deputy secretary of the divisional mission in Toronto. The secretary was secretary of the board of women, later absorbed with four others boards into the division of mission.

Dr. Christie's withdrawal leaves three clergymen and one layman in the running for the

Half are clerical, half laymen, among the 131 women, eight are ministers.

Discrimination Not Instantly Recognized

TORONTO (CP) — Many women are discriminated against on grounds of their sex or marital status and on grounds of ancestry or creed, says Elsie MacGill.

But, she added, sex discrimination is not instantly recognized as are other grounds.

Miss MacGill, a former member of the royal commission on the status of women in Canada, spoke at the national convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, of which she is a past president.

"I believe it is essential that special provisions be introduced to protect women's rights because laws and practices that are recognized instantly as discriminatory on grounds of race, color, creed, nationality, ancestry or place of origin, do not command that instant recognition when they discriminate on grounds of sex or marital status."

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Does a teenager enjoy independence?

YES, of course, although that doesn't mean a teenager should be thrown on his own completely. As much as a teenager craves independence and as much as he will be ready to fight for it, he would resent it if his parents ever cut him loose entirely. It is not that a teenager wants to have his cake and eat it, too. He simply expects his parents to understand why he feels he must be independent and at the same time needs to lean on them.

Is success tied to aggression?

NO. Sure, many aggressive people succeed; but there are many who succeed without being aggressive, and there are also countless numbers who fail even though they are more aggressive than those who succeed. Some individuals may have the ability to achieve success, but they may lack the confidence it takes. These are generally the ones who need aggressiveness to camouflage their doubts that they will ever succeed.

Should a wife shop alone for clothes?

NO; her husband should accompany her, no matter how much time he spends waiting outside dress department fitting rooms. Her husband is the one person a wife can count on to tell the truth. If she tries on a dress and it looks good on her, he will say so. Besides that, if she looks attractive in it, a wife won't feel guilty if her husband insists on her buying the dress even if it rocks the family budget.

Crosses Oceans for Love

FALMOUTH, England (AP) — A lone sailor who crossed oceans in search of love was lonelier still Monday. The pretty young typist he sailed 19,000 miles to marry told him his long voyage has been in vain.

Three months after they met at a dance in Melbourne, Australia, carpenter Graeme Tait, 36, popped the question. For him it had been love at first sight, but the typist, 25 year-old Barbara Hill, wasn't so sure.

When she had to fly home to England in the spring of 1970, she still had not given him her answer, so Tait decided to follow her half way across the world in his 31 foot homemade ketch, Maola.

In a waterside cafe at Falmouth on Monday, less than two days after he stepped ashore, Miss Hill gave Tait her answer. It was No.

On a pavement crowded with vacationers, they shook hands and parted for the last time. Tait to return to his boat in the harbor and Miss Hill to her home in Derby.

As he returned dejectedly to his boat, Tait said:

"For two years I've thought of nothing else but Barbara. That's what kept me on course for England. I was hoping that she would say Yes. Not it's all off."

Ann Landers

Mother Dresses Son Like Little Girl

Dear Ann Landers: I'm only 17 years old so of course nobody in this dumb family listens to me. But I know something is wrong and if you print my letter and your readers tell me I am, I will surely see it because she quotes you all the time.

Aunt Millie has been divorced for three years. Her son is six years old. The boy's father lives in the country and with luck he'll never come back. He was no good.

Aunt Millie's son is a very pretty kid—looks more like a girl than a boy. His hair is long (gorgeous blonde curls) and his mother puts ribbons in it and makes up his face when company comes over. Last week she bought him some organdy pinafores and took pictures of him in his girlie outfit.

The child acts like a girl and I see real trouble ahead. I mentioned it to my mother and she said, "He'll outgrow it." She also told me to mind my own business.

What are the chances for this boy growing up to be a normal male?—Worried

Dear Worried: Very slim. His mama obviously wants a girl, and her son is going to see to it that she isn't disappointed. If someone can talk some sense into your Aunt Millie's head soon and get that boy to a therapist, he might be salvaged provided Mama gets some therapy too.

Dear Ann Landers: I am trapped in my own home by a brother who came to live with my husband and me a few years ago when he retired.

Immediately after breakfast he starts to drink beer. He drinks beer all day long, one can after the other. By the time I put supper on the table he is either nasty, silly, silent, or engaged in a full blown dialogue with himself, asking questions and answering them as if he were putting on a two-actor play, with himself taking both parts. It's nerve-racking!

Both my husband and I have tried to reason with him but it's useless. He flies into a rage and tells us he's old enough to know what he wants to do. Please tell me how to deal with this man. He has changed our home from a pleasant place to a house of quarrelling and discontent. I can't ask him to leave because he has no 'living' relative but me.—Trapped In Colorado

Dear Trapped: You are being grossly unfair to your husband. Tell your brother unless he is willing to cut out the guzzling, he will have to find himself a rented room somewhere because he is ruining your home life.

I'm sure you know he's an alcoholic—and there are places an alcoholic can go for help, if he wants to dry up.

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the young girl whose uncle got funny with her made me hopping mad. Such uncles are few and far between, like one in a million. Your column cast ugly aspersions on the wonderful uncles everywhere. You owe them all an apology.—Maine Reader

Dear Reader: You are right when you say funny uncles are few and far between. But they do exist. I received over a hundred letters from grown women who wrote to express thanks. They said that particular column brought back some nightmarish memories but they were glad I printed it. In almost every instance their parents never had a clue about the funny uncle and they were afraid to tell. One reader put it this way: "I hope that column opens some eyes, Ann. Your column is a post-graduate course in human relations and kinky relatives."

O'Brien Stable Loses Pride

TORONTO (CP) — Duncan take the nine-year-old trotter MacDonald, owner of Freehold at the stable of Joe O'Brien, Yankee, said Monday he will who has guided her to more than $1 million in earnings.

Match Race Expensive

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — winners of the last three International Trots, will compete in a $150,000 match race Saturday at Roosevelt Raceway announced Monday.

Speedy Crown won the International last Saturday night by a length over Fresh Yankee. Une de Mai was ordered scratched by the New York Harness Racing Commission, which questioned her fitness. The mare had tightened up after a workout Thursday.

Une de Mai won the International in 1971 and Fresh Yankee in 1970.

Alex Leavitt of New York, representing Speedy Crown's owner, Speedy Crown Stable, proposed the match race and his challenge was accepted by Dominic MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., owner of Fresh Yankee, and Count Speedy de Montesson, owner of Une di Mai.

Une de Mai, an eight-year-old mare, is the biggest money winner in harness racing history, — h $1,917,748. Fresh Yankee, a nine-year-old horse, is second with $1,231,502.

Speedy Crown, a four-year-old colt who won the 1971 Hambletonian, has won six straight races and has earned $367,360.

OK With Bunny

LONDON (CP) Bunny Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, says the so-called Canada-Soviet Union hockey series will involve "unrestricted" players.

Ahearne, whose federation is sponsoring the series, was asked whether Bobby Hull would be eligible. Hull recently switched to the World Hockey Association's Winnipeg Jets in a multi-million-dollar contract.

"It doesn't make any difference to me whether the players selected are members of the National Hockey League or the World Hockey Association," Ahearne said.

Plane's Pair Pays at Plate

Plane's Concrete tadpoles parlayed a two - for - one mound staff into a 15-2 Belleville Minor baseball win Monday.

Two Plane's hurlers, Scott Dafoe and Brian Cronkright, checked Glen Esso on just one hit to give them the lopsided win. They whiffed 20 batters and walked seven. Chris Clayton, Andy Balyx and John Gibson combined for 20 strikeouts in a losing cause.

Dafoe rapped two doubles and two singles for Plane's with Cronkright's three homerun topping the power department. John Gibson had the losers' lone hit.

Universal Centre tadpoles rolled over Cablevue 16-3 as Stewart Emerson, Bob Kanary and David Meagher also combined to hurl a one-hitter. Michael Lawson absorbed the Cablevue loss.

Meagher was the top Universal batsman with a homer, triple and single while Al Thompkins was good for a single and two doubles. Scott Miller had the lone Cablevue safety.

Vincent's Hat Paces Peewees

Belleville's minor lacrosse all-star teams batted .500 in a pair of exhibition contests last night winning one and losing one.

The peewees started the night off well taking a 5-4 win from Campbellford.

Steve Vincent scored the hat-trick and Doug Rainbolt fired two to lead the Bellevill crew to victory.

The local bantams couldn't cut the ice against their counterparts from Kingston, losing a 9-4 decision.

Rob Richardson, Joe Charlebois, Rob Prewer and Mike Johnston each tallied in a losing effort.

Stables Pluck Orchards Clean

Wannamaker and Boily Stables allowed the Bayview Orchards to bloom last night and then plucked them clean for a Prince Edward North Shore Softball League win 8-1.

Bayview jumped off to a 4-0 lead after two innings but that was all they got in losing to the Stables 6-4.

Fred O'Brien smashed four hits for the winners with Rod Wyatt and Lyle Johnston adding two hits apiece. Earl Gordon started for the Stables allowing all four runs before giving way to Gary Eardley. Eardley blanked the Orchards the rest of the way on two hits.

Jim Bell and Don Bonter took the loss for the Orchards giving up nine hits. George Chapman had three safeties in a losing effort.

Hamilton, Argos Keep Prices Stable

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

With two exceptions—in Hamilton and Toronto—it's going to cost more this year to cheer on your favorite Canadian Football League team.

Seven of the nine clubs have announced ticket-price increases, one raised its price last year, and only Montreal Argonauts are holding the line.

Increases range generally between 25 cents and $1 a ticket, depending on where you like to sit, with top price ranging between $5 and $6.

Montreal Alouettes, while actually cutting prices for some seats, will have a $5 top under a package deal for the best seats, plus a 980-seat VIP section that will go for a total of $175 per seat on a season-ticket arrangement.

Teams in the Western Conference play a 16-game season with eight games against the EFC, it's 14 games, seven at home. Each of the nine clubs plays two home exhibition games.

The picture by teams:

Montreal Alouettes—They'll play their home games at a new location this season, moving from the Autostade to Percival Molson Stadium at the University of McGill. There are 33,000 seats in the Autostade compared with 23,500 at McGill, but the university stadium is considered a better place to view the field. Seats between the 35-yard lines will be $75 for the season; between the goal lines and the 25, the price is $55. At the Autostade it was $58.50 from goal-line to goal-line.

Seats behind the goal—worth $54 last season—now are $45 and $40, while the bleachers remain at $3 a game.

All the top - priced season tickets are a package deal for the Alouettes' home games in seven league games at $5.

In addition, the club have installed 980 armchair-type VIP seats on the 55-yard line. There will be the season price of $75 per ticket, plus $100 for the seat. If sold out, they will bring in approximately $175,000.

A sell-out at the Autostade —which didn't happen last season—produced $173,000, aside from the new posh area, a McGill sellout will produce $192,000.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats—The price went up last year when the Cats completed a rebuilding program to bring capacity to about 30,000 from just under 26,800. Improvements included a new artificial playing surface and season-ticket sales jumped to 13,600 from 11,500 the previous year. Team officials are hoping for 15,000 this year.

Prices went up approximately 25 to 50 cents last year, for a top price of $6, scaling down to $2 in the end zones—prices which will prevail this year.

The Cats instituted a Turf Club last year, main features being a charged of artificial turf and seats with backs. The price was a $100 donation to the refurfacing program, plus $47.50 for a season ticket. For $100 was a one-time charge which gave those who donated an option on the seats for the same $47.50 this year. Box seats for Tiger-Cats games go for $52.50.

Ottawa Rough Riders—The move is up between 50 cents and $1. This year the top tariff will be $7 for a centre-field seat, an increase from $6, in the covered stand. Open grandstand seats in the centre will be $5.50, also a $1 increase. Other seats now cost $5, $4.50, $4 and, in the bleachers, $1.50.

Toronto Argonauts — The last price increase was in 1970, when prices went to $6.50, $5.50, $4 and $2.50, in that was the first increase in nine years. In 1970, however, capacity was approximately 24,500, whereas it will be up around 30,000 this season, a year of expansion which will see the CNE stadium become the third park—behind British Columbia Lions and Hamilton Tiger-Cats—with artificial turf.

Saskatchewan Roughriders —Single-ticket prices are up, season-ticket prices are down. The best single-game ticket will cost $6.50, a $1 increase and the first boost in 11 years. However, season tickets will cost $36—a reduction of $11—and that includes entry to two pre-season games. End-zone seats are $3, up $1, except for children and for them, it's still 50 cents.

The major reason for the increase, Riders executives say, is a loss of $250,000 in "pure football" operations during the last three years.

A new block of seats will greet 1972 crowds. However other seats will be gone—torn down because they hang over a street. Overall, there will be an increase of about 2,100 seats for a 22,400 capacity Centre. 17,000 will be between the goal-lines.

Calgary Stampeders—Prices are up in all categories, despite record gross earnings by the Grey Cup champs. Net earnings were $40,483 compared with $15,293 in 1971 but president Roy Graves says costs are rising and probably will continue to rise. Last season, the club operated at 98 per cent of capacity which is 22,616 with about 20,000 seats between the goal-lines.

The price increase, the first since 1968, ranges between 25 and 75 cents. Top ticket is $6.

The stadium is owned by the University of Calgary through the McMahon Stadium Society which leases facilities to the football club.

British Columbia Lions—Top ticket price is $6.50, up $1 from last year. Five years ago, the top price was $4.50. The Lions suffered a $63,000 deficit in the operations budget last year. Most of the increase will go toward paying gate expenditures and stadium rental. Artificial turf was installed in 1970 and no new major renovations are planned. The stadium holds up to 30,900 with 16,100 seats between the goal lines.

The Lions sold about 20,000 season tickets last year and expect roughly the same response this year. Season subscribers may purchase two pre-season tickets at $6.50 a game, but if they don't, their regular-season seats may not be in a choice location.

Edmonton Eskimos—Prices are up by 50 cents or $1 with the best seats going for $6 and public relations man Quincy Moffatt blames a "general increase in everything." Seating is unchanged at 22,000 with 19,500 between the goal lines. The Eskis are community-owned and Clarke Stadium is city-owned.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers—The stadium is undergoing a $3.3-million renovation and the ticket prices are rising between 25 cents and $1, the first increases in four years. Seating capacity will be 25,012, an increase of fewer than 1,000 seats, but the number of seats between the goal-lines will be 20,729, an increase of 6,500.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1972

Summer School A Treat For East Hill Students

Sixty youngsters in the East Hill area are back in school for the summer and loving every minute of it.

The four to eight-year-olds are "guinea pigs" for a five-week course in primary teaching methods offered at Harry J. Clarke School by the department of education.

But the young "guinea pigs" are scarcely suffering. They are enjoying every educational bonus available — a pupil teacher ratio of 60 to 2?3 that guarantees the ultimate in individual attention, the newest equipment, books and teaching aids, and the supervision of some of the province's top primary school teachers.

The summer course has attracted 200 women and five men teachers, who are instructed by 20 senior specialists, most from the Toronto area. Although most of the teachers taking the course are from the immediate area, some have come from as far away as Moose River and Elliot Lake. Three such summer courses are required for a specialist's certificate in the teaching of four to eight year olds.

As well as a daily lecture by a Kingston child psychologist on child development, periods of classroom observation and teaching and lectures and seminars on theory, the teachers have regular sessions in the school's industrial arts shop. There, they learn to make teaching aids, such as big wooden jigsaw puzzles and puppet theatres.

Anyone who wonders what happened to the Hall Denis report on Ontario education, Living and Learning, can see it in operation at Harry J. Clarke.

Administrator of the summer course, Mississauga junior school principal Nels Auger, emphasized the importance of starting youngsters off on the right foot in their early years at school.

"Unless you develop the proper attitudes towards school by the age of seven, it's only remedial work from then on," he said.

Parents in the neighborhood volunteered their children for five weeks in response to letters and advertisements. Most of the tykes said they loved the summer school, although one young rebel, who appeared to be having the time of his life with toy trucks in a sand table, maintained he was only there "because my mother makes me come."

Teaching is conducted in a flexible way, in "workshop classrooms" loaded with teaching aids, most of them as simple as sand tables and tubs of water and plastic jars. More sophisticated equipment, such as typewriters with poster-size type, are marked with the label of the North York board of education.

Saw-Off

Teachers taking the primary methods summer course at Harry J. Clarke School take their turn in the school industrial arts shop, where they learn to make their own teaching aids. Darlene MacDonald, who will teach at Ontario School for the Deaf this fall saws a part for a puppet theatre.

Mastering the Machine

There is more than one way of putting words on paper if David Andrus is learning at the summer school for teachers now in operation at Harry J. Clarke School. Sometimes the hunt and peck method of typing is the best way to learn letters and words. Enrolled in the primary methods course are 213 elementary school teachers.

Overload Jams Bridge

Overloading of the swing-section of the bay bridge with construction equipment was to blame for a traffic tieup lasting more than an hour yesterday afternoon.

The bridge, opened at 3 p.m. for its hourly swing to let boats through the span, failed to close.

The bridge master said the failure of the span to close was due to a power failure. The span was swung manually, but stopped just six inches short of complete closure, making the bridge impassable to traffic.

An electrician restored the power more than an hour later and the bridge has been operating normally since.

However, the bridge master has attributed the refusal of the span to close correctly when operated by hand to overloading of the swing portion by construction equipment now working on the bridge.

"Overloading the spalls puts it off balance," he said.

"We have taken steps to cut down on the load on the bridge."

Cyclist Injured

Debra Lynn Glendenning, 16, of 44 Lexington Crescent, was slightly injured last evening when she toppled from a motorcycle she was riding.

Travelling west on Cascade Boulevard at 8:06 p.m. the learner apparently lost control of the bike. She was treated for minor injuries at BGH and released.

A charge of operating a motor vehicle without a permit has been laid by city police.

Year's Work Enriching

PLAINFIELD — Shirley-Ann Vos went a little further than most when she decided to break studies and find work experience.

She went to Holland.

The job she chose also was removed froth the ordinary.

She worked with retarded young people.

The combined result was an enriching personal and cultural experience, says Shirley-Ann, 18, now home on the 100-acre family farm here and ready to resume studies for a career.

Concept of the project originated with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vos, who came to Canada from Holland 25 years ago. They believed such a trip would bear much beneficial experience for their teenage daughter.

"She had been in school so long," says Mrs. Vos, "we thought, maybe, it would be interesting for her."

So, when she finished grade 12 studies at Quinte Secondary School last year, Shirley went to Holland and the city of Dokkum, where her grandmother lives.

Hopeful of a more-than-ordinary job, she first toyed with the idea of nursing — but was told registration was for three straight years.

"I didn't want to stay that long," said Shirley.

Hospital authorities suggested she register at a national employment office where she asked for a job working with children.

She had one, the next day — as counsellor in a home for the retarded.

She admits to some confusion troubles at first. Not only was she dealing with retarded teenagers, she also had a language difficulty.

However, a language student in high school, she early became proficient in Dutch and soon had no problems communicating.

Soon, earning about $120 a month — "it was good pay over there" — she was learning the techniques of caring for others from cooking to counselling.

"The job was challenging. At the beginning, I didn't know what to expect," she recalls.

Enhancing the experience was the compactness of the home where all "lived like a family. They were like brothers and sisters to each other."

In the process, says Shirley-Ann, she became more patient, more understanding of human nature.

"She has matured this past year," sums up Mrs. Vos.

Enhancing the experience was its different cultural setting — and Shirley took advantage of travel opportunities to involve herself in different life styles.

One of the recollections of her stay is the smooth transportation system which makes travel easy in Europe she recalls.

She returned home earlier this month and now plans to take an executive secretarial business course to prepare her for a job in Canada.

After that she'll find out what employment at home is all about.

Humane Society Gets A Raise and Rapped

Belleville city council yesterday approved a new by-law agreement with the Ontario Humane Society giving that organization a 20 per cent increase in fees for its animal protection service.

But at the same time it was made clear that council is not entirely satisfied with the service it is receiving.

The new agreement provides for a payment of 60 cents per capita to the Humane Society, up 10 cents from the present 50 cents.

Alderman Donald Soutter raised the question of the quality of service being received by the city.

He said he had called the society one evening about an injured pigeon but was asked to look after the bird until it could be picked up the next day.

The next day happened to be a Sunday and no pickups were made.

The alderman said the city was not getting the type of service it was getting when it entered into its agreement with the society.

"I thought we were getting 24-hour service, but obviously that is not the case," he said.

Alderman Gerald Joyce took the same view.

"We are not getting 100 cents on the dollar," he said. "They (the Humane Society) are not doing the things they are telling the people they are doing."

Council Passes Beer at Fair

Belleville fair-goers this year could be afforded the opportunity of drinking beer in a Bavarian beer garden setting if requirements of the Liquor Control Board are met by Quinte Exhibition officials.

One of the requirements of the LCBO would be that the beer gardens are operated by local personnel rather than by a concessionaire.

The request by fair board officials for city council approval said fairs and exhibitions are finding that properly constituted and managed "Bavarian Beer Gardens" were very popular with fair-going people and were also a valuable source of revenue.

The letter from fair board president John R. Bush said the board had contacts with reputable people who would provide a mobile unit with all the necessary equipment to serve draft beer and food.

The facility would be staffed by Bavarian costumed personnel and a Bavarian band would provide entertainment.

On a motion presented by Alderman Donald Soutter, council expressed agreement for the fair board request to operate a beer garden at this year's exhibition provided it was operated by local people and met requirements of the Liquor Control Board.

Goats Becoming Popular as Pets

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

MILFORD — Nannuk, a gourmet goat who browses at the Milford home of Charles LaPointe, scorns tin cans in favor of hay, grains and weeds.

A four-month-old registered Nubian buck, Nannuk wanders slowly through the fields near his stable picking tasty weeds and grasses with care.

He is one of a herd of five unusual goats purchased recently by Mr. LaPointe and at maturity will weigh 300 pounds.

Joanna Carsen, who describes Nannuk as "a real character" explained yesterday she is becoming increasingly difficult to get your goat.

Through conversations with a Canseon resident who owns a number of grade goats as well as several registered animals, she said her favorite goat eventually was discovered.

He and his agile companions were bought in Belleville and in Warkworth and are among the few registered and cross-bred Nubians in Prince Edward.

The LaPointe family enjoys yogurt and cheese made from goats milk given by one of the does and according to Joanna these milk products equal any sold commercially.

Included in the LaPointe's goat herd are two Alpine-Nubian crossbreds, a registered Nubian buck, a Nubian doe, and a Nubian kid named Freckles.

The Nubian goat is noted for the richness of its milk and is distinguished by pendulous wattles on its neck. The ears and nose are grey-white while the coat is black.

Occasionally these wattles are reproduced in an Alpine-Nubian cross which is popular because the Alpine goat gives milk in abundance to complement the richness of the Nubian's milk.

These crossbred animals attain a weight of approximately 200 pounds at maturity.

Joanna Carsen observed Nannuk and his colorful entourage with the family's pet horse but treat its black retriever Jessiter with disdain.

The does, Heidi and Brunhilde will be bred at maturity and should deliver triplets or twins.

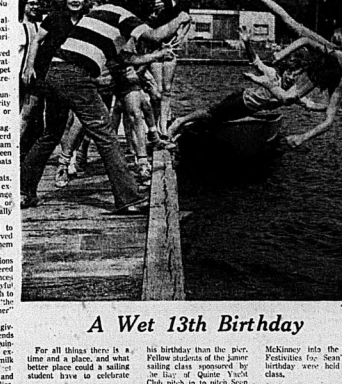
The LaPointe family is eager to increase its goat herd through a breeding program but no decision has been made about raising the goats for sale.

Registered purebred goats, according to Joanna, are expensive to buy and can range from $50 or $70 to $200 or more. A milking doe is usually costly.

Goats can be tethered to browse, but Joanna observed that she prefers to see them browsing free in the field.

Nannuk and his companions however, have discovered small openings in the fences and several of the playful goats are still small enough to wriggle through testing "the grass is always greener" theory.

To keep abreast of what gives with goats, Joanna attends bi-monthly meetings of Quinte area goat breeders who exchange recipes for goats' milk delicacies and discuss findings are held in Belleville and attract more than 20 families.



A Wet 13th Birthday

For all things there is a time and a place, and what better place could a sailing student have to celebrate his birthday than the pier. Fellow students of the junior sailing class sponsored by the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club pitch in to pitch Sean McKinney into the drink. Festivities for Sean's 13th birthday were held after class.

Race Gaps Bigger

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Snap . . . crackle . . . pop.

That's not breakfast cereal you hear. That's the sound of baseball's four division pennant races falling apart.

All of a sudden, Oakland Athletics, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds have opened up healthy leads in their respective divisions and all three added to their margins on Monday's scarce schedule of games.

Oakland, rained out at Milwaukee Monday, picked up another half game on Chicago White Sox in the American League West as Detroit Tigers knocked off the White Sox 3-1 for Mickey Lolich's 10th victory. The Athletics now lead the division by a full eight games.

Pittsburgh came from behind to whip Atlanta Braves 8-5 with Willie Stargell driving in four runs. That gave the Pirates another half-game pickup on idle New York Mets and a five-game bulge in the National League East.

Cincinnati belted Chicago Cubs 7-2 and when St. Louis Cardinals nipped Houston Astros 2-1, it widened the Reds' National League West lead to six games over the slipping Astros.

The only race that still seems to have some life is in the American League East where Baltimore edged a split-game behind Detroit by beating Texas Rangers 3-1.

In the only other game played Monday, Boston Red Sox defeated California Angels 4-2.

Cincinnati's race-horse Reds ripped 14 hits, including Pete Rose's second home run of the season; to batter the Cubs. It was the seventh consecutive victory for the National West leaders.

The Reds hopped on loser Rick Reuschel, 3-3, for three runs in the fourth inning with two of the runs scoring on Cesar Geronimo's single. Rose's homer came in the fifth and then the Reds added three wrap-pup runs in the sixth.

Wayne Simpson, 6-3, earned the victory with reliever Clay Carroll picking up his 21st save, tops in the majors.

Meanwhile, pursuing Houston dropped its fifth straight game as St. Louis and Bob Gibson overpowered the Astros. Gibson won his 10th starting pitching decision in nine of 10 over one stretch.

Dons Clendenon's eighth inning homer snapped a tie and moved the Cardinals to the victory.

Gibson, who dropped his first five games this season, said he is unconcerned over his winning streak ending.

"Who says you have to lose?" asked the flame-throwing righthander. "I guess you do but I don't spend any time thinking about it." Gibson similarly is unbothered by his age, now 36.

"No one is going to stay young forever. You're going to get older, but that doesn't mean I've lost my fastball. I'm still a good pitcher.

Willie Stargell slugged a three-run homer in the first inning and then snapped a 5-5 tie with a sacrifice fly in the eighth to beat Atlanta and reliever Joe Hoerner.

"I have definitely never driven in the game-winning run off Hoerner before," said Stargell. "In fact, I can only remember one other time I hit off him and that was a single two years ago."

Lolich pitched his 16th complete game of the season, tops in the majors, as Detroit cut its White Sox batters, taking over the American League lead with 181 for the season.

Jim Northrup led the Tiger attack with a homer and triple as Detroit remained one game ahead of Baltimore. It was the eighth victory in the last nine games for the Tigers.

Baltimore's Pat Dobson and Rorie Harrison combined for a six-hitter, pitching the Orioles past Texas. It was the fifth straight victory for the Birds.

Dobson's victory was his 11th of the season but the Baltimore right-hander was bothered by the Texas wind.

"I'm a breaking ball pitcher and I was amazed at how much the wind here affected my pitches. It would've been worse if it had been blowing in from straight behind me. But it was much worse than when we were here the first time. That had a lot to do with my walking four batters.

Tiger Turnstiles Busy

DETROIT (AP) — Maybe it's significant and maybe it isn't, but when Detroit Tigers reached the million mark in attendance Monday night it was on the 61st home date — one day sooner than they hit the figure in their 1968 world championship season.

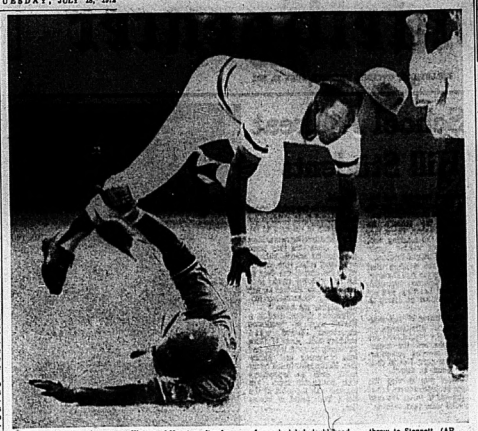
Last season the millionth customer filed through the Tiger Stadium turnstiles on the 65th date.

A crowd of 41,900 saw the Tigers beat Chicago White Sox 3-1 Monday. The attendance brought the season total to 1,004,310. It is the first time in the last 28 years Detroit has drawn more than a million paying fans.

Detroit is the first American League team to hit the million mark this year, Campbell said.

That fabled million has been considered the "break even point" financially for major league teams.

But Alex Callam, Tiger business manager, said today that point has worked its way up to about 1.2 million.



Pittsburgh Pirates' second baseman Rennie Stennett (6) loses his footing over the sliding Bob Watson of Houston after forcing him at second to make a double play in the third inning of the first game of a scheduled doubleheader here Sunday. Houston's Doug Rader rounded to shortstop Gene Alley who threw to Stennett. (AP Photo)

Allen Hit With Fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Allen, a two-time All-Star in the National League, was the top vote-getter on the American League All-Star team announced today by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The Chicago White Sox slugger, who leads the American League with 19 home runs and 61 runs batted in, received 1,027,758 of the 3,171,556 votes cast by U.S. fans.

Allen, acquired from Los Angeles Dodgers in a major winter trade, will be the starting first base assignment over Detroit Tigers' Norm Cash, the runnerup with 729,753 votes.

Only one other player received more than one million votes. That was veteran third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, who easily got the nod at third base over Oakland's Sal Bando.1,341,128 votes to 362,300.

The only team with more than one representative on the starting all-star team is Boston Red Sox, who placed Luis Aparicio at shortstop and Carl Yastrzemski in the outfield. The 43rd annual All-Star Game will be played Tuesday night July 25 in Atlanta.

Joining Allen, Aparicio and Robinson in the starting infield will be Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins, a starter for the sixth straight time. Carew polled 820,055 votes to 411,353 for runnerup Cookie Rojes of Kansas City Royals.

Reggie Jackson of Oakland Athletics topped the outfielders in the voting with 902,421. Joining him in the starting outfield will be Yastrzemski, 693,151, and Bobby Murcer of New York Yankees, 506,361.

Detroit's Bill Freehan will be the starting catcher, having outpolled Cleveland Indians' Ray Fosse 767,536 to 483,366.

Aaron Heads Polls Among Repeaters

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Aaron, bidding to overtake Babe Ruth on the all-time home run list, led a group of four repeaters on the National League All-Star team announced Monday by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Aaron, whose 19 home runs for Atlanta Braves this season have raised his career total to 658, swept to his eighth consecutive starting berth and 13th overall as he led all outfielders in the record response of fan balloting throughout the United States and Canada.

The American League team will be announced Tuesday.

Aaron received 1,116,694 of the 3,171,556 votes cast. Last year, 2,396,893 votes were tabulated.

HANK AARON

The top vote-getter, however, was catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati Reds. Bench, named to the starting team for the fourth consecutive time, received 1,220,677 votes to 738,893 for runnerup Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh Pirates.

Two Pirates will join Sanguillen in the starting outfield. Roberto Clemente drew 1,051,423 votes to place second to Aaron among the outfielders and earn a starting berth for the sixth time, but his first since 1967. Willie Stargell got 717,597 votes for his second straight starting season.

Stargell was followed in order, by Billy Williams of Chicago Cubs, Willie Mays of New York Meta. Frank Robinson of Los Angeles Dodgers, Cesar Cedeno of Houston Astros, Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals, Al Oliver of Pittsburgh Pirates and Bobby Tolan of Cincinnati Reds.

Cincinnati joined Pittsburgh as the only team with more than one starter for the 43rd annual All-Star game to be played Tuesday July 25 in Atlanta. The game will be nationally televised by NBC.

In addition to Bench behind the plate, the Reds will have Joe Morgan at second base, Morgan, acquired from Houston during the winter, edged out Chicago's Glenn Beckert for the starting spot, 654,035 votes to 640,748.

Houston's Lee May, acquired from Cincinnati in the Morgan trade, will be the starting first baseman, having received 688,561 votes to beat out former team-mate Tony Perez. Morgan and May will both be starting for the first time.

The closest race was for shortstop where Chicago's Don Kessinger nipped New York's Bud Harrelson by 3,000 votes, 665,921 to 662,921. It was the fourth time as a starter for Kessinger, who lost out to Harrelson last year.

Rounding out the infield is Joe Torrie of St. Louis at third base, who received 1,180,671 to easily beat out the Mets' Ed Kranepool as a starting spot for the fifth time. It's his second straight at third base.

The pitching staff will be named later by Danny Murtaugh, manager of the National League All-Stars. Murtaugh also will select the reserves, not necessarily the runners-up, at each position.

Murtaugh has retired but will manage the NL stars, an honor he earned by guiding the Pirates to their pennant last year.

Eagleson Blasts PM

Hull Affair Political

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An old political adversary took a run at Prime Minister Trudeau Monday in the third man, or possibly the fourth or fifth, to join the fight over Bobby Hull's participation in the Canada-Russia hockey series next September.

"The trouble started when Trudeau got involved," said Alan Eagleson, legal counsel for the National Hockey League Players' Association and for a number of its more prominent members and a leading figure in the Progressive Conservative party.

At a news conference in Montreal Monday night before his departure for Moscow with coach Harry Sinden and other Team Canada officials to work out details of the four games to be played in the Soviet capital, Eagleson said the Liberal figure in minister's intervention in the dispute was a political move.

Mr. Trudeau has appealed to NHL president Clarence Campbell and other interested parties to abandon their insistence that eligibility to join Team Canada be restricted to players who have signed an NHL contract when the team's training camp opens Aug. 13.

Since Hull has left Chicago Black Hawks to sign a $2.5 million contract as playing coach of Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, the requirement effectively bars him from participating in the eight-game series.

Eagleson hinted that a solution might be worked out "if everybody cools their heels and things get to simmer down," but added that it would be unwise to attempt to force the NHL to fit its ban on Hull.

The lawyer said some NHL governors might withdraw permission for their players to join the team if they were forced to accept Hull. In that event, the league would no longer be responsible for any injuries suffered by players who defied the ban.

"I'm not going to advise any of my clients to play under these circumstances," he said.

In Montreal and at an earlier conference in Toronto, Sinden said he invited Hull to join the team, despite the apparent barrier to his participation, because "I picked the best team I possibly could and I hope all of them will be able to play."

In case Sinden winds up one left-winger short, he has an offer of help from a man who packs a harder shot than Hull.

John Ferguson, whose beat shots during an eight-year career with Montreal Canadiens were fired at an opponent's chin, already is associated with the team as Sinden's assistant coach.

"He is going to try to make the lineup," said Ferguson, who

A spokesman for the prime minister said Mr. Trudeau felt a meeting with the NHL president would not solve the problem and suggested that Campbell get together with Hockey Canada, the federally-supported organization that arranged the series.

In view of the prime minister's telegram, a meeting would have been only "minimum courtesy," Campbell said.

Air Canada officials, who plan to fly almost 2,000 Canadians to the Soviet Union, say they have plenty of aircraft and more than enough hockey tickets but are having trouble lining up hotel space for the 10-day excursion.

JOHN FERGUSON

was ostracized by Hull approximately after he had logged twice as much penalty time in his eight NHL years as Hull has in 15.

NHL president Campbell, who has been criticized by players and other malefactors to discuss matters of mutual interest, had less success in setting up a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau.

After the prime minister sent a telegram on Hull's behalf, Campbell asked for an opportunity to clarify the issues involved.

Commercial Drama

Two Bat Swings Win Ball Games

Rollins Construction and Dewdin Motors were a case study in waiting for the big hit in Monday night's Commercial Softball League action when both teams won on a single big blast.

Dale Duvall poked a fifth-inning home run off the centre-field Alumilite fence for the only score of the game as Rollins' blanked Howard and Robert Printing 1-0 for the second time in as many nights. Vern Whalen's three-run homer was even more dramatic in the second game of the doubleheader as it erased a 2-0 Ellis Junior lead and gave the Motormen a 3-2 win.

Rollins' Ken Demille and Printer Bob Swan were embroiled in a pitching duel royale until Duvall's blast gave the Constructionmen their 17th win of the season.

Swan who was voted as the Player of the Week for his two hit shutout of Quinte Hotel and his no-hit shutout of the Globe Hotel, wound up the loser despite tossing another two-hitter. Swan fanned three and walked one. He is also batting .364 for the year although held hitless last night.

Demille fired a three hitter for Rollins, also striking out three, and striking one. He allowed singles to John Campbell and Pug Kellar.

Glenn Carleton propelled the Ellis Juniors into what appeared to be their initial victory of the season with a run producing double in the second and an RBI single in the fourth to give the Juniors a 2-0 lead.

Ron Maracle and Rick Rosebush singled to lead off the sixth, however setting the stage for Whalen's home run shot over left-fielder Bob Kerr's head.

Ron Maracle picked up the win for Dewdin, throwing five innings of two-hit shutout relief. The big right hander fanned seven and walked four after taking over from starter Jamie Hunter.

Hunter stayed in the game however and stroked two singles as did Jim Horwood for the only two time hitters in Dewdin's nine hit outburst.

Dave Horwood was touched for the loss on the Junior mound with last inning help from Ron Hill. Carleton had a double and two singles and Dale Akey two singles to lead the Juniors.

Barriage Girls Up to Pressure

When the pressure's on, Mel Barriage plays their best, as proved in last night's opening round of the Belleville Girls' Minor Softball senior playoffs.

The Barriage girls drew the second-place AVCO-ettes in the play-downs but came up with a 12-8 first game victory.

Sheila Alexander paced the winners with four home runs including a grand slam.

In junior play-off action Clayton's TV stopped Doug's Food 21-11 and Turcotte Heating defeated the Yardmen 14-10.

Award Arm-er

Howard and Roberts pitcher Bob Swan winds up for another pitch during Monday night's Commercial Softball League game against the Rollins Construction. Bob was named the player of the week last night on the strength of his two-hit shutout of Quinte Hotel and his no-hit masterpiece over the Globe Hotel. Swan threw another two - hitter last night but lost 1-0 to the pennant - leading Constructionmen.

Wannamaker Puts Out Fire

The Belleville Firemen forgot their bats, bones and boots last night but remembered to take along their gloves and hats in a renewal of their exhibition series with the Peterborough Firefighters.

The local men in red made it three in a row by slapping their opponents 6-4 in the Lift Lock City.

Terry Soule pitched the nine - inning win with Lyle Wannamaker smashing two homers and driving in four of the Belleville runs.

The gist of a nationwide advertising campaign is the fact that at least one company, along with a great many hockey-minded individuals, are upset about the decision not to allow Bobby Hull to compete with the Canadian National Team slated to play Russia in September.

The Claude Neon Advertising Agency has erected billboards in all major cities across Canada in an attempt to organize a write-in campaign to NHL president Clarence Campbell, expressing discontent about the Golden Jet's grounding from the national team. The company is the sole supplier of funds for the campaign.

Their Ontario subsidiary, E. L. Roddy outdoor advertising, has erected four of the 24x10 foot billboards in Belleville. They are located on Front Street (across from the old McCarthy Theatre), on East Dundas (by the Brunswick Bowl building now occupied by UIC), on Dundas West beside Albert College and on North Front Street near the Blackhawk Motor Hotel.

Fans wishing to protest Hull's banishment are asked to write Clarence Campbell, NHL Headquarters, 922 Sun Life Building, Montreal Quebec.

Nothing But Flood Could Stop Squirts

Rain had helped Cobourg once, but nothing short of a flood could have saved them from bowing to the Mead Johnson squirts in the final game of the Oshawa Squirt Tournament played Monday.

The Belleville OASA entry, which saw a 1-0 Saturday lead go down the drain bounced back last night behind the no-hit pitching of Tim Soule, as he carried Meads to an 8-0 win over Cobourg.

Soule blanked the tournament finalists over the seven-inning route, striking out 13 batters and not walking a man. The only Cobourg baserunners came as the result of three Mead's errors.

The Belleville hurler helped his own cause by slamming a grand slam homer in the fifth to cinch the victory. John Henry had actually given him all the support he needed by leading off the game with a double and racing home on Andy Rosati's sacrifice fly.

Soule had a homer and a single to pace the champions attack with Darrell Colman adding a pair of singles and other hits going to Henry, Rosati, Steve Gilbey and David Urch.

The tournament win was the fourth of the season for Mead Johnson, who will be competing in the Markham Squirt Tournament this weekend. Their opening game will be noon Saturday against Sarnia.

Kinsmen Assume Lead

When you're number two you lry harder but both the Kinsmen and Gib Waite Motor tykes were putting forth all they had to stave off that number two position.

The two teams moved into last night's Belleville Minor Softball action tied atop the league standings but the Hawks moved out with a 6-5 night-inning win and sole possession of first.

Sean Monaghan picked up the win firing a six-hitter and fanning 12 batters, in outdueling Doug Haley who gave up five hits and struck out 17.

Monaghan also smashed a homer and triple for the winners.

In another tyke contest United-Reality got together for a 17-12 win over Claude Lucas Spirit.

Stephan Gough had a homer and Rusty Downey two triples and a double for the Reality with Warren Cavalier stroking a triple for the losers.

The Malcolm Brothers had an easy time of it in another tyke game demolishing the A&W 31-1.

Hugh Brennan punched a triple and three singles and Robbi Caverly a triple and two doubles for the winners.

Nothing Wrong With AOCO Batting Eyes

American Optical fitted Stewart Warner with the wrong hitting glasses Monday, en route to a 6-0 Industrial Softball League win.

Grant Collet engineered the AOCO win by steering a four-hit shutout at Stewart Warner. He struck out six batters and walked one. For the losers it was Fred Davis allowing 12 hits over the distance. He walked three.

Doug McKay connected for a single double and triple to pace AOCO with Don Walsh and two singles and a double and Ron McCoy one of each. Dennis Ray doubled for the losers, while Dominic Zenisi, Keith Bertrand and Jerry Lewis each had singles.

UIC needed a four-run rally in the last inning to nip the Merch Mariners 7-5. Gary Mowbray and Pete Hamilton worked for the winners walking five and striking out seven batters. For Morch's it was Don Fobert and Paul Sharpe looking after the pitching. UIC outhit the Mariners 10-9.

Brian Chase had a triple and single for UIC with Ron Embury rapping two singles and Larry Ell a double. Wayne Bowers' three singles were tops for Morch's with Fobert and Sharpe getting two each.

Foley's moved into second place in Division A with an 8-5 victory over Constellation Carpets.

Gary Matler went the route for Foley's, yielding nine hits and three walks while fanning a trio. His teammates bunched 12 hits off Jim Thompson who walked two and fanned the same number.

George Foote homered for the winners followed by Matler with three singles and Glynn Reynolds and Bill Minaker with a double and single each. Tom Bellis had a circuit clout for Constellation, while Ron Mitchell and Wayne Hay punched two hits each.

Gabriel Key Casualty

Ram Hopes Deflated

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roman Gabriel's lung collapsed and—at least temporarily—has deflated the quarterback strength of Los Angeles Rams.

Gabriel, veteran of 11 National Football League seasons and star quarterback of the Los Angeles club sold five days ago for $19 million, was taken to hospital Monday as the first major casualty of pre-season training.

His condition was diagnosed as a spontaneous pneumothorax of the right lung—a condition caused by rupturing of a small air cyst at the top of the lung. The attending physician said the condition could afflict any healthy individual, regardless of physical activity.

Gabriel had been firing passes in the first drill of veteran players at the Rams' training camp when he said: "I don't think I can practise any longer. I can't breathe."

First reports indicated Gabriel could be out from five weeks to the entire season. Later reports, however, said the former North Carolina standout could return to action within a month.

Honored as the Most Valuable Player in the NFL in 1969, Gabriel, 31, has led the Rams on the field since 1965 and has recorded 1,540 completions in 2,900 attempts for 20,196 yards and 142 touchdowns.

In Gabriel's absence, the signal-calling burdens have been delegated to reserves John Wilton and Jerry Rhome.

Elsewhere around pro football, Speedy Duncan, the NFL's leading punt returner last season, was the only veteran who failed to report to Washington Redskins' training quarters. Duncan will be fined $100 a day unless he produces a valid reason for his absence.

Duane Thomas, the elusive, fleet-footed running back who sparked Dallas' drive to the Super Bowl championship last season, was still missing from the Cowboys' camp. Also absent was another Thomas—Charley Thomas, the 6-foot-3, 1 draft selection from Boston College, who hasn't yet signed a contract. Duane Thomas, who boycotted training camp last season in a contract hassle, was traded to the New England Patriots and then dealt back to the Cowboys, conferred with coach Tom Landry last week and then vanished.

Lou Michaels, who hit on eight of 14 field goal attempts after being persuaded out of retirement last season, failed to report to the Packers' training site and coach Dan Devine said the team probably would waive the veteran place kicker.

B.C. Lions Saved By Gerela's Boot

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ted Gerela's 25-yard field goal with 27 seconds remaining gave B.C. Lions a 15-14 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Western Football Conference exhibition game before 27,655 fans Monday night.

The three-pointer climaxed an 82-yard drive that consumed nearly six minutes of the final quarter. Quarterback Don Moorhouse threw a 10-yard pass to strong offensive unit from their own three-yard line and utilized the talents of third quarterback John Musso and veteran Jim Zorn to complete the game-winning boot.

It was Gerela's second successful field goal in six attempts from inside the 35-yard line. Gerela accounted for the Lions' eagles and a field goal in the first half, and a convert on Larry Highbaugh's third quarter touchdown.

Louis Scott took a seven-yard pass from Don Jonas in the third quarter and Mack Herron squeezed through from the one-yard line for Winnipeg's two touchdowns. Jonas converted both.

The Lions dominated most of the game offensively but had difficulty moving the ball inside the Winnipeg 20-yard line. Four times in the first half the Lions club moved inside the Winnipeg 20 but each time the Bombers defence tightened up and held the visitors to only five points.

The Bombers' offence was ineffective throughout the first half. Jim Seavitt sent Jonas back into the quarterbacking spot that last year's most explosive offence began to mown.

TED GERELA

After alternating players freely throughout the first half, both coaches went mainly with their top lineups for the final 30 minutes.

Quarterback Rocky Long played most of the second and third quarters for B.C. with moderate success. A roll out play, the rookie from New Mexico State moved the Lions 63 yards in five plays before hitting Highbaugh with a two-yard pass just inside the goal line at 6:37 of the third quarter, to give the visitors a 12-0 lead.

B.C. quarterbacks Moorhead Long, Eric Gerlarz and Don Bunce completed 11 of 20 passes while Jonas, Tommy Prater and Tony Passander hit on 11 of 25 for Winnipeg. The Lions compiled 402 yards total offence compared to 287 for Winnipeg.

Streit Still Top Contender

BRANTFORD (CP) — A two-under-par 36 Monday gave Kitchener's Joe Kampman the lead in the Ontario Ladies Golf Championship.

Marlene Streit, the tournament's seven-time winner, was one stroke behind the leader in the first 18 holes of the championship.

Third in the standings after the first day of play was Liz Dafiel of Thornhill, who shot 77. Four players are tied at 78: Sue Higgs of London, Gail Borthwick of Mississauga, Carl Dawson of Port Hope and Doro Dey Lockwood of Toronto.

Highlighting Monday's play were two holes-in-one by Borthwick sank one with a four iron on the eighth hole, and Mrs. Higgs got the other on the fourth hole with a two iron.

Ambassadors Tackle Meads for Charity

Mead Johnson will be playing a pair of exhibition softball games this Thursday evening, and for a change of pace, winning or losing makes little difference to either contestant.

Mead Johnson will be supplying the opposition for the United States Ambassadors of Good Will, formally the Connecticut Travellers, in a slow-pitch and fast pitch softball doubleheader this Thursday but the Crippled Children's Fund comes out the winner with all proceeds going to this charitable organization.

The Ambassadors are a novelty in the modern profession of charitable work. All are businessmen and all are on a yearly two-week vacation which accounts for all proceeds coming going to the charity indicated. The team has been making this tour since 1964 and all fees are paid by the team members who bring along their wives on their yearly softball vacation.

The team, made up of New England businessmen was founded by Ed Mulford, who at 52, still manages the pitch most of the games, have journeyed throughout most of the Eastern Seaboard and the southern states in their money raising efforts.

The team consists of an assortment of business executives and laymen who have but one purpose in mind — to raise money. They play a slow pitch brand of softball but prefer nothing better than a good game of fast pitch. They have compiled a 750 win percentage over their travels and have raised over $20,000 for various charities.

They consist of an undertaker at first base, a tool-maker at third, a shoe salesman at third and a pair of religious outfielders — Al Burling-ham, a Protestant minister and Father Kellby, a Catholic priest but they all have two things in common, a love for softball and a love for helping others.

The Ambassadors will be coming off fund raising campaigns in Iroquois Ont. Thursday, and Carleton Place, Wednesday, before their Belleville game and then move on to Woodstock Friday night.

While in Belleville they'll be facing the brother combination of Don and Sonny Holroyd on the Mead Johnson mound, plus the rest of the regular Industrial - Softball League team.

Game time starts at 6:30 p.m. for the double-header at the Alemite with admission 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children and all of it for crippled children.

Yardmen Gals Jump on Grill

A combination of good pitching and good hitting were too much for the Cosy Grill to handle in a Belleville and District Ladies Softball League contest last night.

B.Y.B.F. pounded out 20 hits while pitcher Sue Morton was hitting a four hitter as they pounded the Cosy 12-3 to move into a tie with the Grill for first place.

Donna Presten punched a double and four singles, Leah Harper three singles and Penny Hughes a triple and one single for the Yardmen's team.

Sue Fobert took the loss for the Cosy with Verna Hill supplying most of the hitting for the losers with a homer and single.

Would You Consider

Selling life insurance, if the product and marketing methods were so successful that many of our sales representatives are making Executive Level income their first year with unlimited earning potential! Gaining commissions on existing accounts while selling this needed and wanted Low Cost Product to a vast market of people in Protected territories.

NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY

In fact — we will not take anyone who has sold life insurance in the past 12 months.

WE TRAIN YOU

at our expense to sell a low cost life insurance policy still everyone needs, everyone can afford, and that repeats regularly.

AN IDEAL PRODUCT TO SELL

This is a lifetime career in the opportunity of a lifetime.

TO QUALIFY . . .

You must be a resident of Canada for 5 years, of good reputation, ambitious, hard working. Have a car and be willing to do some limited travel in Eastern Ontario and have a burning desire to be an outstanding success.

IF YOU HAVE . . .

these qualities and want to get the facts, phone for a private interview

Space 'Triclops'

Engineer Bob Lamback checks the circuitry of a three - camera system developed for space television by RCA. Each camera will scan the same square of earth but in different segment of the light spectrum — red, near infrared and green. Each signal may be studied separately or be mixed for full color images.

It will fly on NASA's Applications Technology Satellite to study the feasibility of using satellites to monitor natural resources. (CP Photo)

Guelph Councillors Almost Vote to Close Expressway

GUELPH (CP) — City council night of asking the province to came within one vote Monday close immediately the new 1.6 mile first section of the Hanlon expressway where a number of accidents occurred.

Mayor Norman Jary cast the deciding vote, breaking a 5-5 tie and suggested a compromise resolution which was carried.

That was to ask Ontario to complete the studies immediately on the 87 million stretch of road and if it is determined that an overpass or underpass is needed at the intersection with College Avenue, that the service be closed.

More than 70 area residents were in the public gallery for the debate on the expressway which will eventually link Highways 401 and 7, a distance of 14 miles.

There are three intersections on the present stretch with traffic lights at two of them.

Residents have complained of danger to school children who cross the Hanlon to go to senior public and secondary schools. They say that at College Avenue there is not enough time for children to cross the four-lane highway on a green light.

Aldermen voted to ask Gordon Carton, minister of transportation, to cut the expressway speed limit to 35 miles an hour from 50.

3,600 Hydro Workers Back at Toronto Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — A break will seek a limit of two pickets appeared today in the Ontario Hydro strike as 3,600 employers reported back for work in the Toronto area.

A series of rotating strikes over a three-week period became an all but total walkout last Wednesday when the rotating 4,000 workers across the province joined 8,000 others who were already off the job.

The 12,000 members of Local 1620, Canadian Union of Public Employees, had left only 200 at work in various Ontario areas with supervisory personnel as the only people left to keep the public utility running.

Hydro officials were to go before an Ontario Supreme Court Justice here today seeking an injunction to restrain picketing at the Bruce nuclear power development at Douglas Point on Lake Huron.

Sailing Home For Youth Unlikely

VANCOUVER (CP) — While the damaged Greenpeace III nuclear vessel yards miles homeward from the South Pacific, the Greenpeace Foundation is pondering what action it might take against the French government.

Greenpeace chairman Ben Metcalfe said Monday that the Greenpeace III's skipper David McTaggart of Vancouver told him by telephone that he planned to make a full report to the Canadian government as soon as possible "in order to pursue the matter of rights and compensation."

Mr. McTaggart had told him the Greenpeace III, at ketch, was rammed by a French warship after 32 days of harassment within the zone where France has been carrying out hydrogen bomb tests in the atmosphere.

Whipping For Youth Unlikely

HAMILTON (CP) — The head of the National Parole Service said today it is "practically certain" that a 16-year-old Hamilton youth sentenced last May to 10 strokes of the lash will escape the whip.

George Street was comment ing on a telephone interview from Ottawa on an amendment to the Criminal Code, effective last Friday, that outlaws penal floggings.

The Hamilton youth, Frank Walters, was sentenced to 28 strokes and 28 years in prison for his part in the robbery and beating of a 35-year-old Hamilton man.

Dial-a-Service Proves Popular

TORONTO (CP) — Persons with a message for the public but who have not got a more sophisticated way of telling it than setting up a soap box in a city park.

The method is called dial-a-service recorded messages. It's a miracle of the age of computers, recording artists and everyday citizens who have something to get off their chests.

A spokesman for Bell Canada, which operates the system, said Monday that anyone can load his message and "sing it into the telephone system where it will be available to anyone dialling the correct number.

It can cost as little as $16.70 a month.

Sinatra to Appear Before Crime Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frank Sinatra has promised to appear today before a House of Representatives select crime committee hearing on alleged mobster interests in Las Vegas, New Jersey and Nevada.

The crooner and actor, however, demanded that cameras and microphones be banned at the hearings, invoking a seldom-cited rule permitting witnesses to exhibit either picture-taking or television-radio broadcasting of his testimony.

Chairman Claude Pepper (Dem., Fla.) said the committee wants to ask Sinatra about alleged Mafia money in Berkshire Downs, a racetrack in the name of the actor and whether mobsters tried to "use him as a front."

At the same time, Pepper said, Sinatra asked for and was promised an opportunity to deny the allegation of a self-described onetime gangster-enforcer that Sinatra had been from mar for mob money in the Fontainebleau Hotel in Miami Beach and the Sands hotel in Las Vegas.

Sinatra ignored a scheduled appearance before the House committee June 8 and flew to London to watch a horse race, among other things.

Sinatra was a vice president and director of Berkshire Downs near Springfield, Mass., in 1963. Pepper said his committee has evidence that, now-imprisoned Mafia boss Raymond Patriarca and underboss Gerardo Angiulo had hidden money in Berkshire Downs.

Sinatra also charged Sinatra "fronted for" others "invested money—for Patriarca and Angiulo in the Fontainebleau and Sands hotels.

During that year.

Joseph (The Baron) Barbora, calling himself a onetime Patriarca gunman, told the committee May 24 that Patriarca had unspecified hidden money in Berkshire Downs.

Barbora also charged Sinatra "fronted for others "invested money—for Patriarca and Angiulo in the Fontainebleau and Sands hotels.

Eskimo Handicraft

A federal worker sorts through part of what is considered to be one of the world's most significant circulating collections of contemporary Eskimo arts and crafts. The collection, maintained by the Department of Indian Affairs in Ottawa and considered part of Canada's national treasure, can be divided into several individual exhibits and is available for showing in schools, universities and other recognized institutions. Russia Faces Sharp Challenge From Dissatisfied Lithuanians

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Hundreds of arrests in the Soviet Baltic republic of Lithuania, continuing resentment among its Roman Catholics, and the suicides of three Lithuanians who burned themselves to death could point to fresh, po-tentially explosive problems for the Kremlin.

Since last March, when more than 17,000 Lithuanian Roman Catholics petitioned the Soviet leadership, alleging discrimination against their church, reports of unrest reaching here through usually reliable channels have become steadily more dramatic.

In the official view, Lithuanians have no reason to complain of repression of their religion or of their national development. Soviet news media say the first suicide victim suffered fro a mental disorder and the two days of riots that followed his death involved "hooligans and teen-aged loafers."

Usually reliable sources painted a different picture of the riots, which flared in May after the self-immolation of 20 year-old Roman Kalanta in Kaunas, Lithuania's second largest city.

They said young demonstrators were shouting "freedom for Lithuania," several hundred were arrested, and non-Lithuanes to quell the disturbances.

The authorities were jolted again in June by another outburst of anti-Soviet feeling. latest reports from the republic say. The occasion was an international handball tournament last month in Vilnius, the republican capital.

The sources said student spectators refused to stand for the Soviet national anthem, waved Lithuanian flags and distributed anti-Soviet posters. About 150 were said to have been arrested.

Few are old enough to have had direct experience of the anti-Soviet partisan movement. The second suicide victim, identified only by his surname of Simnis, is reported to have set fire to himself on May 29, the day after police stopped him and three friends from flying the Lithuanian flag atop a town tor in Varena, southeast Lithuania.

Last year, local Communist chief Ivitanas Snuckus complained about some of the younger generation's attitudes.

"We cannot help being put on our guard by the fact that a part of the youth commits antisocial actions, individual youths and young girls permit unwholesome opinions and hostile actions, and set out on the road of crime," he told the Lithuanian party congress.

"They sometimes remember their errors well, but completely forget their high duties before society," he added.

But a young Lithuanian can also look to alternative points of reference—politically, in the West, where he may have relatives among emigre groups, and in religious matters, to the Vatican.

The first could officially be considered treasonable, the second undesirable. Listening to them from radio broadcasts is publicly discouraged, and the local leadership regularly hints at their former compatriots abroad.

McGovern Gains Daley But Loses Teamsters

CUSTER, S.D. (CP) — Democratic presidential candidate Senator George McGovern today was digesting some good and some bad news which he received Monday.

The good news was that Chicago Mayor Richard Daley had announced he would work for the Democratic ticket this November.

The bad news was that leaders of the biggest U.S. union, the two-million-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters, had decerted the Democratic party this election and announced they would support President Nixon's re-election.

The senator first heard about Daley's declaration of support of his arrival late Monday for a two-week working vacation starting at Sylvan Lake Lodge, about 16 miles outside Custer.

He immediately telephoned Daley to thank him and said: "It's a magnanimous move on your part and I'm very grateful to you."

To others, the mayor's declaration seemed something less than enthusiastic, especially since he did not mention McGovern's name. But the McGovern camp chose to regard it as an important support toward badly-needed party unity. McGovern also plans to speak with AFL-CIO President George Meany and other labor leaders in coming weeks.

The AFL-CIO, of which the Teamsters is not a member, is scheduled to meet Wednesday to discuss whether to support McGovern.

McGovern sent letters to 150 labor leaders, including Meany, suggesting a meeting for them to resolve their differences. No time was set.

Richard Daugherty, a McGovern spokesman, said Daley who has been in seclusion since his ouster as a delegate at the Democratic convention last week, told the senator that as a loyal Democrat, he would do what he could to help him get elected.

Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons, chief of the 17-member executive board reversed the union's traditional backing for a democratic candidate, said: "We cannot and will not endorse the Democratic ticket. George McGovern has not earned the support of labor and is no friend of labor."

The union's executive met at Rancho La Costa, Calif., near the Western White House at San Clemente where President Nixon is winding up a 2½-week working holiday.

Nixon, pleased to acquire the support of the union, invited the entire Teamsters leadership to his home for a cocktail party—greeting each one with a smile and a handshake on the drive of his Spanish-style home.

The Teamsters leaders explained their backing of Nixon by saying: "We figure that the government ought to get off our back and out of our pockets. The policies of Mr. McGovern, only promise more of the big brother, nr. less."

Rank and file union members no longer are inclined to follow the advice of their leadership on how to vote in presidential elections but the Teamsters' endorsement of Nixon was a welcome fillip for him in his efforts to pick up support among groups that do not normally vote Republican.

The Teamsters political review had been expected this year. Several union leaders have expressed apprehension over the economic proposals of McGovern.

Nixon has been on good terms with the union's leaders. Fitz simmons was the only union official to stay on the presidential wage board when the other four union members resigned, alleging irregu-larities in the board's chairmanship.

A Teamsters historian said that although the union had supported Senator Hubert H. Humphrey and other Democrats during back to Depression days, it backed Nixon's losing campaign in 1960 against John F. Kennedy.

The Western White House denied the "untrue and absurd" speculative Washington report that linked the Teamsters endorsement with the early release from prison last Dec. 23 of former Teamster leader James Hoffa by presidential clemency.

In Washington, the justice department denied further that the endorsement had any ties with the department's secret decision not to prosecute Fitzsimmons' son, Richard, in Detroit on allegations of misbehaving Teamster funds.

Maryland Governor Ends Mediator Role

BALTIMORE (AP) — After settling two prison uprisings and touching off a brief guard rebellion with his on-the-scene negotiating, Gov. Marvin Mandel says he's through playing mediator.

"This is the last time I'm not going back," Mandel said as he left the Maryland penitentiary after negotiating the freedom of three hostages seized during a six-hour rebellion Monday at the 759-prisoner maximum security prison.

"I'm not going to be on 'call' for the prisoners," said the governor, whose meeting with delegation of prisoners Sunday ended a 19-hour siege at the Maryland House of Corrections in Jessup.

Both institutions were reopened quiet today as prison-tiary guards, who briefly walked off their jobs after the settlement, prepared to voice their own complaints to corrections officials at a meeting today in the penitentiary.

That meeting and the back to-work agreement were arranged at a session between guards and Mandel after the remaining rebellious prisoners were returned to their cells.

Tie Costly

BURFORD, Ont. (CP) — Wearing a tie in this village of 600 seven miles southwest of Brantford can be expensive.

There is an unwritten law here which states that any man caught wearing a tie must pay 25 cents. The money will help pay for a new arena.

Strangers and travelling salesmen are the most vulnerable, but a village treasurer says employees at the two banks are good for a quarter a day.

U.S. Bank Secrecy Act Is Challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A [illegible] federal judges has [illegible] other than the first court challenge of the Bank Secrecy Act of 1970. It requires banks in the United States to microfilm all cheques for government inspection.

"There simply is no right of privacy for bank customers," said John McCarthy, a lawyer in the tax division of the justice [illegible] "he government's case Monday.

The act "will require banks to become government agtes on their customers," said lawyer Neil Horton of the American Civil Liberties Union. The ACLU has joined the California Berkers Association, representing the state's 138 banks, in challenging the act's constitu-CBA lawyer John Anderson argued that in California alone compliance with the requirement to photograph the front and back of each cheque would involve 250 million cheques a month at a cost to the banks of $50,000.

He said this would be like requiring the telephone company to monitor and record all telephone conversations in order to detect criminal ideas.

The act, which was to have gone into effect July 1, was challenged in the CBA-ACLU suit on June 22.

On June 30, Judge William Sweigert of the U.S. district court issued a temporary restraining order country-wide against banks having to turn the microfilm records over to the government pending outcome of the suit. However, he ordered them to make the records in the meantime.

Scott to Appeal Ruling Liberal May Broadcast

TORONTO (CP) — Val Scott, federal New Democratic Party broadcaster in the Yukon Week said Monday he will [illegible] decision by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, all-out Toronto broadcaster Jim Fleming was ordered to do so while running for the Liberals.

When Mr. Fleming was nominated to contest the Oct. 16 by-election in the riding, he asked CFTO-TV station's Saturday evening talk show from Toronto, until after the voting.

The commission's decision Monday allows Mr. Fleming to broadcast until eight weeks before the by-election.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, July 19

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your independent nature high today; curb your temper as well. Hold on in order to work things out then celebrate with a friend.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A brief dilemma solves itself with an unseen consequence. Avoid embarrassment. Go on trying to find the good life.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): If you select some single goal today for attention, you'll be ahead. Find complete changes of scene for evening.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Take the moment, do what you can with it with minimal reference to past events — it is time for a departure from old habits.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): What you give today is gone for good. Give freely within your means, and be done with it for the time being.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your judgment is too strict. Pressure can be averted by compromise, search, expert advice.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ideas run into resistance and out of support, forcing a fresh start later in the day. Do so without criticizing the past.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take a rest before planning forward speculative or experimental goals. Sensitive people are even more so amid today's situations.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The line between healthy self-interest and excess is hard to define. Reflect on where you're headed, take care of your health.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your more aggressive qualities come forth now in full strength. Have a care how you put your thoughts into speaking or writing.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Watch your impatience. Some of what seems essential isn't related to what you really want and need. Give things time to settle.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): See that nothing is left for you to do beyond what you've already obligated yourself to do. Be in shape for a great tomorrow.

One Kidney Might Not Shorten Life

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does a person with one kidney have a shortened life span? My fiance had one taken out seven years ago, when he was 11. I am going to marry him sooner than is planned if he has only a short time to live. He talks as though he may die in about five years. — T. T.

Life expectancy is not ordinarily reduced by removal of one kidney; the remaining kidney enlarges to take care of the body's needs.

However, the reason for the removal may have a bearing on the outlook. So may the way the patient is responding. After seven years, it should be reasonably clear how he is coming along.

My suggestion is that you try to contact the surgeon who removed your young man's kidney, explaining to him why you are so interested. If that isn't possible, perhaps his parents know the details of the operation, which would give some other physician some facts needed for prognostication.

It could be, you know, that with the facts in hand you will be able to alter your fiance's pessimistic outlook.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell us more about botulism. My wife insists on covering every leftovers with plastic film, etc. I tell her foods need air to stay wholesome.

I'm afraid you're barking up the wrong tree. It is true that the botulism spores — if present to begin with — proliferate in an airless environment. Also botulism spores are destroyed if food is subsequently cooked at 212 degrees or more. Most botulism occurs in home canning when high enough temperatures are not applied. Or so-called "cold pack."

However, just covering leftovers with plastic does not provide an air-tight container. There's air present when you put the covering on.

Refrigerate, though. Don't leave at room temperature, not even for a few hours, but because of salmonella, a more common food hazard.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Several months ago I had a breast cyst removed, and feel as though half my body was cut off. Is there such a thing as a breast transplant? — J. W.

Among other things, the transplant of an organ requires an accessible blood supply. When this can be done, reconnecting a small number of severed blood vessels, that is fine.

The breast, however, is supplied by very large number of small vessels instead of a few large ones. A further problem is fat degeneration of fatty tissues, which make up most of the breast, would leave you worse off than you are. I'm sorry, but to my knowledge breast transplants are not possible.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend that not only cooks with olive oil but also drinks a lot of it. I said it will soften the intestines. Please print if there are any after-effects of consuming a lot of olive oil.—Mrs. M. L. H.

It won't soften the intestines." But olive oil is high in calories, so if your friend consumes as much as you indicate, I dare say she's fat.

As to drinking it, I don't know what other harm there could be, but my own reaction is ugh. Doesn't sound tasty to me.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three X's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead — six of clubs.

In the great majority of deals, the most important period of the play comes early in the hand. That is when declarer can best assess his prospects and lay plans that will yield the best chance for the contract.

Since the outcome often depends on how the defenders' cards are divided, he naturally shapes his play so as to deal with the probable possibilities. He attempts to organize the play so as to make the contract if the cards are normally divided, and at the same time he attempts to cover the possibility that the cards are abnormally divided.

Here is a typical example of the two-way view. South starts with eight top tricks, and his only real chance for a ninth lies in diamonds.

If, after winning the club, he cashes the A K of diamonds in the hope of finding a normal 3-2 division — a 68 per cent chance — he winds up scoring only his four aces and four kings and goes down one.

His correct play, after leading a diamond to the ace, is to return a low diamond toward the jack. This play guarantees the contract regardless of how the diamonds are divided.

Consider the actual case first. If East goes up with the queen after the low diamond return from dummy, South acquires four diamond tricks instead of the two he had only two.

If East follows low and permits the jack to win, South still makes four diamond tricks by continuing the suit and driving out East's queen.

If West holds the Q-10-x-x of diamonds, he likewise cannot win more than one diamond trick because his holding becomes exposed and South takes full advantage of it. So, in all cases where the diamonds are divided 4-1, South makes four notrump.

At the same time, this method of play produces 10 tricks if it turns out that the diamonds are divided 3-2.

Tomorrow: All but one.

Fighting Again

Ex-Vancouver mayor Tom Alsbury is back in the political ring again, this time fighting for higher pensions for the elderly. Mr. Alsbury, 67, has founded Pensioners for Action Now, a group which hopes to get the basic old age pension raised to $150 from $80 a month. (CP Photo)

Western Europe Free Trade Zone

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — Agreements which will turn virtually all of Western Europe into a free trade zone were completed Monday.

Four members of the European Free Trade Association—Switzerland, Sweden, Finland and Austria—ended seven months of tough bargaining on trade links with the Common Market, which on Thursday completed similar talks with Iceland, another EFTA member.

All the EFTA members need the agreement with the market to compensate for the departure of Britain, Norway and Denmark from EFTA to join the Common Market Jan. 1.

A settlement between the Common Market and Portugal, also an EFTA member, is blocked at the moment because of a dispute over the price of tomato paste. But negotiations are expected to be completed shortly.

When the tariff-dismantling is completed with the enlarged community, 16 European countries will be exchanging their goods on a free trade basis. The only exception in Western Europe will be Spain.

The agreements, due to be signed in Brussels July 25, differ from country to country but the general outline is the same—free trade for industrial goods within five years.

The reason for the length of the talks has been that certain items have been labelled "sensitive" and in need of special protection measures.

Each country has different priorities. For instance Finland is heavily reliant on paper exports and Iceland is almost wholly dependent on fish and fish products.

U.S. Oil Firm Aids Russians

LONDON (AP) — Occidental Petroleum Co. announced today what was expected to be a multi-billion-dollar deal for scientific and technical co-operation with the Soviet Union. The agreement is expected to be the biggest ever signed by a U.S. corporation with the Russians.

The accord was signed last Friday in Moscow, Dr. Armand Hammar, Occidental president, told a news conference here.

He said the agreement covers a five-year period renewable by mutual consent.

Hammar gave no indication of the monetary value of the contract but London informants put the amount at about $3 billion.

Hammer, 73-year-old former friend of Lenin and an expert on Soviet affairs who speaks fluent Russian, said five areas are covered by the contract. They are:

1. The exploration, production and usage of oil and natural gas in the Soviet Union.

2. Production of agricultural fertilizers and chemicals.

3. Metal treatment and metal plating.

4. The design and building of hotels in the Soviet Union.

5. The use of solid-waste materials.

"The agreement is not restricted to the five areas mentioned," Hammar said, "but permits development in other areas at any time by mutual accord."

Hammer said that the agreement promised compensations for the transfer of scientific and technological knowledge, the sale of patents and the sale of licences.

It also covers questions of patent protection and mutual application for patents.

Hammer said that agreement also was reached for regular and continued contacts by groups of specialists of each side and the setting up of working committees which will meet both in the United States and the Soviet Union to supervise joint programs and projects.

Hammer stressed that the Los Angeles firm's agreement with the Soviet Union was one of the first developments to follow in the wake of the Moscow agreement reached by President Nixon on co-operation in the field of science and technology on May 24.

Norwegian Ship Freed at Cornwall

CORNWALL (CP) — The Norwegian vessel Polarlord was freed Monday night 22 hours after she ran aground in mud off the shore of Summerstown about eight miles from Cornwall.

Two tugs, the Sinmac from Montreal and the Helen MacAllister from Kingston, assisted in releasing her.

Her anchorage now is in Lake St. Francis where she is undergoing inspection.

Bill Blair, assistant deputy director of operations, said there doesn't appear to be any damage and she is not taking any water.

The 322-foot vessel, loaded with 10,000 tons of grain from the Lakehead, should be on her way again today.

Two Indicted

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Two United Mine Workers officials from the coal fields of Appalachia were indicted Monday on murder charges in the slayings of union official Joseph A. Jock Yablonski and his wife and daughter.

Albert Pass, secretary treasurer of the union's Tennessee-Kentucky District 19 and a member of the international executive board, and William Jackson Prater, a field representative of District 19, each were indicted on three counts of murder by a Washington County grand jury.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market edged fractionally higher, interrupting five consecutive declining sessions, in moderate mid-morning trading today.

The industrial index was up 0.04 at 190.29 and base metals 0.07 to 91.35. Golds were down 2.04 to 219.45 and western oils 1.41 to 232.21.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 587,600 shares, up from 483,000 at the same time Monday.

Despite the over-all advance declines held a moderate margin over gains, 122 to 70, with 139 issues unchanged.

Banking, chemical, oil refining, general manufacturing and food processing stocks moved higher while beverage, communication and real estate issues drifted moderately lower.

Falconbridge rose 1¼ to $58. Royal Bank ¼ to 22¾, Steinberg's A ¼ to 25, Bell ¼ to 34¼, Inco ¼ to 43¾ and Placer ¼ to 40¾.

Pacific Pete dropped 1 to 53¾. Seagrams ½ to 35¾, Texas Gulf Inc. ¼ to 16¾, Imperial Trust ¼ to 13 and Mattagami ¼ to 53½.

The market closed lower in most major sectors Monday after slow trading in which it was unable to sustain an early rally.

Egyptians Control Soviet Equipment

Bulk of Russians Will Go by Weekend

CAIRO (Reuter) — The bulk of thousands of Russian military advisers and experts was expected to be out of Egypt by Sunday after President Anwar Sadat's dramatic call Tuesday night for an end to the huge Soviet military presence in his country.

The president said some of the Russians already had left and that his forces now are in control of Soviet military positions and equipment.

While Sadat ordered thousands of Russian military personnel out of Egypt, one Cairo newspaper said that some Russians will remain as instructors for the 200,000-strong Egyptian armed forces.

The authoritative newspaper Al Ahram said Soviet military instructors would continue their mission in Egypt and that the 15-year Soviet-Egyptian friendship and co-operation treaty signed 14 months ago would not be affected.

President Sadat has not set a deadline for the departure of the estimated 20,000 military experts and advisers involved, but some, dressed in civilian clothes, were quietly leaving in small groups.

The Associated Press said Sadat's order does not apply to the 10,000 to 15,000 Soviet civilian advisers assisting in engineering and other fields and in the construction of industrial plants and new dams along the Nile.

President Sadat earnest said in a statement Tuesday before the central committee of the Arab Socialist Union. Egypt's only political organization that the Russians failed to supply arms agreed upon at the dates set for delivery and said he rejected any restrictions placed on the use of these arms.

"We refuse to be restricted in the use of arms, whatever their kind. Any political decision might be made in Egypt without having to take permission from any quarter . . ."

Sadat said that after the signing of the 1971 friendship and co-operation treaty, it had been clear to him that Egypt would receive "certain kinds of weapons necessary for the battle."

The president said "the arms also had been necessary "as far as the time element was concerned" of the state of no war and no peace because this means that Israel would be gaining in the long run.

"Third, non-concession (in any) agreement(s) of any Arab territories."

Some optimistic observers thought that relations with the United States, shattered during the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, might improve, thus encouraging Washington to use its influence with Israel to achieve an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands.

Wilson Meets IRA

BELFAST (CP) — Leaders of the Irish Republican Army held talks with British Opposition Leader Harold Wilson in London Tuesday in an effort to bring a ceasefire to Northern Ireland.

Hopes of a ceasefire still flickered despite a grim milestone in Ulster's sectarian strife that was reached when snipers gunned down two men in Belfast.

One was a British soldier, the 123th to die in Northern Ireland since sectarian violence started in August, 1969. The soldier fell dead in an attack on an army post in the Springfield Road sector of Belfast Tuesday night.

The total does not include 17 members of the part-time Ulster Defence Regiment who have been killed in the last three years.

The other man to die Tuesday was a factory watchman found riddled by bullets. The two deaths raised the death toll in Northern Ireland to 446. This year alone, 223 persons have been killed—the worst period of violence since the Irish troubles of 1922.

Despite all the level of fighting eased to scattered skirmishes across the province leading to fears by the IRA might set off a new offensive.

That meeting followed newspaper reports from Dublin the Provisionals were willing to renew negotiations with the IRA after a truce.

Two factors that peace must not be too far away were reinforced by a report in the well informed Dublin newspaper Hibernia Tuesday quoting the Provisionals' chief of command and his strategist, David O'Connell, as saying:

"We want to shift to using political persuasion."

He confirmed that the IRA has not cut feelers to restore the ceasefire.

Italians Solve Strike

ANACAPRI, Italy (CP) — Who's sweeping the streets in this Isle of Capri town these days? His mayor, the mayor. And who's going from house to house to haul away the trash? The honorable members of the town council. They turned out Tuesday to do what had to be done after 10 days of a strike by the town's 12 street cleaners left things in a sorry state at the height of the tourist season.

Close in on Citadel

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces battled their way toward the walled Citadel in the city of Quang Tri City today and expected 103 North Vietnamese killed in house-to-house fighting Tuesday. One government spearhead unit was reported 100 yards from the southeastern corner of the 19th century fortress and another was closing in from the northeast side.

Court Tears Child From Foster Parents

WANTAGH, N.Y. (AP) — Nine-year-old Adrianne Schoenrade cried frightened tears as she was reunited with her natural mother and separated from the foster parents who had cared for her since infancy age.

"I don't want to go! I don't want to go!" the girl in pigtails wailed Tuesday as she put into her mother's car after a wrenching goodbye to her foster parents, William and Beatrice Cohn.

It was the end of a year-long court struggle between the Cohns, who had brought up Adrienne, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schoenrade of Brooklyn, both reformed drug addicts, over custody of the child.

As the car pulled away, Mrs. Cohn screamed hysterically: "Oh my baby! I can't stand it! What can I prize to do with her now? It's like a nightmare—is it? Somebody tell me!"

The adoption was sealed Monday when the chief judge of the state court of appeals refused to stay lower court decisions ordering Adrienne returned to her natural parents.

Kissinger In Paris For Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today that Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's security adviser, also, was holding secret Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Kissinger, who flew to Paris Tuesday, was meeting with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, North Vietnamese negotiators.

Ziegler said Kissinger would return to Washington later today.

Until Ziegler talks to reporters today, there had been a veil of secrecy over Kissinger's whereabouts.

Fire Was Set

HONG KONG (AP) — The fire that destroyed the former luxury liner Queen Elizabeth Jan. 9 probably was deliberately caused by persons unknown, a marine court of inquiry said today.

"There were at least three major sites of fire, all of them cocurrent within minutes of each other, and there may have been other independent fires as well," the court said after a two-month inquiry ordered by the Hong Kong government.

Bargain Fire Truck Proves Bargain

When members of the Ameliasburg Firefighters Association bought this 1941 pumper fire truck from East York Fire Department for $500, they did so for purely hobby reasons. However, instead of being dressed up only for parades and display purposes, the machine proved in A-1 class and will be used alongside the $27,000 tanker also in use by the volunteer fire department. Here firemen Robert Hanthorne polishes the old siren while Leonard Bedford loads up with new uniforms. For story, see page 2.

Joint Body Preparing To Launch Water Board

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian and American chairmen of the International Joint Commission will take a first-hand look at pollution in the Detroit River system today while en route to an IJC meeting here Thursday during which a major step will be taken to implement the Canada-U.S. water quality agreement.

Louis Rasminsky, former New Brunswick premier who last year took over as Canadian chairman, said in a telephone interview from Port Huron, Mich., that a series of executive meetings, closed to the press and public, have been conducted by the Michigan city since Monday in preparation for the meeting Thursday.

Another executive meeting began this morning in Windsor but was also closed to the press and public.

Mr. Rasminsky and Christian Herter, U.S. IJC chairman, and about a dozen commission officials will travel today by launch through the St. Clair River, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River arriving in Windsor tonight.

The meeting Thursday is expected to result in formal launching of Great Lakes water quality board, provisions for which were contained in the water-quality agreement signed April 15 by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and President Richard Nixon. Ways of channelling pollution information to the board were also provided for in the agreement and are to be discussed Thursday.

Creation of the board—the IJC's key agency for supervising the Great Lakes pollution clean up program—is the first major step in implementation of the five-year $2.5 billion agreement.

Consultations between the Canadian and U.S. governments on the board's composition were held last week and continued on the road this week.

Mr. Robichaud said "a number of items are being discussed", but would not elaborate.

Major Cabinet Shuffle Now Likely in Britain

Maudling stepped down to clear the way for police investigations into allegations of fraud arising from bankruptcy hearings concerning a prominent architect.

Stepping into his shoes is Robert Carr, the hard president of the council and leader of the House of Commons. Carr takes on the task in addition to his present duties. Observers said a cabinet reshuffle appears to be certain in the near future.

Maudling's departure was a major blow to Prime Minister Edward Heath, who is now his most experienced cabinet minister and one who has been extremely loyal to his policies since losing a battle against Heath for the party leadership.

The events leading to Maudling's resignation began when the home secretary's name was mentioned in a recent bankruptcy case involving a London architect, John Poulson.

While the Conservatives were in opposition some years ago, Maudling accepted the chairmanship of one of Poulson's companies.

Although Maudling received no payment for this, Poulson undertook to pay a large sum to a charity for which Mrs. Maudling was raising funds.

The director of public prosecutions, Sir Norman Skelhorn, has directed the police to make inquiries into Poulson's conduct and affairs.

While there was no reason to expect that Maudling would be implicated in any possible prosecutions, the fact that as home secretary he had titular responsibility for the police force made it difficult for him to continue in office and face possible police questioning.

Forty Soldiers Seek Four Men

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Search for the remaining four convicts free since a mass breakout July 19 from Millhaven penitentiary was centred today on Conway village, 20 miles west of here.

About 40 soldiers were sent to the Conway area late Tuesday night to join members of the provincial police who had remained on the spot about 24 hours investigating reports of a suspicious character seen in the district.

Meanwhile, authorities held 10 of the 14 escapees in custody, the last two picked up Tuesday in Napanee and Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Lt.-Col. Bev Totman, Canadian Forces information officer, said at Napanee early today that the reinforced search around Conway was somewhat to the west of where troops were rushed in Monday in response to reports of a stranger in the area.

The troops had been pulled out early Tuesday afternoon but were sent back from Napanee during the night by Maj. Roy McLean, officer commanding a contingent from 1 Canadian Signals Regiment.

"There was a sighting in the area and we are checking them all out," Lt. Col. Totman said.

He said he would make an announcement Thursday concerning the board.

The co-chairmen have already named Allan Prince, director of inland waters branch of the Canadian environment department, and Francis Mayo, of Chicago, chief Great Lakes officer for the U.S. government's environmental protection agency.

Run off Reserve

BRANTFORD (CP) — Five Indian surveyors from the federal government have refused to return to work at the Six Nations Indian reserve because two were threatened by Indians last Friday and had their survey equipment broken, the elected band council was told Tuesday night.

Douglas McMaster, a surveyor supervisor with the department of mines, energy and resources, said two of his men were run off the reserve by about 20 Indians and some equipment was run over by a car.

'Hobby' Fire Engine A Real Bargain

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

CARRYING PLACE — Volunteer members of the Ameliasburg Firefighters Association wanted to buy an antique or semi-antique fire truck to fix up. Nothing fancy. They simply wanted a hobby project.

Jack Finkle, a member of the department located just such a machine being used as a backup vehicle by the East York Fire Department just outside of Toronto. He had been on the lookout for an old fire truck for township landowner Jack Hazard.

East York wanted $2,900 for their 1941 International-Seagrave pumper, but finally agreed to cut this down to $500. They needed the room to house a new piece of equipment.

Several members of the township's fire department had examined and tested the machine and found it in excellent working order. They decided to pick it up at this bargain price.

While strawberry socials, parades and displays were to be the main events attended by the old pumper, the department felt it to be in such good shape they had it rated by the Ontario Fire Insurance Underwriters.

Lo and behold, the machine received an A-1 rating.

This presented an interesting situation. The department has two stations . . . one in Carrying Place, the other in Rossmore. However, of their four pieces of equipment, they only had one pumper, a 1970 engine which cost $27,000.

The second station was only equipped with one of two tankers owned by the AFD.

Township council had indicated they could afford another new engine by 1975. By this time, however, the cost of the new engine, the two stations and other equipment, would be sky-high.

The volunteers indicated they would be willing to use their semi-antique pumper in the interim. Council agreed.

At present, the officers are negotiating with council for a three-year lease to the township. The fire association members want to use the $200 per year they hope to receive as rent for their old engine, for repainting the truck and purchase of other equipment.

However, council would prefer to buy the pumper outright, with the understanding that after three years it would be turned back to the association.

Members vetoed this suggestion, feeling purchase of a new unit might be delayed further if the 1941 engine stands up. The township is checking now on the legality of receiving the truck from association members.

When the slightly scratched up old vehicle rolled into member two firehall here, the volunteers found it bulging with equipment. While they expected to find essentials such as siren and spotlight intact, they were pleased to find that the company should be permitted to take the sand for another three years.

The report expressed concern that 200 jobs in Picton, Ont., could be lost if the lease were cancelled.

Dr. Shulman said that if the lease were cancelled the price of cement would go higher but the Picton plant would not close.

He also disagreed with the report's suggestion that the dunes are unstable and transitory, saying that photographs dating back several years show the dunes have remained stable because of trees planted on dunes.

Dr. Shulman suggested Dr. Terrell was misled by officials of the cement company when he was making his report.

East York fire chief E. H. Bell had included hose, unions, tools, axes, pikes and ladders with the purchase price.

This generous contribution of used but good equipment cut resupplying costs to a bare minimum. Since the purchase, some new hose, fire extinguishers and air packs were ordered.

Volunteers explaining the old rotary engine . . . "An outdated and more complicated piece of firefighting apparatus that requires more maintenance that the modern centrifugal pumps installed in new engines . . . can pump almost as much water as their new truck."

With only 16,466 miles on the clock, the 31-year-old fire truck has a capacity of 625 gallons per minute at 120 pounds pressure. The new engine handles the same capacity, but at 150 pounds pressure.

Now equipped with two engines, the township found it had a divided town.

Residential and local business insurance rates had been cut by 45 per cent. Insurance companies offered the reduction because of the additional equipment now available in the western end of Ameliasburg Township.

Soon the volunteers hope to apply a shiny coat of paint and return the old engine to its original lustre. She still sports the slightly aged and scratched red colors applied by East York, in addition to that departments identifying initials on the cowling. East York bought the pumper the 527th of its kind made by Seagrave . . . from the BCAD in 1946.

And what about fireman Finkle? Well, he's still looking for an antique to bring home for Mr. Hazard's prized collection. He says he has his eye on a 1320 Model A Ford. His contacts on the location of old engines come from an association known as the Ontario Fire Buffs. This is an organization of men from across the province who are interested in the history of firemen and their equipment.

Sandbanks Report Wrong: Shulman

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, called Tuesday for cancellation of a provincial lease allowing Ontario Peetlard Cement Co. to remove sand from dunes near Sandbanks provincial Park in Prince Edward County.

Dr. Shulman told a news conference a government report last week was misleading in saying there would be no ecological damage in the area.

He said the company is taking more sand than necessary and stockpiling it, adding that if the dunes are leveled they will never be replaced.

Dr. Walter Tovell, associate director of the Royal Ontario Museum, in his report, said

Board Supports Twinning Scheme

The superintendent of Hastings - Prince Edward separate schools will contact the mayor of Lake to initiate a twinning project with the city in southwest Germany.

Mayor J. Russell Scott has been promoting the twinning project with Lahr, a municipality about the same size as Belleville and site of a large Canadian Armed Forces base.

Lahr is a Rhine valley winemaking community, a market centre, and is situated on a main north - south highway connecting industrial centres in much the same way Belleville is located on a major connecting link between the Toronto - Montreal industrial areas.

The councils of both Belleville and Lahr have approved the twinning scheme.

Mayor Scott has asked organizations, that participate in the project to send him a copy of any correspondence and confirm with him any plans for international exchanges.

Purpose of the project, says the mayor's letter is "education and an effort in world peace."

At last night's regular meeting of the separate school board, trustees took three steps to implement the scheme. They approved the twinning concept, directed the superintendent to write the mayor of Lahr indicating the board's interest, and asked that schools in the system be notified of the approval and assured that teachers and pupils may now communicate with counterparts in the German city.

Cruiser Wrecked

SOUTH BAY (Staff)—Four boaters reached shore safely last Sunday after their 20-foot cruiser struck a reef off Green Island near Waupoos.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Grosser of Stroud-burch, Pennsylvania, and owners of the lake cruiser and two friends were rescued by boaters who observed the accident from Waupoos bays' camps.

The sunken cruiser was spotted ashore by Wayne Smith and David Wraitsom of Waupoos.

Mr. Grosser was in a regular summer resident at Waupoos, struck the island by using concealed under three inches of water owing to this year's high water level.

A buoy located near the island was moved approximately by one half mile from its former spot and possibly contributed to Mr. Grosser's confusion.

Another Crack Fixed

Gene Rosebush has become an authority on the condition of the visitors' dock, near the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, having been responsible for the upkeep during his lentthy employment with the Harbor Commission. He might have a new toy to play with if repair plans are carried out this summer, according to Harbormaster Don Barrett. Work may soon begin replacing the entire surface of the dock.

School Year Length To Be Subject of Study

Although most boards in Ontario kept their elementary pupils at their desks until June 30 this year, Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board managed to slip in three days of evaluation meetings and year-end wrap-up for its teachers.

Most boards had planned such a program for three days to a week of the year's end, but were warned by a ministry memo from the deputy of education that early release of pupils would result in loss of grants.

The separate schools board kept their elementary and pupils in, but informed parents it would send their children on school closing dates and length of the school year.

The ministry's announcement of June 27 says the 20 member task force will meet in July and report a report.

The release from the ministry notes that education minister Thomas Wells says that the conflict over the coming of historical one between the secondary and elementary schools.

June has traditionally been largely a non-teaching month in the secondary schools, to allow for examinations. It reads the ministry's announcement. "Students who do not have to write exams have been allowed to leave school prior to the legal closing day. Elementary schools were never allowed to release students early."

This, says the announcement, makes this year an ideal time to initiate a full review of the length of the school year.

City Replacing Lamp Bases

The city's Upper and Lower Bridges have undergone a partial night-time blackout as a result of maintenance work being carried out.

It was found that the bases of several of the lamp standards were deteriorating and in need of repair and to carry out the work the lamp standards had to be removed.

Parking Policy Set

The Hastings County Board of Education doesn't feel that it is its responsibility to provide off-street parking for all persons who might attend ball games on school grounds.

This is indicated in a board letter to city hall in answer to a council request regarding a parking entrance to the Prince Charles school grounds from Yeomans Street.

The school board, in its letter of reply, said that such a arrangement would be detrimental to the school grounds and not in the best interests of those using the school yard as a playing field.

However, in order to reduce the hazards of vehicles moving around the school grounds it is the intention of the board to enlarge and enclose with parking curbs the area marked for parking near the Bridge Street entrance to the Prince Charles School.

When it came time for Quinte Chapter, Society of Industrial Accountants 1971-72 chairman Carl Coons right, to pass on the gavel to incoming president Larry Mellor, the instrument of order was nowhere to be found. The substitute . . . a shady hammer, much to the amusement of the new chairman.

Two Dams Seem to Be Answer

After months of study by provincial department engineers and engineering consultants as to the type of structures required, it appears that the long-proposed ice control dam project for the lower Moira might at last get off the ground.

Originally engineers recommended a site immediately to the north of College street as the right location for an ice control dam. The purpose of which would be to alleviate the possibility of springtime floods in downtown Belleville.

A dam north of College Street using the old city-owned stone quarry for ice storage during the spring breakup period was first recommended by provincial engineers in the Moira Valley Conservation report published in 1950.

Then engineering consultants retained by the Moira River Conservation Authority recommended what became known as the Lott dam site as a better location.

The reason for this line of thinking was that a dam closer to the mouth of the river would cause less frazil ice to be formed and also would offer more cake ice storage capacity.

A model of the proposed dam for the Lott site was constructed and tested at Queen's University, but provincial department engineers were not satisfied and directed a further study of the matter.

Now is has been decided that two dams — one at the Lott site and the other north of College Street — would best serve the purpose and engineering consultants Crysler and Latham have been employed to prepare a functional design for both structures, together with cost estimates.

Also, the firm will do a detailed design for the log boom dam which would be installed at the College Street site.

Alderma Robin Jeffrey, member of the Moira River Conservation Authority executive, told city council Monday that the cost of the functional design was estimated at $14,000, of which the city as the chief benefiting municipality would pay 99 per cent.

The city for the past several years has includes money in its capital works budget for construction of the ice control dam but construction has been held up by the delay in design approval.

Now there is no expectation that a construction start can be made before next year. It is possible, however, that some acquisition of property required for the dam on the Lott site may be made this year.

Trenton Planning Board Changes Rules for Builder

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton and Suburban Planning Board reversed last night on an arrangement with builder Stan Klemencic in order to facilitate passage of the new official plan.

Authorities here had agreed that a proposed highrise to be built by Klemencic on the site of the old Frazer estate would require only 1¼ parking spaces per apartment unit, although the standard requirement is 1½ spaces for each unit.

On the advice of Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry, planning board decided Tuesday Klemencic should provide parking at the same rate as other developers.

Councillor George Greer told the board "we should not let Klemencic have it . . . we must be fair and treat everybody the same."

Board member Leo Aziz said "it could be a lot more trouble to backtrack" and make Klemencic provide 1½ spaces per unit.

Clerk comptroller Larry advised doing away with the exception because it may become a snag in getting the new official plan passed.

Planning board chairman Dr. Robert Patrick pursued he could understand the clerk's position, "he wants to keep himself from a lot more work."

The board, however, will still allow an exception it made in parking rules for the proposed Wright St. senior citizens' housing project soon to be built by Ontario Housing Corporation. By this exception, OHC must provide only one space per unit for the elderly.

Says Mayor Duncan Mc-Donald "the senior citizens do not have as many cars." He adds it will not be that difficult for Klemencic to secure an amendment to the official plan, if he still wants only 1¼ spaces for each apartment.

"Klemencic has lots of room," says Dr. Patrick, indicating he does not feel it will be a problem for the builder to comply with the revised rules.

The mayor said today he does not feel planning board was "switching on Klemencic.

At last night's meeting, board member Leo Aziz said he agreed with making the change only if it did not "jeopardize Klemencic in any way . . . it is a matter of ethics."

Planning board was told by the mayor the parking regulations for apartments are needed to cope with the problem of boulevard parking. "Everybody can park on the boulevards," he said.

Dr. Patrick commented "the sooner we go, that (boulevard parking) cleaned up the better."

County Plan Discussed By OMB Representative

PICTON (Staff) — Prince can "safely" grow to a population of 7,600 with the amenities now available but both Bloomfield and Wellington must plan further for additional growth.

B. Carney, a representative of the department of municipal affairs, Toronto, this month told members of the Prince Edward planning board Wellington lacks sewage disposal facilities to accommodate growth while Bloomfield needs plans for piped water and sewage disposal services.

He was discussing the official count plan and mentioned several areas of it which, in the opinion of his department, should be amended, studied further or enlarged.

Mr. Carney said the question of recreation in Prince Edward should have received more in-depth study regarding its possible impact on development in the county.

He criticized a population projection which showed only small numbers although the plan showed future urban and estate residential areas which together could accommodate a population of over 30,000.

Principles in these areas were suggested.

He urged reconsideration in the areas of North Marysburg and South Mary-burg and suggested guidelines concerning public access to water be introduced.

The department of municipal affairs opposes static sold strip development, such as that on the south shore of the Bay of Quinte and on the road to West Lake should be actively discouraged."

The county plan should differentiate between actual summer cottages and other facilities with hotels, motels and recreational outlets now included under section 2.6.1 covered in a separate section.

The plan also should contain a statement concerning the winterizing of existing cottages.

Mr. Carney also suggested that the county planning board and consultants consider the implications of a large public campground as a priority.

How to stop crawling insects from crawling in on you this summer.

Not all the bugs that bug you in the summertime are airborne. Roaches don't fly. Nor do ants, spiders, waterbugs, fleas, crickets, earwigs or silverfish. And trying to stop them with a spray insecticide that's meant for killing flying insects is tough. Because those bug killers don't have the staying power that Crawl-Tox has.

The big difference in Crawl-Tox is an ingredient called Diatinon. It keeps working effectively week after week. Spray baseboards, drain pipes and steps and you'll stop most ground attacks before they even get started.

Unless you have a special ant problem, of course. If you do, the best defence is to attack with Tat Ant Traps.

Just place Tat Ant Traps wherever you see ants — indoors or out. Ants will take bait from the traps back to the colony — and in 3 to 5 days, the entire colony will be destroyed.

Crawl-Tox and Tat Ant Traps. Between them they can stop anything that crawls.

Crawl-Tox and Tat Ant Traps are Registered Trade Marks of CIBA-GEIGY CANADA LTD.

Council Decision

City Council's overwhelming rejection of a motion alleging conflict of interest against Mayor Russell Scott still leaves unanswered the intent and implications of the law in this regard.

We recall once again a case earlier this year in Thunder Bay when four city aldermen were unseated by a court ruling that their business dealings with the city were a contravention of the Ontario Municipal Act.

In a 15-page judgment, District Court Judge W. T. Hollinger said Aldermen Edgar Laprade, Hubert Badanai (Liberal member for Fort William and former Mayor of the city before its merger with Port Arthur to become Thunder Bay), George Loveday and Thomas Jones "are not entitled to sit or to vote in the council . . . by reason of contracts entered by their companies with the corporation (city)."

Judge Hollinger, while ordering new elections to fill the vacant seats, said he felt the aldermen had acted openly and in good faith. Moreover, in an earlier statement, at a January 13 court hearing, he had referred to "this stupid legislation," adding: I don't think we have a guilty party before the court — the legislation is so poor."

Certainly the legislation, as contained in the Ontario Municipal Act and which we printed in part some weeks ago, could be open to more than one interpretation. It may be asked for instance at what point a Mayor or member of council can be regarded as being in conflict of interest, because he happens to have some business interests?

As Alderman Gerald Joyce, a realtor with widespread property interests in the city, asked in effect, where does the law begin and end? Many able people in office, or seeking office, he suggested, could be precluded from doing so, or from voting, by reason of business interests.

For that matter, members of city council include professional men and merchants as well as two women members. Most of them have business and property interests in the community.

The motion had been brought by Alderman Donald Southern who claimed that a conflict of interest existed between the Mayor, in his position as chief magistrate and land development in the city's north end owned in part by the mayor.

As in the Thunder Bay episode there seems to have been no effort by the Mayor to act other than in good faith. Council had been aware of his interest in the development all along and hitherto no one had challenged it.

If there are still doubts in the public mind, citizens may still have the opportunity to pursue the matter further at election time later this year, if not challenge the Mayor's position in the courts at any time. It could have a bearing on membership of the next Council if there is a contest either for the Mayor's office or for other seats. Meanwhile we respect Council's decision. It left no room for doubt as to the majority feeling in this matter.

Outdoor Fun

There are many negative qualities that go into the making of wayward youth — the kind who in Kingston recently removed the heads and caused other damage to two century-old statues in Chatsworth cemetery, not to mention the numerous other instances of vandalism cited by communities in our own area of late.

However, we're sure that if such youngsters had the right kind of atmosphere at home and in their early years and were exposed to interesting outdoor activities and companionship such as those now being made available to city children at Vanderwater Park, the chances of them indulging in anti-social behavior would be greatly lessened.

We are happy to see such an encouraging response to the day camps organized jointly by the city recreation-arena department and the Belleville Family YMCA. The more youngsters are exposed to this kind of outdoor environment the better. Unique in this regard, we are fortunate to have Vanderwater so close to the city.

Government's Costly 'Reforms'

Finance Minister Turner's Fight with Cabinet Spenders

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A Very Prominent Liberal — use of the capital's hills is deliberate, calculated to underline the man's stature — laments that the cabinet activists finally are "jesting to" Finance Minister John Turner.

They made a dead set on him during his term as Justice Minister because he and a small but tough and stubborn minority in cabinet resisted their headlong rush to "restructure" the social and economic system in the name of "reform".

"They hammered him in cabinet," this Very Prominent Liberal has disclosed, "assailed him as caucus, bent and bloodied him at every turn."

Their motive, says this veteran of many cabinets and even more Parliaments, was to "isolate" Turner, to make him feel more alone in the cabinet than he actually was.

Now that he is Finance Minister, he relates, they have found an even easier — and if it works — much devilier way to "get" him.

They are among the big spenders of cabinet, the special activists like Welfare Minister Munro, Manpower Minister Mackasey, State Secretary Pelletier, Solicitor-General Goyer, Communications Minister Stanbury, who contrive to upset tax money to change the system by which the taxpayers earn that money to pour into the treasury.

And that is precisely where, warns this very prominent Liberal, the Finance Minister is most vulnerable in the control of spending he is charged with exercising.

He cannot control, nor veto government spending even in questionable areas, and for not altogether desirable projects, but he can discourage it.

If he is clever, stubborn and tough, and knows his financial business, he can make the spending extremely difficult.

More important, he can make it difficult, too, for the Prime Minister to approve it in the face of his Finance Minister's disapproval.

But that works — the stonewalling by the Finance Minister of cabinet activist spenders — only when he is there, in person, at Privy Council, ready, willing and able to take a stand and make a fight of it.

When he is not there, but out of the Capital?

A "steal" then for the cabinet spenders.

They can ram through the spending of millions because, the man who traditionally says "no" because he thinks it is questionable or the treasury cannot afford it just is not there to say it.

It is getting to the point, warns this Very Prominent Liberal, that John Turner hesitates to make the trips out of Ottawa that any Finance Minister must.

He is often reluctant to go and leave the treasury unguarded because of the orgies of returning to find the activist spenders have gone a little looting.

It is not exactly a new hazard in the life of Finance Ministers.

The squeeze was on, "austerity" was the order of the government day, retrenchment an emergency way of life for all departments.

Donald Fleming was Finance Minister, Douglas Harkness Minister of Defence.

Harkness was really hurting for money urgently needed, he argued, for the Armed Forces.

But Fleming said "no." Defence, like all other departments, had to tighten its belt.

Then Fleming left the city on government business and returning discovered that during his absence cabinet had voted $50 million to transplant Harkness and the Forces.

Of course Fleming screamed bloody murder, but it was too late, the money had been appropriated and Harkness already allocating it among the services.

Now the same thing is happening to John Turner, except the money is not going for such necessities as defence, but for welfare, for social gadgetry, for the downgrading of the work ethic for confrontation, for workless "make-work" in many jobs, and for a score of other things calculated, in the name of "reform" to change the system.

Welfare Minister Munro said it all when he called those who still believe in the worn ethic "hard hats".

John Turner, beset as Finance Minister by the activists intent on discrediting and even destroying him, came out on a few allies in cabinet, beyond Transport Minister Jamieson, Veterans Minister Laing, Consumer Affairs Minister Andras and Treasury Board President Drury.

Where stands the Prime Minister?

The Very Prominent Liberal says he never was sure, and still is not.

Council Decision

City Council's overwhelming rejection of a motion alleging conflict of interest against Mayor Russell Scott still leaves unanswered the intent and implications of the law in this regard.

We recall once again a case earlier this year in Thunder Bay when four city aldermen were unseated by a court ruling that their business dealings with the city were a contravention of the Ontario Municipal Act.

In a 15-page judgment, District Court Judge W. T. Americans Boost Canadian Travel Statistics

Brantford Expositor

"Canada led the world as a tourist attraction in 1970", said the news agency report from United Nations, Flaherty has incorrect. A reporter combing the latest UN statistical Year Book had confused foreign visits with tourists. The distinction is particularly important in Canada's case.

UN had recorded that in 1970 Canada had 37,600,000 visitors from other countries, a total followed next by Spain with 22,657,000. As the reporter mentioned, 21,000,000 of our visitors were Americans. This was 65 per cent of the total. But one corrective statistic he did not have is that around 65 per cent of Americans visiting Canada each year enter and leave on the same day. So in 1970 we had over 15 million one day Americans visitors. Of the remaining 9,000,000 many such as business men are likely to have stayed only two or three days. So the correct figure for persons who can properly be called U.S. tourists is likely to have been nearer 8,000,000. Nevertheless, they were a welcome and valuable source of revenue. For a comparison it may be mentioned that 80 out of every 100 Canadians who visit the States return home the same day.

Canada's nearest to a top spot in the UN's wide ranging tabula tions is a second place to the USA in the use of energy. We are behind Hong Kong in our rate of newspaper readership, and Bermuda leads us easily in per-capita ownership of television sets. In infant mortality rates (deaths under one per 1,000 live births) we do no better than 18th (20.8) with Taiwan one place ahead of us and Sweden at the top with a low low 11.7. Our shameful ranking on this is likely to continue until more is done to reduce the high infant death rate in our North west Territories.

Subversion Is A Threat to Society

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Who is draining the life blood of North American society? Who has perverted patriotism into a "dirty word" while discrediting our institutions, traditions and law enforcement agencies? Who has encouraged drugs, sloth and revolution among our youth? Who synchronizes the efforts and gets of our continuing demonstrations, confrontations and riots throughout the free world? Who fosters the "permissive-ness" that allows Supreme Courts to quietly re write Constitutions?

Who sews the seeds of hate in American blacks, Mexicans, Indians and poverty groups — and uses the Canadian Indian and French speaking Canadian as "dupes"?

Marxist and Marxist Clubs, bookstores and demonstrations; radical teachers and professors; revolutionary "preachers" and last such a vast army of opinion elements in each country. Coexistence? Coming, target and technique? Not on your life!

When visiting the U.S.A. Krushchev boasted that our grand children would live under "socialism" (communism.) The communists have told us they will bury us. We have been told that we will "hang" ourselves.

The trouble is, if and when Canadians and citizens of the United States of America wake up, the most shocking revelation will be the extent to which we ourselves — from politician to poet and preacher, from teacher to floorwalker — helped dig the grave of freedom as we have known it.

Criminal Law Amendment Act Makes Many Changes

By FARMER TISSINGTON
Ottawa Bureau

If you have been worried about continuing inflation you may be relieved to learn that inflation has now caught up with the criminal.

In essence, is the effect of one of a number of amendments to the Criminal Code which became law July 1 as the Criminal Law Amendment Act officially proclaimed, following its passage through Parliament some time ago.

In numerous areas of the Criminal Code which deal with prohibition, penalties and the value of property involved in offences, the key figure was $50. Prior to 1933, the amount stated in these sections of the code was a mere $10. In May of 1933, Parliament increased the figure to $25 and in 1954 doubled it to $50, where it has remained since. Early in 1970 Senator MacDonald introduced a bill in the Senate which would have had the effect of increasing the amount to $200. His bill died on the order paper but the intent of his measure has now been incorporated in the amendments which became law July 1 and reflect the changing value of the dollar.

The Criminal Law Amendment Act introduces some very wide-ranging changes in the federal approach to wrong-doing and is an attempt to modernize the law and in keeping with today's changed conditions. At the moment, the breath analysis law seems to be in some trouble with the recent ruling that a motorist apprehended and ordered to take such a test may now apparently refuse to do so until he has consulted with a lawyer. If this decision is upheld and the flu does not find a way around it, the breath analysis law becomes almost useless.

However, if it can be enforced in any meaningful way, then under the new amendments, the law will also be applied to boat operators as well as drivers on the highway. This is obviously an attempt to crack down on the water cowboys who have often terrorized swimmers and other boaters with their aqua antics while under the influence.

Convicted criminals may no longer be whipped as the result of another of the amendments. Whipping has long been a contentious issue and many groups and individuals have fought against it, beginning with the 1956 report of a special joint committee of the Senate and Commons. Subsequently, recommendations to abolish whipping came from the Canadian Corrections Association, the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Correction Association. Then there have been several private member's bills introduced as far back as 1968. Parliament has finally bowed to this pressure and the use of the cat-o-nine tails and other forms of whipping now have ended.

Another somewhat revolutionary step in terms of sentencing has to do with persons who are convicted and receive a sentence of less than 29 days. The judge has the authority to order that the sentence be served intermittently, such as at nights or on weekends. The theory behind this is that the convicted person can continue to earn a living and his family will not become a charge on the public purse.

Another change, along the same line, has been advocated for some time and involves people who have been convicted of driving offence and who would normally have driving licences suspended for six months or more. It will now be possible for a judge to suspend the right to pleasure driving but, in the case of professional drivers who must operate a vehicle in order to earn a living, to permit them to keep their licenses for work purposes only.

The amendments also strike a blow for women's lib. From now on more and women will be equal in eligibility and responsibility for jury duty. A change that may not bring all that much joy to the weaker sex. Other changes concerning juries provide for prosecution of a juror who discloses what takes place in the jury room and newspapers may be prosecuted for publishing what takes place in a court room during a time when the jury has been excluded.

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN G. ESCOTT

Escott – Watson

St. Matthias' Anglican Church Etobicoke was the setting for the marriage ceremony on Saturday, July 8, 1972, when Claire Margaret Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Watson, Belleville became the bride of Brian George Escott, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Escott of Willowdale. Canon L. Arthur Page of Orangeville performed the ceremony and A. Roberts, at the organ, played traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Arthur Watson, the bride wore a floor length empire styled gown of dotted Swiss over silk with a narrow sash of white velvet ribbon accenting the waistline. A two-tier veil embroidered with roses and trimmed with rose design lace was held by a headdress of white velvet ribbon. She carried a bouquet of roses, shasta daisies and baby's breath intermingled with matis and tied with white velvet ribbon enfolding an heirloom lace handkerchief.

Maid of honor Miss Barbara Ann Cullyer of Toronto wore a floor length gown of floral silk in shades of pink featuring an empire waistline trimmed with matching velvet ribbon. Miss Lynne Davidson and Miss Mary Boyko, also fo Toronto as bridesmaids were gowned similarly to the maid of honor, but in shades of gold and blue respectively. Each carried a garden bouquet of shasta daisies and coreopsis.

Russel Brimson of Willowdale attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Andrew Watson, brother of the bride, Belleville and Julian Aziz of Toronto.

A wedding reception was held in the home and garden of Mr. and Mrs. George Escott in Willowdale where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a floor length gown of pink crepe with beige accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a floor length gown of floral trevira in shades of white, blue and beige with white accessories and a corsage of apricot shade sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Paris and London, the bride donned a linen ensemble consisting of fitted jacket with navy braid trim with white slacks and white accessories.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Escott will reside in Willowdale.

MR. AND MRS. PETER MILLIGAN

Milligan – Horrigan

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony of Mary Elaine, daughter of Mrs. Jerry Horrigan, Belleville and the late Jerry Horrigan and Peter Leroy Milligan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Milligan, Belleville. Father Philip Horrigan, cousin of the bride officiated. Mrs. Neil Phieffer was soloist with the accompaniment of Sister Lois, the organist.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, Daniel Horrigan selected a floor-length white imported eyelet hosted gown. The princess line gown featured a chapel train, long lily sleeves and tiny pearl buttons. She carried red roses and trailing ivy.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Bob Wood wore a long princess line gown of pink flowered chiffon. Long sleeves and a scooped neckline enhanced the dress and she wore tiny matching bows in her hair. She carried long stemmed yellow mums.

Miss Irene Horrigan, sister of the bride as bridesmaid wore a mauve flowered chiffon gown identical to the matron of honor's. Mrs. Dan Horrigan, sister-in-law of the bride, as bridesmaid also wore a green flowered chiffon gown identical in style to the matron of honor's. Each bridesmaid wore matching bows in their hair and carried long stemmed yellow mums.

Flower girls, Miss Jennifer Parks, cousin of the bride and Miss Paula Wood were long dress'en identical to the bridesmaids and each carried nosegays of tiny yellow mums.

Bert man was Bob Wood, Tim Enright, cousin of the bride and Carmie Milligan, cousin of the bridegroom were the ushers.

For the reception held at Elk's Lodge, Belleville, the bride's mother received guests wearing an ivory crepe dress of princess line with long sleeves trimmed with draped flowers. A matching hat, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow talisman and bronze tinted roses completed her dress.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a teal blue lace dress with white accessories. A corsage of white talisman roses tinted blue enhanced her dress.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and western points, the bride donned a baby blue lace dress with a matching sleeveless coat and white accessories. A white orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS M. LEE

Lee – Tripp

Christ Church was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony of Wendy Joyce Tripp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tripp, Belleville and Dennis Maurice Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee, Belleville. Canon R. B. Wright officiated while James Noakes provided the organ music.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a full length gown of rayon and nylon lace over taffeta with a scalloped lace neckline and empire waist. The scalloped lace over the skirt extended to an oval train and the bride wore a rayon satin headpiece.

The shoulder length bouffant nylon veil was accentuated by lilacs with pearl like buds. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses with white and pink carnations.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Carl Byrd, sister of the bride wore a white cotton voile gown with an underlay of blue polyester. She wore blue flowers in her hair and carried a nosegay of baby 'mums tinted in blue.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. George Butler, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Margie Scanlan were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in pink. They wore pink flowers in their hair and carried nosegays of baby 'mums tinted with pink.

Best man was Ricky MacDonald and Carl Byrd, brother-in-law of the bride and Bob Wessels, brother-in-law of the bridegroom were the ushers.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a coat and dress ensemble in pink lace. Beige accessories and a corsage of white mums tinted pink enhanced her dress.

Dowling – Durkin

St. Charles Borromeo Church was the scene of the recent marriage of Patricia Elizabeth Durkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Durkin, Read, and Thomas Arthur Dowling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edmund Dowling of RR 3 Napanee. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Father Ferguson, Rev. Father Sweeney of Desoronto was present in the sanctuary. Organist was Mrs. Joseph O'Neill and Mrs. John Sexsmith was soloist.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of imported white sata-peau, featuring an empire waistline edged with sculptured Alencon lace. A border of the same lace enhanced the bodice front and back as well as the high neckline. The full Bishop sleeves had Alencon lace cuffs. The detachable chapel train was trimmed with the same lace. She wore a four-tier shoulder length veil of nylon illusion falling from a headpiece of Alencon.

Matron of honor was Mrs. William Kaschuk, Scarborough, wearing a full length dress of white and blue flowered nylon over blue satin lining. She had blue miniature carnations in her hair and carried a basket of white mums, miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Miss Joan Durkin, Belleville, sister of the bride, Mrs. John Darey, Napanee, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Ann Durkin, Belleville, sister of the bride. All were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Best man was J. Edmund Dowling, Napanee, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Carman Spierit, Toronto, Vincent Rutlan, Port Hope, and Ross Durkin, Read.

For the dinner held at Melrose Church hall the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a rose silk crimplene dress, white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's mother wore a turquoise arnel jacket-dress trimmed with matching lace, white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath. After the dinner, a reception was held in Read Parish Hall with music provided by the Rivermen.

The couple will reside at Napanee RR 3.

Hospital Bar

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Summerfield Road Hospital here has become the first hospital in Britain to open a tavern on its premises. The bar was proposed as a way of supervising patients' drinking after two 70-year-old geriatrics patients returned intoxicated from an evening out.

Ann Landers

Lavish Cemetery for Animals

Dear Ann Landers: I just returned from visiting my sister in San Francisco. We went together to the cemetery to put flowers on the grave of our father. On the way home she said: "We're going to stop and put a rose on Tweetie's grave." I asked: "Who's Tweetie?" Her answer floored me. "Tweetie is our pet racoon." So help me Ann, they buried that animal in a satin-lined casket and put a marble headstone on the grave. I'm ashamed to tell you my sister cried more over that racoon's grave than she did at Papa's.

The whole day had a night marish quality. I saw graves for goldfish, parakeets, hamsters and even a python. The grounds were beautifully kept and the landscaping and headstones must have cost a fortune. The pet cemetery was in much better condition that the one for humans. I find this hard to take and even harder to understand. Can you explain it? — Oddball in Lexington

Dear O.: The attachment some people feel for their pets defies explanation because it is not rational, it is emotional. People do what makes them feel good, and obviously a great many people feel good about giving a pet a fancy burial. Incidentally, Lexington, Ky. has the most magnificent cemetery for horses in the world. When I visited there I was stunned by the beauty of the grounds and the lavishness of the monuments.

For Additional Women's News See Page 10

Dear Ann Landers: I am a typist-secretary in a large office. Two of the girls I work with have been going to the USO for several weeks and having a wonderful time. They asked if I'd like to go with them because there's a shortage of hostesses. Incidentally, Ann, I am 20 yars old, and these girls are both 21.

Last night I told my parents I was going to a USO dance Friday. My mother hit the roof. She said no decent girl would be seen in such a place, that it's a pickup parlor for low-class servicemen.

I was shocked. These girls are very respectable and would not be interested in a pickup parlor. We moved here from a small town two years ago, and perhaps I am naive. Please tell me if the USO centre is a decent place for a single girl.— Oak

Dear Miss Oak, Park: Only respectable, high-type, well-recommended girls are permitted to be hostesses at USO centres. All males are carefully checked by a senior person in charge. No girl is admitted unless she is 18 years of age and has excellent references. Absolutely no liquor is served on the premises and if anyone brings liquor in he is invited to leave. Most USO dances are over at 11:15. As for the "low-class" servicemen, this is a gross insult to our boys in uniform and you can tell your mother for me that she gives several hundred thousand apologies.

Dear Ann Landers: A woman who works in our office needs to know how she looks to others because it is painfully apparent that she doesn't have a clue. This dolly weighs at least 160 lbs. she's about five feet, two inches and when I say she wears transparent bras and panties under her white and pastel silk jersey shifts, you can believe it. Even though she is old enough to be my mother I think I ought to tell her. How can I do it tactfully?—Disgusted

Dear Dis: There is no tactful way to tell a woman to put on a brassiere undergarment. Just tell her straight out. But don't be surprised if noticed changes. Most people know what they look like.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W.I.

FRANKFORD — The July meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held in Scott's Uniondale Hall, 6th Concession of Sidney with Mrs. G. Sine as hostess.

Mrs. P. Tracey, president, conducted the business portion of the meeting. Correspondence was read and the members approved the sponsoring of a 4H Homemaking Club with Mrs. D. Harry as leader. Plans were also discussed regarding catering at the Quinte Exhibition in August. Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. A. Sine, Mrs. H. Richards and Mrs. K. Paul gave convener's reports.

Mrs. E. Sine, the program convener spoke of dieting and exercises, stressing some of the pitfalls in dieting. Miss Merribeth Barkitt featured with a tap dance and Mrs. Abrams and Mrs. Tracey demonstrated some useful exercises to help control weight.

Appreciation was expressed to the hostess and those responsible for the program and the lunch committee.

Following the meeting, a diet lunch was served.

Do Your Pains Mean Arthritis?

By DORIS CLARK

Jimmie Fysh, 58, had a stiff knee joint that was swollen and painful. He thought it must be rheumatism. Bruce M. recognized the symptoms: he had the same kind of pains in his back and cured it with an outlandish concoction involving a few tasty ingredients' of his kitchen shelves.

If you suffer from arthritis, you will meet people who will swear with all the honesty in the world that a certain preparation, or the wearing of a copper bracelet, or carrying a potato in the pocket, cured their arthritis. In days gone by, itinerant medicine men were known to make modest fortunes by peddling their potions for this ailment.

For some mysterious reason it sometimes happens that a case of rheumatism will clear up by itself. If this should happen to you at the time you are dosing yourself with some kind of pill or carrying a rabbit's foot, naturally you are likely to credit that particular remedy for your cure.

More than a million Canadians are afflicted with some form of arthritis. It is estimated that $20,000,000 is spent yearly in Canada on useless remedies. False cures waste time. Get to your doctor.

Dear Doris: What do you think about people who are willing to commit their physical bodies to a very intimate relationship, yet are not willing to commit their total selves to this?

I am talking, of course, about the 'boys and girls who undertake to live together without being married. Do you approve of this; or even understand it? — Doubtful.

Dear Doubtful: I can suggest some reasons why they do it, but as for approval, well — I am not sitting in judgment. Today's youngsters have plenty of pressure put on them to give away their bodies, before they really understand all the psychological and emotional implications of this kind of prostitution. They think it is being done and that it is fun. When they come to the next day, the whole thing may well have turned sour.

I have heard young people staunchly defend their position saying that they feel a warm regard for each other but can not see why this should mean committing themselves, for life. I have heard these same young people speak later of the heartbreak of being rejected, lightheartedly, by the partner who tires of the relationship first.

You may argue that marriages don't last forever, either but a good many do, and a marriage ceremony takes with it a commitment. People who have made solid promises before God are more inclined to do their level best to make their union something satisfying and lasting.

Dear Doris: I think the English gadget to prevent snoring is called a 'Snore-Ball', I haven't seen one, but know that they consist of a soft rubber ball (tennis ball size) attached to a long loop of cord.

The snorer puts it on, letting the ball hang at the back between his shoulder blades. When he gets on his back (where most people seem to snore) the ball is supposed to dig in his back and wake him up! — All For Less Noise.

Dear Less Noise; Sounds intriguing. Now if somebody'd just discover a store in London which stocks the blessed things we might get some Canadian victims of our lousy snorers to write for one and report.

Any takers?

The Experts Say

There Are Many Practical Uses for Peanuts

TORONTO (CP) — Someone once counted, and found 336 uses for peanuts, not all of them intensely practical.

A lot are, though. They include the use of peanut, plant or shell in shaving cream, shoe polish, dye, fertilizer, insulation filler, sweeping compounds.

Nancy High says only in North America are peanuts relished in peanut butter, and its manufacture accounts for about half the entire U.S. crop.

Miss High is home economist for the Peanut Growers' Associations of North Carolina and Virginia. She was in Canada on a promotional tour sponsored by Canada Packers Ltd.

She says China and Africa are the biggest producers of peanuts.

They are used mostly for oil for cooking. They are pressed and the remains used for fodder. I sometimes think if we could teach people to eat the peanuts instead, it could be part of a solution to world hunger."

Miss High says the biggest peanuts in the U.S. production are the ones used for cocktail peanuts, and are mostly grown in North Carolina and Georgia.

"Standard peanuts are french fried.

"Dry roasted peanuts haven't any fat removed, as is commonly believed, it's just that no oil is added. They are coated with a gelatinous material to which salt and spices will adhere, and roasted.

"The caloric difference is negligible.

"Peanuts aren't really very fattening, though somehow they get the blame when people eat them at a party where they have drinks and then go on and eat a big dinner."

She says someone has also said the peanut butter and jam sandwich is second in popularity only to the hog dog in the U.S. However, she admits she isn't sure how the research was done.

"Peanut butter in Canada has to be 96-per-cent peanuts. The different tastes come from different methods of roasting and from additives.

"The additives are sugar, salt and some vegetable oil. Oil has to be added or the peanut butter would be too dry."

She says peanut butter began life as a health food about 100 years ago when a St. Louis doctor was looking for something cheap, nutritious and digestible for his patients to eat.

He made it in an ordinary kitchen grinder. You can make it in a blender, if you like, but Miss High says you will want to add salt and oil, even if you start with salted peanuts.

She said there is no sure way to tell if peanuts in the shell are fresh.

"You're buying a pig in a poke. Shelled peanuts are a better buy for freshness.

"Peanuts will keep for a couple of years under refrigeration.

"They are technically a legume, like peas and beans, though botanically they're a fruit because they flower and then produce their peanuts."

New Residents Honored

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams who are now living in Stirling were tendered a surprise party in their home on Tuesday evening, July 11 by friends and neighbors. The couple had formerly resided in the country (the Stirling-Campbellford Rd.) for the past 22 years.

Ralph Jeffs was master of ceremonies. Humorous selections were given by Mrs. Robert Hoard and Percy MacMullen. The names of neighbors and friends who had donated money were signed on a card and Ross Jeffs read the message and presented a purse of money from the donors.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams expressed appreciative thanks for the party and the remembrance. The group then served the refreshments which they had provided for the social hour.

Mrs. Carman Reid, Kingston was holidaying this week with her parents and was happy to be present for the party.

Those who also attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jeffs, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Jeffs, Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoard.

Mirror of Your Mind by JOHN CONWELL

Can conscience cause stress?

NO, although some of the things people do that cause them to be "conscience-strickers" can bring on stress and tensions. Even so, if it were not for the deterrence of conscience, every individual would need his own personal bodyguard. Yet conscience is more than a law-and-order device. It is a built-in personal "gauger," by which a person can tell if he is an "all right guy." If he is able to do so, then he doesn't have to worry about internal stress.

Are children willfully impolite?

NO; they aren't malicious, although children sometimes will deliberately act impolite. It really isn't their fault. Many youngsters grow up with the false impression that courtesy is just another yoke to keep children under control. When they are purposely impolite, many children aren't trying to get a rise out of their elders. More likely, they are trying to prove to themselves that they can be just as independent as the next person.

Does a wife's job endanger her marriage?

NO, not if she wants to continue working though her husband can support them both. She should be free to choose, however, if she can find "fulfillment" in maintaining a home, fine; if she believes she would like her job as well as marriage, that is her privilege, too. Her husband, of course, since he loves her, will do everything he can to make their life together a success whether his wife goes out to a job or not.

NEVER BEFORE

The Canada Council set a precedent by giving an $8,000 initial 1-year grant to Festival Lennoxville, the all-Canadian drama festival running to Aug. 5. Normally no grants are given until a second season.

French Designer Honored

PARIS (AP) — "My dream was to become a surgeon, but my father would never have allowed me to play with cadavers," says Pauline Trigere.

So she "had to cut up dresses instead."

Her father did know best, and recently this leading lady of the American haute couture popped over to her "home town" to receive the silver medal from the city of Paris.

"I wasn't the first American designer honored just because I was born on the Place Pigalle," demurs Mme. Trigere. "It was because I'm still very French in my thinking and designing."

Although she went to New York in 1937, her accent still is as French as the fabrics she uses for her signature evening dresses in bright wool.

"A Trigere client buys with confidence, with the assurance of not looking like a freak," she says. "We do classic tailored things. None of those funny chiffons. She buys them to please her husband and lover."

Clients include Kitty Carlisle, Bess Myerson, Mrs. Leonard Bernstein, Mrs. Alfred Van Ierbilt, the Duchess of Windsor and Mrs. Andrew Goodman, who does her shopping at Bergdorf Goodman, a Manhattan store she helped to make famous.

"Women," decrees Mme. Trigere, "are always going to dress up, unless we go back to Adam and Eve, which doesn't seem probable."

Knee Deep In Sidewalk Sale

Judy Kammer (left) and Cathy Pyrrell hoisted themselves yesterday sorting through mounds of new-ish items to be sold at the sidewalk sale beginning Thursday morning. This year's sale will be designed not only for parents but for youngsters with the theme of the sale being the circus.

Conservation Authority To Celebrate Birthday

The Moira River Conservation Authority will take advantage of the offer of the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources to prepare signs to direct special attention to authority reforestation properties.

The signs would be placed along conservation tour routes in the Moira watershed.

The authority forest advisory board is planning a bus tour of the watershed to mark the authority's 25th anniversary this year. The bus tour will be held about the middle of September.

The water control advisory board is also getting into the 25th anniversary celebrations and will stage an official opening for the authority's Dyer Rock Lake dam and reservoir northeast of Flinton. The new dam on Partridge Creek, a tributary of the Skootamatta River, is now in operation and the reservoir is full with water flowing over the spillway.

It is expected that the official opening of the dam will take place about mid September.

The education and information advisory committee will mark the 25th anniversary by the publication of a brochure outlining the authority's achievements during its 25 years of operation.

The authority was established July 31, 1947 and had the late Harry A. Harrison of Thurlow township as its first chairman. This year's chairman is James Spry of Rawdon township.

Eighteen municipalities, including Belleville, and the villages of Tweed, Madoc and Deloro are members of the authority. Three of the member municipalities are in Lennox and Addington county and the remainder in south and centre Hastings.

Cleanup Stymied

The departments assisted by army cadets — is engaged in creating a greenbelt strip along the east end of the Great St. James St. bluff, for years an unofficial dumping ground.

Litter surreptitiously deposited in the area is among the debris being hoisted from the two acres lush-covered site being readied as parkland.

There were no problems until yesterday when cadets reporting for work found a site they had cleared the previous day cluttered with tree limbs and brush.

Parks officials said someone apparently had trimmed off nearby trees and bushes and unceremoniously dumped foliage over the bluff. Clearing the blockage meant an extra day's painstaking work, since debris has to be laboriously hauled up the slope.

"The work's demanding enough as it is," said a parks official called to the scene. And it would help if certain members of the public would co-operate instead of being a nuisance."

Self Expression Is Course Aim

Between 30 and 50 children are going to school each day to express themselves in art now program sponsored by the city recreation-arena department.

Under the co-ordination of area artist Audrey Davies, youngsters are being taught how to express themselves using art mediums.

The two-tone, pink basement of King George School on North Front Street has become all but covered with paintings and sketches created by the children aged seven to 12.

Each morning, the children march in the school's rear door and begin working on either pants or clay.

Through the co-operation of the Hastings County Board of Education, the class has been loaned several potter's wheels.

"The children can work with the clay then switch to paints then back to clay or sketching making an entire day of activity," said Mrs. Davies.

The idea of the class is not to turn out painters and potters but to give each child a chance to express himself.

"It is exciting to work in the various mediums and the children sense this and keep coming back to try new things and work on new projects under the guidance of instructors Roger Neil and Kathy Johnson," said Mrs. Davies.

It is significant that the children keep coming back.

There is no cost for the course, you just come and go as you please.

"It is an open concept that allows the child to work when he really feels like creating," said Mrs. Davies.

"You can really see this as each day goes by with the same child," said one instructor.

Mrs. Davies, commenting on this said, "our instructors give the children projects to complete such as what is your favorite thing?" If the child is in a bad mood one day he will paint very muddy while the following day, when his mood has changed, he is likely to do some beautiful work."

Each of the pieces of art is a very personal thing and wherever possible, the piece is placed on display on one of the basement walls.

Pieces of pottery, ranging from monsters to little bowls and vases, clutter a bench waiting to be dried and smoothed and fired while many more pieces cover the tables and floors awaiting either for finishing touches or for their owner to return to the class.

At the end of the six-week course, pieces will be taken to a display area somewhere in the city where the general public can take a look at what has been going on.

A location or date has not been set.

Parents are invited to bring children and play in the clay for a while and see why the children are so excited.

Police Helpful

Thursday traffic on Front Street will not be hampered by the annual sidewalk sale, with barricades not being erected until Friday morning.

The Downtown Association recruiting the co-operation of the Belleville Police Department in allowing the parking lanes to be sectioned off Friday morning rather than having to wait until the afternoon.

This will allow merchants to set displays into the street.

The section of the street to be included in the sidewalk sale plan stretches from Victoria Avenue to Campbell Street.

Extra officers from the police department will be patrolling Front Street for the safety of the crowd.

Clowns, rides and games will keep children occupied while parents can browse over the goods lining both sides of Front Street on outdoor stands.

While parents shop, children can watch the antics of clowns as they cavort up and down the street.

"This sale is not just for parents," said Mr. Adams. "What we don't want is mothers hiring baby sitters thinking the children will be a hindrance while browsing. The whole idea is to involve the entire family in the spirit of having fun downtown and getting to know the merchants."

Pound after pound of candy and balloons have been donated to the cause by merchants, to be distributed by the clowns to the children.

Childrens' rides will also be erected in the now vacant lot at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Front Street.
